WONDERFUL DEVELOPMENT OF PRINCE RUPERT PREDICTED BY F. G. DAWSON

Vain Attempt Made to Lead Democrats Out of Wilderness of Ballots

NEW YORK, July 4.—Having beaten all ballot taking records by reaching the sixty-first vote in the effort to select a presidential nominee, the Democratic national convention was given a respite from balloting until this afternoon so that the party pilots might attempt to sound a way out of the wilderness in which their three-score futile attempts to select a candidate had left them. Various plans to end the deadlock between McAdoo and Smith were under consideration but most of them met with vigorous objection from one source or another and, when balloting resumed this afternoon, there was little change in the situation.

COMOX AVENUE HOUSE BURNED

Residence of Budena Bohln and Minnie Ingeles Destroyed in Early Morning Blaze

The residence owned by Budena Bohln and Minnie Ingeles situated at 815 Comox Avenue was completely destroyed as the result of a fire which broke out there early this morning. Only a few articles of furniture were saved. The loss is estimated at $3,000 which is fully covered by insurance.

The fire department answered the call at 1:20 this morning and, when it arrived on the scene, the upstairs portion of the house was a mass of flames. Two lines of hose were quickly brought to play on the conflagration. Owing to a stiff breeze it was only by the persistent efforts of the firemen that adjoining property did not suffer. As it was, it took an hour of hard fire fighting before the flames were under control sufficiently to permit of their entering the building.

The occupants of the house were absent at the time the fire started and the origin of the outbreak is unknown, no fires having been alight at the time. When the blaze had become sufficiently subdued to permit of the house being entered, a search of the debris was made and the sum of $232 in cash was found in an upstairs room as well as a diamond brooch.

Rosy Picture of Next Decade's Progress in Prince Rupert is Painted by Railway Director

That within the next ten years Prince Rupert will have a population of between fifty and seventy-five thousand people and will have become a thriving industrial and shipping centre with elevators, Oriental and United Kingdom direct shipping routes established, and that the interior farming districts adjacent to the Canadian National Railways will have a population of at least 150,000 if a sane immigration policy is followed, were the predictions made by Fred G. Dawson at the Rotary Club luncheon held yesterday afternoon.

Past Experiences

In commencing his address, Mr. Dawson said he based his expectations of the future development of the city on past experience in prairie towns. The speaker said that nearly thirty years ago he came west and first of all settled in Winnipeg. Winnipeg at that time had a population of about 25,000 and was the only city in Western Canada. Within fifteen years Winnipeg had grown to a population of 100,000. He had lived in Regina which in 1898 and 1899 was as dead as a doornail. Having saved the magnificent sum of $500 he thought he would like to invest it in some real estate in Regina but the old timers were pessimistic about real estate values and persuaded him to buy some livestock and put them on the range. In the latter venture he made a little money. Leaving Regina he went to Calgary and opened and managed the first wholesale grocery there. At that time Calgary had a population of about 4,000. The same thing happened as in Regina and he did not buy any real estate. After staying in Calgary for a few years he moved out without making or losing any money. Inside of ten years after he left, Calgary was a city of 90,000 population and the value of real estate had jumped a thousand per cent.

DUTHIE MINE OPENS AGAIN

Interior News Says Hudson Bay Mountain Property Will Resume with Mr. Duthie in Control

With J. F. Duthie again in control, the Duthie mine on Hudson Bay mountain near Smithers is to resume operations by July 15, the Interior News says. Reasons for the shut down are not so clear the paper says, as they have been making regular shipments of very high grade ore since taking over the management. It is well known that Mr. Duthie was far from satisfied with the work being carried on at the property, and this came to a head at a conference in Seattle last week. With the notice received on Friday night to close down, opinions are held that such a move was not altogether voluntary. About eighty men have been employed at the mine and the majority came down the hill on Saturday. A small force remains to finish ore sorting. At the siding at Smithers there is a pile of 14 car-loads of ore and a similar quantity is now at Prince Rupert.

WOULD WELCOME NEW MINISTER

Sir Howard Esme in Favor of Canada Being Represented at Washington

OTTAWA, July 4.—"I should welcome a Canadian minister at Washington," said Sir Howard Esme, British ambassador at Washington, in an interview here. "One reason would be that it would relieve me of a vast amount of work," he added with a smile. Sir Howard is in Canada on a ten day unofficial visit. Speaking of the appointment of an Irish minister to the United States, he said that it appeared almost inevitable that other British Dominions would soon be represented personally at Washington.

ALASKA SALMON THROUGH RUPERT

Einar Beyer, Seattle Shipper, will Use Canadian National Railway Again

Einar Beyer, president of the Northern Produce Corporation, Seattle, returned last night from a business trip to the Inverness and Balmoral canneries where he inspected salmon shipments which his firm is making to Europe. Mr. Beyer is very pleased with the salmon outlook for the season and expects to ship the same quantity through Prince Rupert this year as last.

In 1923 the Northern Produce Corporation shipped 800 tierces of salmon through this port over the Canadian National lines to New York and Mr. Beyer expects this amount will be shipped this year. If the run is particularly good it will be exceeded. The shipments are made in refrigerator cars in bond direct to New York and from there to Europe. Mr. Beyer will leave for Seattle tomorrow.

Better Business On Waterfront

Waterfront interests report that business is much better this season than it has been for some years although money seems to be tight. Undoubtedly the fact that a closed season on halibut is to be brought to pass this fall is causing increased activity in that line and the anticipation of a bumper salmon run is also having its effect. Towards the fall, the complaint that money is tight ought to be in a measure removed. True the salmon fishermen are not being paid as much this year for their catches as they were last but what they may lose from this cause will probably be made up to an extent by increased takings. As the close season on halibut approaches, prices will probably be better and this should place the fishermen in a prosperous condition for the winter. The fisheries still constitute one of the mainstays of Prince Rupert and increased activity and prosperity among the fishermen augurs well for an improved general condition locally even if nothing else should materialize to aid towards general prosperity.

Birthday Of United States.

The United States today celebrates the 148th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. Time has been a great healer and where 148 years ago today the disagreement between the new confederacy and Great Britain had reached its breaking point, today the two great Anglo-Saxon nations of the world are found to be working together in harmony for the general advancement of the world. Past differences have been largely forgotten and it is to be hoped that the two great nations will continue to move in the same spirit so that the years will find the two working together for the good of themselves and the world at large with such effect that it will have been really immaterial whether or not they owned the same common government and allegiances. Canada had come to have a deep bond of friendship with the United States and it for that reason that Canadians may heartily wish their American brethren the compliments and good wishes of a birthday.

Interesting Comment Of Saturday Evening Post.

The Saturday Evening Post, in its current issue, comments in an interesting manner on the trade movement in Canada particularly with regard to grain shipping. It says:

Only a couple of years ago the first experiments were made in the shipment of wheat to Europe via Vancouver and the Panama Canal. During the past year the terminal facilities in Vancouver have been greatly improved. The wheat crop of the province of Alberta was heavy in 1923. The lake traffic out of Fort William and Port Arthur was disorganized for a time after the harvest of last year by imposition of new shipping regulations. This all favored the westbound shipment of wheat. In the eight months of the present season some forty-four million bushels of wheat were exported from Vancouver. A large part of it went to Europe via the Panama Canal.

This means increased earnings for the Panama Canal. It also means decreased earnings for Eastern railroads. A large part of the wheat going out from the Prairie Provinces goes via the lakes to Buffalo, where it is transhipped to North Atlantic ports. A substantial part of the traffic over rails eastbound from Buffalo is Canadian grain, and the expedition of this grain is a substantial part of the port business of the North Atlantic ports. For years the Canadians have been trying to haul out more of their export wheat via Montreal. Apparently the western route represents another successful device to keep the trade in their own hands. Wheat growing is expanding little in Manitoba, and diversified agriculture is on the increase. Wheat growing is expanding in Alberta and this grain may be economically hauled out via the Pacific ports. This means increased independence for Canadian traffic.

Canada had got to be 15 or 16 years old before it got over the hump and commenced to develop rapidly from an industrial standpoint.

Speaking of Prince Rupert the speaker said it was fifteen years since the townsite was sold and he believed the city was now on the eve of great developments. Those who had studied the resources adjacent to the city could not help but know that this town was bound to be a city within the next few years.

In the first place, the city had tributary to the old Grand Trunk Pacific Railway 3,000,000 acres of agricultural land to say nothing of other resources such as fishing, lumbering and mining. With a progressive and aggressive immigration policy along same lines there was no reason why in ten years time, with the land cut out in 100 acre lots, 30,000 families could not be settled which would mean at least a population of 150,000 people. Other incidentals coming in connection with such a settlement would double that population. If it were possible to get 30,000 families on the land the interior country would have a population of quite 200,000 people, and all would realize what that would mean to Prince Rupert which was the metropolis of the district.

Grain Elevators

The speaker was of the opinion that within the next ten years three grain elevators would be erected in the city capable of handling at 100,000,000 bushels of wheat a year. In exporting that wheat 300 ships of an average of 10,000 tons would be required. Placing the revenue accruing to the port at the conservative estimate of $5000 per ship it would mean that $1,500,000 would be left in this port yearly to say nothing of the longshoring and other wages to be paid in handling the products.

The speaker then mentioned the number of freight trains required to handle the grain and the amount of money that would necessarily be spent in the city by the train crews, etc. Mr. Dawson believed that Prince Rupert would, within the next ten years, be the home port for at least one Oriental steamship line and the home port for at least one United Kingdom steamship line.

Rice Mills

If Oriental boats came to this port regularly, it would mean the erection of at least two rice mills and one spice mill. These mills would require a direct service from the Orient. The same thing applied largely on goods imported from the United Kingdom.

To illustrate his point Mr. Dawson cited the instance of orange shipments from Californian points to Prince Rupert. He stated that it was within the last two or three months that C.G.M. M. had given a through rate from Californian points to Prince Rupert. In view of that through rate, the F. G. Dawson company had been enabled to bring carloads of oranges from California into the district and entirely eliminate Vancouver.

Another thing the speaker expected to see erected here was a flour mill. The export of low grades of flour to the Orient had become a big business. With steamships calling in to this port it would necessitate the building of coal bunkers, and he would not be surprised to see coal bunkers erected here to handle 10,000 tons of coal a year. The shipbuilding plant should then be working full blast probably employing a thousand men which would mean a big impetus to the town. With all this development he would expect to see two through passenger trains each day and one local train, with a corresponding increase in way and time freights. Mr. Dawson said that he also expected to see within that time a 1,000 foot pier built off Westview capable of berthing four ships to handle package freight. That would mean the employment of hundreds of longshoremen.

Alaska Salmon

The speaker believed that negotiations for the handling of Alaska salmon through this port were practically completed. The matter had been under advisement for some time. If it were possible to get arrangements made whereby the U.S. Jones' bill could be amended so that British bottoms could bring the salmon here, two million cases of salmon would be handled through this port yearly. Within ten years the speaker expected to see two more large cold storage plants here and to see the fish business developed to greater proportions than was the case at present. He expected to see two abattoirs, a brewery, at least two wholesale grocery warehouses, two wholesale boot and shoe houses, one wholesale mining and logging machinery depot, one wholesale dry goods, two cigar factories, two or three box factories, two sash and door factories, at least a couple of loan and trust companies, more banks and a university. Before ten years elapsed, he predicted that the local mill would be running not only as a lumber producing mill but a pulp and paper plant also employing from one to two hundred hands.

Get Together

Mr. Dawson said, with all these possibilities, it was up to every citizen to do his part in getting them. The trouble in the past had been that everyone had been lying back waiting for unfulfilled promises. The G.T.P. railway had put this port on the map as a terminus. It was their duty very largely to develop the port. Unfortunately they had met with financial disaster, the war intervened and all these things had gone to the wall. Instead of the citizens realizing that years ago and getting behind the port themselves they had waited in vain. The speaker in conclusion said "what we must do is to develop a community spirit, get together, stick together, and pull together to develop this port and you will see that my prophecies will come true."

Here and There

Shipments of grain from Vancouver for the 1923-24 season have now passed the 41,000,000 bushel mark. Officials estimate that the 50,000,000 bushel mark set for the season will be surpassed in the near future.

Reports from England state that it has been universally conceded that Canada's pavilion was in the best condition when the King opened the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley on April 23rd. "It was the Canadian building," the reports said, "spick and span, and complete to the last nail that led all others in the race to the finish in time for to-day's official opening."

Over 3,000 settlers left Liverpool for Canada on April 24th. Thirteen hundred of these sailed on the Canadian Pacific liner "Montezum," including a party of 200 skilled workers from Manchester, 38 belonging to engineering trades, 40 to building trades and 42 farm hands. Eighty skilled workers from Leeds and a party of engineers from Barrow-in-Furness were also on board.

A total of 40,000,000 salmon trout eggs has been collected during the last season by the Department of Marine and Fisheries in Lake Huron, Georgian Bay and Lake Superior. The total number obtained compares favorably with the average collections of recent years and is sufficient to fill all the hatcheries on the Great Lakes engaged in the propagation of salmon trout.

Graphic and interesting educational motion pictures will bring Alberta's various resources to the eyes of those who attend the British Empire Exhibition this year. In addition to pictures illustrating the life of Alberta's citizens on the farms, on the ranches and in the mining districts, charts will be used to bring out interesting compilations of statistics illustrative of the province's agricultural and industrial output.

Elaborate arrangements for the celebrations are being made and it is expected that thousands of visitors will attend.

An attractive booklet entitled, "A Week in Quebec in the Spring," by Betty Thornley, internationally known writer associated with "Vogue" and other magazines, has just been added to the series of artistic pamphlets published by the Canadian Pacific Railway. It describes the Ancient Capital and its environs, as illustrated by many striking photographs and bound in a cover which reproduces in natural colors the pattern of cloth called catalogue, woven by Quebec habitant women.

That the Indian village of Hochelega, which stood on the site of the present city of Montreal, was a place of about fifty wooden houses having a population of some 4,000 souls when Jacques Cartier sailed up the St. Lawrence, was the assertion made by Dr. W. D. Lighthall before the Antiquarian and Numismatic Society of Montreal recently. Dr. Lighthall was able to give the boundaries of the village and described it as resembling the home of Cedric the Saxon, in "Ivanhoe."

Appropos of the recent "Save the Forest Week," E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, stated: "A week's concentration on saving the forests of Canada is well worth while—much better to make it a 'Forest Saving Year' and, if the forest resources of this country are to be conserved to adequately avert the greater Canada of a few years hence it must be a 'Forest Saving Generation.' rest wastage is to-day tragically great and we Canadians must and are paying for the loss."

ANYOX BEAT KETCHIKAN

Score of Baseball Game was 7 to 5—Rain Interfering with Dominion Day Sports

ANYOX, July 5.—For twenty-one days no rain fell on Anyox, although several good and consistent exhorters daily prayed for moisture from the skies. Just as soon as something was to be doing in the way of fittingly celebrating Dominion Day, the downpour started. Shortly after midnight on Tuesday morning the rain commenced, and it continued throughout the day with the exception of an hour just about the time the ball game between Anyox and Ketchikan was scheduled to start. In that brief period the game got under way and, although it drizzled practically all the time, the boys stuck to it and gave the spectators nine innings of real baseball. That is there were all the kicks and thrills that one expects to get for the price of admission. Anyox won, the score being five to seven.

FINE BASEBALL LAST EVENING

Prince Rupert Shut Out Japanese Team From Ocean Falls by Three to Nil

Playing airtight baseball, Prince Rupert shut out the Japanese team from Ocean Falls last night by a score of three to nothing in the second game of the series. It was a splendid match featured by practically errorless play and proved most satisfactory to the large crowd of fans that witnessed it. The teams were well matched and timely hits won for the local team. There were no changes in the Prince Rupert line-up from start to finish and the battery, consisting of Lidstone and Balfour, performed creditably with excellent support being accorded it in the field. The boys were right on their toes and were not letting anything get past them. The same may be said for the Japs and they lost little that could have been saved through one or two errors almost proved costly to them.

Tight fielding prevented any runs being scored during the first three innings. The most of the play was in the infield and few men on either side got past first base, the outfield being tested on only one or two occasions.

The first run came for Prince Rupert in the fourth inning. Balfour singled to centre field and got second on an overthrow. Hatchford poled out a mean fly to left field which was nicely caught and Wilson walked. Vic Menzies singled and scored. Balfour and Wilson was put out at the home plate after the short-stop had erred. The side went down when Easson fanned.

In the fifth inning, Frank Nagano, the manager of the Ocean Falls team who was in the box, showed signs of settling down, but not for long. In the sixth inning, after W. Mitchell had fouled out, Balfour got first on a slow return from third. Hatchford was put out at first but advanced Balfour to second. Wilson followed up with a pretty two-bagger past centre field which scored Balfour and was brought home himself when Vic Menzies sent out a three bagger behind the rock pile. Nagano then left the mound for Ocean Falls and was replaced by the pitcher of the night before. Easson was put out at first base and the side went down with two more runs to its credit.

There was no further scoring during the game which went seven innings and, due to good fast play, was over well before nine o'clock.

The Prince Rupert team lined up as follows:

Len Sherman, rf; W. Mitchell, lf; D. Balfour, c; Jack Hatchford, cf; Wilson, 2b; V. Menzies, 3b; Art Easson, ss; S. Bazett-Jones, lb; D. Lidstone, p.

Lidstone had 8 strike-outs to his credit and Ocean Falls, five, four of them being by Nagano.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Prince Rupert	0	0	1	0	2	0	—3

Sport Chat

To say the least of it, the action of the Japanese baseball team from Ocean Falls in throwing up the sponge because it did not approve of the decisions given by the umpire on Monday night was not readily appreciated by fans. Any admiration that spectators may hold because of merits of play tend to be eclipsed with disgust when such spirit is displayed. Without entering into any undue criticism of our visitors who may have been justified to some extent in their grievance, it might again be pointed out that players are not supposed to take the law in their own hands if they do not agree with the umpire. That is not the accepted and sportsmanlike way though some of our own men themselves often carry their conduct too far in showing their disapproval of decisions on the field. A word to the fans may also not come amiss and that is that "one umpire on the field is worth a hundred in the grandstand."

Games such as the one that was staged last night between Prince Rupert and the Japanese team from Ocean Falls are the kind that people like to see. Errors were practically nil and the runs were earned. The exhibition fully made up for the shortcomings of the evening previous. Both teams played splendid baseball and the lucky hits that won the match just happened to come Prince Rupert's way. The team from the paper town has decided to remain in the city until tomorrow night and another game will be played tonight. In view of the excellence of the performance last evening, a big crowd may be expected to witness the final tonight.

HARI-KIRI IS JAP SUICIDE

Has Significance Such as Death of Ancient Warrior and Follower Rites of People

Behind the facade of Western civilization in Japan the old Japanese traditions of honor and self sacrifice still hold sway. This fact, according to those familiar with Oriental ways of thinking, explains the act of an unknown citizen of Tokio, who committed suicide in front of the ruins of the American embassy as a solemn protest against the law excluding Japanese immigrants from America.

The suicide, or hara-kiri, carried out after the ancient manner of the Samurai is reported in Tokio dispatches to have caused a profound sensation through Japan.

"He met his death like an ancient warrior," the Tokio chief of police is quoted as saying. "He will receive the honors due to a soldier who died on the battlefield."

Hara-kiri, or as the Japanese prefer to call it, Seppuku, is technically suicide, but it has a significance, in Japanese eyes, entirely different from that of suicide in western countries. It rests upon a sense of honor and loyalty so profound that the individual life is held to count for nothing.

"Honorable Suicide"

"Seppuku," said Baron Suyematsu, writing some years ago, "was in the feudal period an honorable mode of committing suicide. It was unknown to the Japanese of ancient days and was a custom which grew with the age of chivalry. With us in the Far East to hang one's self was looked upon as the most cowardly of all methods of self-destruction, and drowning one's self or taking poison was deemed to be no better."

Lafcadio Hearn, in his book on Japan, points out that at first "it was the military class that established hara-kiri as a custom and privilege."

"Previously," he says, "the chiefs of a routed army or the defenders of a castle taken by storm would thus end themselves to avoid falling into the enemy's hands—a custom which continued into the present era. About the close of the fifteenth century the military custom of permitting any Samurai to perform hara-kiri instead of subjecting him to the shame of execution appears to have been generally established.

Children Trained for Death

"Afterward it became the recognized duty of a Samurai to kill himself at the word of command. All Samurai were subject to this disciplinary law, even lords of provinces, and in Samurai families children of both sexes were trained how to perform suicide whenever personal honor or the will of a liege lord might require it."

Inazo Nitobe, in "Bushido, the Soul of Japan," testifies to the same effect. "Death involving a question of honor," he says, "was accepted in Bushido as a key to the solution of many complex problems, so that to an ambitious Samurai a natural departure from life seemed a rather tame affair and a consummation not devoutly to be wished.

"Seppuku was not a mere suicidal process. It was an institution legal and ceremonial. An invention of the Middle Ages, it was a process by which warriors could expiate their crimes, apologize for errors, escape from disgrace, redeem their friends, or prove their sincerity. When enforced as a legal punishment it was practiced with due ceremony. It was a refinement of self-destruction and none could perform it without the utmost coolness of temper and composure of demeanor."

Strict Rites for Deed

Compulsory hara-kiri was surrounded with the utmost degree of formality.

"How to sit," says Baron Suyematsu, "how to bow to the spectators when about to commence the awful task, how to unfold reverently the part of the clothing which covers the upper part of the body, how to wrap up the dagger and how to make the requisite appeal to the kai-shaku-nin were all matters in which every Samurai was obliged to receive from the master of military ceremonies."

When a Samurai was requested to commit suicide he usually chose a friend, preferably an expert swordsman, to assist in the delicate process. A special dress was donned for the occasion, a special dagger, wrapped in a prescribed way in tissue paper, was placed on a stand of a traditional pattern in front of the doomed man, and every move was carefully regulated by a grim book of etiquette. The victim bowing to the spectators and seating himself so that he would not fall backward, unwrapped the dagger made the required incisions, then motioned to his friend, the "kai-shaku-nin," who immediately, with one stroke of the sword, cut off his head.

Horrified at Spectacle

Several executions of this kind were carried out in the presence of foreigners toward the close of the feudal regime in the late '60's of the last century. On one occasion, twenty young Samurai were ordered to commit suicide before the French minister for attacking French troops. After eleven had killed themselves the minister, horrified at the spectacle, begged that the slaughter might stop.

Compulsory hara-kiri was abolished with the other relics of the feudal regime in 1867, but the voluntary sort has persisted, though with diminishing frequency, to the present day.

During the wars with China and Russia several officers of the army and the navy took this method of atoning for mistakes. Akin to it was the attitude assumed by many officers toward their families. One officer divorced his bride of a few months before leaving for the front in order that he might seek death at the hands of the enemy with no thought of home ties.

Suicide of Gen. Nogi

The most famous of all Japanese suicides in modern times was that of General Nogi, the hero of Port Arthur, who committed suicide on the death of his emperor in order that he might not be separated from him and as a solemn testimonial of his loyalty. This act caught the imagination of every Japanese, and Nogi's tomb is a popular shrine.

The unknown suicide in front of the American embassy thus performed an act which will have significance for every Japanese, and which already has done much according to Tokio dispatches, to strengthen the so-called "national spirit" movement.

TWO-THIRDS IS REQUIRED

Paradox in American Politics Reflected in Democratic Presidential Convention

The two-thirds rule applies at the Democratic National convention in the United States in selecting a candidate for the presidency. In the Republican convention, only a straight majority is required. It is the two-thirds rule that has aggravated the situation in the Democratic convention now in progress.

The Ketchikan Chronicle comments on the two-thirds rule as follows:

"How much American government is influenced by usages which are written neither into the constitution nor into statute law quadrennially appears in the discussion of the two-thirds rule of national Democratic conventions. Whenever there is a contest between candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination and none of them is assured of a two-thirds majority, inevitably the suggestion is made that the two-thirds rule be abolished. Yet for nearly a century it has never gone beyond the suggestion stage.

Rule Will Survive

In practice every Democratic presidential candidate has been given a two-thirds majority of the convention since national conventions began to be held, although it is within the power of each convention to pass upon the validity of the custom by adopting a resolution accepting it as a rule or making a simple majority the vote necessary to a nomination. Judging this convention by past conventions, the two-thirds rule will survive any attack upon it. It is probable that the movement against it will peter out as it invariably has in the past. A candidate who can win in spite of the old rule feels no hostility to it; a candidate who is seriously handicapped by it always fears in the pinch to put his weakness to the test of a vote on the rule in open convention.

The two-thirds rule is undemocratic in the sense that a majority are given a veto upon the wishes of any majority that falls short of two-thirds. The Democratic party would never consent to introducing such a principle into popular elections in general. Even in the electoral college only a majority of votes is required for the election of a president. If it were suddenly made necessary

Riding along an unfamiliar road, you depend upon sign posts to guide you. Whether you're hitting the thank-you-mams in a flivver or soaring along in a costly car, they do their work equally well.

To-day as you spend your money to fill your needs, advertisements are waiting to direct you. They are the guide posts of business. They point the short, straight road to satisfaction in buying. They will serve you well, whether you spend much or little.

Do you stop to read the advertisements? They are published to tell you exactly where to go for what you want. They lead you to values which you would never know were they not there to guide you.

to have a two-thirds majority of the popular vote to elect the governor of New York or the mayor of New York city, the Democratic party would almost be ready to stage a revolution. Yet in a delegate convention the party tolerated a principle that it would condemn as vicious in a popular primary or election. Such are the paradoxes of American politics.

Worked no Injury

Yet the rule in practice has not worked injury to the country. Until Champ Clark failed to win the presidential nomination in 1912 no candidate who had obtained the support of a majority of the votes cast in a ballot for a presidential candidate failed to obtain the support of two-thirds. The failure of Clark and the success of Wilson at Baltimore because of this rule was so extremely fortunate for the country, in the light of subsequent events, that the rule probably enjoys more solid favor today among political students and scientists than ever before. If it does violence to the principle of majority control, it is often a barrier against unwise, emotional or reckless action.

PLANS TO SHOOT ROCKET TO MOON

Prof. R. H. Goddard, American Scientist, Hopes to Achieve the Feat this Year

Prof. R. H. Goddard, the American scientist who hopes to shoot a rocket to the moon this summer, has perfected his laboratory experiments and is confident he will succeed in hitting his lunar target, nearly a quarter of a million miles from the earth, says the London Observer.

But the success of his project depends very largely on the behaviour of the rocket in the lower regions of the earth's atmosphere, before it enters free space, where it can make a beeline for the moon. To obtain some idea as to how far friction with the air and air currents may cause the rocket to deviate from its trajectory, the professor intends to fire a similar rocket to an altitude of ten or a dozen miles from the earth, and determine its path through the air by telescopic observations from various points, its path being marked by successive explosions of the brilliant "flash" powder by means of which it is hoped to see the impact on the moon of the actual rocket that will subsequently be fired at our satellite.

Though the atmosphere of the earth extends probably 350 miles above the surface, the greater part of it is packed into the region between the ground and the ten mile level, and if Prof. Goddard can get accurate data as to how the rocket will be affected by the atmosphere it passes through in the first ten miles of its upward flight, and can utilize this information to correct his aim when he fires at the moon—or rather at the point in space where the moon will be, thirty-six hours after the rocket starts as it will take that time to cover the distance—he need not worry about the rest of the journey, as the atmosphere above ten miles is so rarefied that it will have practically no effect on the projectile passing through it on its way into space.

Any day now Prof. Goddard will begin his ten-mile-altitude tests, and once these have been satisfactorily carried through he will probably range on the moon without delay. What will happen if he gets a bull's-eye is doubtful, but the man in the moon would be well advised to keep a

Answering Questions

We are printing a little series of these announcements dealing with purity, richness and natural flavor of Pacific Milk.

So many letters ask why. Others want to know what we do to fresh milk to make it so rich. Some want to know how we get the natural flavor.

Answering the last one first we don't get the flavor. We only keep the flavor nature gives to pure, rich milk.

FURTHER REDUCTION ORIENTAL LICENSES

Cut of Fifteen Per Cent Agreed Upon by Marine and Fisheries Committee at Ottawa

OTTAWA, July 4.—A recommendation to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in favor of a further cut of 15 per cent in 1925 in the number of commercial fishing licenses issued in British Columbia to other than white or Indian fishermen, was adopted by the Marine and Fisheries Committee of the House last week.

W. G. McQuarrie (Conservative, New Westminster), moved for a cut of 10 per cent, but Alfred Stork (Liberal, Skeena) thought this too low, and suggested 25 per cent. Eventually agreement was reached on 15 per cent.

Mr. McQuarrie suggested further the reopening of negotiations with the State of Washington regarding the protection of sockeye salmon on the Pacific coast. He proposed that instead of insisting on a complete close season, an effort should be made to secure an international agreement prohibiting the catch of salmon until August 1 of each year. The committee agreed to forward the suggestion to the minister.

Another recommendation adopted by the committee was that in view of the late season and very small catch of lobsters around the coast of Prince Edward Island and the northern part of Nova Scotia, some extension be made to the season this year.

NURSES ARE OUT FOR 10-HOUR DAY

HAMILTON, July 4.—After considerable discussion delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian National Association of Trained Nurses decided to recommend to superintendents of hospitals that ten hours constitute a working day, with the day to end at six o'clock. Those doing night duty would commence at six and finish at eight o'clock.

In explaining the resolution the sponsors asserted that because of long hours many nurses, owing to the constant over-weariness had weakened under the strain and had been forced out of the profession. It was contended that long hours would inevitably affect the service.

Miss Jean E. Browne, Toronto, was re-elected president; Miss Kate Matheson, Toronto, vice-president; Miss M. Horsey, Montreal, second vice-president; Miss M. F. Gray, Regina, honorary secretary, and Miss Mary Shaw, Quebec, honorary treasurer.

Miss Breeze, Miss Johns, Miss Campbell and Miss McLeay were elected British Columbia members of the executive.

SEATTLE CHIEF OF POLICE REINSTATED

Mayor Brown Says Name of City Was Injured Through Pernicious Activity of Acting Mayor

SEATTLE, July 4.—Mayor E. J. Brown, arriving in Seattle at the first of the week from the Democratic convention from which he was called because of the shake-up in the police department caused by Mrs. Landes, acting mayor, rushed to his office in the Council City Building and immediately signed the commission reinstating Chief of Police Severyns. The latter then resumed his post.

Regarding the episode Mayor Brown said: "Seattle has been made to look bad throughout the country. I have been called upon, all the way across the continent, to defend the name of my city."

The mayor openly charged that the interference was self-seeking and pernicious, not for the good of the city but for the self-glorification of the temporary holder of the office of mayor. Also the Mayor intimated that they would not be able to drive him out of the city for the rest of his term, for he would "not trust" the affairs of the city in such hands.
