CONCILIATION COMPROMISE IS APPROVED

An Agreement on wages and hours of work between waiters and bartenders in the city's eight beer parlors and the hotel operators was presented to a Department of Labor conciliation board which sat this morning after the disputing parties had arrived at an accord prior to the sitting of the board. The board, which was set up under terms of recent provincial legislation to conciliate disputes, consisted of Alderman A. S. Nickerson chairman, H. F. Glassey representing the hotel operators and J. S. Black for the bartenders' union.

The board accepted the compromise as presented by the two groups, subject to the approval of the department of labor. No decision was required of the board. The conciliation board was the first of its kind to be set up in Prince Rupert under terms of the "Bill 39" legislation which was passed at the last session of the provincial house. The regulation requires that in cases of labor disputes, conciliation efforts must be made before other action is taken.

OTTAWA, (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King was informed sharply in Commons Monday that he wasn't "God Almighty" by Progressive Conservative J. M. McDonnell of Muskoka, Ontario as the Commons battled through the distribution bill debate.

AERIAL MAPPING OF CENTRAL INTERIOR

One of the biggest jobs being done by the peacetime R.C.A.F. is the aerial photographing of Canada, a task begun by the Air Force in 1924 but now being done on a larger scale than ever before. This year, using new equipment and techniques, the R.C.A.F. hopes to cover 700,000 square miles of the Dominion by means of aerial photos. Shown on the map above are the areas to be photographed by the nine detachments of the R.C.A.F.'s two photographic squadrons, based at Rockcliffe near Ottawa, and operating this season in scattered parts of the country. Ultimately, all of Canada will be photographed. The work is done in close co-operation with the Department of Mines and Resources and other government departments, and the photographs are used by them for mapping and exploration and many other purposes, including agricultural, mineral and timber development. The work is an important factor in pushing back the Dominion's frontiers and in development of her resources. (It will be noted that the Groundhog coal field area is included in this aerial photographic campaign, also extensive areas in the district north of Prince George and Vanderhoof and along the British Columbia-Yukon border.)

Local Armory Owners Turn It Over to Gov't; City Gets $2,000

A patriotic gesture that had its beginning 13 years ago when a small group of far-sighted local men banded together to build an armory for the then infant 102nd Battery, First Northern British Columbia Regiment, had its final act in city council last night and left the city richer by $2,000.

Final phase of the gesture came when city council accepted the $2,000 from the former trustees and owners of the building at the intersection of Sixth Avenue West and Dunsmuir Street which had been turned over to the Department of National Defence.

Fierce Engagements Are Going On; Big Drive Is Being Made by Guerillas

ATHENS (CP)—Two major engagements were imminent in embattled northern Greece today as the government forces, reported to be closing the jaws of pincers on leftist guerillas, took up positions along the valley roads leading to Ioannina, the capital of and the largest city in Epirus.

A large guerilla force has been reported moving down the Voisi River valley toward Ioannina from Konitsa. This has now been reported caught in the pincers of the Greek army unit, reinforced at Konitsa, and by replacements moving north from Ioannina.

Attacking guerillas began moving southward after their attack on Konitsa two days ago. Military sources said this two days ago but refused any further details.

West of Ioannina at the village of Kalpaki, where a skirmish took place last night, leftist forces were reported holding strategic heights. A clash is apparently expected there.

Later, the Minister for Air Panayotis Canelopoulos announced that "the situation has radically changed in favor of the national forces in Epirus where the Greek army troops were reported snapping the pincers on strong guerilla units driving south of the key city of Ioannina."

INTERNATIONAL BRIGADE REPORT

QUEEN SUFFERS EYE AILMENT

LONDON, (CP)—Five English doctors, including eye specialists, were summoned to the Scotland-bound Royal train Monday night soon after the Royal Family left London for a two-week holiday at Edinburgh.

The train stopped at three stations in the Midlands, at each of which the Queen received treatment for an eye ailment. Queen Elizabeth had had a cinder lodged in her eye, and at each of the three emergency stops en route it was treated. Five doctors and eye specialists boarded the train to attend the queen and one London newspaper headlined the story. This morning, an announcer said Her Majesty had made complete recovery and all was well.

HOUSE ADOPTS RADIO BILL

OTTAWA, (CP)—A Progressive-Conservative move to kill a bill giving the CBC the full amount of radio license fees collected from individual owners was defeated in Commons Monday night, and the bill was given final reading.

A Note on Reading

IT IS REFRESHING to reflect sometimes that if it were not for readers there would be no need for books. Even the best books would have little circulation with no readers. With his ego thus elated, the reader should demand nothing less than tops in reading matter. A good writer, a good book and a good reader make a mighty fine combination.

With wartime restrictions on paper and book production removed, we can look for a great increase in the output of the presses. Since the beginning of historic times, the accumulation of printed matter would far exceed New York's Empire State Building in bulk. No one reader can hope to keep up with current books, let alone read all that have been written in the past. From now on he will have more choice than ever.

Choice brings up the question of reading intensively or extensively, whether it is preferable to read a little on many topics, or much on fewer topics. Except for students and professional people, most reading is done for entertainment's sake. It seems reasonable to let interest guide choice, remembering that even interests can become monotonous.

One of the few pastimes that we carry on throughout life is reading. It is in sense another way of living; it adds to happiness. Books are condensed pictures of a person, an age, another part of the world, an experience outside routine life. The happy reader's reading vitalizes him. He becomes more interested and more interesting.

No community can do more for its own good than to maintain a library; getting the right book and the right person together is one of the pleasantest functions a library fulfills: From there on the relationship is purely personal.

Approved a utilities committee recommendation that a night supervisor be appointed for the telephone department provided that it does not result in an increase of staff, and that the salary of the chief operator be increased when the change is made.

Adopted a Social Assistance committee report recommending that in future residents of the Pioneers' Home in receipt of social assistance or old age pensions be allowed to retain $10 per month, the balance to be applied to the cost of their maintenance,

WILL URGE USE OF ELEVATOR

City Council plans to make a timely bid to have Prince Rupert's terminal grain elevator used for export grain shipments during the coming winter.

Alderman T. B. Black last night asked council to investigate the possibilities of the elevator being used this year, suggesting that council co-operate with the Chamber of Commerce to that end.

"Now is the time to get the government thinking about it," Alderman Black said. "If we let it go until later in the season, they will delay all winter like they did last year."

Alderman Black was not definite as to whether the city council should handle the request itself or turn it over to the Chamber of Commerce but seemed to favor the latter.

Mayor Arnold suggested that there was no reason why council should not take the initiative and ask the support of the Chamber of Commerce.

The elevator has been empty since the fall of 1945, and no grain was shipped through it last year.

however, the sum to be paid to the Home must in no case exceed the monthly per capita cost.

Granted the Salvation Army the right to hold a tag day on October 4 in aid of their national annual drive.

Referred the matter of purchasing an inhalator to be operated in conjunction with the city ambulance, to the Fire Chief for advice. Two types of inhalators were considered in literature sent to the council.

years ago—before he became the continent's No. 1 ballad man—Burl Ives was singing an Ozarkian lullaby on his New York water-boat.

He was stiff from a long day's work in America's entertainment industry, his soul sorrowing at the sights he had seen in the republic's skid-row—where he had gone in search of a job on the road, of the kind that had led to his cabin door.

judging his consideration, Burl told his caller that he had a banjo on his shoulder which he had picked up on the Hudson River, pulled out the strings and softly strummed it. He never stopped strumming until he had really stopped singing the lullaby. Its almost hypnotic lilt filled the small room. The lad finished rolling up the banjo and swung the banjo over his shoulder, found the key and became second in a mighty fine duet. They introduced themselves.

GORDON AND ANDERSON DEFEAT NAVY IN HARD FOUGHT FASTBALL

A big crowd at the Gyro Ball Park last evening saw Gordon and Anderson nine pile up six runs in the first inning against the Navy but saw the lead being whittled down by the fighting sailors so that the game was won by the Ironmen only by a solitary run.

Duncan hit safely, Simondson got to first on an error, Moxley hit safely, Dell got on on an error, Carl Smith hit a home run and, with none out, Gordon and Anderson were six runs up. Parlett relieved Dumas but two hits and another error added one more run to Gordon and Anderson's total. Dumas got one back when he was walked, Turner hit a two-bagger and Groff and Meads were walked. Dell added another run for Gordon and Anderson when he and C. Smith hit safely. Navy went down on two strikes and an outfield fly. Parlett then held Gordon and Anderson scoreless for the next five innings whereas the Navy added two in the third, one in the fourth, one in the fifth and two in the seventh—and the score was tied.

Beback now arrived and took over the pitching from Parlett but he ran into trouble. Two walks, a hit by Simondson and two two-baggers by Dell and C. Smith brought four runs across. Back came the Navy with three runs when Dumas was safe on an error, Turner hit safely and Groff hit a two-bagger. Simondson now replaced Moxley with none out. Two hits were made off him but he struck out the next two and then Parlett flied out. In the first of the ninth Hicks was safe on an error. James hit, Duncan hit, Simondson hit and Moxley was walked so that James and Duncan scored. Gordon and Anderson had a three-run lead. First Navy man was out and then Dumas and Turner hit successive two-baggers. Groff got to first on an error and Postuk hit safely and two runs were in with two men left on, and only one run behind. Wytenbroek was out on a pop fly, and Meads hit to centre field where James gathered in the fly to put him out and retire the side, with two men left on bases.

Fielding Features

Gurvich's catch in foul territory, he went out on to Sixth Avenue, of Moxley's towering fly was a highlight. Both centre fielders did well, James taking four chances and Dumas three. Errors by Navy players did the damage, Meads who is generally the safest of fielders committed three errors and Wytenbroek also was guilty of three. Seven errors were charged against the Navy and only three against Gordon and Anderson.

Pitching Particulars

Dumas allowed three hits and five runs were scored off him, all by the first five men to face him. Two fielding errors contributed to the damage. Parlett in six and two-third innings allowed six hits, gave one walk and struck out six. Two runs were scored off him. Beback in two innings allowed six hits, walked three, struck out one, and six runs were scored off him.

In seven and one-third innings Moxley struck out six, walked five, gave up twelve hits and ten runs. In one and two-thirds innings Simondson struck out two, allowed five hits, walked none and two runs were scored off him.

Reminiscences and Reflections

By W.I.

Once upon a time, the blueprint of a majestic hotel found its way to Prince Rupert, and the sturdy pioneers with drooping chops, looked it over. . . . It was all in line with what they had been led to believe was going to happen. An excavation was blasted, but instead of a hotel, there came forth a fountain—and a pleasant, refreshing sight as fountains go. Later in Rupert's storied history, Sir Henry Thornton tarried in town, and conversations again turned to places of entertainment. But nothing passed beyond that stage. The fountain kept functioning and by and by a flawless bowling green moved up handy, to be neighborly. However, keep your fingers crossed. The first forty years are always the hardest. And the time, now, is just about up.

Ever since tourists began first to hop, skip and jump over the townsite (that, of course was pretty darned early, yet they did) that building on a great rock, near 2nd Avenue and 5th Street, was to them, a fascination that never lost its lure. It is questionable if any place here has, through the years, been more photographed. Originally the home of the Prince Rupert Club, many a diverting tale might be heard could its walls speak. Many gatherings, social and business, have been held there. The day will come, of course, when the rock will go. It would seem almost a shame. For it has the charm of novelty and "something different"—which is becoming rare enough in this age of would be copy cats and regimentation.

When railway construction was giving the grand shakeup to the Skeena River valley and townsite of Prince Rupert, presumably astute folk said it was dynamiting that was causing rain. It sounded logical, as well as noisy. But the years have disclosed something else again. It did not work out that way. After trains were running, wet weather would sometimes last for weeks. And there have been times when grass and turf turned so dry, the firemen were needed. You cannot figure Prince Rupert's climate, which has many good points, after all. It may be pleasant in March and not so hot in June. Take yesterday for example. Gray dawn, and most of forenoon the dour clouds streamed. But the afternoon and all of the long evening could challenge any

ADVERTISING IN THE DAILY NEWS BRINGS RESULTS.

MASCULINE PRIDE AT FOUR—Muscleman Alan McCarthy, 4, of Hazelcrest, Ill., flexes an iron bicep for the feminine admiration of Nancy Coyreau, 3, of Chicago. The two were among 700 babies entered in the baby contest conducted by the Women of the Moose. The contest came to a climax of infantile beauty on June 22, in the Civic Opera House in Chicago.

'IN DUTCH' WITH DUTCH

WINNIPEG — A couple of members of a local newspaper's news staff got themselves "in Dutch" with a young British mother and her baby recently.

approached the most likely-looking pair. After getting permission in sign language and taking the picture the reporter asked in his best Dutch if they were from Holland. The mother in clipped British tones, replied: "Oh, say, but we are from New Moundland."

Shotgun Campaign Starts Against Enemy of Salmon—The Hair Seal

VANCOUVER — The annual hunt for the elusive hair seal, whose depredation cause heavy loss among salmon, now is in full blast near the mouth of the Fraser River here.

Not one seal snout was recovered in a hunt staged recently by 75 crackshot fishermen armed with shotguns. In order to receive bounties, the noses have to be cut from the bodies. It is believed that about half a dozen were killed in the seven-hour hunt. When fatally injured the seal sinks like a stone, and often cheats the hunter of his bounty.

Fishermen count the seal their worst enemy and in the past have received the co-operation of the R. C. A. F. using bombing planes against the nests and the Royal Canadian Navy employing depth charges.

The seal tears one bite from a fish and reduces a first-class spring grade to third class, lowering the return by six cents a pound, fishermen allege.

Seals travel in schools and have the appearance of a cluster of over-size footballs as they travel through the water. At the first sign of danger, they disappear as if by magic.

Except for the bounty and $1 paid for the stomach by the University of British Columbia for research purposes, the hair seal has only a nuisance value.

LIQUOR, DRUGS, WOMEN INMATES MAIN DOWNFALL

TORONTO, — From the outside, the big, rambling brick building on King Street in Toronto's west end looks like a girls' school, with its lawns and flowerbeds—but that impression is dispelled by a visit inside.

For this is the Andrew Mercer Reformatory for Women, where more than 300 prisoners in drab green uniforms serve sentences up to two years for committing a variety of crimes, predominant among which are liquor and narcotics offences.

One typical survey of the reformatory's inhabitants showed that the institution had 308 prisoners from 15 to 69 years old, and of that number 35 were drug addicts and 91 were serving sentences for liquor law offences. Thievery brought another 34 to Mercer, 26 were vagrants, 13 were booked as incorrigibles, 13 owed their terms to keeping houses of prostitution, nine were frequenters of such houses and eight were common prostitutes.

Some of the older women are repeaters, with a record of residence at Mercer of up to 20 years.

Intelligence ratings are not high and more than 50 per cent are in the "dull normal" type. There are a few persons with high-school educations and a smaller number of illiterates.

To be committed to the reformatory a woman must be picked up by police and appear before a magistrate. After sentence, she is taken to Mercer and interviewed by the superintendent, Miss Jean Milne, who has been on the staff for 27 years and in her present job for 12 years. The prisoner is then shown to her cell—a plain room containing a single cot with a sheet, blanket and bedspread but no mattress or pillow. A bath with carbolic soap follows, and then a medical examination.

CHECK FOR V.D.
Exhaustive tests for the presence of venereal disease are a feature of the medical and should the prisoner show a positive reaction, she is isolated and kept in solitary confinement until past the contagious stage. A test for pregnancy is included and the girls who show signs of approaching childbirth are segregated, to be later taken to a city hospital. No babies are born in the reformatory, but the children of prisoners live in the prison nursery after birth.

A prisoner's day begins at 6:30 a.m., and half an hour later she is in chapel where a hymn-singing period follows. After a plain breakfast, she starts the day's work. This may mean labor in the laundry, ironing-room, kitchen or machine room. Miss Milne obtained permission a few years ago for the girls to have three cigarettes a day, one after each meal. Slackness or a job half done will mean cancellation of the concession. Another inducement to good behavior and rehabilitation is the system of gratuities for good conduct and work. Under the system a Mercer girl can earn up to $20 a month. Punishment for misdemeanors is not severe and the last resort is the "dungeon"—three basement cells with iron

URGES IMPERIAL AIRCRAFT POLICY

HATFIELD, Hertfordshire, Eng. — A planned imperial aircraft policy which "would greatly strengthen the British Commonwealth," was urged by Chairman Alan S. Butler at the De Havilland Aircraft (Australian) Company's annual general meeting.

Development in the Dominions, especially Canada and Australia, should be given all possible support, Butler said, adding that "a virile aircraft engineering and production industry in the Dominions is of the greatest importance to the Empire as a whole."

AUTOMATIC SMOKER—While cigar smokers can lament the waste of perfectly good 25-centers as this automatic cigar smoker puffs away, it's all in the interest of science. The automatic puffer in operation in a Montreal laboratory, measures the rate of burning of cigars. And that fact is important to Quebec, which had a $3,000,000 tobacco crop last year. In Ontario, it was worth $50,000,000 to farmers.
