Three Ketchikan men who fought heavy winds in an aircraft to get pictures of the battered wreck of the Clarksdale Victory off Hippa Island wound up their trip here last night after six hours of flying which they were unable to reach the west coast of the Queen Charlottes.

Said Pilot Charles Barnes of the Ketchikan Air Service, who landed his Seabee amphibian here at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon: "I've fought rougher weather, but not for so long."

The trio—Barnes, Ralph Browne, associate editor of the Ketchikan Chronicle, and photographer Walt Akins—left Ketchikan at 10:15 Tuesday morning to get a picture of the wreck of the Clarksdale Victory, which apparently has claimed the lives of all 49 of her crew.

They expected to be back in Ketchikan at noon. Instead, they spent the night in Prince Rupert, returning home this morning.

Barnes, a 22-year-old veteran of the American Army Air Force, knows the Alaska coast but has never piloted the B.C. coast before. Consequently, when he set out for Massett yesterday morning, he had a slight feeling of satisfaction when he saw a town beneath an hour later. It was Browne who punctured his dream.

"That's not Massett," cried Browne as the plane emerged from the overcast at 11:15. "That's Prince Rupert. I can tell by the grain elevator."

He was right. The light aircraft, buffeted by a cross wind, had been blown south while heading west from Tree Point on the American side of Portland Canal. The three took the matter philosophically while Barnes brought the plane down on the harbor to study a map of the coast.

They headed westward for Massett Inlet, determined to cross to the west coast and get a picture of the wreck. Again they failed to reckon on the weather.

Attempting to cross the 15-mile mountainous stretch from Massett Inlet to the west coast, they again ran into heavy winds at 2,900 feet. They fought the gale for more than an hour, seeking a gap in the mountain range.

"We had a 200-foot ceiling between the clouds and the mountains. The way the plane was bucking, I was afraid a down draught would put us in the bush," Barnes said. "We spent most of our gas trying to find a place to get over those low mountains."

If they had had a more powerful plane they could have made it with little difficulty, said Barnes, but the weather was too much for the Seabee's 120 horsepower.

PROSPECT OF PICTURE GONE

With the prospect of a picture definitely gone, Barnes headed the plane back to Massett for fuel. Aviation gas, that is, Massett, they learned, is strictly a seafaring town, despite the fact that it is officially listed as an aircraft clearing port by the Customs department. Boat gas there was plenty of, but aircraft gas none.

"I know how to compromise," said Barnes. "We took 13 gallons of boat gas."

Heading from Massett to Prince Rupert, they raised land over the Skeena River. They thought it was the Portland Canal until Browne, who knows the area, spotted the Watson Island and dock through the murk. They followed the railroad tracks to Prince Rupert, landing here after 4 p.m.

It was Akins, who had suffered silently throughout the trip, that received the final blow. Customs men, after the plane landed at Prince Rupert, impounded his camera.

NEW ARMY DRIVING TEST AT CAMP BORDEN—A new army driving test is presently in use at Camp Borden, Ont., in which the driver is required to place his front bumper directly over a line painted on the ground, with his wheel upon another line at right angles to the first. With a series of tests, together with a written paper on rule of the road regulations, all drivers in Camp Borden are being checked to ensure they are good drivers. Those who fail are taken off D.N.D. vehicles. This testing is in line with the recently announced combined services accident prevention program now being implemented by the Department of National Defence. Shown above undergoing the test is Cpl. H. F. Pack of Hamilton, who is now with the R.C.O.C. school at Longue Pointe, Que. The soldier with the plumb line and ruler is Cpl. R. G. Lord of Vancouver, who is now with the R.C.A.S.C. school.

CITY PURCHASES ARMY WORKSHOP

The former Canadian Army electrical and mechanical engineers' workshop at the corner of Second Avenue and First Street is to be taken over by the city as a storage and repair depot for its works and utilities equipment.

Built at a cost of $23,931, the large structure is being sold by War Assets to the city for $1,914, eight per cent of its construction cost.

The building is situated on five lots on Second Avenue. Four of these lots are owned by the city but the fifth belongs to the provincial government, and the city will attempt to trade another city-owned lot for the one in question.

Included with the sale is a heating plant and a six-ton capacity overhead hoist which will be of value for repairing city equipment.

PROPOSALS PRESENTED

Mayors and Reeves Get Good Reception from Provincial Cabinet

VICTORIA—Members of the delegation representing municipalities of British Columbia expressed themselves as well pleased with the reception they received yesterday by the cabinet to which they presented proposals to have the cost of education in British Columbia borne entirely by the province, possibly by a specially levied sales tax. The proposals, originally sponsored by the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, had been supported Monday by a meeting of more than sixty British Columbia mayors and Reeves.

Mayor William Mott of New Westminster stated after the meeting that members of the cabinet had promised to consider the proposals but gave no indication of what their final attitude might be.

70-YEAR-OLD WOMAN ESCAPES BURNING HOUSE

Mrs. Jennie Brentzen, 70-year-old crippled Port Simpson woman, managed to save herself, despite her handicap, when flames destroyed her five-roomed home at the coast village 20 miles north of Prince Rupert at noon Tuesday.

Fire fighting efforts by Port Simpson men failed to halt the flames which had gained considerable headway before they were first noticed. The fire, of unexplained origin, started in a bedroom. Mrs. Brentzen was barely able to save herself. With Mrs. Brentzen, who is the mother of Mrs. Bertha Scherk of Prince Rupert, was a small child, Janice Wahl, who also was uninjured.

Three Bodies Found; Little Hope Is Held For Remaining 44

Presumed to Have Been Lost in Fierce Storm After Stranding on Queen Charlotte West Coast

KETCHIKAN @—The United States Coastguard reported here today that it had found four men alive and three dead on the bow of the Army transport Clarksdale Victory which smashed on the rocky beach of Hippa Island Monday night and became a total loss in the pounding by mountainous seas. Capt. Nels Haugen, commandant, said that the searching party did not report finding any trace of the other 44 members of the ship's crew and prospects for their survival "do not look very good." He said that a combing of the beach and wooded section of the rugged little island failed to disclose any trace of survivors ashore despite the report of aerial observers that three men had been sighted on the beach yesterday. The search is being continued with two more ground parties going ashore today from the coastguard. It was learned here today that the Denali had been unable to get landing parties away from that ship yesterday, one lifeboat being smashed on launching and the seamen being picked out of the ocean.

It is now feared that forty-seven members of the crew of the United States Army transport Clarksdale Victory, which ran ashore on a reef off Hippa Island, west coast of Queen Charlotte Islands, Monday night and soon pounded to pieces under the violence of mountainous seas lashed by a fierce ocean storm, perished. Four men have been rescued from the bow left clinging on the reef. Yesterday a United States Coastguard rescue plane was thought to have sighted three survivors on the beach of Hippa Island. Landing parties from Coastguard vessels which reached the scene of the disaster yesterday afternoon, were reported to have made shore late in the day after braving the seas with great risk to themselves, but found no trace of any survivors. What were at first believed to have been men might have been stumps, it is now thought. There were also reports last night of men having been sighted clinging to the wreckage, this being confirmed today.

With two United States Coastguard surface craft reaching the scene of the wreck since last night and further aircraft joining in the quest, the reconnaissance of the disaster scene in the hope of possibly locating and rescuing survivors continued today. The steamer Denali left Hippa Island in continuation of her voyage to Seattle after the coastguard vessels arrived.

The Clarksdale Victory ran ashore at 9:58 p.m. Monday and a few minutes later sent out an SOS message which was picked up by United States Coastguard headquarters at Ketchikan. A radio silence then engulfed the stranded vessel. Later the Coastguard was advised that the Clarksdale Victory had broken up or was partly submerged on the reef off the west coast of Graham Island.

The fate of the crew was not known immediately but, as the hours passed, the outlook for their safety became blacker and blacker until today when the four were located alive.

The Coastguard at Ketchikan and local authorities were receiving their reports on the wreck from the steamer Denali which had reached the scene at 9:30 yesterday morning, an hour later than scheduled time, after a race which started immediately after the Clarksdale Victory sent out her "SOS." The Denali radioed soon after that only the forepart of the stricken transport was visible, the rest being broken up or submerged. Heavy sea swells were running at the time.

Provincial police officers from Queen Charlotte endeavored to approach Hippa Island today in the fishing vessel Bumper Catch but roughness of the sea forced them to turn back. The police pinned in the belief that there was little hope for the safety of the remainder of the Clarksdale Victory's crew. The fisheries patrol vessel Sooke Post also endeavored unsuccessfully to get close in to the wreck scene.

Two Royal Canadian Air Force planes from Vancouver were due to arrive at noon today at Sandspit from Vancouver.

SURVIVORS ARE FOUND ON WRECK

There was confirmation today of reports from Seattle that survivors had been seen clinging to the broken bow of the Clarksdale Victory which crumbled to pieces on Hippa Island, west coast of Queen Charlotte Islands, where she ran aground on Monday night while southbound from Whittier, Alaska, to Seattle.

Lifeboats from the rescue ship Denali were unable to reach the beach of Hippa Island to pick up three survivors believed to have been sighted thereon by reconnoitering aircraft. Provisions had been dropped on the beach by Coastguard aircraft.

The Denali reported last night that two United States Coastguard vessels had reached the scene of the wreck to join in the search. It was believed that little, if anything, could be done in the murky and stormy darkness of night so no further word was expected until morning.

There had been some abatement of the storm Tuesday night but there is always a heavy swell on Hippa Island, particularly at this time of year. The island was once the headquarters of a salmon trolling area but was abandoned years ago when the fish disappeared from there.

The Canadian Pacific Airlines Canso flying boat, leaving here yesterday afternoon on its regular run to Sandspit, had intended going out to Hippa Island to reconnoitre the wreck scene but did not go after being advised that other surface and aircraft were already there.

In Peril on the Deep

WRECK of the United States Army transport Clarksdale Victory on the west coast of the Queen Charlottes, unfortunately, gives appearance of being one of the worst marine disasters, insofar as loss of life is concerned, in many years on this coast. Last week the wreck of the British freighter Langleecrag, with loss of ship and only two lives, was in the headlines. This week, tragedy has struck, with much heavier blow, virtually on our own doorstep.

The disaster of the Clarksdale Victory reminds us that those who serve on the deep are also in peril although the degree and percentage is greatly reduced from what it was not so many years ago. That the disaster struck so close to us impresses itself the more poignantly.

MIDDLE GROUNDERS

"MIDDLE GROUNDERS" is a term we are hearing often these days. It is increasingly used to describe the large group of nations who are struggling to build some middle ground between Russia and America.

The great common interest of these nations is a desperate desire to keep the peace. Millions of their people have had such a searing personal experience of war that the belligerent talk often exchanged nowadays between Moscow and Washington starts them shuddering. Millions of people, particularly in Europe, have lived through years in which it was fatal to make a wrong choice in politics. Today they oppose anyone who would make them choose again. They do not want either Europe or their own lives to be made a battleground once more.

Millions also hold sincere middle-ground convictions. They naturally resist ideological drives from either Russia or America. Sir Hartley Shawcross, British delegate to the United Nations, put it bluntly a few days ago when he said that Britain would not permit herself to be "subjugated by either competing extremes of communism or of unbridled capitalism."

It would be easy to say that he was not in the last phase describing the United States, for capitalism in America is regulated in a dozen ways, and many Americans believe things would be better if "free enterprise" were freer. But Sir Hartley did mean America, and his conception of its capitalism is mild compared with ideas prevalent in most of the world. And those ideas govern nations' policies. In any case, even the most friendly Middle Grounders put the United States down as "one extreme" in the division between communism and capitalism, between East and West. — Christian Science Monitor.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE

IF THE CENSUS FIGURES are taken at their face value, it may be claimed that about 98 per cent of the people of Canada are professedly Christian. But at this time, when the Protestant churches are making special efforts to enlist the youth of Canada in church activities and membership, it is well that we should remind ourselves of the fact that there are millions of professed Christians in Canada who never attend a church service from one year's end to the other. This is shown by the following comparative figures for the four leading Protestant churches:

	Census	Membership
Anglican	1,751,188	800,000
United	2,204,875	739,079
Presbyterian	829,147	173,482
Baptist	483,592	137,474
Totals	5,268,802	1,850,035

Thus out of a total of 5,268,802 persons who were listed with the census takers in 1941 as belonging to those denominations, only 1,850,035 were enrolled as church members.

The Census gives the number of Roman Catholics in Canada as 4,986,552 (including Greek Catholics), of which figure 2,204,875 are listed for Quebec. As all Roman Catholics are regarded as members of the church, there is no way of determining the proportion of actual attenders, but it is generally admitted that Roman Catholics are more faithful to their church than are the Protestants.

The Christian churches stand for all that is spiritually and morally uplifting in our national life, and it is surely the plain duty of every citizen who calls himself a Christian to support the church to which he professes to belong. The tendency towards indifference or ignoring of the church is something that is to be deeply deplored and it cannot but tend to deteriorate national strength and character.

REPORTORIAL EXPERIENCES

(W. J. R.)

The photograph of the Vancouver youth, Henderson, sentenced to die within a week, appeared on the front page of a Vancouver daily not so long ago. Since then, a reprieve to March has been allowed. There were frequent letters to the press. People were interested in his case. It might have been because of his youth, 17 or thereabouts.

Once, in a province down east and near the shores of a scenic river lived a farm boy of about the same age. He found himself in a jam and never got out. It all began with a love affair. Jealousy followed. There was a dance. Brooding, and more jealousy—also more dancing, and finally the firing of a gun through a flimsy front door and a fatal wounding. The young chap was tried and sentenced to hang. This was a time prior to the period when it became customary for an execution to take place in the provincial penitentiary and nowhere else.

The country town, about a hundred miles upriver was a place of peace. Obedience to the law was accepted as a matter of course. There was little or no crime of consequence. But now, over the serene, God-fearing community with its quiet, tree-lined streets, there was felt a deep nervousness and apprehension. Right there, with stores, schools and homey dwellings on every side, where picnics, parties and weddings helped to brighten routine life from year to year, a scaffold was about to be erected. And on that scaffold, a man, born and raised not so far away, would be hanged. The raw horror of it.

No one on the staff of the morning paper covering the case and published in a city a day's journey away had ever witnessed extreme punishment. No one wanted to. "Jake" could have declined the assignment but it was clear he was expected to follow instructions. "Jake" was not his real name but somehow it fitted his style and he had no objection. He looked after marine news and sport and could go anywhere.

He stepped off the train, a stranger in town and just then was a time when an unfamiliar face was studied. The rumor grew that the official executioner had arrived. Later, when "Jake" had returned to the office and mentioned this, he gave a grim chuckle.

"Me, to be taken for him. Good Lord." The gallows was built. The newspaperman introduced himself to the sheriff, minor officials, and finally met the prisoner himself—a concession given after earnest requests. The one chiefly concerned welcomed "Jake." Both were young and could talk the same language. They discussed hockey, hunting and kindred subjects. The accused asked "Jake" to remain as long as he could. He wished have him around. And would he be there, at the last moment? There was fruit in the cell.

The prisoner invited "Jake" to have a banana with him.

In the office of the morning daily, a long distance phone call came from "Jake." It was all over. Next day he was back home, looking tired and unusually quiet.

Summing it all up in a chat with the boys after he had rested, he concluded with, "And I never tried a banana, I liked less."

What You Should Know about TRAVEL RATIONING

Why?

Canada's supply of U.S. dollars will no longer stretch far enough to permit all the purchases of goods and services or all the travel in the United States that has taken place in the past. It is, therefore, necessary to reduce our expenditures of U.S. dollars in many different ways. As one of these steps, the Government has decided that the use of U.S. dollars for pleasure travel spending must be reduced. To ensure this reduction in a way that is fair to all, an annual "travel ration" has been established. As in the past—a Form H permit is required by anyone taking out of Canada more than $10 U.S. or more than a total of $25 in Canadian and foreign currencies.

Pleasure Travel

Regulations now provide that the maximum amount of U.S. dollars which any Canadian resident may obtain for pleasure travel purposes is $150 per year. In the case of children of eleven years and under, the amount is $100. There is no restriction on the number of trips as long as this annual allotment is not exceeded. Any U.S. dollars obtained for one trip and not used on that trip must be brought back to Canada and exchanged for Canadian dollars at a bank immediately on return. No credit for these funds can be allowed against the annual ration for subsequent trips.

Business Travel

Applications for U.S. dollars for business travel must include a certification by the employer that the travel is required in his business interests. Reasonable amounts of U.S. dollars may be obtained for this purpose.

Travel for Health or Education

Applications for U.S. dollars for travel for health or educational reasons are to be made on special forms available at chartered banks. These applications will be forwarded by banks to the Foreign Exchange Control Board for consideration. Applications for health travel must be accompanied by a medical report on forms which can also be obtained at chartered banks. The Department of National Health and Welfare will act as advisor to the Board in reviewing these medical reports.

Border Travel

A Canadian resident wishing to make visits on which he will not be taking out of Canada more than a total of $25 of which not more than $10 is in U.S. dollars, may purchase from his bank for this purpose up to a total of $10 in any calendar month. This is in addition to the annual travel ration.

Personal Purchases of U.S. Goods

A Canadian tourist should remember that the new restrictions applying to imports from the United States govern his personal purchases there. He may not bring back any merchandise which has now been prohibited or which may now only be imported on a quota basis. The list of goods covered by the new import restrictions is an extensive one. Tourists contemplating any particular purchase in the United States would be wise, before leaving the country, to ask Canadian Customs Officials if this purchase will be admitted.

Travel Requiring Sterling Funds

Applications for sterling funds for travel in sterling area countries are normally approved for any reasonable amounts.

‘XMAS EYESIGHT CONTRIBUTIONS

Further Donations Received to Help Thomas Meillas Go to Vancouver

When Thomas Meillas entered the Pioneers' Home in 1940 he could see and read with the use of glasses. In the fire which destroyed the old Eventide Home two years ago he lost his glasses. Since then his eyesight has so deteriorated that he is now almost blind. Consultation with specialists and surgical treatment might at least partially restore his sight, doctors here believe, and it is to raise funds to help him make the trip to Vancouver for such treatment that a campaign has been instituted and is now meeting with increased response.

The fund has risen to $53.15 with the following further contributions to be acknowledged today:

Waltzing Outdated, Says 101-year-Old

AUCKLAND, N.Z. — "Don't call me old or I'll knock your head off," declared New Zealand's most vigorous centenarian, Mrs. O. E. Neilson, in a speech to the guests at her 101st birthday party at Auckland. She proceeded to prove that she is old in years only by waltzing with Mayor J. A. C. Allum, and then demanded a modern dance — "because waltzing is too old-fashioned." Mrs. Neilson, who goes to church every Sunday, received a message of congratulations on her birthday from the King and Queen.

Film Producer Asks Industry Be Probed

LONDON — An inquiry into the British movie industry was urged by Paul Rotha, film producer, addressing a teachers' conference. "I believe one would have been set up already if the film industry had not loomed so largely in Anglo-American trade relations," he said. Rotha said there had been "frightening examples of physical violence in British films." Recent gangster films shown in London were copies of American psychological Meantime, efforts are being made to awaken interest on the part of the public in the film council which has been suffering not only through lack of such interest but through shortage of funds. The council has set first and third Fridays for its regular meeting nights.

Glasgow University Buys New Property

GLASGOW — University of Glasgow is buying Garscube House, home of Sir George Campbell, and 125 acres of adjoining land to overcome a space shortage created by a sharp increase in student enrolment. "There is plenty of room there to meet the needs of the university for perhaps the next 100 years," said principal Sir Hector Hetherington. Garscube is about five miles from the heart of Glasgow. It will be used for residences, new scientific and medical stations and perhaps playing fields. The present city site is completely built up.

HOW CAN I ???

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I test a stain remover before using it on delicate material?

A. Always test it on some part of the garment where it will not show. If the remover does not affect the color, it will not harm the garment.

Q. How can I treat a new toothbrush so that the bristles will not come out so readily?

A. By soaking it for about 24 hours in cold water to which a little salt has been added.

Q. How can I prevent olive oil or salad oil from becoming rancid?

A. By adding a pinch or two of sugar to the oil as soon as it is opened.

The Markets— GROCERY STORES DRESSING UP FOR CHRISTMAS

The city's grocery stores this week will start to take on that bright appearance which will add weight to current warnings that Christmas is only a month away. Gay decorations will brighten the interiors and display windows as the merchants feature their stocks of those delicacies and staples which take on added importance during the Yule season.

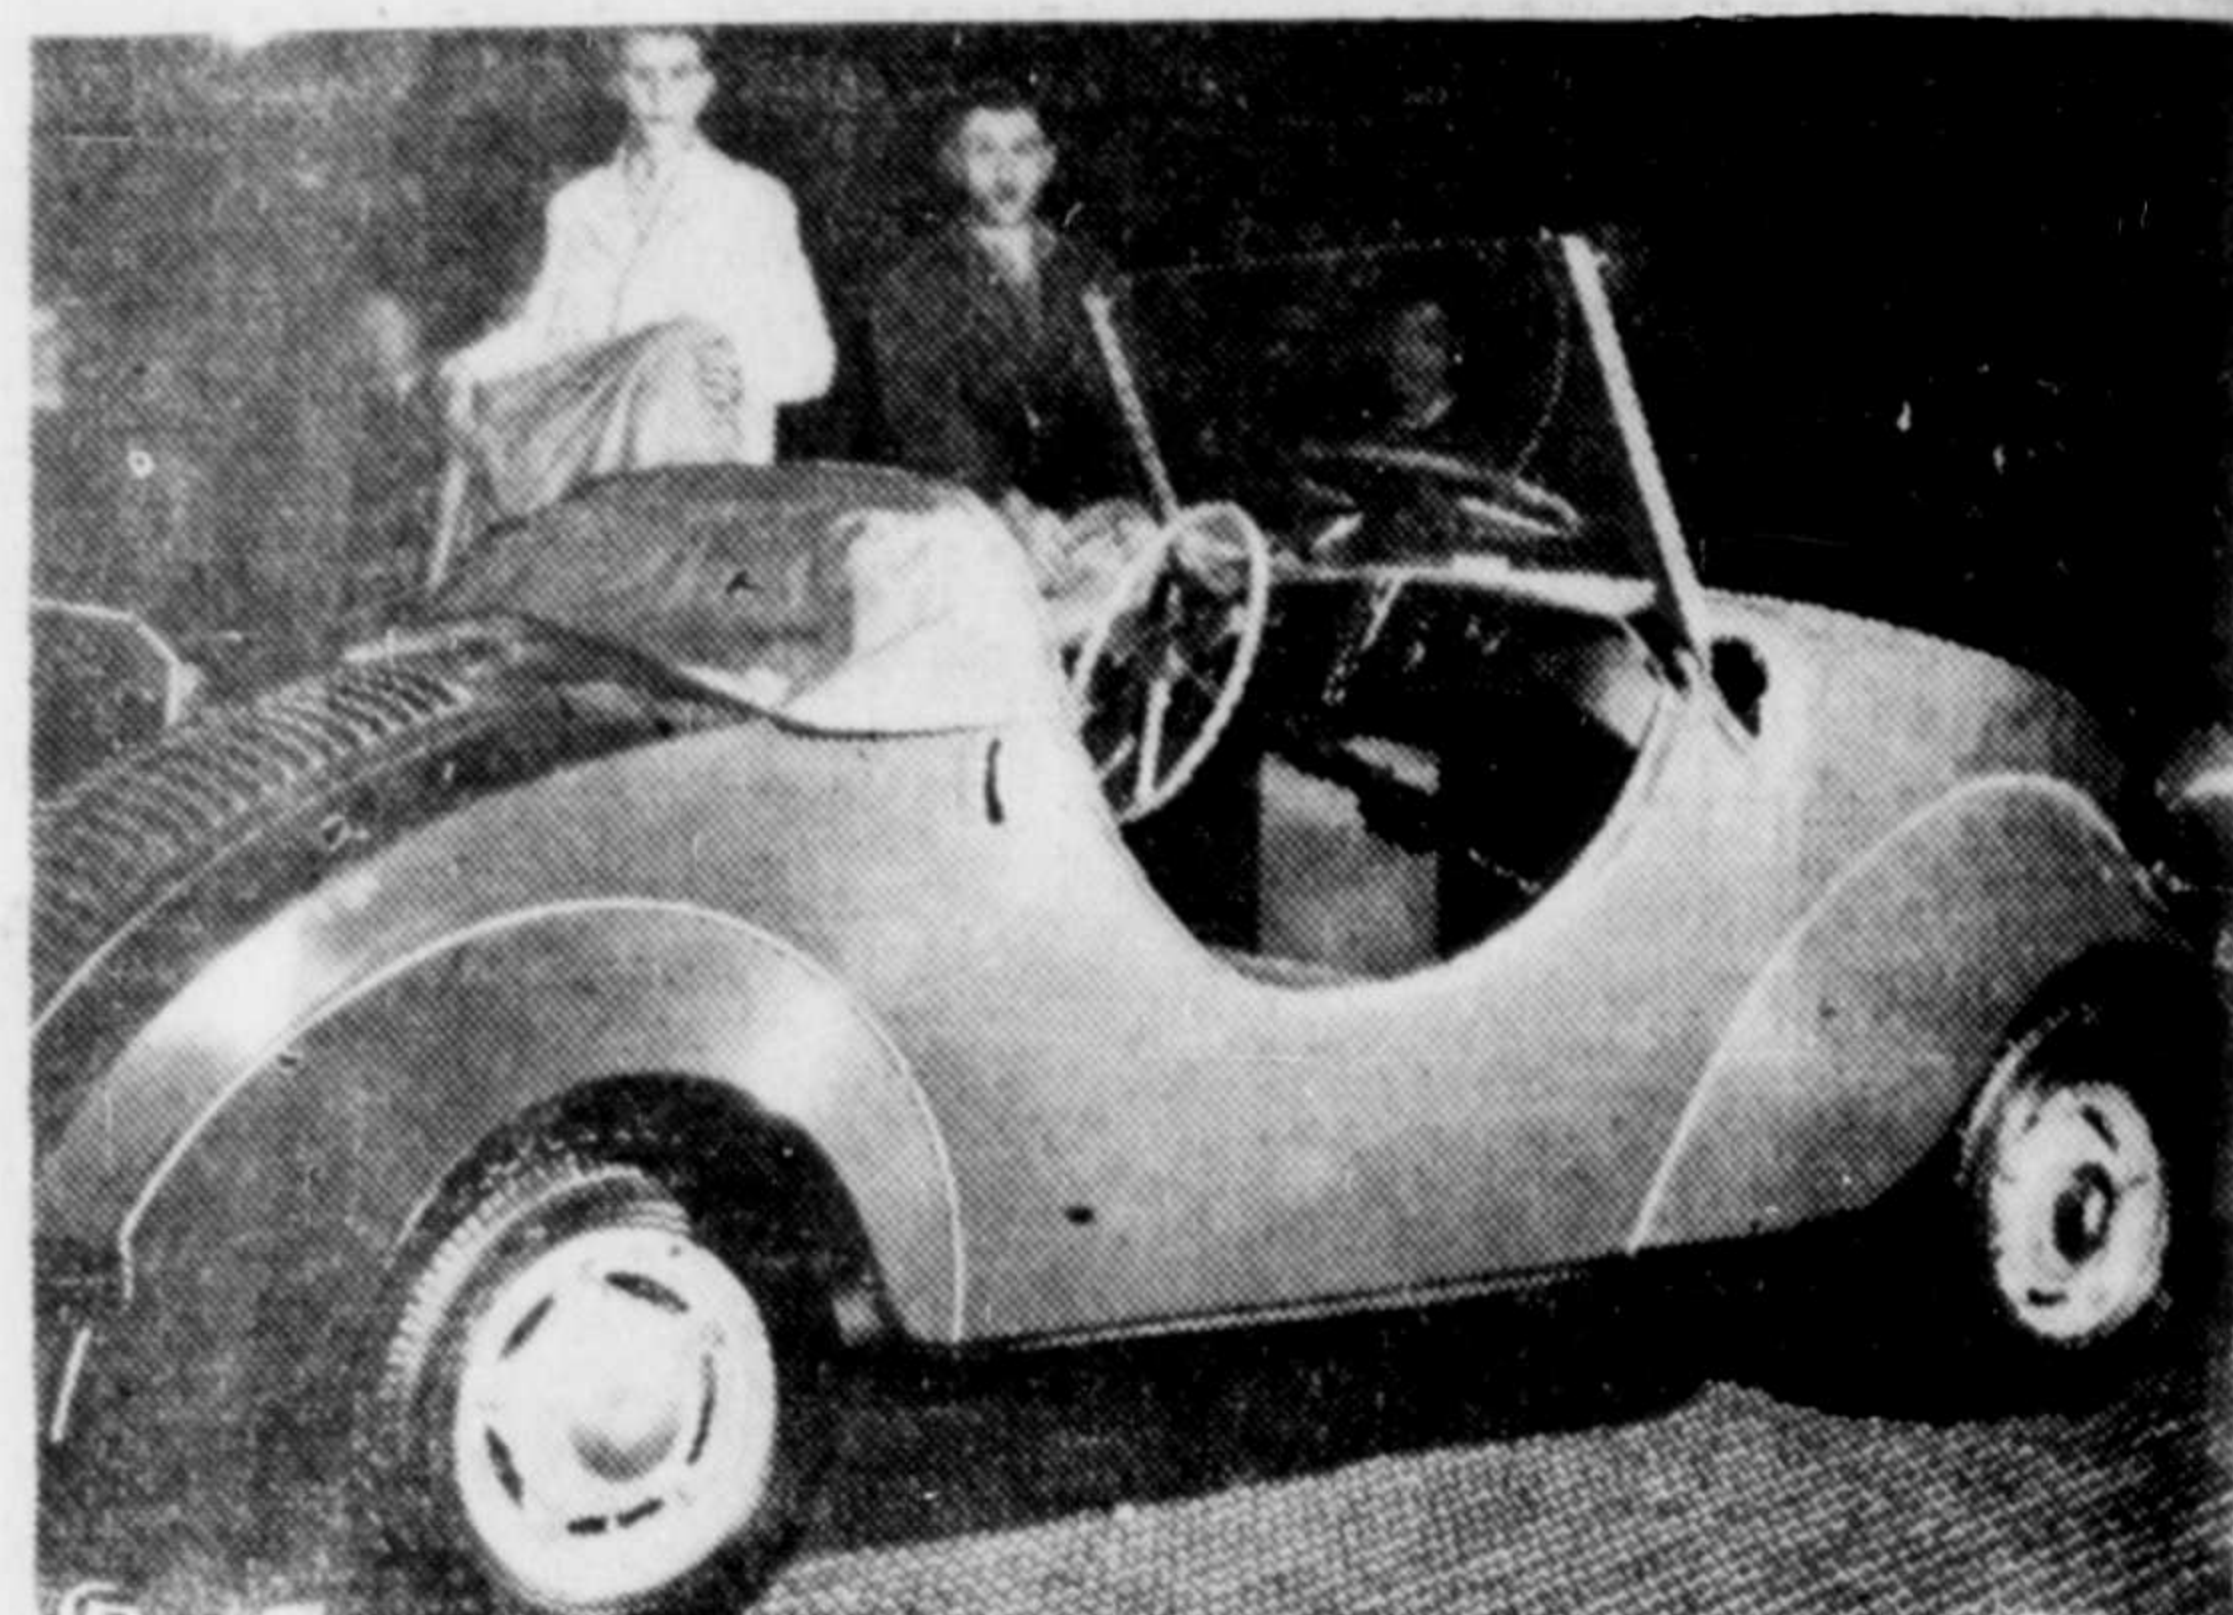

Housewives who are planning to bake their own Christmas cakes will find the widest variety of glazed fruits including cherries, almond paste, mixed peel, several types of raisins, and some may have been lucky enough to get in on the relatively small shipments of glace pineapple rings which the grocers predict will be sold out before Christmas.

Canned fruits, which have been rising in cost continually since controls were dropped earlier this year, are to come under price control again. Canned apricots, cherries, loganberries, pears and peaches are selling at prices ranging from 33 to 40 cents a 20-ounce tin, which is considerably higher than prices at this time last year.

Butter, which hovered below the 70-cent mark during the early fall, increased last week under pressure of a wholesale boost.

COLORED FURS BEING RAISED

British Columbia Mink Breeders See End of Drab Browns and Blacks

VANCOUVER (C)—Women, tired of the drab browns and blacks in their fur coats, have something new in store—pastel mink—currently being raised in British Columbia.

Members of the B.C. Mink Breeders' Association are raising pink, blue, white, mauve, orchid, and silver mink on farms throughout the lower mainland and growers say that when they reach the market, dark fur coats will be a thing of the past.

Experimentation has produced 27 different colors including two-tone effects that cannot be limited. The two-tone varieties have a lozer, dark guard hair and shorter pastel underfur that ranges from pale blue to pink and orchid.

The first non-brown mink coat, a "silver blue" mutation, appeared in the United States five years ago and despite its $18,000 price, the scramble was so great that furriers realized they had something women wanted.

GOLDFIELD AIRPORT, GEORGETOWN, British Columbia, (C)—An arfield has been opened in the Potaro, one of the largest gold-producing areas in the colony. It is one mile long and 250 feet wide.

MALARIA RIFE

The United States often has 4,000,000 malaria cases a year.

EXPERTS BAFLED BY DUCK DISEASE

PRETORIA, South Africa (C)—Research experts at Onderstepoort experimental laboratories near here are still puzzling over the mystery disease which made its appearance among Muscovy ducks in Natal about six months ago. The disease seems to be unknown in any other part of the world, and this has made it difficult to isolate and treat it with any success. The germs are presumed to be carried by a certain species of mosquito, but this has still to be proved. So far the experts have found that the malady affects the Muscovy duck's entire body. The incubation period lasts two days, during which the body temperature rises rapidly to 110 degrees. Two hours later the first visible symptoms are followed by a fatal discharge of blood-flecked foam from the duck's nostrils.

MERCHANTS ORGANIZED

W. M. Watts Is Elected President of Association.

A representative group of retail merchants met last night in the Civic Centre and decided to form a Prince Rupert Retail Merchants' Association.

Jack Scott, acting as chairman of the meeting, stressed the need for such an organization in Prince Rupert, asking those present to give the question considerable thought.

Following general discussion on the duties of a retail merchants' association and their application to local problems, an election of temporary officers was held. W. M. Watts was elected to the office of president; Jack McRae, vice-president; R. E. Montador, secretary, and W. Sheardown, treasurer. Jack Scott, L. M. Pelsenthal, W. F. Stone, F. Ellison, G. Brown and W. G. Scott were appointed to serve as directors of the organization. These officers are to serve until the first week in January when another general meeting will be held to hear a report from the executive and to name permanent officers for the new year.

The present body of officers will carry out any business that may arise during the interim period, draw up a constitution and outline a general policy for the approval of the next general meeting. Another of their duties will be to solicit new members.

Closing dates during the coming holiday season were discussed and it was left to the executive to arrange for a public announcement regarding this matter.

Membership in the association is open to any merchant paying a retail business license fee in Prince Rupert.

Magazine Provides Wedding Headgear

Just Another Service Says Editor of Finnish Magazine

TORONTO. (C)—When girls in Helsinki marry they depend on their favorite magazine to provide part of the wedding costume—it's all in the "special services" offered by Kotiliesi, a Finnish women's periodical. "Finnish girls choose much more elaborate costumes for their weddings than Canadian and American girls," said Miss Alli Wiherheimo of Helsinki in an interview. "They go in for intricate headgear, and one of our services is to lend a crown of silver and gilt to our readers for their wedding."

Kotiliesi of which Miss Wiherheimo has been managing editor for the last 25 years, isn't concerned so much with fashions as it is with the more serious interests of the housewife. It carries fewer fiction stories than American magazines, possibly because an acute shortage of paper forced the magazine down to two-thirds its pre-war size.

SHORT SPORT

Interior ice curlers who find their game slow because of dull rocks should see Andy O'Neil of Moose Jaw, who started out in life as a jack-of-all-trade and finally settled down in 1930 in the unusual occupation of rock reconditioning. O'Neil, about the only man in Saskatchewan in this job, calls on practically every curling centre as far north as North Battleford and as far south as Maple Creek and crosses the border to his native Manitoba to do a little reconditioning for the Swan River curlers. He uses two gasoline-operated machines which he made himself, an emery wheel and a "cupper" to shape the small indent in the bottom of the rock. The machines are carried in his truck, the cabin of which is equipped with electric lights, hammock, oil heater and other conveniences of home. He still calls Brandon, Man., his home town but admits he seldom visits it.

Soccer spectators have found it doesn't pay to indulge in hooliganism at games in Britain. The Football Association, controlling body of the game in this country, clamped down on the Romford club of the Ismailian League and ruled its ground must be closed for a two-week period "as a result of misconduct by spectators." Newspapers applauded the F.A.'s decision. The London Star said editorially the F.A. was "wise" and that "crowd rowdies have been far too much in evidence" at games this year. "Spectators who behave like hysterical children ought surely to stay away," it added.

Basketball Senior Contest Fast and Close

Brownwoods Defeat Savoy—
Other Interesting Games

Savoy 39, Brownwoods 51.
Fashion Footwear 21, Bo-Me-
Hi 43.
Bo-Me-Hi 35, Sweet Sixteen 13.
65 Taxi 31, Bo-Me-Hi 24.

Before a capacity house last evening Art Murray's Brownwoods defeated the Savoy melon tossers 51-39 in the Senior Basketball League.

The scores in each quarter were as follows:

Savoy 11, Brownwoods 19.
Savoy 17, Brownwoods 6.
Savoy 5, Brownwoods 7.
Savoy 6, Brownwoods 17.

It was a fast game and the Shoemen played a better brand of ball than the Hotelmen. Holkestad, Ted Arney and Morgan had their shooting eye in good sight last evening. Hartwig, Gurvich and Everett Pierce were the big guns for the Brownwoods.

Comadina and Calderoni had an easy night last evening. They dished out only 29 fouls. There were 16 called against Savoy and 13 against the Brownwoods.

RAINMAKERS WIN AGAIN

Dominato's Fashion Footwear hoopers lost to the Bo-Me-Hi Rainmakers 43-21. The shoemen had a four point lead at the first quarter. From then on the gradually lost the lead. Half time score was 16-12 in favor of the Students.

The Cloudbusters played a good fast-breaking game and really deserved the win. The Shoemen were in there fighting right from the start but could not get their shooting eye in working condition.

Sweet Sixteen sales girls were on the wrong end of a 35-13 score in their game with Booth Memorial School Co-ods.

Jackie Budinich went on a shooting spree and trimmed the Sales Girls herself by snaring 16 points. She and little Arletta Hamilton put on a show last evening that reminded the old timers of the days when the Maple Leafs used to play in these parts. At no time was the game in doubt. It was just a case of teamwork defeating heavier, experienced players.

65 Cab junior cagers were lucky in their win over the Bo-Me-Hi junior Rainmakers last evening. The junior collegiates had the lead in the first quarter but could not hold it. Holt and his cohorts Webster and Ratchford turned on the heat and the hack drivers walked off winners 31-24. B. Smith played a bang-up ball for the Students.

Bear Enraged as Cub Is Run Over
FRANCOIS LAKE—When Cyril Shefford was driving his jeep around the west end of the lake late at night he ran over what he thought was a year old bear. He lifted his rifle out of the jeep intending to finish off the bear when something made him look around and he saw the mother bear right in front of the jeep hitting at the front fenders in a rage. He jumped into the jeep intending to shoot at her from a safer place, when she ran past and he saw a little cub jump up from the road and join its mother and run into the bush at the side of the road. The cub appeared to have taken no harm from being run over.

NADINA RIVER HOME BURNED
FRANCOIS LAKE—Earle Osbourne's large log house at Nadina River burned to the ground in the early hours of Sunday morning. Residents across the lake went by boat in the hopes of being able to do something to help but the fire was too fierce. Earle is a logger and has lived here for more than thirty years.

GARDEN 'NOTEBOOK'

LEAVES PILED UP TURN INTO PRECIOUS LEAF-MOULD

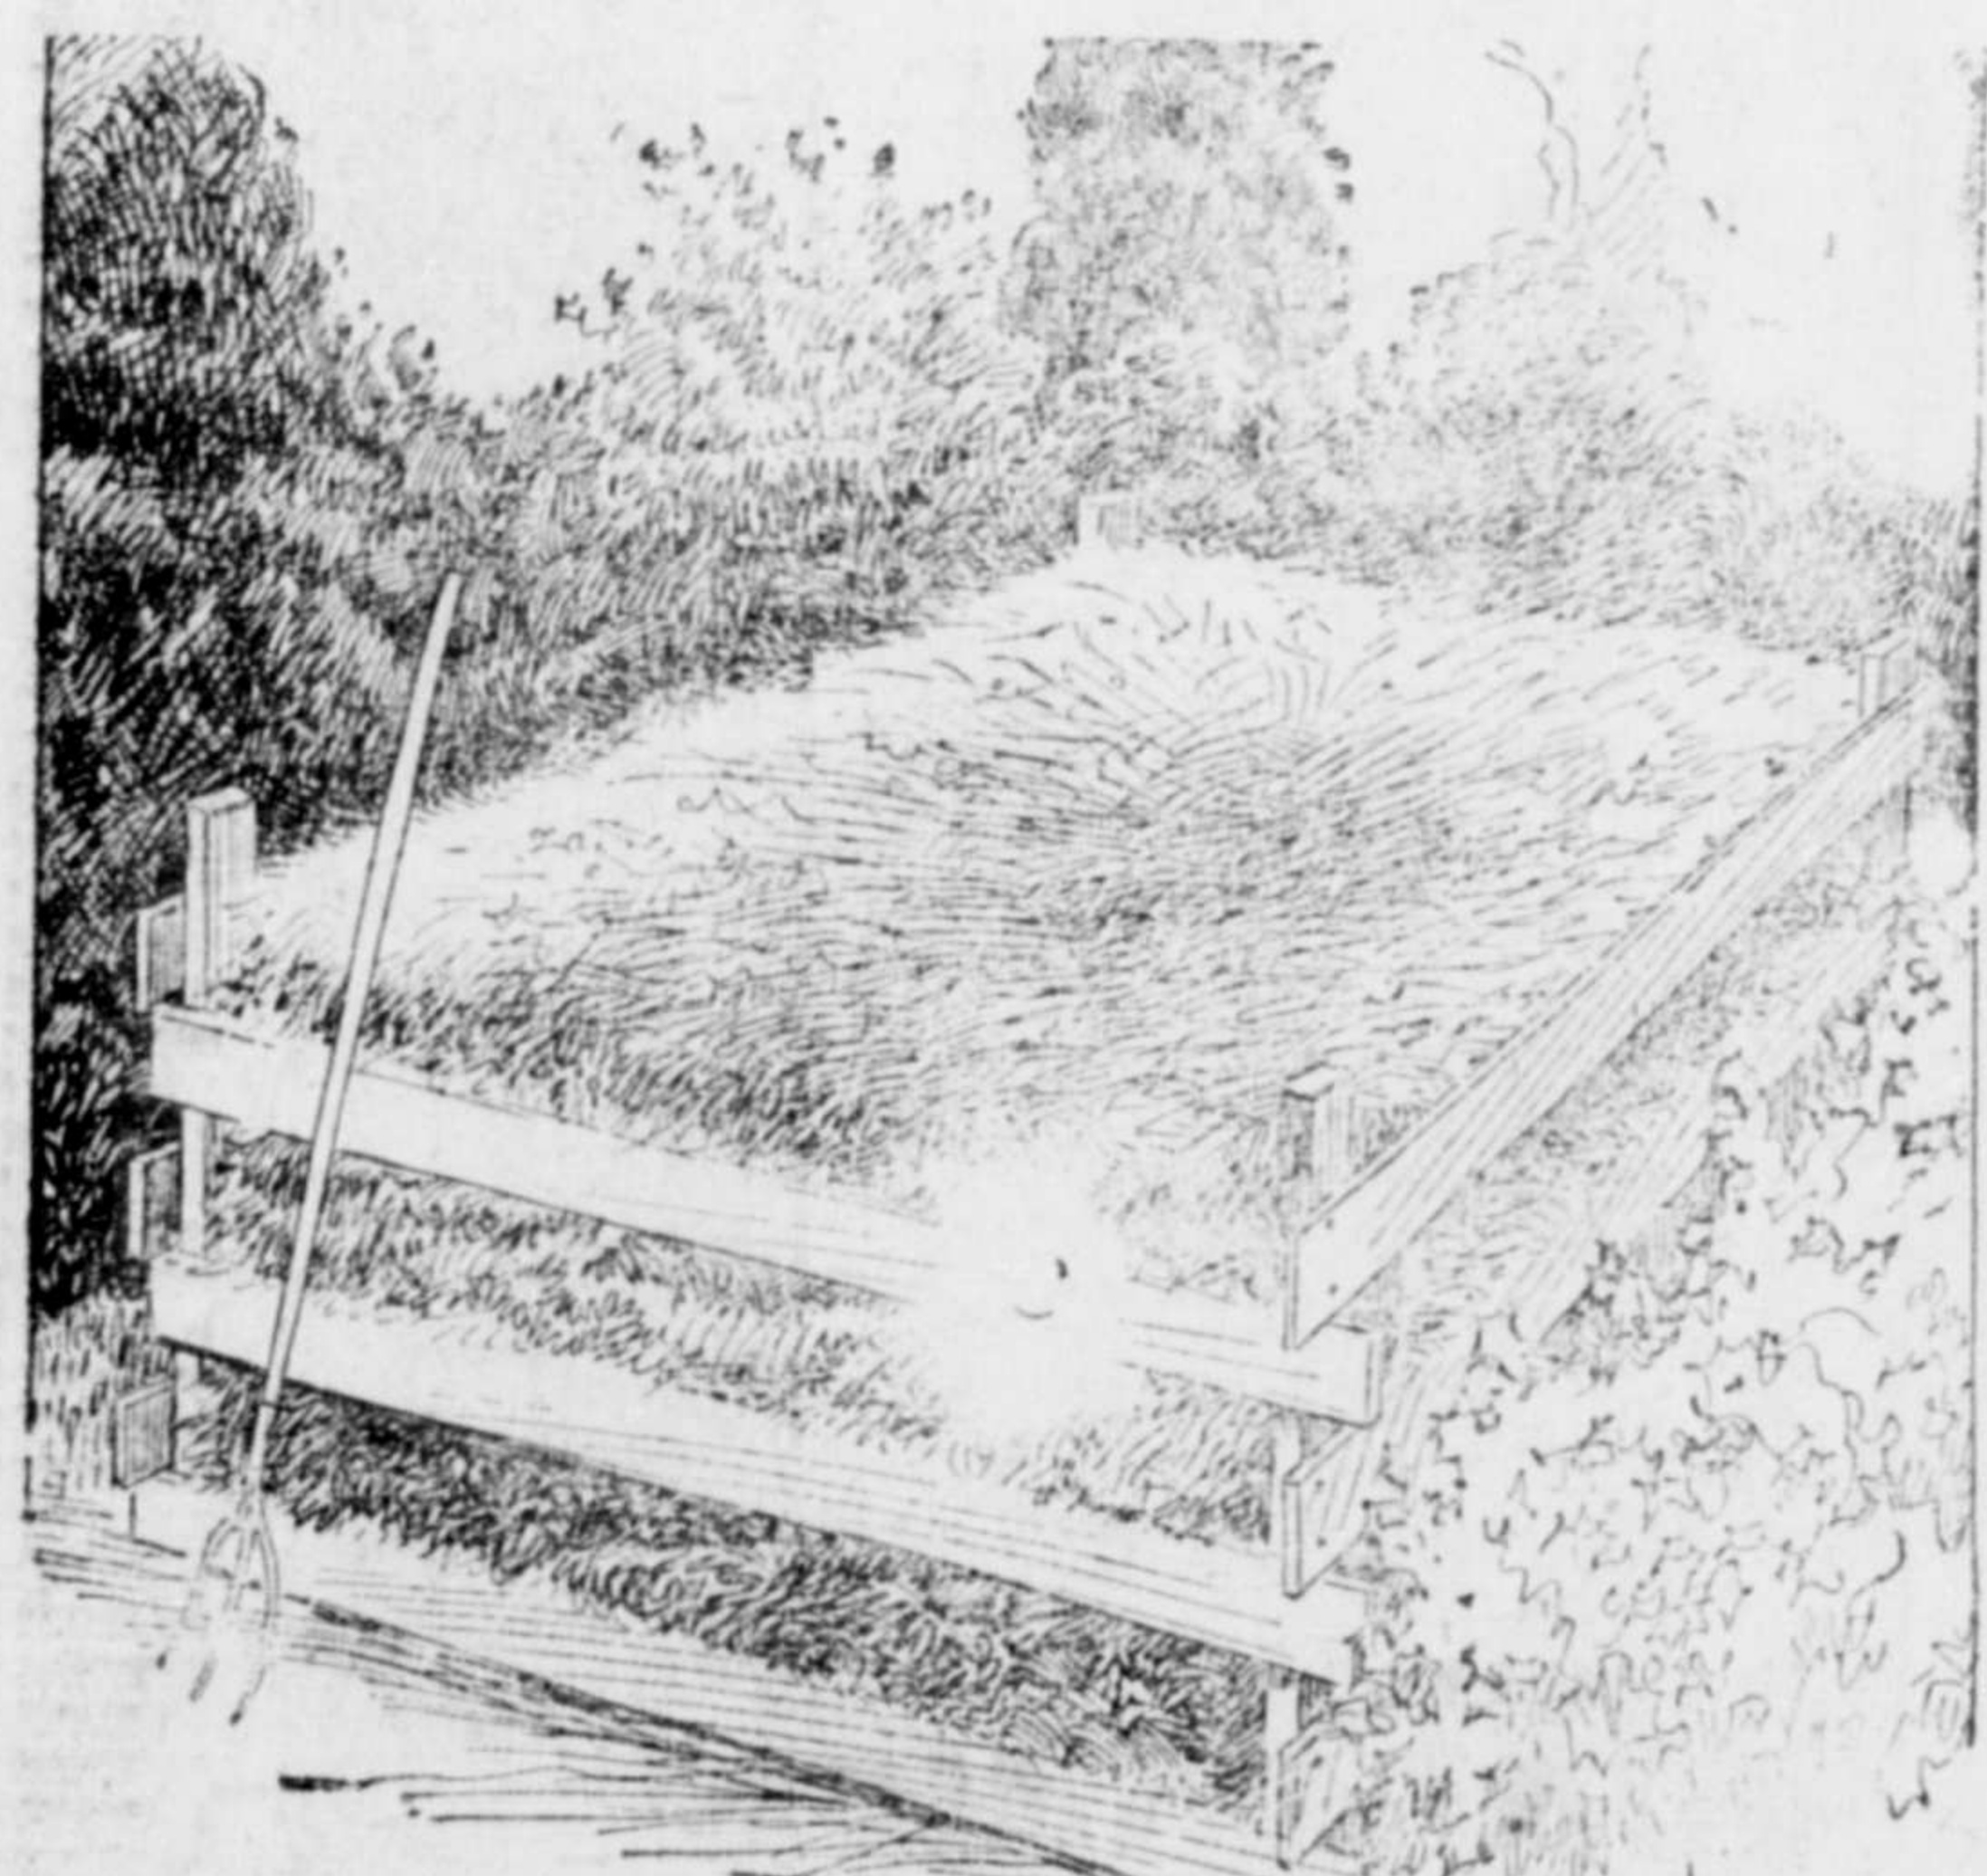

If leaves are piled up and allowed to decay, they produce leaf mould, one of the most useful soil conditioners which amateur gardeners can have. The more he advances in the practice of his hobby, the more useful will the gardener find this material.

So do not burn leaves. Pile them up and invite your neighbors who are not so keen on gardening to bring their dead leaves over to your pile. If you use no special treatment to hasten their decay, in two years at most they will be reduced to leaf mould. But one may easily shorten this period by months, if he prefers.

Set aside a suitable location, out of the way, and preferably screened by planting or a fence. 10 x 10 feet would be an average size. Clean off all vegetation and harden the surface soil by rolling. Pile evenly over this area all dead leaves and other waste plant and even animal material from your garden, and from kitchen wastes. But carefully exclude all wood, branches, twigs and metal objects. When the layer, well tramped down, is six inches thick, sprinkle it with a balanced fertilizer mixture, about one ounce to a square yard. Wood ashes and limestone are also beneficial, each in three or more times this quantity. Then wet it down.

Build up the heap, layer by layer, with similar applications between the layers, and keep it moist. If bad odors develop an inch of soil thrown on top of each layer will prevent them. When the pile is as high as you can conveniently manage, cover the top with soil and let it stand until you are ready to dig the humus into the garden. Start a new one to take care of current accumulations.

Announcement was made Tuesday afternoon of the sale of the Little News Agency, Second Avenue, to Noel Jones, proprietor of Jones' News Agency, Sixth Street. The change will become effective early in the New Year. Ben Sampson, who disposed of his business to Mr. Jones, plans on spending the winter in Los Angeles, where a sister resides, and looks forward to returning north in the spring.

It was in 1926 that the late Arthur Little, founder of Prince Rupert's pioneer newsstand, died in New England after a period of ill health here, leaving W. M. Wright, since deceased, in charge. Mr. Wright carried on until 1938, when he passed away suddenly. The business was then acquired by Ben Sampson who now, through the sale, relinquishes further connection with it. His assistant for the past few years, Mrs. Scherk, remains in charge. The Jones News Agency in the Empress Block remains in the present location.

The story of Little's News Stand goes back to "as it was in the beginning" in the history of Prince Rupert.

As soon as strangers were allowed ashore, Arthur Little, fresh from "way down east, lover of good horses and handy in a trade, incurable optimist and keen on publicity, came striding off one of the pioneer ships and up the dock with a bundle of newspapers—his first stock-in-trade.

Next day—or it might have been that afternoon—he had a shack run up and was doing business. It stood somewhere in the immediate neighborhood of the present railway station. Trade grew and premises became more substantial.

Little's old home was the state of New Hampshire and early in life he had spent a while in Boston. He was never known to be downcast. He was of somewhat heavy build and wore a black Christie-stiff on the back of his head, which gave him a wide-awake look.

His hearing was not of the best but that was just an incidental. He wore a device on his coat and, adjusting it, managed to converse pretty fairly. If there was difficulty at first, he would shout, "Come again" or "How's that, old timer?" He did not swear. His most impious expletive was "By Judas!"

Time went on and the agency moved up to Third Avenue next door to where the former post office stood and across from the Empire office. Here it remained until the post office shifted over to Second Avenue and Seventh Street.

The next change was to Second Avenue on the corner across from the Hotel Prince Rupert but, with the outbreak of the last war, the stand crossed the avenue to its present situation.

Through most of his wanderings through Section 1, Little was accompanied by his dog—a black, wooly looking "pooch" that lay outside. Every time the siren whistle of the C.N. steamships sounded, the dog would throw back his head and utter a howl that even outdistanced the reverberations of the siren.

CHARGED $6,000 FOR SHORT TRIP

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. ©—Mrs. Roy Webster, wife of a missionary in China, knows what inflation means—it cost her and each of her three children $6,000 to get carried up the steep bank of a river near Chungking. In Canadian money the trip—made in chairs slung on bamboo poles and borne up the steep slope by coolies picking their way in toe-holds hewn in the rock—would have cost 10 cents each. "That," Mrs. Webster commented in a letter to her parents here, "is inflation."
