HARD SURFACE ROAD TO PORT EDWARD

Highway Reconstruction To Industrial Project Is Assured by Minister

Final Settlement of Jurisdiction of Railway Right-of-Way is Still Outstanding

Arrangements have been completed for the reconstruction and hard surfacing of the highway from Prince Rupert to Port Edward, site of the new celanese pulp mill project of the Celanese Corporation of America, and there will be a good road between the two points in plenty of time to take care of the traffic needs of the new industry, it was announced this morning by Hon. E. C. Carson, minister of public works, who is a visitor in the city. The work will be started as soon as possible or immediately that the necessary equipment becomes available. Nor will the government necessarily await the securing of its own equipment but will avail itself of any suitable local equipment that may be obtained, providing proper arrangements can be made. Survey of road re-routing just outside of the city limits has already been completed, Mr. Carson pointed out.

Mr. Carson also remarked that work on the $25,000 road diversion project at the Kwintla slide was also under way.

Quered as to the progress of negotiations on jurisdiction of right-of-way where the highway runs alongside the Canadian National Railway tracks beyond Tye, Mr. Carson said that this had not yet been finalized. The provincial government had asked for certain changes in the agreement with the Canadian National Railway and an answer was being awaited from Montreal.

Meantime, the minister had no comment to make as to a permanent policy of road maintenance there, agreeing, however, that periodical re-grading, as now being carried out, was of course, not the permanent solution.

Nanaimo Strike Has Been Ended

Girls Returning to Work Under Agreement Reached Between Labor and Management

NANAIMO, (CP)—Settlement of the strike of 28 women workers who walked out of the Imperial Laundry at Nanaimo June 9 in protest at the dismissal of two workers for absence without permission was made Wednesday in an agreement signed by labor and management.

The girls will return to work as called, according to seniority. Question of re-hiring workers dismissed will be arbitrated.

WENNETT'S HEIRS

LONDON—The brother and two nephews of Viscount Bennett, former Canadian Prime Minister who died here June 27 in his English country home to which he retired, are the principal heirs to his gross estate of $3,515,000, it was disclosed today in his will submitted to probate.

Divide Over P.G.E. Policy

A resolution proposing final action by the provincial government in extending the Pacific Great Eastern Railway to Prince George and into the Peace River country caused a rift in the opening session of the Associated Boards of Trade convention this morning before it was tabled at noon for further consideration Friday morning.

The resolution, presented by the Prince George Board of Trade, urged that Premier John Hart endeavour to bring present negotiations to an early and successful conclusion, or failing that, the provincial government take steps to extend the railway without outside assistance.

H. G. Perry, speaking in support of the resolution, declared that the benefits of a Pacific outlet from the Peace River would be felt throughout all of central British Columbia.

"What benefits one part of this area will benefit all of it, Peace River products will flow through Prince Rupert as well as Vancouver," he said.

H. V. Taylor, Vanderhoof delegate, hit at the proposal, which he said was made by Mr. Hart, to put the railway through the Pine Pass route where a highway is already being built. He asserted that while he was in favor of a rail extension to the Peace River, it should go by Findlay Forks and Summit Lake, where it would open up more agricultural land.

E. T. Applewhite, secretary of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, charged that the resolution was sectional and suggested that it be withdrawn. He deplored the fact that none of the delegates had received copies of the resolutions in advance, and therefore were voting personal opinions rather than the considered views of the groups they represented.

Frank Dockrill, Telkwa delegate, told the meeting that the Peace River rail extension had been approved by the British Columbia-Alberta continuing

CONSERVATIVES VOTE AGAINST ATLEE PLAN

LONDON, (CP)—The Conservative Opposition was expected to vote in the House of Commons today against the Labor government's new crisis measures which impose greater austerity on hard pressed Britons as a means of saving the country from the brink of economic chaos.

While a large Labor majority is expected to push through the crisis plan, the Conservatives will probably vote against it on grounds that Prime Minister Attlee has failed to convince them that the government has an adequate program to launch Britain on the road to economic recovery.

Mayor Arnold 'Stand-up' at Products Show Wins Paudits Of Delegates

Gospel of "Buy at Home" Expounded in Talks, Moving Pictures, Entertainment, Quiz

The B. C. Products Show had a stand-up audience of over 600 persons in the Civic Centre auditorium last night. A few brief speeches, moving pictures, variety program and quiz contest, made an effective setting for the lesson in the advantages of using B.C. Products so that industries of the province might be built up. Payrolls created and jobs made to keep the boys and girls at home. Throughout the afternoon, there had been a steady flow of callers at the auditorium to see a revealing display of B.C. products including a considerable number prepared by local industries.

W. D. Grey, chairman of the B.C. Products Bureau of the Vancouver Board of Trade, was chairman and principal speaker of the evening. He ably expounded the gospel of B.C. Products, marshalling an impressive lot of cogent reasons in support thereof. One impressive statement he made was that a factory of 250 men created an annual payroll of $200,000. It was obvious, therefore, what it would mean to Prince Rupert in dollars to have a payroll of 1000 to 1500 men, which the new celanese mill here would employ. Subsidiary to such an industry, there would follow many other smaller industries and employment in many lines of business and services.

"It is quite evident that we definitely benefit ourselves when we buy B.C. products for we provide jobs for members of our own families," asserted Mr. Grey. "Every father and every mother in this hall can do a little to insure a future for their children's jobs in this way. Too long have we been exporting our most precious British Columbia product, the youth of our country. So let's not sell British Columbia short! Buy B.C. products and do more than just sit around and hope we can keep our men employed!"

And, with it all, Mr. Grey added: "We have demonstrated not only to ourselves but to all Canada and some of the largest and most sensitive export markets of the world that the quality of our products is equal to the world's best."

Mr. Grey announced the winners in the "B. C. Products" Week window dressing contest as follows:
First, $15 prize, Garnet Hull, Watts & Nickerson.
Second, $10, William Bremner, Kaizen Hardware.
Third, Walter Smith, W. F. Stone.

Acknowledgement was made of assistance that had been given in connection with the staging of the B.C. Products Show with special mention of Bobby Woods, the "live-wire" local chairman, and the special edition of the Daily News.

MAYOR ARNOLD IN GOOD FORM

Mayor Nora Arnold was in good form in extolling the quality of B.C. products and advocating their fullest use. She introduced representatives of ladies' organizations on the platform—Miss Audrey Wrathall, Business and Professional Women's Club; Mrs. S. R. Donaldson, Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire; Mrs. G. H. Johnson, Women's Canadian Club, and Mrs. J. S. Black, Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion.

G. A. Hunter spoke briefly in his capacity as president of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce. He cited the co-operation of the Vancouver Board of Trade and the Prince Rupert Chamber

MUCH PAPER DESTROYED

Half Million Dollar Fire on New York Waterfront

NEW YORK, (CP)—Fire damaged five thousand tons of newsprint for delivery to New York newspapers this morning. The paper is regarded as practically destroyed. It was a five-alarm fire in a warehouse in lower Manhattan. The fire commissioner Frank J. Quayle estimated the loss at $500,000.

The cause of the fire, discovered shortly after midnight, has not been determined.

Bulletins

EXPLOSION IN PALESTINE
JERUSALEM—British authorities announced today that twelve oil tank cars had been wrecked by a mine explosion which tore up 300 yards of railway track between Tel Aviv and Haifa about eight this morning. There were no casualties.

HINDU-MOSLEM FIGHTING
NEW DELHI—At least forty-five persons were reported killed and hundreds injured in Hindu-Moslem fighting in the Punjab Wednesday. Sixteen villages were raided in twenty-four hours in the Amritsar district and police said the raids amounted to attacks and counter-attacks by Moslem and Hindu bands.

CALIFORNIA FIRE
LOS ANGELES—Weary fire fighters fought grimly today against a still uncontrolled Tujunga brush fire which has killed two men, injured or burned 75 others and scorched 35 acres of the watershed.

SEAMEN ARRESTED
MONTREAL—Twenty men, described by police as seamen, have been arrested on the Montreal waterfront during the past 24 hours, it was disclosed today. Routine charges such as loitering were laid by the police who said they feared the men were preparing to impede the progress of ships through the canal locks. Sentences of $10 and costs or eight days in jail were imposed.

BAD FIRE IN MARITIMES

HALIFAX, (CP)—With Cape Breton Island experiencing the hottest August in history, three fires were burning today on the forested western slopes of Inverness County, while in the woods, fires broke out in scattered sections of the Nova Scotia mainland and in New Brunswick. The most serious Cape Breton fire is on Cheticamp Island. It has been blazing since Tuesday.

PUBLIC WORKS MINISTER HERE

Hon. E. C. Carson, minister of public works, arrived in the city by air yesterday afternoon from Victoria and will be here for the next couple of days. He is attending the annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Central British Columbia and is also to meet a delegation representing the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce and the Associated Boards of Trade of Central British Columbia on highway matters.

Regional, National and International Matters Ass'd Boards Session

A wide variety of important subjects included in Resolutions—Full Membership For Alaska Proposed Delegates from eleven towns and cities in Central British Columbia and Alaska, about 100 strong, convened at the Civic Centre this morning at the opening of the sixteenth annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Central British Columbia to consider more than 30 resolutions on regional, national and international subjects from places as far apart as McBride and Juneau.

The opening session followed a meeting of the resolutions committee under chairmanship of A. M. Patterson of Prince George which began at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and continued until midnight as a mass of resolutions were immediately directed at the interests of Central British Columbia, several by the Juneau and Ketchikan delegates had an international character which made some committee men feel that a revision of the Associated Boards' bylaws be submitted to the United States was necessary before they could government.

At the present time, the Alaska Chambers of Commerce are only affiliated with the Associated Boards, but a special bylaws committee, appointed last night by President George McAdams of Terrace may recommend the inclusion of the Alaska Chambers into full membership.

This would overcome the possible indecency of a completely Canadian body sending petitions to the government of the United States, such as one seeking abolition of the Jones Act.

Major resolutions which the convention consider during its sessions today and Friday are:

IMMIGRATION AND INDUSTRY
Immigration and decentralization of industry. A resolution by Vanderhoof incorporated the intent of similar briefs from Prince Rupert Junior Chamber, Terrace and Pince George. It urged a strong immigration policy and that the immigrants should be distributed throughout the country, and also the establishment of a Department of Immigration.

Immigrants Make Jobs

IT IS DIFFICULT TO FOLLOW the reasoning of those who argue that, because we regularly lose many of our young Canadian men and women as emigrants to the United States, we should therefore do nothing about encouraging immigration.

No one will deny that Canadians, particularly those with advanced technical training, can contribute much to the development of their native land if they remain here and put to use the skills they have acquired. But the encouragement to remain must be more tangible than pious hopes and sermons. The first requirement of the young graduate is a job, and in normal times he is likely to find a greater choice of jobs in the United States than in Canada.

The relative scarcity of openings for trained men in Canada as compared with the United States is no fault of Canadian business. It is a matter of the greater size and greater number of United States industries, and they have grown large and numerous precisely because of the open-door policy of immigration that prevailed there during the country's growing days.

If Canada's population were equal to or even half as great as that of the United States, the loss of our trained young people would be negligible. Until the discrepancy is repaired, we must face the fact that many of our young people will continue to drift away.

The movement can be reversed in time by bringing in immigrants who will not only make jobs for themselves but will create more opportunities for those who are already here. Discouraging immigration will only make the loss of our young people more probable.

NO MORE PRIVACY

THESE ARE THIN TIMES for the old-fashioned person who hankers to go his own gait, paddle his own canoe, tend her own knitting and hoe his own row. This isolationist point of view gets ready sympathy for its nostalgic charm, but events are against it. Isolationism turned out to be unworkable for the United States of America; it becomes more and more an impossibility for even the most never-hurt-anybody and leave-me-alone individual.

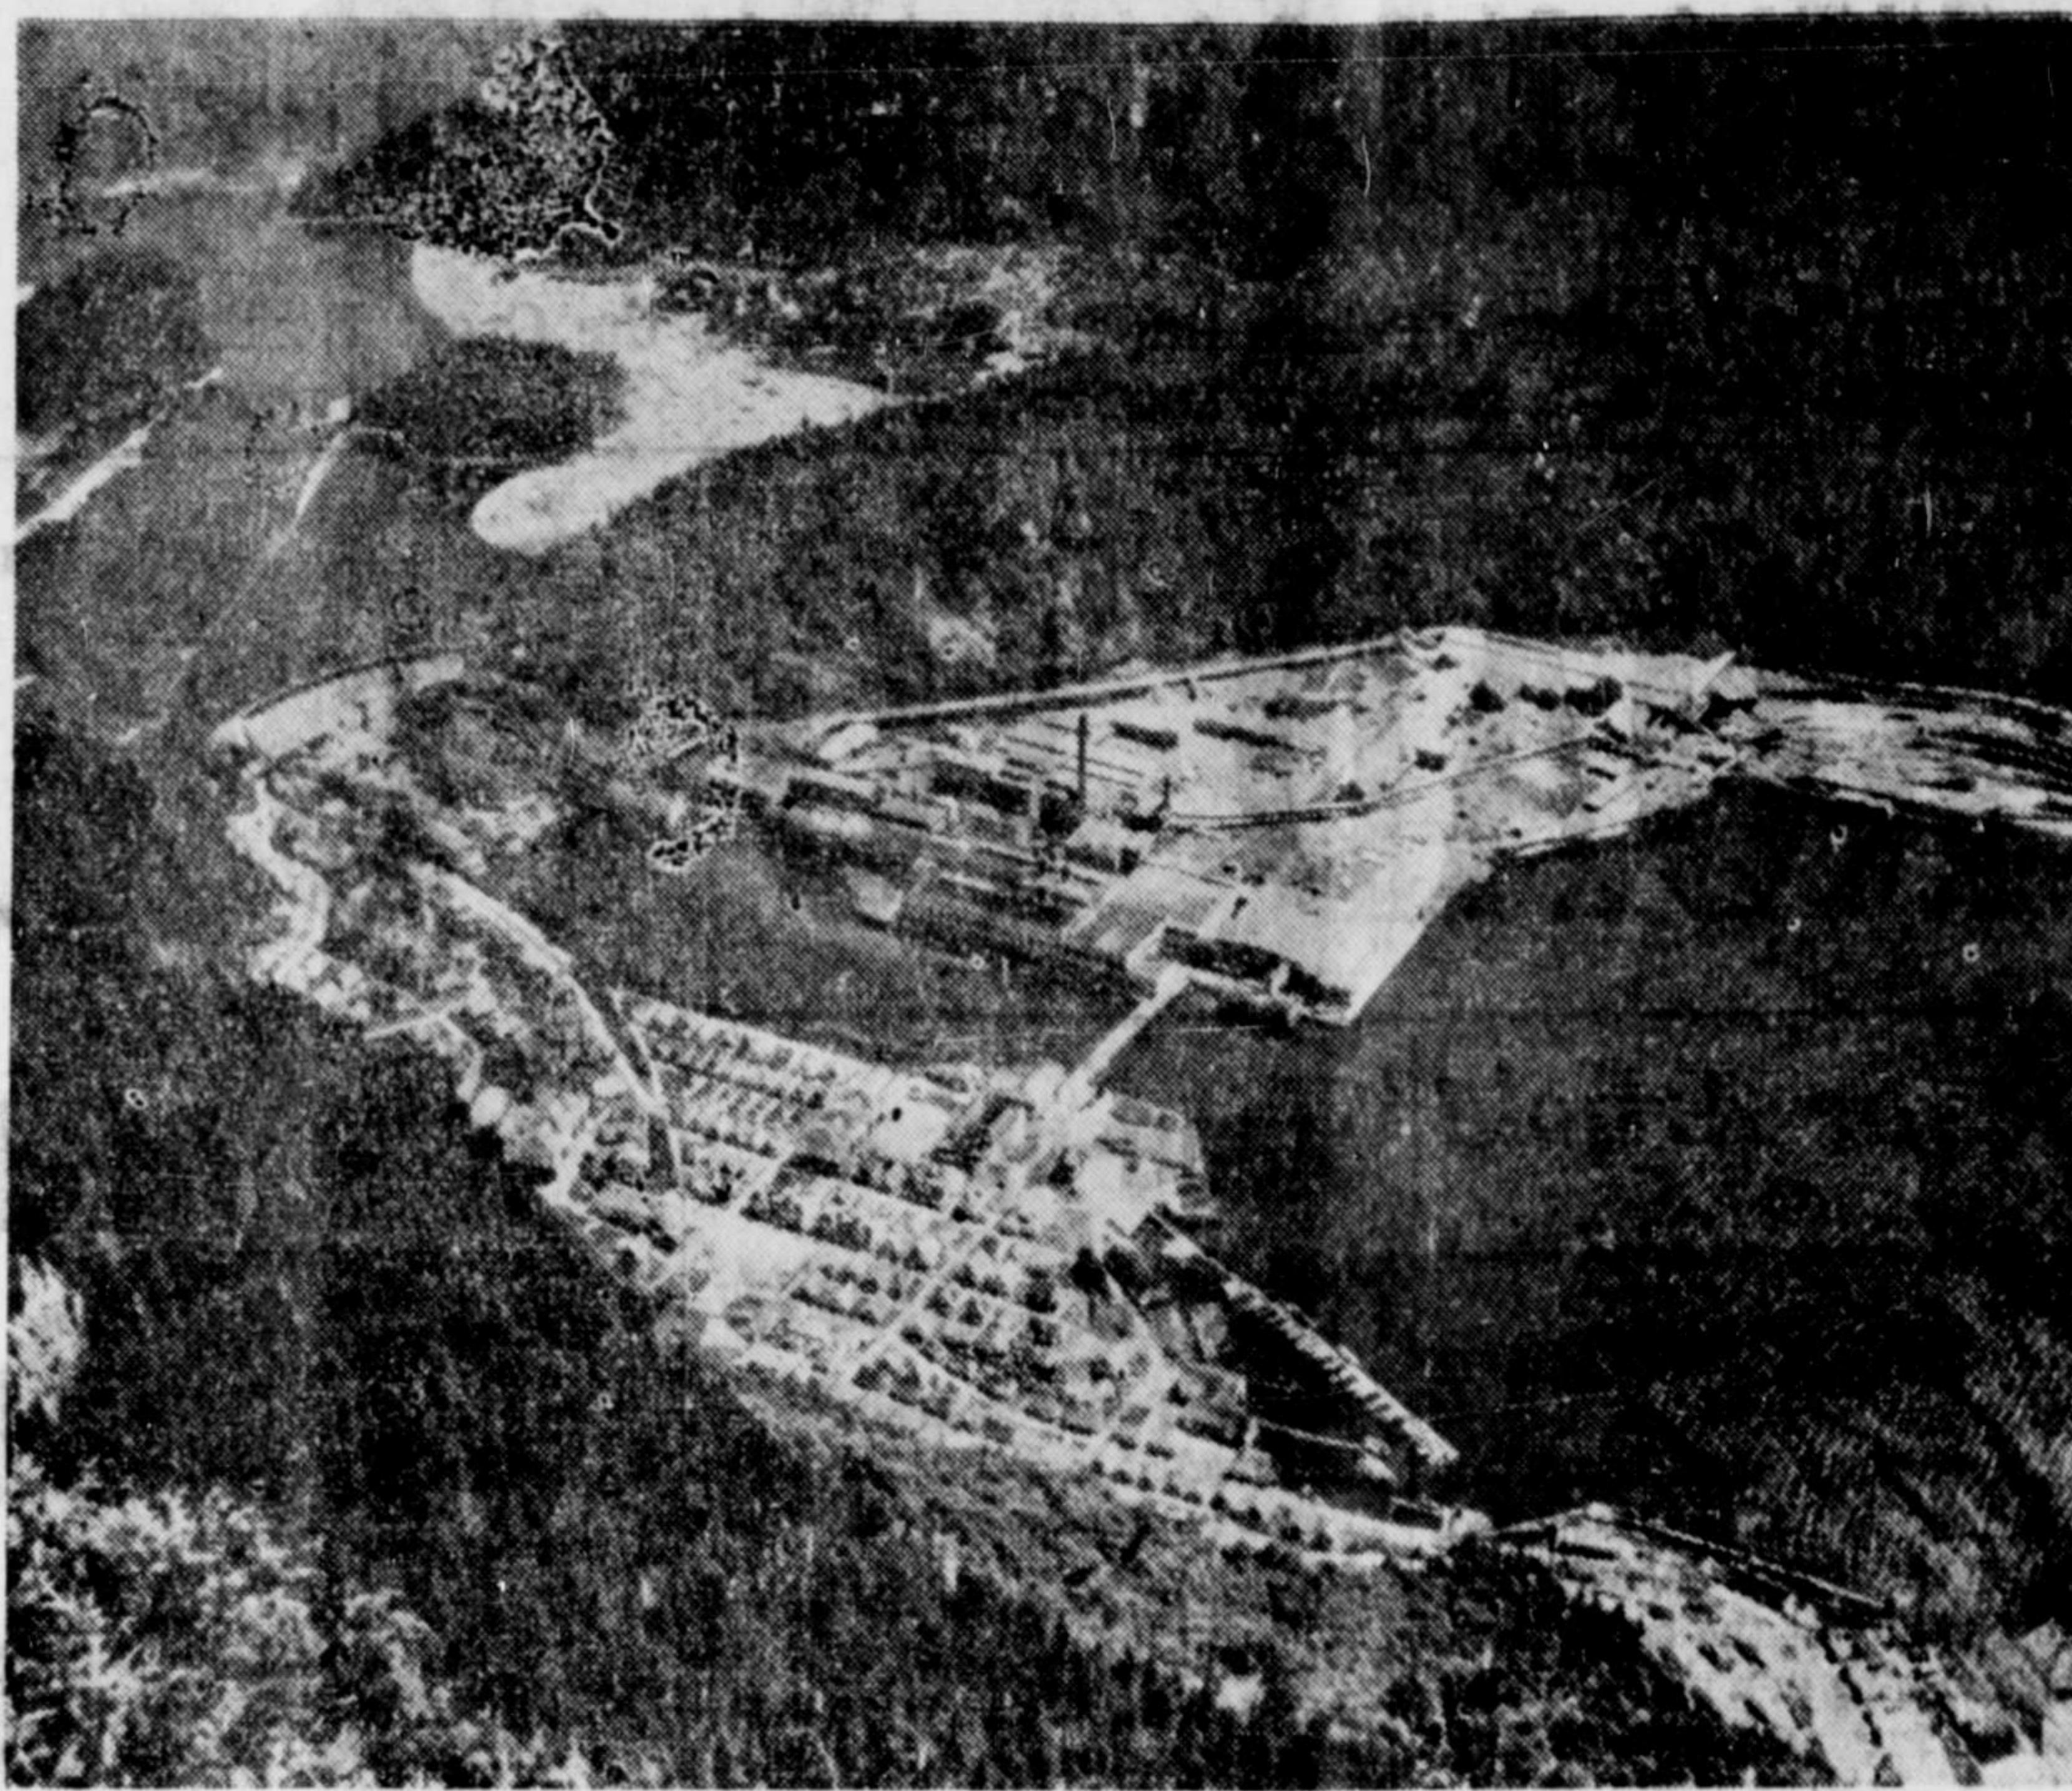

It would now be a rare spot around the globe where a man could dodge being involved in some sort of human organization. Well back in a jungle he might avoid having to join a service club, but some country will doubtless claim him eventually, and get after him to fill out forms and pay taxes. In 1942 the islands of the South Pacific suddenly became inferior locations for getting away from it all. And now the Arctic refugee from civilization, minding his own business of sneaking up on a seal, finds himself right in the middle between Russia and the U.S. Here and there are various abandoned mine workings to hide in until union rules require one to come up, but in general even though a man may not choose to be his brother's keeper, his brother insists on keeping after him, and keeping him on the run. The fellowship of man is being forced on everybody.

In this complex, fast-moving relationship of states, peoples and ideologies, the individual men and women at their dinner tables cannot mind their own business to the exclusion of events beyond the line fence or the apartment doorway. The world comes right over the fence line and through the apartment doorway. There is no privacy. There are no longer any private lives. There is no place to duck. We all come to disaster or we ride through these times to peace, which would be mankind's greatest triumph since he descended from the trees and walked on his hind feet. Belatedly—some 2000 years late—we come to the appreciation that, wherever we ride the world, we humans must ride it together.

Many Bears Are Seen On Highway

Good-sized black bears are frequently seen on the Skeena Highway. Indeed, the bears and the motorists are becoming mutually indifferent. One driver saw no less than two in one day when about 25 or 30 miles out. The bears were feeding on berries and not particularly interested in mere human beings.

ANTICIPATES HEAVY TRAVEL

Visitors See Early Improvement on Skeena Road

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Welsh of Seattle, accompanied by L. Roberts of Auburn, Washington, arrived in Prince Rupert yesterday by car after a leisurely trip through the Cariboo and central British Columbia.

For several years the Welshes and Mr. Roberts have made regular hunting trips into central British Columbia and have always wanted to see Prince Rupert.

Speaking about the much discussed highway, both Mr. Roberts and Mr. Welsh thought it was in pretty good shape. They found the stretch from Ashcroft to Prince George is improved this year to what it was last and stated the part from Telkwa to Prince Rupert is in better shape than the rest of the highway. Mr. Roberts expressed the opinion that because of its good bed, width and the policy of straightening that is employed it will not be long before there is an excellent highway right through from the international border to Prince Rupert.

Behind their car the Washington party have a folding trailer in tow which was designed and constructed by Mr. Walsh and Mr. Roberts.

Before leaving Prince Rupert Mr. and Mrs. Welsh hope to see their son, who is a resident of Ketchikan. On their way home the party will spend some time fishing the streams around Hazelton and other parts of the interior.

SCHOOL SITE IS DISCUSSED

Talk of Acropolis Hill and Hays Cove Circle at Meeting

At the School Board meeting, the subject of a new High School building site was informally discussed.

Bruce Brown spoke of negotiations between the railway company and the city, dealing with land, back in the early days. There had been suggestions that Acropolis could provide a desirable location for a new school. In a general way, the board did not dispute this although there were varying opinions. It all came down to what extent, a site would best serve the population. The best location would, of course, serve the largest proportion of families of school age.

Dr. Large, presiding, said he believed the Acropolis site, so far as one could judge at present, could be surpassed and, in saying this, he had the Booth School location in view.

ELDERLY COUPLE CATCH SHARK IN THEIR GILL NET

Hilmer Bakkila, Port Essington fisherman, and his wife have long been known as a pair of partners who would fish unconcernedly in weather that sent other fishermen scurrying for shelter off the Skeena mouth. Their luck held on Tuesday when they caught a shark in their gill-net in Principe Channel.

The seven-foot shark, of a variety that usually does irreparable damage to the mesh of valuable gillnets, became a source of assist to the Bakkilas, although Mr. Bakkila did have considerable trouble untangling his net afterwards. The shark lost his liver but made a desperate attempt to hold onto its life.

When the elderly couple finally got the fish into the after hold of their small boat, Mr. Bakkila cut out the liver, then returned the fish to the sea. He was astonished to see it swim more than over the highway from Vancouver to Prince Rupert. He considered it to be in very good condition. Due to a mechanical failure in his car Mr. Matson was forced to leave it at Terrace and was driven to Prince Rupert by J. M. Smith, district deputy grand master, accompanied by J. Barman.

Mr. Smith and J. Davidson, noble grand of the local lodge, who presided at the banquet each gave a short address to the 40 men and women who attended the gathering.

60 feet before it disappeared. The shark's liver, which weighed 45 pounds, was sold to the Co-op store at White Rock on Banks Island. Feeling somewhat compensated, the Bakkilas began untangling their net.

APPEALS FOR INTERNATIONAL VIEWPOINT

An "international" viewpoint aimed at wiping out restrictive international barriers to trade and travel was championed last night by William L. Baker, editor of the Ketchikan Chronicle, at a session of the resolutions committee of the Associated Boards of Trade when he presented briefs from Juneau, Ketchikan and Petersburg.
"I think it would be a good idea to start right here and make this an international organization—an Associated Boards of Trade of Central B.C. and Alaska," he said. "We could have a B.C. branch and an Alaska branch and could be qualified to exert pressure on both the Canadian and American governments."
Mr. Baker was defending his fellow Alaskans' appeal that the authority of the Associated Boards be placed behind two Juneau resolutions, one seeking removal of restrictions on Canadian ships serving Alaska and the other the scrapping of the onerous Jones Act.

Board members from British Columbia felt that it would be presumptuous for a Canadian organization such as the Associated Boards of Trade to be at present to direct resolutions at the American government. The Alaska Chambers of Commerce under the present bylaws are affiliates, but not members.
However, Mr. Baker gained his point when he won agreement that the bylaws should be brought up for revision to include the Alaska Chambers of Commerce as members. The territorial resolutions were adopted by the committee on the assumption that the constitutional change would be adopted.

Mr. Baker suggested that the Juneau resolution aimed at elimination of the Jones Act should be forwarded to the United Nations Education and Cultural Organization, which is at present studying methods of removing barriers to international commerce, travel and information.
"If it is brought to the attention of the American government by UNESCO it might receive consideration on a higher level," he said.

At the formal opening of the convention this morning, President George McAdams welcomed visiting delegates and guests. W. L. Baker of Ketchikan introduced Alaska representatives including Will Godding, Jack Fletcher and Rev. Earl Webb of Juneau, each of whom spoke briefly. Mayor Nora Arnold extended a civic welcome and paid flattering tribute to the valuable work the Chamber of Commerce had been carrying on and which was now being rewarded with such tangible results. The presence of such a live Chamber of Commerce was indeed, an asset to the city. G. A. Hunter, president of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, spoke briefly on behalf of that body and acknowledged Mrs. Arnold's kindly remarks, declaring that never had the Chamber of Commerce received more whole-hearted civic cooperation than it was getting today. Many messages were received including those of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Premier John Hart and C. Gordon Cockshutt, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Hon. E. C. Carson, minister of public works, is representing the provincial government at the convention and one federal member and three provincial M.L.A.'s are in attendance—H. G. Archibald (M.P. Skeena), W. H. Brett (M.L.A., Prince Rupert), W. D. Smith (M.L.A., Atlin) and Joh McInnis (M.L.A., Fort George).

George Black Says He Will Quit if Northwest Territories Added to Yukon

George Black, M.P. for Yukon and Mrs. Black, who were in Prince Rupert a short time ago enroute to their home in Dawson, after the Federal session, were welcomed in Whitehorse.

Speaking at a luncheon up north, he made reference to the proposed Redistribution Bill and came out definitely with the statement that, if Ottawa persists in the determination to add still further the very large Mackenzie district of the Northwest Territories to his already huge riding, he will resign his seat. Such an extension would give the riding a total area of 700,000 square miles—more than himself or another man could represent.

Baseball's Surprise

Burt Shotton, Aged 65, Piloting Brooklyn Effectively

EDMONTON, © — Baseball's biggest surprise package of the year is no rookie pitcher, batter or outfielder. He's 65-year old Burt Shotton, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The "Bums," under mild-mannered Shotton, have been working like a machine since the start of the season and a lot of credit for their present showing goes to Shotton who has them setting the pace in the National League.

Provided they don't go into a losing slump like they did in 1942 and 1946, Don (Lethbridge Herald) Pilling says they should occupy the top rung when World Series time rolls around. In fact, he goes further than that, he believes they'll cop the pennant.

Pilling is of the opinion that Manager Shotton deserves more than just credit for the Dodger's success. He says that when the Brooklyn fans—and others in the baseball world—start passing out the bouquets the Dodger master mind will no doubt get a fair share of the glory.

When Leo (Lippy) Durocher was suspended by baseball's governor, Happy Chandler, for a year, the Brooklyn front office found a worthy successor in Shotton, writes Pilling, adding that they couldn't have done better.

He describes the "brains" behind the Brooklyn club as practically the opposite of Durocher when it comes to managing a baseball club.

"He's soft-spoken, has very little to say, and never puts on a uniform when the team plays. Everybody knows how the "Lip" behaved on a baseball field and every rabid fan in Brooklyn loved it.

"That is why his success at the managerial end of it, is all the more astonishing when you come to think of the two entirely different ways the two men managed the Dodgers. If he boots home a winner the people of Flatbush will think he's absolutely the greatest human being on earth."

The present Brooklyn boss, continues Pilling, came into the National League with all the players total strangers to him, but it didn't take him long to find his way around.

His "success" is attributed to his patience with pitchers. His gentle way of handling players and his uncanny way of correcting a player's mistake.

"Whatever happens to the Dodgers between now and play-off time, and even then win or lose, Shotton rates No. 1 in our books."

of and unwashed gravel and insufficient water. Semi-dry concrete could go much further but it was absorbent and liable to the effects of frost. There was evidence of slight moisture bulges in east wall (rear). There could have been frost damage through gutter leaks.

In a reference to the roof of the wood-working shop, it was reported its edges had become turned up to what appeared to be holes in the tile wall. It appeared as though the wall had been cut in the tile for the flashing but had not been set and the holes never filled in. The examination of the shop exterior, Mr. Shortridge explained, had been performed during a period of exceptionally fine weather, so that some of the spots justifying inspection might not have been so apparent.

SHORT SPORT

Is a base-runner out if he runs more than three feet from the direct line between a base and the next base?

Yes and no. Yes, if he does so to avoid being touched by a ball in the hand of a fielder.

No, if he runs out of the direct line in order to avoid a fielder who is attempting to field a batted ball. In this case the baserunner shall run out of the direct line to the next base, and behind the fielder attempting to field the ball.

If the base-runner fails to avoid a fielder attempting to field a batted ball, or in any way obstructs a fielder attempting to field a batted ball, or intentionally interferes with a thrown ball the umpire shall declare the base-runner out. The intention of the regulations is to make sure that the fielder is not in any way interfered with in attempting to field the ball.

If a base-runner in running to first base over-runs or over-slides first base, can he be put out?

No; he may over-run or over-slide first base after touching it provided he return at once and retouch the base. After that he may be put out at any other bases. If after over-running first base, he attempt to run to second base before returning to first base he then runs the risk of being put out.

What is the ground rule regarding extra base or bases when a fielder overthrows to first base?

The base-runner is not automatically entitled to a base. He may advance one base, at his own risk. In other words he has to "make the base." If, however, a spectator handles the ball the base-runners return to their respective bases.

BOOTH SCHOOL REPORTED ON

Board Hears of Condition of Structure

A report dealing with an examination of the exterior of Booth School came before the regular meeting of the School Board last night. It had been prepared by W. H. Shortridge at the request of the board. Mr. Shortridge has also been asked to look over the interior of the school and submit a report, which will be done.

In the course of the report, Mr. Shortridge described walls, north and south. Some of the sills showed signs of needing further cement treatment. There were no visible fractures at north wall to parapet or stairs. West of the hall a new slight fracture had developed recently through moisture getting into the fabric and the effect of frost on same.

At walls south, stairway steps needed attention as facings had gone considerably from the treads and risers. The parapet and slab showed no fractures. This could be made to serve by cleaning off all loose material and building up and repainting.

On the subject of the stairs, there was porous concrete through the use of unclean grav-

ARE WE TOURIST CONSCIOUS? ARE WE SELLING OUR CITY?

(M. E. ANDERER)

I was along the waterfront recently just after an American warship had docked at the Government wharf. By that time some of the officers and ship's company had been given shore leave and they were anxious to see the town. As they came ashore they looked west and then east wondering how they might reach our city. There was not a direction sign to help them. In three cases they started east towards Cow Bay, still wondering how they might reach our well-hidden town and then they noticed the overhead bridge so they turned back and made their way over it. That brought them to the naval buildings at the foot of McBride Street and still there was no sign to indicate to them where the main part of the city was. What a welcome!

Now first impressions have a great effect on people, and this is particularly true of tourists and visitors. Is it not important, even necessary, that our tourists and visitors get a good impression when they land? Notices that "smoking is forbidden" and that people entering from other parts must pass the customs are a poor "welcome mat." We should be able to do better than that.

Our visitors come by one of four routes—train, steamship, road or air. It is surely the duty of the operators of each of these facilities to make sure that the points of interest. The Skeena River, the canneries, the towns, the timber, the farms, settlements, the Bulkley River, the many lakes, the possibilities of development, the history of past accomplishments and failures—each provided topics of interest. And as I left my fellow travellers they were loud in the expressions of appreciation for the information given. It had made their trip so much more interesting. I had been able to answer some of the hundreds of questions that are in the mind of every traveller as he sees these places for the first time. That is a service that should be given freely and generously to all travellers.

The same thing has happened as I travel by boat. My companions want to know the names of the islands, the lighthouses, the narrow passages, the next port of call, when we would get there, how many miles between places, what the industries are, why people live there. Question after question is on their lips and little attempt is made by the companies to answer or anticipate situations or adequate steps taken to meet them. These charges may be fairly levelled against the transportation companies in very many cases.

WERE GUILTY OURSELVES

But we are guilty ourselves. In our city there are three groups to be considered in connection with tourist travel. There are the taxi companies, there is the general public. How does each group do its part in meeting the demands of the tourist trade? Do the Business Interests wait until the tourists walk into their stores? Or do they advertise their wares? Is there any preview given to their prospective visitors? Are there signs along the road telling travellers where they may obtain the best souveniers, or the best meals, or the best accommodation? And do the signs tell the travellers how to get to these various places? I have seen cars stop inside the city limits as the travellers wondered how to get into the city. I have seen cars stop at McBride Street with the travellers wondering again where they might go for meals or other requirements. Is this indicative of a wide-awake community desirous of catering to a trade that should ever be on the increase? Does it make a traveller feel that he is wanted here or just tolerated?

Of course our taxi companies show the tourists over the city and it would surprise some of our citizens to know what a good job the drivers do in taking the visitors to the many attractive gardens and homes.

Our city has many interesting attractions. We should boost them far more than we do. Our museum, our tottem poles, our parks including Roosevelt Park, our Yacht Club, courthouse with its very attractive grounds and sunken garden at the rear, and then our waterfront. I have never had a visitor yet who was not tremendously impressed with the unloading and sorting of the halibut catches. Some have watched the process for an hour. There are very few places in the world that can duplicate this feature of the life of our city. There are the storage plants, the Canadian Fish and Cold Storage, the Northern Fishermen's Cold Storage, the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative Association, and the many fish companies.

The Dominion Government itself is very lax in its consideration of visitors. Nowhere is there any information displayed in the post office to assist the tourist. There should be a large and clearly worded notice board telling on what days and at what times the mail leaves, where it leaves for, with the times of the closing of the mail for each train or boat or plane. I can well believe this would be a valuable service to many of our citizens.

Our Public Relations Committee has done a good job and will do an even better one with its increasing experience. But the business men of the city must do their full share to anticipate the needs and expectations of the tourist, and every citizen must do his share too. The citizens have a well-founded reputation for hospitality but we must make an extra effort to make all tourists feel that they are welcomed here. We must become more tourist-conscious. It will pay dividends from a commercial point of view, but it will pay bigger and more satisfying dividends from a social point of view. We must not only convince people that we are the "Gateway to the Great North-West" but also that we are imbued with that spirit of friendliness and hospitality for which the west is famous.

Bearl Sprott, Here With Cruising Aircraft Carrier, Has Ambitious Dream

Bearl Sprott and his wife who are now in Alaska with their aircraft carrying yacht "Breeze" Thru," are not devoting all their time to mere recreation. Bearl Sprott has a dream and, although ill-health forced him to leave the active field of business, he refuses to climb on the shelf of complete retirement.

With his 142 foot luxury yacht and attending Seabee plane there are few spots on the Pacific Coast that are inaccessible to the energetic Sprott. And wherever he travels, by land or air, he gathers information of the country, the people, the industries and anything else that might interest a tourist. If he stops in a port he likes to know something of its history, its life, its attractions. If the Seabee sits down on an inland lake Sprott wants to know how the trout are biting and the kind of lure they go for.

All this is not due to idle curiosity. Bearl Sprott hopes to use the information in a business scheme he has in mind.

He wants to bring all the pleasures of luxury yachting within reach of the man or woman with moderate means.

In his dream Sprott sees a deepsea vessel, perhaps a converted hospital ship, fitted up like a floating holiday resort complete with several Seabees, fast cabin cruisers, power boats for the fishermen and even light buses that can be used for sightseeing short tours. The ship

Pallbearers John Morrison, Harry Menzies, John Orvick, Sig Grunfur, P. O. Peterson and E. MacAuley carried the remains of their friend to his last resting place.

Flowers placed on the grave were received from John Orvick, Mr. and Mrs. H. Wick, Al Cook, Jarvis Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lund and Elsie, Jens Larson, the Deep Sea Fisherman's Union and the crew of the Laissac.

AIR PASSENGERS

Travellers arriving by air yesterday from Vancouver were Hon. E. C. Carson of Victoria, Mrs. Lipsin, A. E. Howard and T. H. Richardson. Mrs. W. Sutherland from Port Hardy and Cliff Jones of Sandspit, were also aboard. Passengers leaving by plane today for Vancouver were T. Newton, A. Morgan, F. Parkes, Mrs. D. Chomey, Mrs. H. A. Smith, E. M. Reid, A. E. Howard and E. A. Nickerson.

would also have swimming pools, a dance hall, store, a games room and a theatre. In the theatre regular movies would be shown every night as well as a short colored film on the area or port the ship would be in the next day.

Bearl Sprott can see his dream ship making two winter cruises to South America and one summer trip to Alaska each year. Not a pound of freight would the ship carry so her course and ports of call would be governed only by the attractions offered by the area travelled through. Beauty spots off the beaten path would be a specialty.

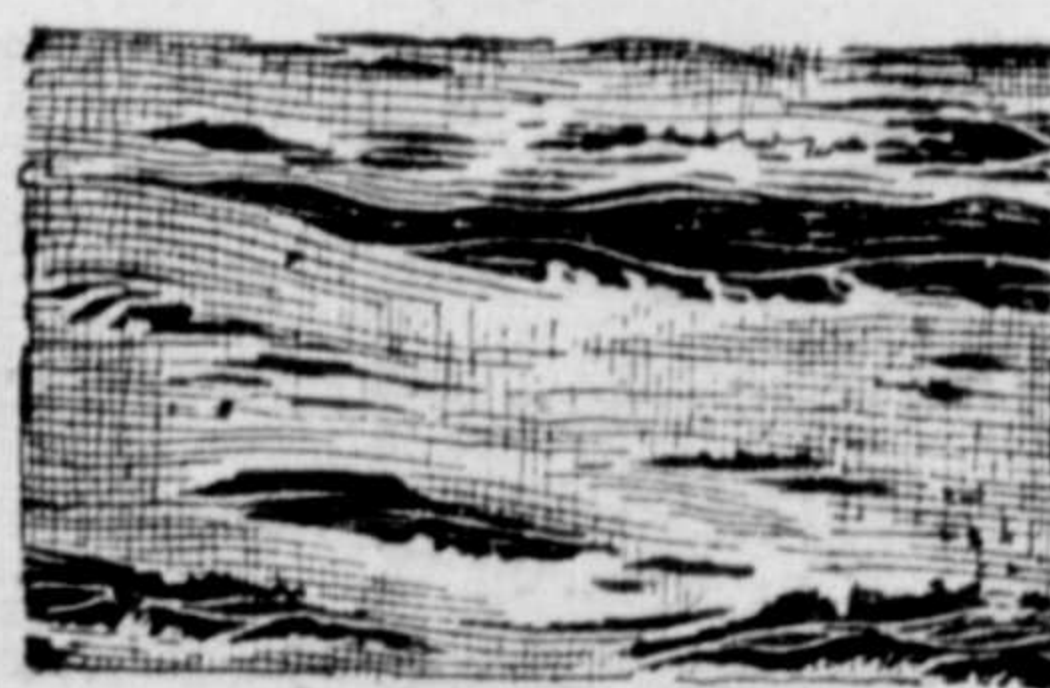

On its northern cruise the ship might put into some of the fjord-like inlets that are a feature of the coast where advance information indicates that there should be some good salmon fishing. With the ship anchored, the power boats would be put over for the fishermen and those who just wanted to explore. For the sportsmen who preferred trout to salmon, the Seabees would be made ready to fly into any of the numerous lakes that lie just beyond the first mountain ridges. Many of the less energetic passengers would be content to sit on comfortable chairs on deck and view the beautiful shore lines or the activities of the powerboats.

Chances are Prince Rupert will one day see results of Bearl Sprott's dream for he is in a position to know what the holiday traveller wants, having at one time been employed by the Mexican Government as an organizer and conductor of extensive tours.

B.C. PRODUCTS SHOW...

of Commerce in the staging of the B.C. Products Show as just another example of where two bodies had been able to get together in a joint effort for mutual benefit.

Thomas Braidwood, president of the Vancouver Board of Trade emphasized that the Vancouver Board believed that what was good for any part of British Columbia was good for the whole.

The business men of Vancouver were happy to see the new industrial development in Prince Rupert. Mr. Braidwood made presentation to two local High School boys who had won $75 and $50 "prizes" respectively in the annual "Job's Study" essay contest of the Vancouver Board of Trade—Donald Main and Lloyd Franklin.

A fine industrial moving picture film depicting the manufacture of pulp and paper in British Columbia, featuring beautiful color scenes of industrial action on the Queen Charlotte Islands and Powell River, was presented after which the lighter part of the program got under way. Community singing was entered into with gusto under the leadership of J. A. Teng and a well-executed variety program included tap dancing by Marissa Windle, vocals by Mrs. Pat Wicks and piano work by Andy McNaughton.

The quiz contest was conducted in masterly fashion by Archie Foreman, secretary-manager of the B.C. Products Bureau, who, with Mr. Grey, handed out cash prizes right and left with many humorous incidents in the plying of questions on B.C. Products.

All in all, it was a memorable show and it was interesting to hear the announcement that the intention was to come back to Prince Rupert again next year when central interior towns will also be included in the itinerary.

In addition to others, platform guests included R. S. O'Meara, deputy minister of trade and industry, and Robert Wyman, industrial agent, Canadian National Railways.
