BRITISH SEEK DISARMAMENT

In Meantime Will Continue A Margin of Safety Without Being Provocative.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Parliamentary secretary to the admiralty, C. G. Ammon, stated in the House of Commons last night that owing to pressure of international affairs the minister had been unable to give full consideration to the question of disarmament. He understood that as soon as practicable every step would be taken to call into being something in the nature of an international conference with a view to arriving at an arrangement to reduce armaments. In the meantime he said there would be no departure from what the Government deemed a right margin of safety. Nothing would be done of a provocative nature by way of infringing on existing pacts.

EXHIBITS COMING IN FOR FALL FAIR

Mineral Shipment Arrived Last Night From Anyox. Early Advice Desired By Board.

A shipment of ore from the Granby smelter and mine, for the mineral exhibit at the forthcoming exhibition, arrived in the city from Anyox last night. Exhibits from the Dunwell and other properties at Stewart, the Belmont at Surf Inlet and from the Queen-Charlotte Islands are expected shortly. The Fair Board is desirous that those interested in the forestry and district agricultural exhibits communicate with the office at once, giving an idea of exhibits to be sent so that adequate provision may be made for them and confusion avoided at the time of the exhibition opening.

DENTAL DELEGATES PLEASSED WITH TRIP

Made Presentation to C.N.R. Official Who Accompanied Them From Port Arthur

Highly pleased with the rail trip west, 40 delegates from Eastern Canada to the Canadian Dental Association convention at Vancouver next week passed through the city last night. They arrived by train at 4.40 and, before the boat sailed for the south at 11 o'clock, they had the opportunity to see the city and meet friends here.

On arrival here, the party presented R. Pyne, inspector of sleeping and dining cars for the C.N.R., who accompanied them from Port Arthur, with a handsome pipe and cigarette case as a token of appreciation for the service and courtesies extended them. The party was met up the line and accompanied here by R. F. McNaughton, C.N.R. district passenger agent.

BLEED TO DEATH IN CITY JAIL

Harry Carnahan Severed Artery in Wrist and Died Soon Afterwards

SUPPOSED KILLED SELF

Harry Carnahan, held in the city police station since yesterday morning and suspected of being a drug addict, died in the General Hospital shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, bleeding to death from a cut on the right wrist believed to have been self-inflicted with a safety razor blade in cell No. 6 which he was occupying. Carnahan landed in jail yesterday morning at 3.10 o'clock. He was arrested at the General Hospital on complaint from the staff. He went to the hospital stating that he had been sent there by a doctor. This was denied by the doctor in question. The nurses then asked that he be removed, so he was taken to jail.

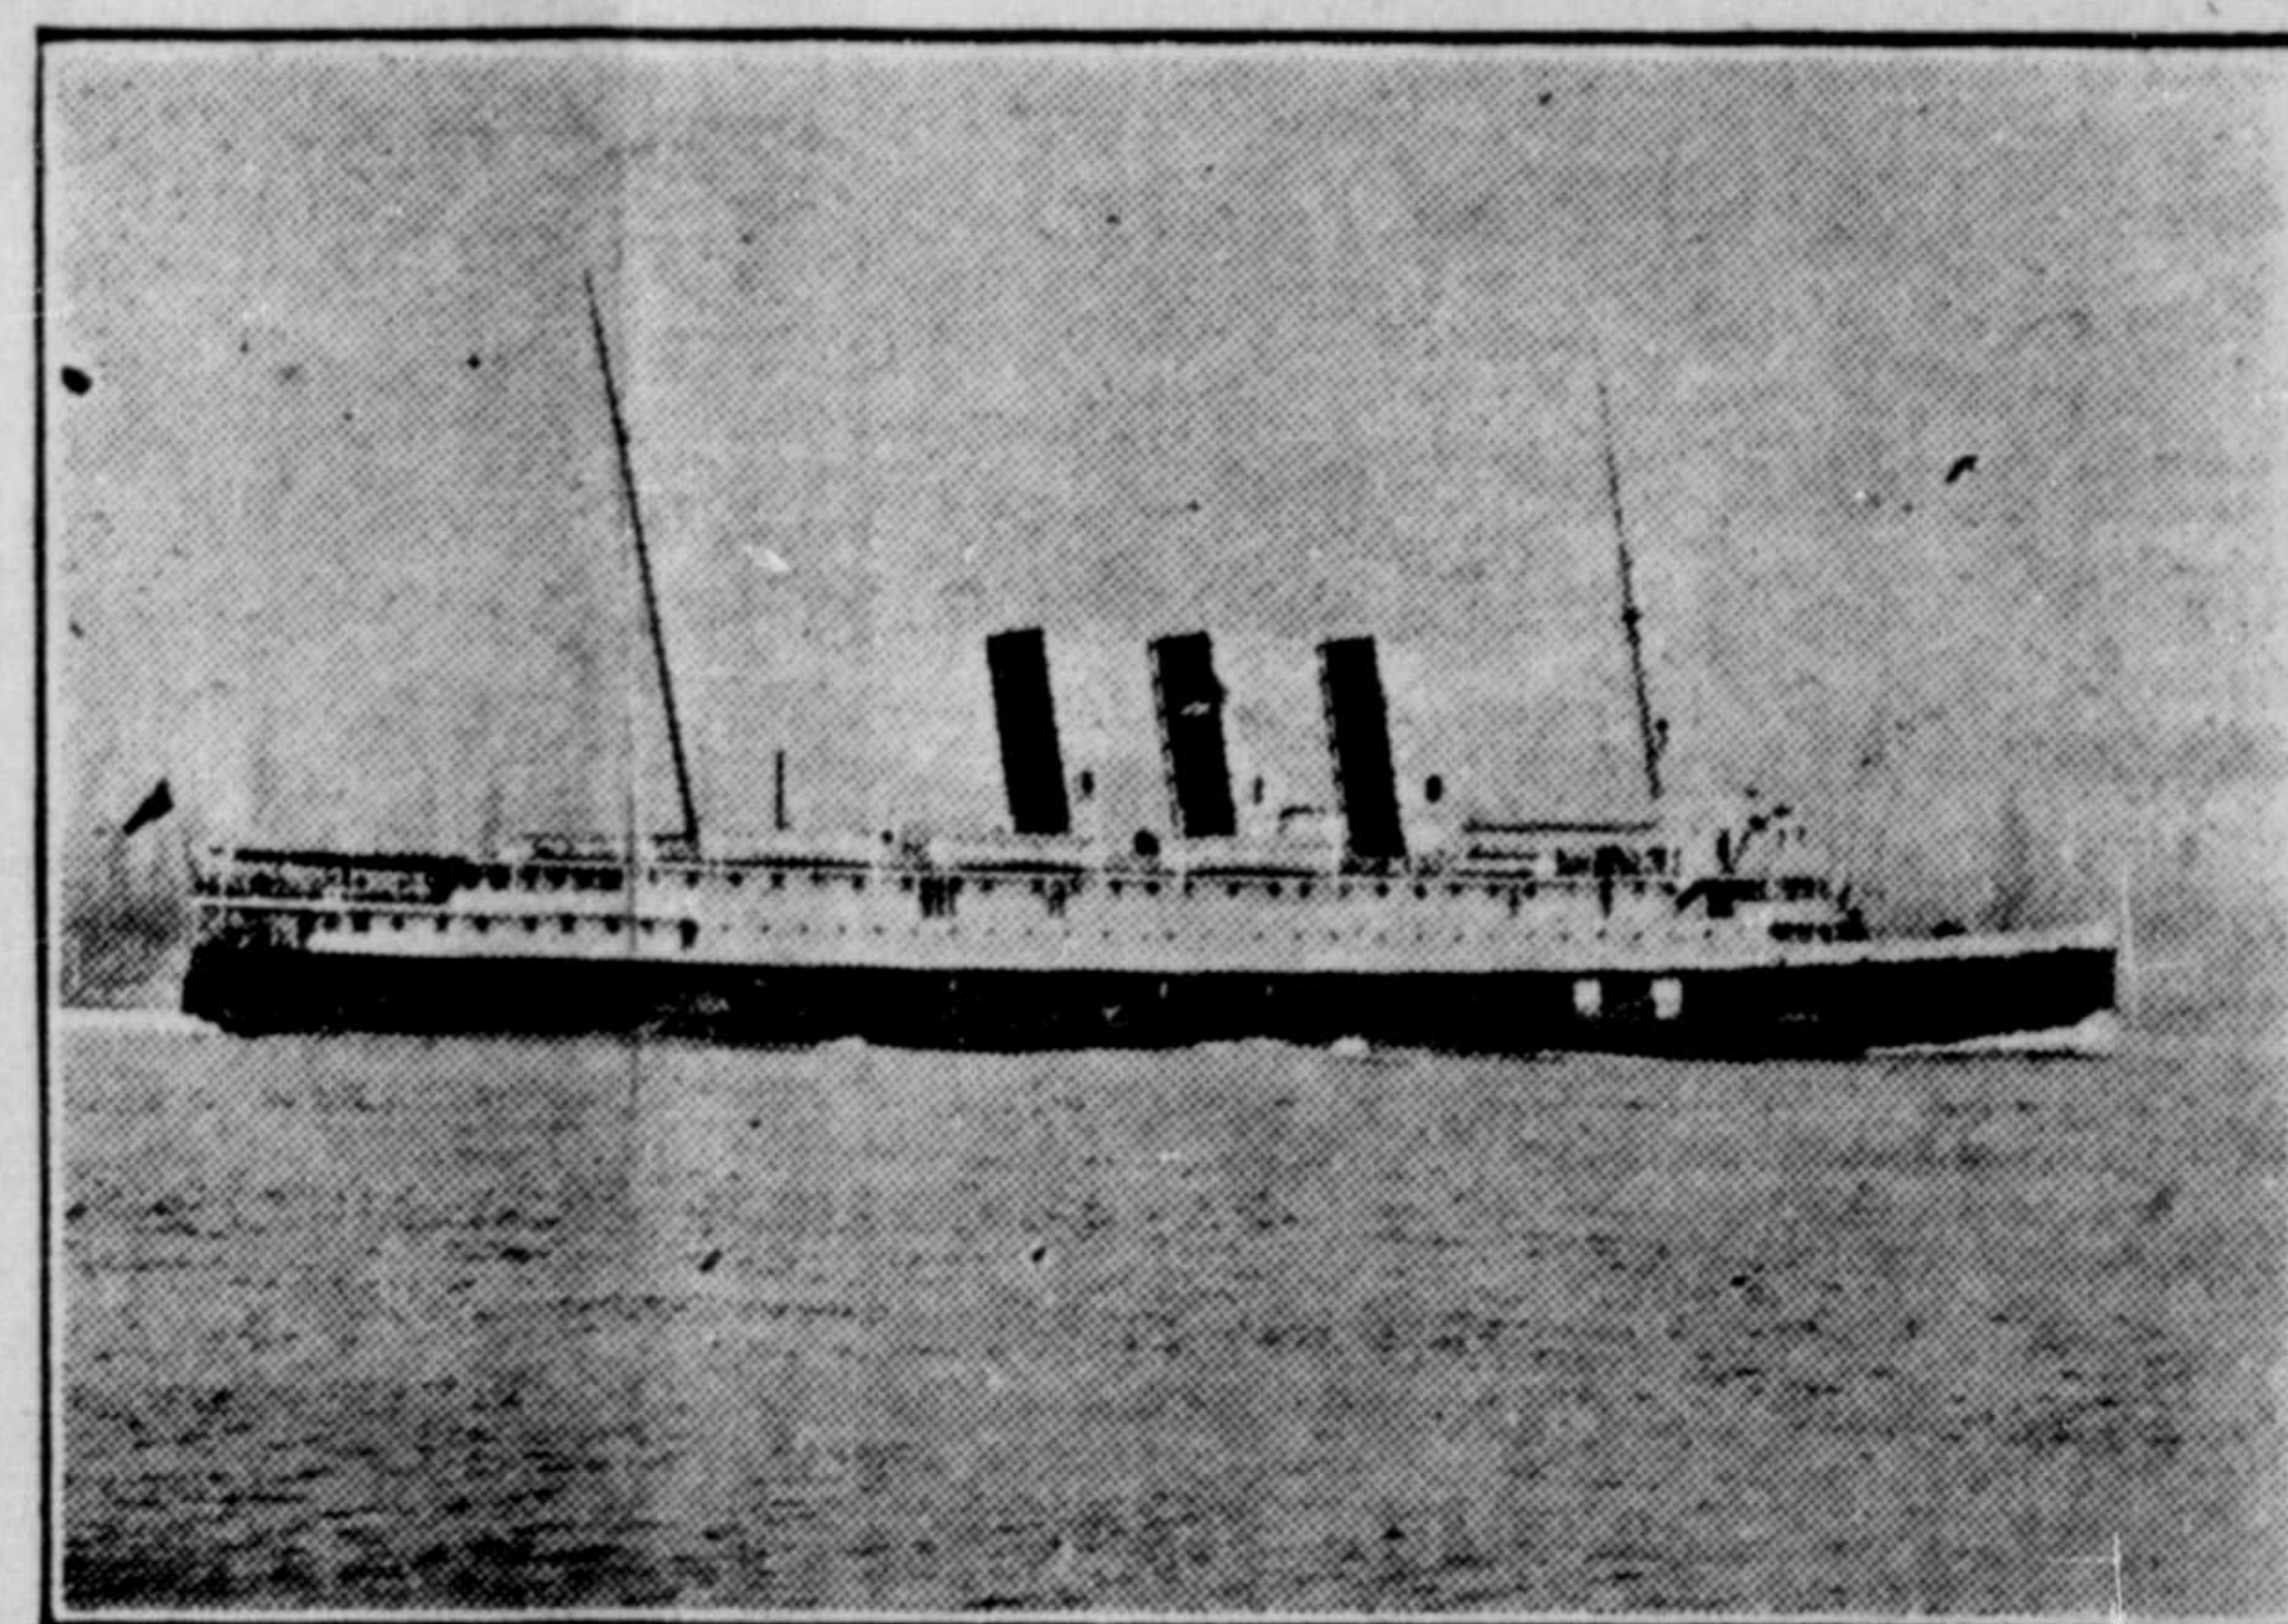

Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, between the time that Sergeant Bailey went off duty and Chief Vickers arrived, the prisoners in the lock-up attracted the attention of J. W. Exley, city hall janitor, saying that a man had attempted to commit suicide. Chief Vickers, who was on his way to the station at the time, was found on the street and hurried to the station. On arrival, he found Carnahan lying on the floor of the cell with his right wrist gashed and a safety razor blade near him. The man was pretty well gone at that time and there was a pool of blood beside him his bed and blankets also being saturated. He was rushed to the hospital where he expired shortly afterwards from loss of blood.

According to the prisoners in the jail, deceased cut himself about 7 o'clock. Asked at that time what he had done, he said he had cut his finger. Later, however, it was seen that something more serious had been done and the alarm was raised. Not being considered a desperate character, Carnahan's cell had been opened first thing this morning along with those of other prisoners as is the custom.

Little is known of Carnahan but he stated to fellow prisoners that he was 38 years of age and had come from United States. Acquaintances he had formed in the city believed he was a drug addict.

An inquest will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock before Coroner Walter Gale.

Biological Museum to be Here and Private Interest Solicited to Make its Collection Complete

A museum is to be established here in connection with the proposed biological station and it is hoped that private persons as well as the government will aid in making it representative of the fishing industry, according to John Dybhavn, who addressed the Rotary Club yesterday on the work of the biological board of Canada. He said it was always difficult and slow getting governments to do work of that kind. In Sweden they had one of the best biological museums in the world and it was largely the result of private effort. He hoped similar work would be done here as soon as they had the building ready.

History of Board.
In sketching the work of the Board in the past, Mr. Dybhavn said it had first been established in an advisory capacity in 1898 under the direction of the department of marine and fisheries for the purpose of carrying on scientific and research work. A floating laboratory on a scow was used first at St. Andrews, New Brunswick, and they commenced work on a limited scale. They moved to Canso, to Prince Edward Island points and to Canso, Nova Scotia, and then to Gaspé, Quebec. Finding that the arrangement did not fulfil a useful purpose the question arose of providing more up to date plant. This was built at St. Andrews and also a station was established at Departure Bay, near Nanaimo, for the Pacific Coast, with Rev. Mr. Taylor in charge. It was equipped with suitable boats and apparatus and provision was made for students who wished to use it.

New Laws Passed.
Dissatisfaction arose again that the board did not serve a useful purpose and friction developed. The result was that a new law, "The Biological Board Act," was passed incorporating a separate body under the department of marine and fisheries. Dr. Knight was chosen a member of the board and later appointed chairman and retained that position today. Other members were appointed and still it was not satisfactory to the fishing industry. Representations were made and the law was amended giving three additional members, one representing the fishing industry on each coast and the other a government official who was an expert. It was suggested that educational work should be carried on at the stations, one on each coast. One was being completed at Halifax and the other, it was expected, would be placed here. It would include a laboratory for investigating the preservation and curing of different kinds of fish and also would have specimens of the various

It will take sixty days to complete these and it will therefore be some time before the real production of gold takes place.

Steps Being Taken Here to Form Naval Volunteer Corps Recruiting Likely Very Soon

During the past eighteen months a naval volunteer reserve force has been started in the Dominion with depots at various places as St. John's, Toronto, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver. At each of these places the units are up to strength and many have a waiting list of would-be recruits.

The raising of a half company, 55 all told, has been proposed for Prince Rupert and it is expected that recruiting will be approved by the department of national defence in the near future.

First At Victoria.

The first formation of a volunteer reserve force was at Victoria, in 1913, though a similar movement has been in force in Great Britain for many years. During the recent war the personnel of the volunteer reserve was 4,374, but under the re-organization scheme of about 18 months ago, the strength was 1,000. Where units have been approved and have a strength of 75 per cent. of establishment, a permanent petty officer instructor has been appointed, headquarters secured and stores supplied in order that the instruction requisite may be given.

Drills are both interesting and useful, members being given instruction in seamanship such as rule of the road, helm and compass, bends and hitches, knots and splices, boat sailing, etc. Also gunnery, which includes lectures on ammunition, 12 pounder gun drill on a fixed mounting, also a field service carriage, signalling in all branches.

Volunteer reservists from the west as far as Winnipeg are given the opportunity of training at Esquimalt Naval Barracks for periods of 14 days to 4 months, during which time instruction is given in all guns up to the latest 6-inch, director firing, torpedo work. The opportunity also arises for service afloat for a similar period.

Receives Pay.
In the event of a volunteer reservist going from Prince Rupert to Esquimalt, he would receive the pay of his rank or rating from the time of departure till return, together with free transportation both ways.

Recently 32 volunteers embarked at Vancouver for a cruise to Halifax with the special service squadron. Eleven went to the "Repulse" and 21 to the "Hood," these men came from Winnipeg and St. John. No expense was incurred by them and they will have an interesting time and see places which they otherwise might not.

When the "Thiepval" left on her long trip to Japan, 5 volunteer reservists formed part of her complement. The same thing applies to the last cruise of the "Patrician" to Mexican waters, though of course there were more than five, probably fifteen. Not Professional Sailor.

The volunteer reservist does not have to be a professional sailor, but must be a British subject, 18 to 40 years of age. After filling in the application form, he has to pass a strict medical examination, at no cost to himself, before being finally accepted.

Only two units are allowed for the Pacific coast. Vancouver has one over full strength and Rupert has the opportunity for the other, but only if sufficient recruits are forthcoming in the near future.

In the event of a unit being formed here arrangements would very soon be made for as many as wanted to proceed away for training in the South.

MOSCOW, Aug. 1.—After a series of hurried conferences with the Government in respect to the status of the Anglo-Russian conference, M. DUBLIN, Aug. 1.—A serious development occurred today in the strike of municipal workers who went out last week demanding increased pay. Dislocation of shipping at the docks was also caused and there is danger of complete stopping of port traffic.

Canada Looks Good To Many.

Canada looks good to many Canadians who went to California who are longing for the green fields and purring brooks of the northland. Also it is reported that Canada looks good to some of the Mennonites who went to Mexico and who have fallen a prey to bandits.

European Settlement Is Satisfactory.

It is satisfactory that the countries of Europe that were allies during the war have been able to agree over a settlement of the reparations question. For years they have been squabbling among themselves and in the meantime Germany has been kept back a good deal owing to uncertainty and to the necessity of proving to the other powers her inability to pay the amounts demanded. Now a final settlement is in sight and it is to be hoped it will not again have to be reopened.

Great Interest Taken In Visiting Scientists.

The visit of the British Association to Toronto and their subsequent tour of the country is an important event in the history of Canada. Most of the men who attend are outstanding men in their particular professions and they will draw the attention of the whole world. Great preparations have been made in Toronto for their reception and the convention will commence on August 7. This paper will give as fully as possible reports of the proceedings which will prove of good deal of interest locally.

Aid For Proposed Biological Museum.

In the report of his Rotary Club address in this issue John Dybhavn tells of the plans to establish a museum here in connection with the biological station. Prince Rupert people will doubtless take a pride in this and will aid it as much as possible. It should be the place for the exhibit of permanent specimens of local fish, both commercial and sport, mention of which was made yesterday. It is what is badly needed here at the present time.

Co-operation Of Vancouver.

Vancouver will co-operate with Prince Rupert in welcoming the British round the world flyer to this port when he arrives. This is satisfactory and will be good news to us. It makes it all the more necessary that Prince Rupert extend herself a little in making the event a memorable one. The suggestion for a big parade of launches and fishing boats and steamers and also for a special Highlanders boat with bagpipes and kilties leading with Scottish decorations seems to have proved popular and doubtless the committee in charge will evolve some general scheme in which all citizens can join and which will make the event not only a prominent one but outstanding among all receptions hitherto given Stuart MacLaren. Possibly other suggestions may be made that may add touches of novelty to the event. This is a good time to make them.

Mix Mustard Yourself

After mixing in cold water, it takes just ten minutes to liberate from dry mustard the essential oils which give the full rich piquant flavour, and which so greatly aid digestion and assimilation of foods. Unless you mix your own mustard you miss the best part of the flavour and benefit. Have your mustard always fresh.

BASKING IN GLORY OF ANOTHER PERSON

Shows How Chauffeur Was Mistaken for Famous Racer and Complications Ensue

The world is full of people who like to bask in the glory of another's popularity. It is not uncommon, among persons of prominence to learn of lesser folk assuming their names and mimicking their manners in the effort to further certain ulterior interests. Newspapers repeatedly point out such frauds because it never fails to make good reading.

An interesting instance of how a person may unconsciously assume such a status and be whirled along through days and even weeks of misunderstanding, involving both pleasure and menace is presented in "Sporting Youth" showing locally this week-end.

Denny has the role of a chauffeur to a New York financier who is sent to California with his employer's high powered roadster. The chauffeur's name is Jimmy Wood and he is mistaken for a certain "Splinters" Wood, a famous English racing driver who is expected any day at the big annual race at San Luis Obispo.

Jimmy's a carefree youth, apparently, and at first the mistake doesn't trouble him particularly, especially since the harmless fraud wins him the association of a very beautiful blonde girl, played by Universal's newest attractive star, Laura La Plant, who is thrilled not only with the thought of his fame as a racing driver, but with the handsome driver himself.

Warrant Arrives

Finally, however, the flavor of the deception is spoiled by two annoying circumstances, the presentation to Jimmy of a seven hundred dollar hotel bill and the arrival of a detective from London with a warrant for "Splinters" Wood. The bogus racer is faced with the greatest situation of his young life.

It's a clever story and the picture is crammed with speed and thrills. The big road race, which comes as a dramatic climax to the play, carries all of the spirit of an international roadway classic.

USE HERRING FOR MAKING PRODUCTS

Vancouver Paper Wants Number Three District Opened To Its Use.

The Vancouver Sun is anxious to have the Vancouver district opened for the use of herring or pilchard for the manufacture of fish products. It says:

Districts One and Two have been opened for herring and pilchard fishing for fertilizer purposes.

District Three remains closed. Justifying the opening of Districts One and Two, the deputy minister of marine and fisheries pointed out that vast quantities of herring and pilchard abound in the waters off the coast of British Columbia.

"Owing to the demand for human food being small up to the present it has not been financially feasible to develop these fisheries," he continued, "hence an available source of industry and revenue is being allowed to remain undeveloped to any considerable extent.

"Fresh fish and fresh fish offal can readily be converted into fish meal, oil, etc., as well as into fertilizer. Fish meal is an excellent food for animals and there is a growing demand for it. In every other country that has important fisheries, the reduction of surplus fish into such products is an important unit of the industry.

"This department will take the necessary steps to stop over-fishing for any purpose."

Every word in the above applies as much to the utilization of the pilchard of District Three as to similar utilization in Districts One and Two.

It may be added, further, that the pilchard breed so fast that they are kept down only by disease and consequently nature is destroying what man might convert into useful products.

The restriction in respect of pilchard fishing should be removed from District Three as it has been removed from the other two.

TRIES TO INTERPRET SIR HENRY'S MEANING

Edmonton Paper Refers To Threat Against Senate Over Branch Lines.

The Edmonton Bulletin says: Sir Henry Thornton told an interviewer at Winnipeg that he considers the projected branch lines necessary to the successful operation of the National system and that he is determined before long to make the Senate "see reason." Coming from a smaller man that would sound like a threat on the part of a public official against one of the branches of Parliament. It will not be so misunderstood in this case, what Sir Henry plainly meant was that he intends to demonstrate that the National can be made a self-sustaining public enterprise, justifying the investment of the capital already put into it, and warranting the expenditure of more money in order to enable it to thoroughly develop the traffic possibilities of the territory through which it operates. When that is done the reluctance of the Senate to sanction the construction of branches will crumble. And the betterment that is now being made in the financial position of the system is strong evidence that the thing can be done, and that it will be done at no very distant date.

BIOLOGICAL MUSEUM TO BE HERE AND PRIVATE INTEREST SOLICITED TO MAKE ITS COLLECTION COMPLETE. (continued from page one)

fishing gear used in all countries. This would be contained in a museum provided for the purpose. A vote of $70,000 for the stations had been provided in the estimates. The difficulty they found was in getting qualified men who were willing to carry on the investigations. Plenty of people would investigate the migrations of the star fish, but none wanted to investigate the life history of the halibut.

Work in East.

At the present time about a dozen people were doing scientific work at the station at Departure Bay under Dr. Clemens. So far most of the work had been done on the Atlantic, particularly in connection with the lobster fisheries. Maps showing the temperature of the water and tidal drifts had been prepared and a great deal of work in connection with propagation in the streams as far west as Ontario.

On the Pacific the lack of money and workers had been a handicap. What was known of the halibut was chiefly from the efforts of Dr. Thompson, of Stanford University, who had been brought here by the Provincial Government. Dr. Gilbert, of the same university, had also investigated the salmon and published a report.

Fraser Hopeless.

The board has engaged a man to investigate the food of the salmon on the Fraser River. While this was of doubtful utility, Mr. Dybhavn said he did not think it advisable to oppose the work. At present the Skeena was the chief salmon producer in the province. The Fraser was of doubtful value owing to international complications. Canada was spending money studying the situation, which he considered hopeless.

The establishment of the new station here would open up the work of the board on this coast, both in regard to the halibut and salmon. Dr. McLean had in connection with the board published an interesting pamphlet on marine borers, copies of which might be obtained.

MANY GOITRE CASES AMONG THE CHILDREN

NELSON, July 31.—That there are 382 pupils with goiter in the three Nelson schools was shown by the health report for the school year just finished, prepared by Dr. E. C. Arthur, health officer, for Dr. H. E. Young, provincial health officer at Victoria, and the school board here. This report was submitted to the board at its meeting.

"Most of these goiters will disappear when the subjects are between 17 and 20, if not before, without treatment," said Dr. Arthur. "Most of them are very small. But there are a considerable number of pupils in whom the condition will be permanent unless they are treated, and I would recommend the iodine treatment."

BRINGING UP FATHER

SONS OF CANADA WINNERS AGAIN

Beat Sons of England By 3 to 2 In Stuart Shield Football Game Last Night.

Though the Sons of Canada outplayed the Sons of England in last night's Stuart Shield football fixture, it was only by means of a fluke shortly before the end of the game that they obtained victory, by a score of 3 to 2.

The Canucks had the best of it all the way, except for the first fifteen minutes, when the Englishmen, playing on the down grade, started with a rush and scored two goals before the Canadians got started. The first was made by Dickens and the second by Tinker who made an individual run right through the Canadian defence. Erskine opened the scoring for the Sons of Canada with a shot that should have been saved by the English goalie.

After a long spell of pressure in the second half, Warren was successful in scoring an equalizer for the Sons of Canada. The pressure was continued and the Canucks had the control of the play but were unable to score. Five minutes before time, W. Lambie, in goal for the Englishmen, gave the game away with a blunder which converted a cross by Marks between the goal posts which he was guarding.

Ragged Game.

The game was ragged in places. Perhaps the best soccer was played by the Canadian forward line, which, though good in combination, showed weakness in finishing. The Sons of England might have been able to save the game had they had a more experienced goal keeper.

Tom Jones refereed. A. Clapperton and S. L. Warrior were linesmen and the teams took the field as follows:

Sons of Canada — S. Gawthorne; Vic Menzies and Harry Menzies; Eddie Smith, J. Mitchell and H. Astoria; A. Mitchell, R. McDougall, S. Erskine, E. Warren and J. Marks.

Sons of England — W. Lambie; R. Howe and Bales; F. Hodgkinson, George Kelsey and P. Cameron; George Hill, Jr., Munro, Tinker, Dickens and George Shenton.

Sport Chat

Now that Gil's have withdrawn from the city baseball league and as equitable a distribution as possible of the players thus released has been effected between the Sons of Canada and Columbus Club, the second half of the season should be featured by good evenly contested games and the interest in the sport should be enhanced considerably as a result. The first game is scheduled to take place this evening and fans will no doubt be out in good numbers to see how things turn out under the new arrangement.

ment. Since the Canucks are ahead as a result of the first half, it may be expected that the strength of the disbanded tobaccoists' team will be turned in the direction of the Columbus Club.

In sending a football team to Ocean Falls next week, Prince Rupert is keeping faith in an undertaking made last year by the Fair Board when, in return for the sending of a football team here from Ocean Falls during Exhibition week, a promise was given that there would be a return engagement in Ocean Falls this year. The excursion now planned will mark the meeting of the paper town in all the three sports of lacrosse, baseball and soccer. Plans of the Fair Board for Exhibition week this year will undoubtedly provide for a visit from some sport aggregation from the Falls. It is expected that Anox and Ketchikan will also be represented here at that time and the indications are that the inter-town sport bill for the occasion will be as interesting as any of the past.

PLAYERS SELECTED FOR OCEAN FALLS

Team To Meet Paper Makers In Two Game Series Next Week Chosen By Executive of Association.

The executive of the Prince Rupert Football Association met last night and chose the following players to make the trip to Ocean Falls for a two-game series with the paper-makers on August 11 and 12.

Knox and Hunter, G.W.V.A.; H. Hamilton, Callies; W. Murray, G.W.V.A.; J. Harris, Callies; P. Cameron, S. of E.; G. Cochrane, Callies; A. Mitchell, McDougall and Erskine, S. of C.; Tinker, S. of E.; Andrews, Callies, and Roberts, G.W.V.A.

The schedule for the second half of the competition for the Stuart Shield was set out and will be released by the secretary of the league in a few days. It will open on the week of August 18 after the Ocean Falls games.

PRINCE GEORGE IS ON 600TH VOYAGE

C. N. R. Steamer Arrived Here First On July 24, 1910, And Has Been Operated Steadily Since.

Today the C. N. R. steamer Prince George, Capt. Harry Neddson, is making her 600th voyage in the coast service, after fourteen years of successful operation.

Built at Newcastle, England, and arriving on this coast by way of Cape Horn, the Prince George entered the harbor of Prince Rupert on her maiden voyage. Her first skipper was Capt. George Robertson. Since that time the vessel has operated steadily in the local service and has been blessed with a career that has been marked with few accidents, these few being of a minor nature. In the fall of 1914, the Prince George saw war service, having been requisitioned as a hospital ship for a few months, while German warboats were at large in the Pacific ocean.

The present officers of the Prince George are: Harry Neddson, captain; E. Mabbs, chief officer; Alex. Munro, chief engineer; J. A. Crawford, purser; Adam Ramsay, chief steward.

LET THEM KNOW IT.

If you have a thing to sell
Let the public know it!
If its merits will compel,
Advertise and show it!
People do not often buy
Things they cannot see or try,
Tell 'em or they'll pass it by,
Let the public know it.
If you have a crop to raise,
First you have to sow it.
If you want your trade to grow,
Grab your horn and blow it!
Buyers don't have second sight,
The unknown never wins them, quite!
But you can rouse an appetite,
If you let them know it.
When your lamp is trimmed and bright,
It shouldn't be concealed.
What profit can you hope to make,
From virtues unrevealed,
No matter how you may despair
if,
If your goods have any merit,
Men will buy if you declare it,
For knowledge makes 'em wild.

Two Captains in One Boat

Being an account of a trip to the Estfall River as recounted by Newton Pullen of Victoria under the nom de plume of Marcus Drexell in the Victoria Colonist. The next article of the series appears next week.

The idea of dedicating writings is a good one for it provides a cheap and substantial form of compliment and adds interest to the fly-leaf. I have seen books dedicated to initials, and that is the style I am going to adopt. I hereby dedicate this series to T.M.A.A. Translated, that means Those Much Abused Apricots. They were with us when we started from Prince Rupert in the sturdy launch Gwen and they remained in our company for several days. When, after urging each other not to get excited, we leaped wildly to the thwarts, the bulkheads, the mizzen, the afterdeck or the bilge in a frantic attempt to navigate a passage designed to comfortably accommodate two minnows abreast, and travelling light, we usually managed to land on the apricots. There was nothing hesitant about the way we descended on the fruit in those troublous times. We were decisive. Even if we didn't know what else to do on such occasions, we were able to buffet the apricots. We smashed in the side of the box which contained them; we took all the preliminary steps which I feel they must use in a fruit juice factory; we bullied and bashed them and pulped them, and they only turned the other cheek. At nights we would tenderly rearrange them and try and restore the box to normalcy. We ate some of the less afflicted and ultimately and without ceremony we dumped the remainder overboard.

Honorable Mention
The apricots served us faithfully. They were fit company for our stale cakes whose names must also be inscribed upon our honor list. The Other Captain—I will call him that because we were both captains of the Gwen—persisted in bringing a bag of stale cakes along on our trip in spite of protests that we were not a historical society and that we had sufficient modern cookery aboard to keep us alive without flirting with the archaic. The Other Captain brought his pets, nevertheless, because he said he liked stale biscuits and things. I found that he probably liked them for their companionship and their dog-like faithfulness rather than any value they might have as food. Personally I discovered them to be Coolidges—strong and silent. They remained with us for days. When the bag disintegrated we wrapped them in a napkin like mummies.

But the reader must not get the idea that our trip was planned primarily to assault apricots and personally conduct a tour for a bag of out-of-date biscuits. Those are merely outstanding trivialities, just as a bedbug might be the principal memory of a night. We started planning the annual vacation as usual some time last winter and decided on a launch trip up the Estfall River, which flows into the Skeena at Port Essington close to the mouth of the big northern river. A leisurely correspondence laid down the main plans for the outing, and in consequence of the fact that we had had months to get ready, I telegraphed hastily at a cost of $1.13 several days before the starting date to chuck the old schedule overboard in favor of a new one which fitted in more readily with circumstances.

A Friendly Man
The voyage north to Prince Rupert on the steamer Prince Rupert was ideal. The Inside Passage is like a long and beautiful river. The steward who took my bags to my state room was a nice little Cockney. After I had given him ten cents, he told me I could have breakfast in bed in the mornings if I wished. He elucidated, pointing out the advantage of such a course in the event I had a big head. The suggestion was made seriously. "Anything as will make you comfortable," my new friend confided. That's service for you. On deck at the stern of the steamer as she lay at the dock in Vancouver shortly before she sailed at midnight, my fellow passengers were looking each other over in the dim light. A short, paunchy fellow with a cigar and no vest, struck up a conversation with another man and discovered he was going to Anyox. With strongly accented words he wanted to know "how things was."

At breakfast I tried to hitch my chair closer to the table, and found that it was fastened down at a distance which might have been a good adjustment for fat men. After that I watched my fellow passengers finding out the same thing.

What It's Like
"It's like when someone else puts your hat on your head," explained my neighbor on my right. "You always put your hand up and put your hat on for yourself."

The weather was beautifully sunny and we played shuffleboard on deck. Among those who learned the game was a man with a big hook nose and a young Scot, who smiled a great deal and had a brogue with thistles on it. These two were playing together, and afforded the spectators a great deal of amusement. Whenever the hook nose player would shoot he would gaze intently after the puck or whatever it is called and his mouth would open and shut like a fish breathing out of water. "Scotty," as the other man was nicknamed, was encouraged to talk in order that his brogue could be enjoyed. "Attahoy," exclaimed the hook nose gentleman when his partner had made a good shot. "Scotty" was learning fast. "A boy, eh?" he grinned shortly afterwards, when he made a good shot himself.

Not The Man
A barber who sat opposite me at meals announced that a man by the same name as myself had gone with his wife before he (the barber) had met her. I cleared myself and exonerated my relatives.

I joined the Other Captain at Prince Rupert, and on the afternoon I arrived we ran amuck in a grocery store. The lady who took our order wrote it all down on several pages of her order book and then handed it to us for checking. She said she wanted us to make sure we had not left out anything, but I believe she hated to take advantage of our impulses and thought we might return to sanity in time to undo whatever we had done. But we never budged. Our choice of jam was regulated by the fact that the bottle had a screw top. We debated whether or not to take along any canned salmon on a trip into a region of excellent fishing, but our courage failed us, and we contented ourselves with a tin of sardines.

Lemon Buns
The Other Captain must have made a new record in the speed with which he ordered buns, scones, cakes and things in a bakery that afternoon. He ordered in dozens. I could not keep up with him. When I saw him ordering something that I did not like I said so in a breathless sort of way, whereupon he would promptly cancel that item and start off again. However, I let the lemon buns get by. It was too bad about the lemon buns, because they were good of their kind, but it appears that neither the Other Captain or myself really liked that sort. I made no protest because I felt sure that he was fond of them. It seems to me that we brought some of them back home with us eight days later. There was rather an interesting theory about bread. The Other Captain had been gathering opinions about the amount of food we should take, and one experienced individual said we would require about a loaf of bread a day. We bought accordingly to precedent, but we ate regardless of it. Figuratively speaking, we tore up the rule book with our teeth. We were working on Loaf Number Two when we arrived back after our trip.

Astonishing Amount
The evening of the day I arrived in Prince Rupert, we got together an astonishing collection of baggage in preparation for an early start the next morning. I know now that I would never make an Arctic explorer. My list contains too many essentials. I was apologetic as I added various things to the pile. Several articles remained in my valise because I could not face the scorn confided. That's service for you. The Other Captain. My vision was too broad. Preparedness while the Other Captain was almost primitive in the manner in which he refused to consider my objection to washing dishes with Palmolive soap. The posters I knew had never urged that porcelain keep its schoolgirl complexion, and I was dubious, but a tin of cleansing powder turned up in time to ease my mind.

A GENTLEMAN is never drunk. The thought is so absurd; it is now a breach of etiquette. To ever use the word. He may be spiffed and paralyzed. Or oiled and pie-eyed, too; (I've had an edge on once or twice. And so, I guess, have you). He may be plastered, stewed or tight. According to his spunk,— But a gentleman, how'ee far gone, is never, never drunk.

SCIENTIST SAYS CHANGE COMING

Book By Haldane Suggests Rocking of Present Day Social and Industrial System.

A world in which sugar and starch will be as cheap as sawdust, in which electric light will cost only the fiftieth part of its present price, abolishing night in cities; in which deserts will teem with vegetation and the purple oceans with immeasurable quantities of fish, in which mind-power will do all of man's work, in which men will travel half-way around the earth at speeds approaching the fraction of a second—

This is our own world of the coming century, as it has been pictured by a careful scientist, J. B. S. Haldane, the Sir William Dunn reader in bio-chemistry at Cambridge University. This Haldane (who must not be confused with Lord Haldane) translator of Schopenhauer and interperter of Einstein) has been known for some time to his acquaintances as a man of encyclopaedic knowledge and portentous versatility. But it was not until last year when he read a daring paper before the Heretics' Club at Cambridge that his attainments attracted a degree of startled public attention.

Is Visionary.

And now, with the publication of this paper in the form of a little book, under the title "Daedalus, or Science and the Future" (Dutton), Haldane has issued a challenge which has placed him in the front rank of scientific visionaries.
