SEPTEMBER

THE BEACHES no longer have to put up with the yells of Aunt Sophie going into the water up to her knees. The canoes with their record players have gone, and the lagoons are resting. Gardens are declining. The fields stand soberly in the harvest now like cows at milking. Canada's all outdoors is coming to the end of its year.

In the towns and cities, however, September is a time of new beginnings. School's in! This particular new beginning pleases few except parents and the neighbors of parents; but urban September is not a month that sets out to please with beguiling ways. It is a month for facing up to life.

Executives come back and try to cover up their summer's loaf by pressing buzzers. Small boys form into gangs and run and throw things. Seriousminded organizations resume their meetings, and all over Canada thousands of speakers (most of them called "guest speakers") speak millions of words. Storm windows and storm doors are dragged out. The social season begins again, with the liverish marks of bathing suit straps showing on the coffee-shade back of dancing maidens. There is a run on bingo cards and playing cards.

September is a fine month for the townsman, especially if he can still get away to the country.

CIENCE has proved there are certain food elements everyone needs for health. If there aren't enough of them in a child's food, serious things can happen-such as stunted growth, soft bones, poor teeth, faulty nerves, loss of appetite, defective eyesight.

Ovaltine supplements the diet with elements frequently deficient in ordinary foods. Three servings of Ovaltine furnish a significant portion of a child's daily requirements of Vitamins A, B1, C, D, Riboflavin (B2), and Niacin and Minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron.

In addition it provides the basic food substances-complete proteins to build muscle, nerve and body cells -high-energy foods for vitality and endurance. It thus acts as an insurance against food deficiencies that retard normal growth.

So if your child eats poorly, is thin, delicious Ovaltine for normal growth and better appetite.
