Much interest is being shown in sport circles today regarding the outcome of tonight's senior basketball game at the Civic Centre and it's the age-old argument again - experience vs.

At the initial preeting of the Basketball Association this season it appeared that there were two fine senior teams and two weak outfits and something had to be done. The executvie of the association went to work, refused the entry of the two teams, gave them time to pick one team from the two and then bolstered them with some of the best known stars of the game in Northern British Columbia.

Angus MacPhee returned from the south with no intention of playing this year. Jack Lindsay, who had retired last season, was definitely still on the retired list. Sonny Beynon, who hasn't been up to par as far as condition goes, hadn't made up his

First of all MacPhee admitted that there was some help needed to assure supporters of the sport an interesting season so he took over the job of organizing things and Mr. Lindsay was approached. Lindsay was at first "out of the picture" as far as he was concerned and anyone else for that matter. He was too busy building houses, running his business and his job as chairman of athletics at the Civic Centre also called for considerable time. However, when it was explained that the operation of an interesting senior fit try their luck.. It may be the league was in jeopardy, it was "alright, I'll play-but I'm not in shape mind you."
