DEMONSTRATION RE GAS RATIONING HELD IN LONDON—Thousands of motorists from many parts of England converged on the west end of London to take part in the monster 'Save the Basic Petrol Ration" demonstration held in Hyde Park at noon. Ten protest meetings were held in the park, and later six representatives of the motorists presented a petition to the minister of fuel. Biggest job of the rally fell to the police, who had to keep a check on the motorists as they entered London along the special routes previously fixed. Here, motorists cheer the car containing the deputation as it leaves Hyde Park, London, to drive to the ministry of fuel, where the petition was presented.

He was seventy-four years of age and died in hospital here at an early hour after suffering a heart ailment.

ARMY BANDSMEN MAY DRESS UP

OTTAWA—Personnel of all active and reserve force bands in the Canadian Army are busy overhauling, pressing and generally sprucing up full dress uniforms which they regretfully tucked away in mothballs early in the war. The new order authorizes dress uniforms for bandsmen only. Indications are that it will be some time before all ranks of the army will be permitted to wear the colorful and smartly tailored outfits.

TWO FINED FOR GAME OFFENCES

Fines totalling $85 were levied against two men in magistrate's court this morning after they had pleaded guilty to charges of infractions of the Game Act laid by Game Warden Edward Martin.

Ernest Fred Jabour was fined $50 by Magistrate Vance for buying furs without a license. The offence took place in the city last spring.

Richard Letourneau pleaded guilty to a charge of carrying a loaded fire arm in a motor vehicle and received a fine of $25 or 30 days. He also was fined $10 with an option of 10 days in jail after pleading guilty to a charge of carrying fire arms without a license. Both offences took place near Prudhomme Lake on November 11.

The fines were paid in all cases.

General Will Manage Elizabeth's Menage

LONDON (AP)—The responsibility of running Princess Elizabeth's home after her marriage—the second most important housekeeping job in the kingdom—falls to a famous soldier who might easily be a romantic figure in a novel by his wife, Daphne Du Maurier.

The choice of Lt.-Gen. Sir Frederick A. M. Browning, whose gallantry in two wars won him legendary reputation, for a post so prosaic as that of the future queen's business manager led many people to suspect that the appointment was mostly honorary.

That it is anything but a sinecure, however, was made plain by official sources, some of whom said the appointment was considered so vital that the King himself had asked Gen. Browning to forsake the War Office and assume duties alien to his experience, if not to his nature.

"It's almost as if the king of France had put D'Artagnan to work keeping books or supervising the shopping," commented one who has known Gen. Browning as the builder of Britain's airborne forces and one of the heroes of the battle of Arnhem in 1944.

As controller and treasurer of Princess Elizabeth's household, effective January 1, Sir Frederick will handle all her financial affairs, supervise the staff and see to the smooth running of the house generally.

This means he will engage the staff for the Princess's establishment, secretaries and aides for Elizabeth and her husband-to-be, Philip Mountbatten, sign cheques for household purchases and have charge of whatever money Parliament votes the couple after marriage.

A palace spokesman said that Gen. Browning would not actually live on the premises, but would maintain a suite of offices there, observe a regular daily working schedule and hold morning conferences with the Princess.

To what extent Mountbatten will take part in these discussions is highly speculative. If he continues his naval career—as he said frequently he wants to do—he would be absent from home much of the time. In some qualified quarters it is believed he eventually will be given a high post at the Admiralty. This would enable him to play a fuller part as consort, sharing place with Princess Elizabeth at public functions, certain to increase after the first of the year.

Now 50 years old, Gen. Browning was only 19 when as a member of the celebrated Grenadier Guards in 1917 he was decorated for "conduct beyond all praise." Through exceptional bravery and leadership he rose to the rank of adjutant of his battalion before he was 21.

It was in those days that fellow-officers first tagged him with the nickname "Boy," which stuck all through the period between the wars when he was stationed at Sandhurst, and survives today as a mark of admiration and affection.

In the early stages of the Second World War he organized and trained airborne troops for their task of invading the continent.

He himself jumped with his paratroopers in operations over Holland. Subsequently he was named chief of staff to Lord Louis Mountbatten, Allied commander in the Southeast Asia theatre. In September, 1946, he was appointed military secretary to the secretary of war.

An all-round athlete, with special enthusiasm for yachting and bob-sledding despite the war wounds, he trained himself for Olympic games after the First World War, competing as high hurdler and as a member of the British bob-sled teams.

EXPLOSION IN ROCKET PLANT

Two Scientists Are Killed In Blast In British Testing Establishment

LONDON (CP)—Explosion ripped Britain's rocket research station on low-rolling hills near Aylesbury today. The minister of supply listed two dead and ten missing. The dead include Dr. Johannes Schmidt, aged 44, head of a team of German expert brought to Britain after the war.

Experiments were being conducted on rocket assistance to an airplane take-off and were said to have gone awry.

An eye-witness said that two rockets were set up for the tests. When the first was fired, a seond exploded and persons standing around it were hit.

The station also conducted research into rocket missiles but these were tested elsewhere.

A team of German rocket experts, headed by Dr. J. Schmidt, formerly in charge of German rocket research at Kiel, has assisted in the station's work.

FISCAL CHANGES IN BRITAIN EXPECTED AS DALTON RESIGNS

Sensational Turnover Involving Leading Cabinet Member — Revealed Secrets of Budget

LONDON (CP)—The resignation of Rt. Hon. Hugh Dalton as Chancellor of the Exchequer, will almost certainly mean changes in financial policy which will be widely regarded as desirable although bitterly unpalatable, financial circles predicted today. The bessing, if it so proves, will be in heavy disguise. Where Dalton hit with whips, Sir Stafford Cripps may hit with scorpions. But it was widely felt today that Cripps might become a great force for the uniting of the nation.

It is felt that what the public resented is not austerities, with which Sir Stafford has been identified, but the fact that Dalton's financial policy made austerities appear meaningless without end in either purpose or time.

Measures can now be expected which will bring home to every citizen's pocket the gravity of the national situation.

Dalton was dropped from the cabinet Thursday night in a swiftly-developing "leak" scandal that shook Labor's crisis-harried government.

Sir Stafford Cripps was named to succeed Dalton as chancellor. He retains the recently-assumed duties of co-ordinator of Britain's industrial drive. Cripps thus emerged as the undisputed "strong man" of the government.

Dalton was officially the fourth in seniority in Premier Attlee's cabinet. He resigned after apologizing to the House of Commons for a "grave indiscretion" in disclosing tax secrets to a reporter a few minutes before he introduced his emergency interim budget in Parliament on Wednesday.

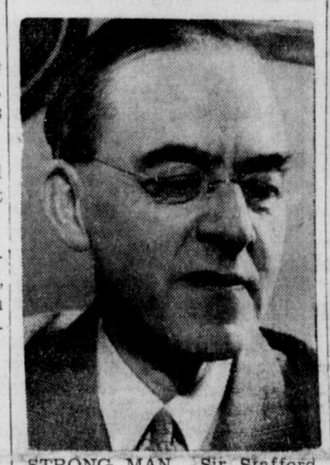
Dalton's resignation is the first major change and the biggest sensation since Labor came into power more than two years ago.

CHURCHILL ASKS FOR INVESTIGATION

Possibility of further repercussions is seen in the demand from Winston Churchill for an investigation by a House of Commons committee. He termed Dalton as the "brightest mind" in the Labor government and sympathized with him in the situation in which he found himself.

It was a reporter of the Labor paper, the Star, who intercepted Dalton as he entered the House of Parliament to deliver the budget and obtained from him information as to the contents of the budget which were then published in advance of its delivery.

After seeing the King, Prime Minister Attlee formally accepted the resignation of an "old and respected colleague."



STRONG MAN—Sir Stafford Cripps, new Chancellor of British Exchequer.

W. H. Tobey Tells of New Equipment and Rehabilitation Outlay

W. H. The line operates a distance of 347 miles between Squamish and Quesnel and is connected with Vancouver by passenger steamer and rail barge service.

OTTAWA NOT SATISFACTORY

Typically Uninformative Answer Received to Request For Better Radio Broadcast

Another non-informative answer from Ottawa has been received by the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce to its latest representations for an improvment in the broadcast service from station CFPR. Says a letter just received from the Department of Public Works: "Negotiations between Public Works Department, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and other interested parties are continuing and every effort is being made to work them out satisfactorily."

The Public Works Department enters into the picture through controlling Government Telegraphs lines over which CBC network programs are carried into Prince Rupert. At present commercially sponsored programs such as the National Hockey League are not broadcast from CFPR owing to the heavy overhead involved by telegraphic line charges.

The Chamber of Commerce is working from the basis of some of these programs, while sponsored, being in the way of a public service.

Case of Hugh Dalton

A CHANCE MISPLACED confidence in a newspaper reporter has brought about a major political repercussion in Britain—the resignation on a point of honor of Rt. Hon. Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer and one of Britain's most important respected public men. Mr. Dalton has and is entitled to the sympathy which was expressed for him not only by Prime Minister Attlee but by Mr. Churchill. Mr. Dalton was indiscreet, no doubt, in revealing budget secrets, even in confidence, it is simply something that is not done, but despicable was the reporter who took advantage of the indiscretion.

The reporter discredited his journalistic profession for, contrary general supposition notwithstanding, the good newspaperman often possesses many confidences and information that he does not talk about, much less publish. Fortunately, such glaring incidents as this of breaking the code are so rare that they are sensational. In this case it was unfortunately tragically fatal to a good and valuable public career.

WAS NOTED AS ENTERTAINER

Funeral of Ulysses De La Ferre Held Here Wednesday Afternoon

Funeral of Ulysses De la Ferre, widely known entertainer, whose death took place in the Prince Rupert General Hospital a few days ago, took place Wednesday afternoon from the chapel of B. C. Undertakers to Fairview Cemetery. Rev. Fred Antrobus, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiated, and Mrs. J. C. Gilker presided at the organ to accompany the hymns. Pallbearers were E. A. Evans, Fred Barber, Capt. Earl Jarrett, G. E. Evans, Rev. Basil S. Prockter and C. J. Carter.

Widely travelled theatrical artist, illusionist and entertainer, the late Mr. De la Ferre was born in Bournemouth, England, and his funeral coincidentally, took place on his sixty-fifth birthday. He lived in Trinidad, British West Indies, and Dutch Guiana, South America, for a number of years and then came to Canada. After some time in Montreal and elsewhere, he moved west and resided in Vancouver for seven years. During the war he travelled up and down th coast, entertaining men of the various forces and was often in Prince Rupert. Ill for the past two years, he had resided at Stewart near his son, Leslie, and daughter, Cecilia, of Premier. His wife passed away in the West Indies 15 years ago.

Among those who sent flowers to the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Bayne and Mr. and Mrs. E. Brady (Stewart).

TELLS ABOUT SIKH NATION

How They Became Finest Soldiers of Indian Nation

The historic position of the Sikhs in India was explained to the Rotary Club Thursday afternoon by Col. A. Hamilton Grant, local Department of Veterans' Affairs officer and former member of the Indian Army in the Punjab. Col. Grant spoke at the club's weekly luncheon meeting in the Commodore Cafe.

A religious offshoot of Hinduism, the Sikhs have a long history of persecution which changed them from a harmless sect into a military group that eventually produced some of the finest combat troops in the British Commonwealth, he said.

The persecution originated with the Moslem moguls and continued through several dynasties of slaughter and torture. Eventually the sect organized itself on military lines in self defence with such success that when the British arrived in India they were the dominant group in the northern section.

Following the arrival of the British, the Spartan attitude of the Sikhs became reduced and the sect dwindled in numbers. Noting the fine military qualities of the Sikhs, the British recruited them into the army, requiring them to swear to the oaths of their religion, thus doing much to maintain the integrity of the sect and tapping a pool of fine fighting as well.

Today, they are in the unhappy position of being caught between the Moslems of Pakistan, their traditional enemies, and the Hindus. This has revived the ancient persecution.

Col. Hamilton Grant was thanked for his talk by club president Lee Gordon, who also welcomed J. E. Robertson of Vancouver as a guest.

DESCRIBES HIGHWAY

Prince Rupert-Terrace Section "Good"—Pleasant Memories Of Prince Rupert

An American tourist who recently made the trip from Prince Rupert to Vancouver in a jeep and trailer has written E. T. Applewhaite, secretary of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, telling of his reaction to the highway. Condition of various parts of the road are different, according to the letter, the section between this city and Terrace ranking as "good."

"The road from Prince Rupert to Terrace is good," the letter says, "and on to Hazelton it is somewhat narrow with a few bad slides around Skeena Crossing. There is a section of bad road, narrow, winding and greasy, around the Perow area.

"I think the worst section is in the Cariboo, being between 83 Mile House and the Chasm, and the hill outside 100 Mile House. These spots are rough, choppy, greasy and just plain bad.

"However, they are straightening and fixing some of the spots in these areas and the new road will be open next year. The hard surface starts at Cache Creek and from there to Vancouver it is fine. There has been considerable straightening and widening along the Fraser River canyon."

The writer, recalling his stay in Prince Rupert, recalls with "fond remembrance the nice people" here.

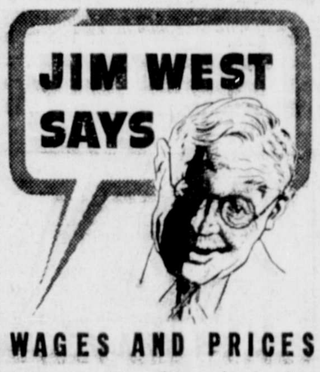
JIM WEST SAYS



WAGES AND PRICES

I guess just about the hardest thing to figure out is what part of the cost of things we consume is represented by wages and salaries.

A lot of people would say about 50 per cent, and point to some particular company's figures to prove it.

But then what about the cost of the raw materials used in manufacture? About half their cost, too, went directly into wages and salaries.

And what about the cost of fuel? Most of that is wages and salaries.

What about the cost of new machinery, of freight, of cartage, of mail, of taxes and a hundred and one other things that all went into the company's general costs? Weren't they all made up mainly of the cost of wages and salaries?

For that matter, since everything in business and industry is done by people who have to be paid for what they do if they're going to keep on doing it, what else enters into the cost of what we use othe than wages and salaries?

"Ah," someone says. "Profits!"

But the average profit of ALL companies over a period of years is only a little more than four per cent—nearly always less than six per cent. That's the cost of using saved-up capital, of buying the brains of people who run businesses. The rest (even taxes) goes to wages and salaries, directly and indirectly.

That must be the reason why the business of trying to jack wages up suddenly and not raise prices is about as profitable as chasing the weasel 'round and 'round the mulberry bush!

UNITED CHURCH SUPPER ENJOYED

Two Hundred and Forty Guests at Affair Lasts Night

Turkey with a retinue of dressing, cranberry sauce, pickles, vegetables and pies featured the annual fowl supper held in the First United Church Hall last night.

The Senior Women's Auxiliary sponsored the supper, assisted by other ladies of the church who helped prepare the delicious meal and volunteered their services as serviteurs.

Following the supper Rev. R. A. Wilson acting as master of ceremonies, introduced a program of entertainment to the 240 guests present.

J. S. Wilson, accompanied by Miss Laverna Linney, led the audience in community singing and later entertained with a number of Irish songs. Miss Linney also rendered a piano solo and Eddie Ciccone played several selections on his piano accordian.

Vocal solos by Miss Grace Merriwell completed the enjoyable program.

TERRACE CIVIC CENTRE ACTIVE

Changes and Improvements Being Made—Committees Are Reorganized

TERRACE — Committee reorganization and other business was disposed of at a general meeting of the Terrace and District Civic Centre Association in the Oddfellows' Hall on Wednesday evening with Dudley Little, president, in the chair. There was an excellent attendance and routine business was quickly disposed of after which a general and at times lively discussion took place on various subjects.

It was decided to carry out the several suggestions of Alf Yoxall, the director, as far as possible. S. Campbell has undertaken to introduce a Pro-Rec program and, in order to assist in this, it was decided to purchase a piano. The president and treasurer were commissioned to secure a suitable instrument.

George McAdams stressed the necessity for a street light to be installed at the forks of the road leading to the Civic Centre and also pointed out that there was a great need of a sidewalk leading from the centre of the town towards the Civic Centre and direction signs for the convenience of visitors. A good deal of discussion took place on this proposal and it was agreed to approach the local commissioners in respect of these matters.

On the suggestion of Mel Peeke-Vout it was further decided to seek the installation of a light at the outside corner of the Civic Centre building. This matter will be attended to as soon as possible.

NEW COMMITTEES ARE SET UP

After discussion it was decided to discharge the old committees and to form new committees, looking toward a vigorous program of activity for the winter months.

The new chairmen of the various committees are:

Finance—Duncan Kerr.

Building and Maintenance—Walter Chesher.

Membership and Organization—O. Baxter.

Athletics—Mel Peeke-Vout.

Choral and Dramatic — Mrs. Chesher.

Children's Recreation—Mrs. S. Campbell.

Mrs. D. Little and Mrs. Peeke-Vout offered their services in arranging for a Civic Centre tea to be held in the Orange Hall on December 20, which on the motion of J. H. Smith was gratefully accepted.

The meeting decided to offer the use of the clubroom to the Women's Institute for their monthly meetings.

Colin Cooper and Otto Lindstrom offered to work with the president to organize a bee for getting in the winter fuel.

As a result of a certain amount of criticism respecting the opening of the Civic Centre to members on Sundays, after discussion it was agreed that the executive endeavor to arrange a meeting with the local ministers to discuss the whole question and attempt to arrive at a conclusion satisfactory to all.

LAY PLANS FOR RADIO AUCTION

Junior Chamber of Commerce in Session Last Night

Radio auction, the Junior Chamber of Commerce' annual amateur talent program, which last year raised more than $400 for the Civic Centre, the Salvation Army and the Pioneer Home, will be repeated again this year, the monthly meeting of the Junior Chamber decided last night. Date of the show was left open to the discretion of the radio auction committee.

This year, proceeds of the show will be equally divided between the Civic Centre, Salvation Army and Junior Chamber of Commerce treasury. Chairman of the committee is J. H. Jeffries and committee members are Fred Conrad, Stuart Furk, Frank Parlette, David Bailey, Eric Speer, Martin Van Cooten and Harold Helgerson.

Last night's meeting was held in the Civic Centre dining room with 18 members and six guests present. The guests were W. L. Armstrong, representing the Prince Rupert Senior Chamber of Commerce, E. A. "Smokey" Smith, V.C., New Westminster; Joseph McIntyre, Vancouver; Lieut. M. Stapleton, Obert Hougan, and Neil McKelvie.

The excellent co-operation between the junior and senior chambers was brought to the attention of the meeting by Mr. Armstrong, and by Fred Conrad, who with Martin Van Cooten, had been Junior Chamber delegates to the November meeting of the Senior Chamber earlier this month. David Bailey and Walter Landon were appointed delegates to the December meeting of the senior Chamber.

Carlo Hansen, chairman of the public speaking class, reported that the class was operating weekly under instructorship of R. G. Moore with about a dozen members attending. The success of the class, he said, was indicated by the fact that there had been several requests from organizations seeking speakers for their meetings.

As treasurer of the Port Day committee, Mr. Hanson reported that donations to the prize fund had been $1,500, with expenditures slightly less, leaving a balance of little more than $100 to start next year's Port Day.

Junior Chamber President J. H. Jeffries informed the meeting that the "stag" party last month had netted $120.

Date of the December meeting was advanced to December 4 because civic election day falls on the same date as the regular meeting.

NEW THREE R'S

Local war veterans were hoisting a few the other day and said one to the other:

"You've heard of the three R's, I suppose?"

"'Readin', 'riting, 'rithmetic?"

"Old stuff."

"How come?"

"It goes likethis. At 25 years—Romance. At 45—Remorse. At 65—Rheumatism."

PREFERS LAUGH, NOT WHISTLES

Margaret Lockwood, Britain's No. 1 Actress, Wants to Escape Heart-Throb Plots For Light Fantasy Roles

By MICHAEL O'MARA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON—Margaret Lockwood, Britain's biggest feminine drawing-card at movie-house box offices, says she's "eager to escape" from roles that typed her as "the screen's most winsome wicked lady" and will turn to comedy for her next screen effort.

The film is "Red Roses for her Pillow," described as a "light modern fantasy" by studio drum-beaters.

The change will be a pleasant one for Miss Lockwood's male admirers, who were subjected to a pretty gruelling ordeal in sitting through her just-released heart-throbber, "The White Unicorn." In that opus the easy-to-look-at Lockwood is twice married, once divorced, once widowed, becomes a mother and generally carries on in a manner calculated to evoke delighted sobs from the gals in the audience.

Despite Miss Lockwood's usually competent acting, however, the "Unicorn" is largely a dead loss for the men—and it's their support (they still whistle when they recall her performance and her low-down decolletages in "The Wicked Lady") on which much of her popularity is based.

The 31-year-old star has won British movie-goers' votes for the last two years as the "No. 1" British actress and this year rates immediately behind James Mason in an "international" popularity poll in which she was pitted against Hollywood as well as British performers. Box office statistics back up the fans' opinions.

Married to a city steel-broker, Rupert Leon, and the mother of a six-year-old daughter, Margaret has no immediate ambition to crash Hollywood and its bigger payrolls, which have lured to the United States so many of her film compatriots.

She's under a seven-year contract to Arthur Rank—five years still to run—and anyway she recently told reporters:

"I think it is the duty of everyone who has found recognition in British pictures to remain here to help consolidate our films in their rightful place in world markets."

FOOD GIFTS EMBARRASSING

CAPE TOWN (P)—The number of parcels being sent from South Africa to Britain has become so large that the government is to be asked by the Union-Castle Steamship Co. to reconsider the financial terms of the sea-mail contract.

Under the existing contract the company undertakes to carry all mail for a specified yearly sum of money. This includes all parcels. At the time of the signing of the agreement it was not expected that the parcel freight would increase to the enormous proportions which it has reached today as a result of the South African response to the food-for-Britain appeal.

The problem of shipping food parcels from the Dominion to Britain has already caused concern to London authorities. Australia has suggested the food should be sent in bulk to a central point in Britain. There voluntary workers would receive it and share it into standard sized parcels before distributing to the people concerned.

In this way valuable shipping space would be saved and a speed-up in deliveries would be effected.

The Johannesburg post office has reported an increase of almost double last years Christmas postings of food and gift parcels and an extra receiving counter has had to be installed.

MASSETT HAS HAPPY PARTY

Substantial Amount Raised Towards Movie Projector

The village of New Massett wants a motion picture projector and has set out to raise the funds by sponsoring various money-making schemes. The latest was a barn dance complete with floor show arranged by the teen-agers under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. A. Krist.

Last Friday night the young people held a dress rehearsal and invited the children of the village to attend at a nickel apiece. Besides the live entertainment there was a fish pond. Candied apples and popcorn stands also did a brisk trade during intermission.

Saturday night 14 tables of whist went into action and there were popcorn, candied apple and homemade fudge booths catering to those who would rather eat than shuffle the pasteboards. Refreshments were served and a floor show presented. Big feature of the entertainment was the parade of "animals" domestic and wild, that moved onto the floor led by the farmer and his wife. The antics of the cow being chased by the calf and a milkmaid caused roars of appreciative laughter. The horse, pig and rabbit behaved with more dignity but a cat and dog took up their ancient feud when introduced. Included in the program were action songs by the teen-agers and community singing.

Dancing followed the floor show. Qaudrilles, reels and other oldtime dances with occasional waltzes predominated. Many of the dancers, entering into the spirit of the night, arrived in costume which fitted very well into the atmosphere created by the saddles, wagon wheels and other equipment the teen boys used in decorating the hall.

When the young people of Massett counted their receipts they had $89 which was promptly turned over to the community fund.

Timely Recipe

"Ripe Olive and Apple Slices" make a new and interesting meat accompaniment. Even though the meat course may be scanty and simple, it will seem ample and partyish if you circle the meat platter with these tasty olive-topped apple slices.

½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup grated Canadian cheese
½ cup chopped ripe olives
Few drops Tabasco sauce
5 large cooking apples

Combine mayonnaise, cheese, olives and Tabasco sauce and blend well. Core and slice apples into thick rounds. Spread with olive mixture and place under broiler until cheese is melted and mayonnaise has browned slightly. Serve as a garnish with meat.

Modern Etiquette
By ROBERTA LEE

Q. When calling on a friend at a hotel or in an apartment, does one go directly to the room?

A. This is considered very bad taste and thoughtless.. One should never go to the friend's room without telephoning. This may be done either from one's home or by use of the house telephone.

Q. If a friend has a book one wishes to read, is it all right to ask outright to borrow it?

A. No; one may ask if the book is interesting, but if no offer is made to lend it to you, let the matter drop.
