B.C. Liberal Party Organizers To Start Tour Of All Ridings

Executive, MLA's Decide Policy at Closed Meets

VICTORIA (CP)—Plans for the creation of a stronger organization by British Columbia's trampled Liberal party were formulated at meetings held here last night.

Two meetings were held. The executive of the B.C. Liberal Association met in the Union Club to discuss policy matters and later a meeting of the elected Liberal MLAs was held.

Both meetings were closed. In a statement later, Sam McCrea, vice-president of the B.C. Liberals, said:

"The officers of the B.C. Liberal Association met in Victoria and discussed fully the results of the recent election.

"It was felt that the Liberal party remains a most potent factor for the benefit of the citizens of British Columbia, and will come back with great vigor in the next election.

"Immediate steps are being taken to step up organizational activity throughout the entire province and organizers will be visiting every association during the next few weeks.

"On completion of these initial steps, plans will be laid for the calling of an early advisory council meeting, the date of which will be announced later.

"An additional meeting between officers of the association and elected Liberal MLAs was held during the evening, when general party matters were discussed with an enthusiastic and optimistic feeling prevalent.

The statement did not say whether the Liberals discussed appointment of a replacement for Premier Johnson, who is expected to resign very shortly.

The move by the Liberals to begin organizational work around the province follows a similar move announced recently by the CCF party.

CHINESE LEAVE RED CROSS MEET

TORONTO (AP)—Nationalist Chinese delegation, on orders from Formosa, packed their bags today to leave the 18th International Red Cross conference.

The move was in protest at the presence here of the Communist Chinese delegation from Peking and also—said Dr. J. Heng Liu, head of the Formosan group—against "its behaviour."

"We regret very much to take this action," Dr. Liu said. He received his orders to withdraw late yesterday.

W. A. C. BENNETT

TILLY ROLSTON

Premier-designate W. A. C. Bennett met Tilly Rolston, only other Social Credit ex-MLA, in Victoria today. Mr. Bennett, 51-year-old successful Kelowna hardware merchant, is awaiting a call to form B.C.'s next government. At present, the change-over hinges on the key Vancouver-Burrard riding.

Premier Byron Johnson is expected to submit his resignation and those of his cabinet ministers immediately after the Burrard recount issue is settled.

2 Convicted In Cafe Entry Charge

Two men, charged jointly with breaking and entering with intent to steal, appeared before County Court Judge W. O. Fulton here Tuesday and Wednesday.

One of the men, Robert Swanson, about 23, of Masset, was convicted on the charge yesterday and given a suspended sentence for a year.

The other, William Donald Cornish, 19, of Prince Rupert, was remanded until Monday for sentence.

The men were charged in connection with the breaking and entering of a waterfront cafe here last June 29. Both men were represented by Doug Hogarth. A Bruce Brown was prosecutor.

Anglican Rector Drowns at Mayo

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—The Reverend C. Wareham, rector of the Anglican church at Mayo, 200 miles north of here, was drowned July 10 while on a fishing trip, it was learned today.

The boat from which the clergyman and friend were fishing on Mayo Lake capsized. Mr. Wareham had been rector at Mayo since 1946 and leaves his widow and three children.

TWO LEADERS of the Russian Red Cross delegation demand a hearing during a turbulent session at the International Red Cross conference in Toronto. General Nikolai Slavin left, head of the delegation, stands to support B. M. Zonov trying to attract the attention of chairman John A. MacAulay of Winnipeg.

Britain Prepares Drive To Produce For Export

LONDON (CP)—Britain today prepared a new belt-tightening drive to "get out of the red" after parliament approved Prime Minister Churchill's plan to divert some production from defence to exports.

The House of Commons last night approved the Conservative government's new economic program by a vote of 299 to 277 after Mr. Churchill warned the alternative was bankruptcy.

The plan also calls for a slash in imports and continuation of the wage freeze.

Mr. Churchill said full schedules on arms cutback necessary for solvency will be worked out at the Commonwealth Economic Conference here next November.

The government's proposal to build up exports at the expense of arms was not unexpected. Earlier this month, as Britain's trade became more unbalanced and vital gold and dollar reserves sagged below $1,700,000,000, Mr. Churchill warned that "very serious measures affecting domestic and defensive aspects" of British policies were being planned.

"Full scale resumption of operations will require re-establishment of log train and tow-boat schedules, as well as camp and cookhouse supplies petroleum products, hardware and wire rope, and automotive and machinery supplies.

"These operations were abruptly curtailed by the strike, and the resulting disruption of the general economy cannot be immediately remedied.

"It is not unusual in times of such stress for relations between management and labor to deteriorate through distrust and conflicting ideas. It is significant that during the past six weeks friendly contact has been maintained, and it is expected that continued co-operation will soon re-establish the feeling of mutual respect and confidence so necessary in any successful agreement."

CMS Accepts Wage Award

VANCOUVER (CP)—Settlement of a contract dispute involving 6000 workers at Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company's two British Columbia operations was announced here Wednesday night.

The company notified the Labor Relations Board it will accept a conciliation board report awarding 10 cents an hour wage increase across the board for workers at Trail and Kimberley.

The men's bargaining agent, the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), had accepted the award previously. Basic pay will be $1.88, retroactive to June 1.

active to June 1.

Seiner Still Missing

Planes Fly Over Area

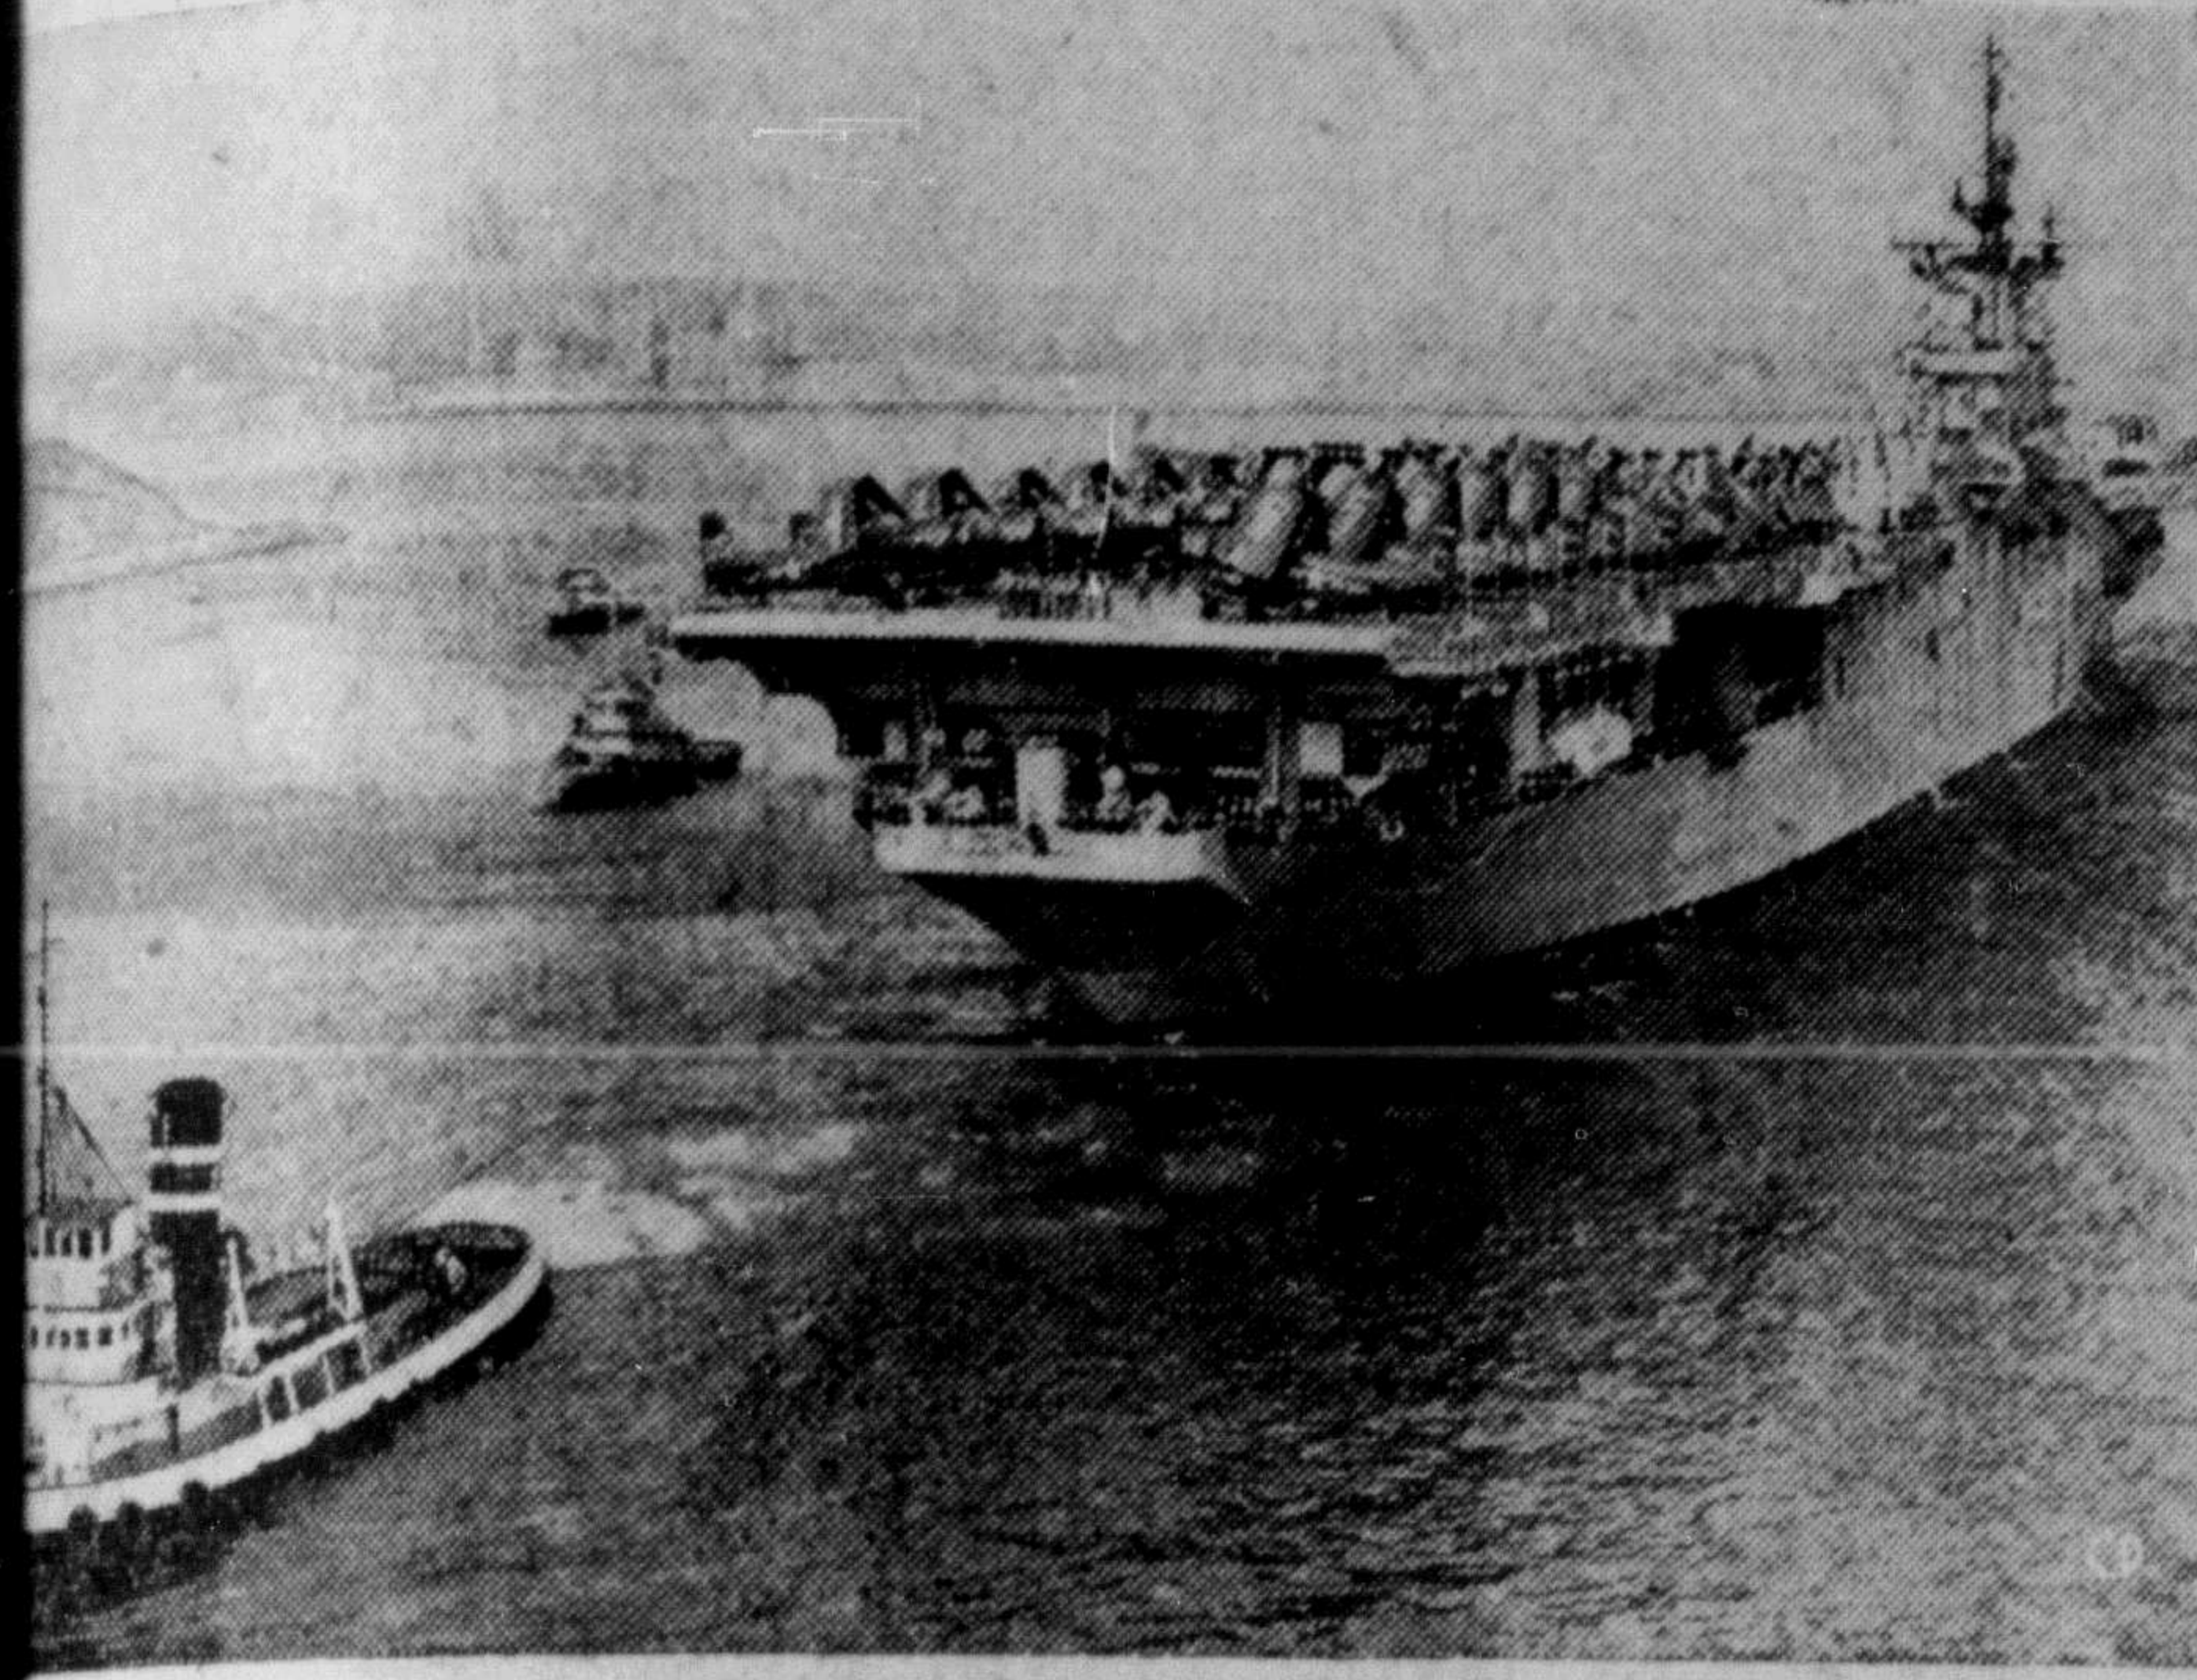

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two new leads were reported Wednesday in the search for the 56-foot seiner Daisy B, missing off the B.C. coast with seven men aboard since July 3.

The search moved to the Christie Pass area near the Queen Charlotte Islands following two reports that the seiner had been sighted and contacted July 12 in that area.

The fishing vessel Baraburu reported sighting the missing boat in Christie Pass on that date and Union Steamships vessel Catala is reported to have made radio contact with the Daisy B on the same date.

An RCAF Canso left Sea Island Wednesday to search the water from Port Hardy, on Vancouver Island, north to Cape Calvert which includes the Christie Pass area.

In addition, the Canadian Fishing Company ordered its packer Cape Bathurst in Dean Channel to get all details on the reported sighting.

Carrier Pulled Into Harbor

ONE-TON United States carrier Leyte, one of six ships bringing 10,000 U.S. sailors to the city, edged slowly into harbor by tugs. With the Leyte was a sister carrier, the Midway, for a second call. Four destroyers also accompanied them.

Ketchikan Fire Destroys Docks, Warehouses, Oil Products

PRINCE RUPERT, Alaska (AP)—A fire threatened the entire Ketchikan waterfront and destroyed petroleum products worth $145,000 Wednesday in a blaze that destroyed the big pier houses of Standard Oil of California.

The fire was controlled shortly before noon after raging more than two hours.

The Ketchikan Chronicle estimated loss at nearly $150,000. At the height of the fire a tug boat pulled the old four-masted sailing schooner Falls of Clyde away from the area.

Two nearby canning companies stopped canning operations and moved personnel from their homes.

Company officials said the pier, two warehouses and petroleum products were destroyed. Large oil storage tanks, however, were saved.

Burning oil spread on the water and washed under the nearby Union Oil Company pier but the blaze was confined to the Standard Oil terminal.

The terminal is about half a mile south of the city waterfront area. The blaze is reported to have started in a welding room.

Future by Leading City Resident Inspires New York Couple Real Thrill

MIDDLE-AGED New York couple have a lot of praise for Prince Rupert hospitality. After hearing that the world's greatest cold storage plant had been built here, they asked a leading citizen if he knew how to get there. The man standing beside his car at the time, explained that he had been in business for some time and after explaining the route, handed them the keys to his car. He insisted that the couple, while amazed at such a gesture, accepted the offer, saw the plant, docks and went shopping. They got the car from where they got it.

Farouk Wishes to Lead Quiet Life With Children

ISLE OF CAPRI, Italy (AP)—Former King Farouk of Egypt today placed himself before the world as a simple family man, stripped of fortune and position, who wishes to lead a quiet life with his children.

The portly former monarch told a press conference he would remain for several months on this vacation island, where he spent a fabulous, free-spending honeymoon last year with Nariman, his teen-aged bride.

Farouk appeared before reporters and photographers who have been clamoring to see him ever since he arrived here from Egypt, where his 16-year rule was ended by a military uprising.

He looked tired and his face was swollen from toothache.

Farouk refused to answer questions, but read a long statement in which he appealed for the right to lead a quiet life.

He denied that he had great wealth and said he had no immediate plans for taking up residence in the United States or any other country.

Carpenters To Demand 10 Cents

VANCOUVER (CP)—Striking carpenters said Wednesday they will not accept a wage increase of 5 1/2 cents an hour as did the International Woodworkers of America.

About 3,000 carpenters have been on strike for more than seven weeks to back up demands for a 30-cents-an-hour wage increase and other concessions.

Spokesman for the carpenters said the union has decided to accept 10 cents and "we have no intention of retreating from that position."

Another 5,000 workers in allied trades are out of work because of the strike.

JOHN MacDonald, advertising manager of the Daily News and pretty Miss Vianne Devorkin of Edmonton are shown holding a 32-pound salmon later enjoyed by advertising managers from all over Western Canada at the annual convention in Banff. The salmon was supplied by Prince Rupert Wholesale Fishdealers' Association on behalf of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Picture was taken in the kitchen of Banff Springs Hotel.

Unions Face Critical Period

UNION leadership in North America is entering upon one of its most critical periods of testing as to maturity and responsibility.

In many instances its demands have been so extreme as to constitute record new highs and almost impossible extra burdens to accept.

It is not unusual for these demands to total from 30 to 60 per cent actual increased cost for employers—and through them their customers—to meet.

That these demands should be coming at a time when the cost of living could otherwise be held in check is a serious thing for everyone concerned, including organized labor.

And that the unions should have such an apparently reckless disregard for the ability of consumers to buy the services of their members is equally disturbing.

There can be little doubt, for instance, that carpenters recently had reached an unjustifiable inflationary idea of their current value to buyers of carpentry services when they proposed that their wage should be $20 a day.

How can the ordinary run of citizens, who do not earn $20 a day, buy all the other essentials of life and still hire carpenters to build them homes at $20 a day, plus the contractor's fee of ten per cent or so?

Reflects and Reminisces

You never know what you can't do since you try not to be your age.—Buffalo Courier.

Supt. Leopold of the Mounties is beyond 60, and retiring. That is, officially. But actually, he says he isn't. His record is faultless, and health so good that some Communists still worry.

ALMOST FEEL THAT WAY
It is asserted by Ottawa that Canadians still hold thousands of dollars of "shin plasters," 25 cent paper notes which were last made in 1935. Needless to worry, for it's impossible to figure what one could buy.

The former king of Egypt, finding himself banished early this week, took a good look at his beautiful yacht, and figuring he'd eventually live in the United States, sailed for Naples. Tough isn't it, when you think you're the owner of a swell yacht, realize you happen to be nothing of the kind.

Some, if not all of the freighters calling here have some passenger accommodation. Traffic, though, is rather light. But there was once a smart looking Danish craft that carried more than a score on a sight seeing cruise. And it didn't mean financial chaos either.

The quantity of cash, mental energy and postage dropping into the waste paper baskets of Canada is not becoming any the less. It's more, opine the press. In other words, when will the public realize that what a newspaper lives on is paid advertising—and not courteous invitations to give something for nothing.

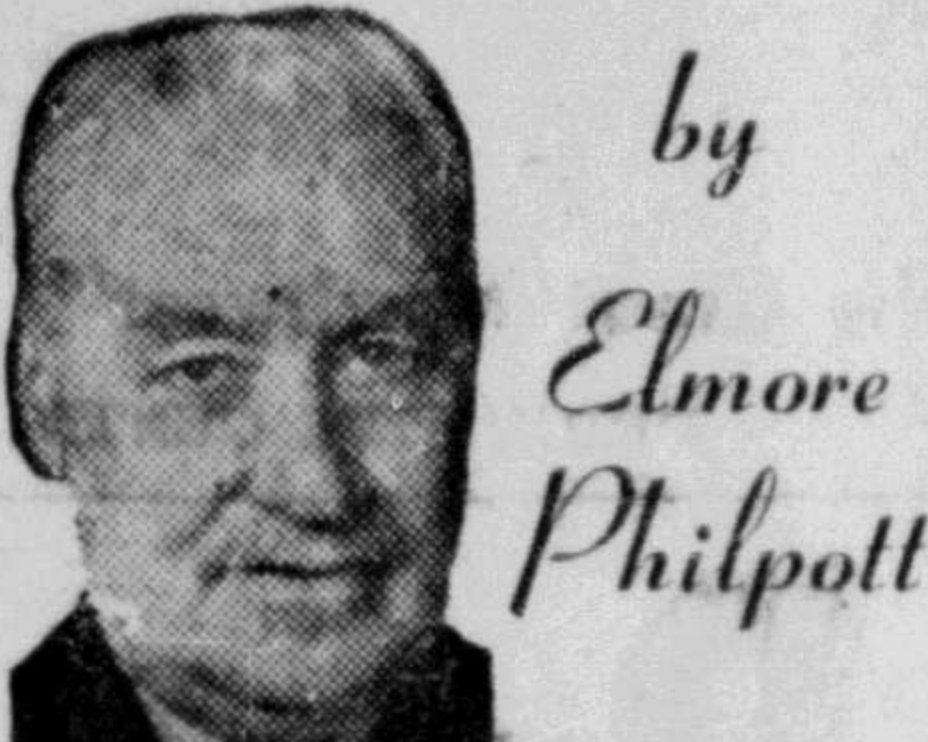

There's this much about long drawn out summer time strikes. There's apt to be employment later on, when frost is thick on the window pane, and a crunching sound arises, as you swing briskly along.

TRY BARLEY
It was not until war that Japan discovered a few notions about food, and that explains why shipload after shipload of barley keep sailing from Prince Rupert and other ports. For ages, rice fed the Far East. Now it's beginning to look like a bit of variety in Yokohama. Barley cakes go well.

Mobile Stations

LONDON (CP)—Mobile laboratories, designed by the National Coal Board to aid pit rescue work, may soon be supplied to every mining area. The 22-foot caravans are equipped with a control office, self-contained lab and sleeping quarters.

As I See It

by Elmore Philpott

King Fat Boy Out

LAST year when I visited Cairo I went to see an Egyptian movie. After the show I stopped to look in the window of a photographer's shop next door.

In the centre was a large picture of King Farouk—who has just now been kicked out of the country of which he was then ruler. It was a hunting scene, and I could not guess where it was taken—whether it was in Africa or somewhere else. But it showed the Fat Boy king standing, gun in hand, beside a magnificent car, which was grossly overloaded with various beasts and birds which the monarch had presumably slain.

IT INTRIGUED me to study the faces of the people as they studied that photo. I think I stayed there ten minutes or so trying to get the sense of what they were thinking. But in all that time I never got even a flicker of expression from those people. I found the picture definitely revolting—for I thought a good title for it would have been "Which one is the animal?"

I felt sure that those people—who are about the most desperately poor in all the world—must have felt that way too. But in those lands the government rule with such a ruthless hand that the ordinary citizen would take a real risk by expressing facial contempt at a big shot's photograph.

ONE NIGHT I visited a group of Egyptian upper class people. It was in a fine modern apartment block, quite as good as anything we have on this continent. The people there were of the professional class, keen youngish doctors and such like. We got talking about the conditions in Egypt and when they were really warmed up the most dynamic character in the room burst out:

"I can't see any other solution for this country than a strong dictatorship." There was a sudden silence then, and all seemed a bit embarrassed that the conversation had gone so far.

Remember these people were not leftists or radicals in any way.

It was just one of the many straws I saw in the wind there that indicated to me big storms were coming.

THE TRAGEDY which I saw all over the Middle East was that an obviously revolutionary situation was in the making, but there was no element that I heard about in any of those countries which was capable of dealing with it.

My friend Macleod Boyer, the Canadian trade commissioner (who was murdered in the Cairo riots this year) drove me one day to see the irrigation canals. Hundreds of men and boys were working in gangs of about 20 to clean out the muck and silt. The middle man would reach down under the water and grab two handfuls of muck. He would pass the muck to his neighbor—and so it would go through about 20 pair of hands till it reached the bank. By the time it got to the bank most of it had slipped and silted back into the water.

I knew—and so did every foreign observer—that a single bulldozer would do the whole job better and quicker than the gangs of men were doing it.

But falling a plan to put those same men to work at more productive occupations the only effect of the bulldozer would be to cause starvation among those poor wretches who got a few cents per day apiece.

There is your whole problem in the Middle East—how to guide and channel the necessary social changes.

Seaway Scheme Survey Stresses Power Projects

It may be premature to write off U.S. participation on the navigational side of the St. Lawrence Seaway, the Bank of Montreal comments in its latest Business Review.

In an economic analysis of the whole Seaway question, hydro as well as navigational, the report begins by highlighting the two factors which have brought the matter to a focus at the present time.

The first, rapid industrial expansion has culminated in an urgent need for more power. As for the second, "the discovery of rich iron ore deposits in the Quebec-Labrador area has significantly altered the economic aspect of the navigational proposal."

The scheme ultimately would permit ocean shipping to penetrate more than 2,000 miles into the heart of the continent, by providing a continuous 27-foot (minimum) channel from the mouth of the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Lake Superior, the bank points out.

This necessitates the construction of dams, locks and canals, plus the deepening and widening of existing channels.

"In conjunction with these navigation facilities, the joint plan envisages development of hydro-electric power amounting to 2,200,000 h.p. in the International Rapids section (of which half would go to the United States), and would also permit at the option of Quebec, completion of work in the Soulanges section at Beauharnois to bring capacity there up to 2,000,000 h.p., as well as the potential development of 1,200,000 h.p. in the La-Grasse section."

Business Comes to Halt During Bishop's Funeral

Rt. Rev. J. B. Gibson, Bishop of Caledonia, and Mrs. Gibson were buried here yesterday after one of the most solemn funeral processions ever witnessed in this city.

Business came to a standstill as the city turned to pay their last respects to the Bishop and his wife.

The brilliant sunshine, the procession, led by the noted Green Concert Band under Band-leader Fred McKay, started at Andrew's Cathedral and moved slowly along Third Avenue.

The band, composed of members of the Niska Indians, broke after reaching Third Avenue and Seventh Street.

The service in the cathedral—conducted by Rev. Theodor Edward Hodson of the band played the funeral dirge outside.

the Westlawn Dirge and interspersed the chant with three hymns—Abide With Me, Away Over Jordan, and Shall We Gather at the River.

Tears fell from the eyes of many standing along the streets as the two hearses bearing Bishop and Mrs. Gibson rolled slowly along behind the band.

Mr. Hodson was assisted at the cathedral by Canon Basil Prockter and visiting clergy.

Program Tells Hometowns Of Athletes

HELSINKI (AP)—You need a program to tell where the Olympic swimmers come from. Take Kelly for instance. He's Kelly Dos Santos of the Brazilian water polo team. Tetsuo Okamoto? He's from Brazil, too.

So is Aram Boghossian. Roman Brenner is a Russian diver. Yoshinobu Oyakawa is from the United States.

When a name like Vladimir Skomarovski comes up, there's no question. He's Russian.

Canned Pork From Huge Stockpile Going Onto Market at Low Price

OTTAWA (C)—The Canadian housewife soon may be able to buy canned pork at bargain prices at local grocery stores, but this consumer bonanza may cost taxpayers between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000.

Anxious to rid itself of a climbing surplus, the Federal government is moving into the wholesale market its stockpile of 40,000,000 pounds of canned pork, offering to sell it to dealers at about 30 per cent less than it paid for it. The pork accumulation caused by the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Canada, went on the market at about 40 cents a pound, delivered to grocery stores in Ontario and Quebec, with fluctuating prices at other centres across the country.

Officials said the cut-rate price will allow grocery men to reduce the retail price of canned pork to between 36 and 42 cents from about 50 or 55 cents.

AND WE'VE THE FOOTWEAR . . .

That offers just the comfort every member of the family looks to . . . plus smart styling, quality workmanship and sensibly low prices.

More Research on Heart Urged by British Doctor

DUBLIN (AP)—During a recent session of the British and Irish Medical Associations, Dr. Richard Schilling of Manchester, England, said heart disease is "the disease of our times." He urged continued research into "that most fatal of conditions" on a national, Commonwealth or world scale.

Barbara Brent's BUYS AND WHYS A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, July 31st—I'm buying my coal at "My Bank"! And not only do you save money by buying coal now, you also save yourself the unpleasantness of the last-minute rush. You stock your coal bone dry. And, by arranging for a Coal Loan at the BANK OF MONTREAL, you can have all your coal conveniently delivered in one fell swoop. Without having to pay for it all at once! So I'm buying my coal right now—at the BoM. And I can spread out my loan repayment over as many as eight easy instalments. Yes, the BoM makes it wonderfully easy and convenient for you to buy your winter coal at summer prices! Why not see about this bit of good business tomorrow?

You Know how you feel after a rushed, look-at-the-clock, one-bite-of-toast breakfast. The whole day seems to get off to a bad start. That's why I urge you to give yourself just five minutes more for breakfast in the morning—and make it good! Easily done with delicious "CREAM OF WHEAT" that takes just five minutes to cook to smooth-oth, flavourful slishability. And 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" is not only good to taste—it's good for you, too. It gives you iron for good red blood—and Calcium and Phosphorus for diets deficient in these elements. So make "Cream of Wheat" a breakfast habit. It's the happy way to start the day.

It's Salad Time—in fact, it's almost "Salad Week"—a good time to buy Heinz Vinegars in the brand new bottles. Everything's the same except the shape. Yes, HEINZ VINEGARS in the new bottles (designed for cupboard convenience) are the same good vinegars and the quantity is unchanged. But the new bottles (several sizes to choose from) are shorter and stouter—easier to handle—easier to pour—and, because they're not so tall, they fit in shallower shelves. And, of course the quality is Heinz. Whether it's White, Cider or Malt—vinegar is always best when it carries the famous Heinz label. Ask for Heinz mayonnaise and 57 Salad Dressing, too.

It Goes To The Cottage With Me. For wherever I can boil water—I can have a cup of friendly INSTANT CHASE & SANBORN in a jiffy. And it's so good. That's because it's made by real coffee people. It's the happy result of almost a century of coffee experience. The flavour's there—and the body—and the real lift. Another thing I like—and I know you'll like about it... Instant Chase & Sanborn Coffee is truly economical. It saves you up to 40¢ a pound compared with ground coffee. So take my tip and make a "friend" of friendly Instant Chase & Sanborn Coffee.

Annual Edith Cavell Memorial Service Cancelled Because of Jasper Lodge Fire

JASPER, Alta.—The annual Edith Cavell Memorial Service will be held in the Church of St. Mary and St. George, Jasper, at 11:00 a.m. this Sunday.

This will be the 27th service since it was first held at the end of the trail on Mount Edith Cavell in 1925.

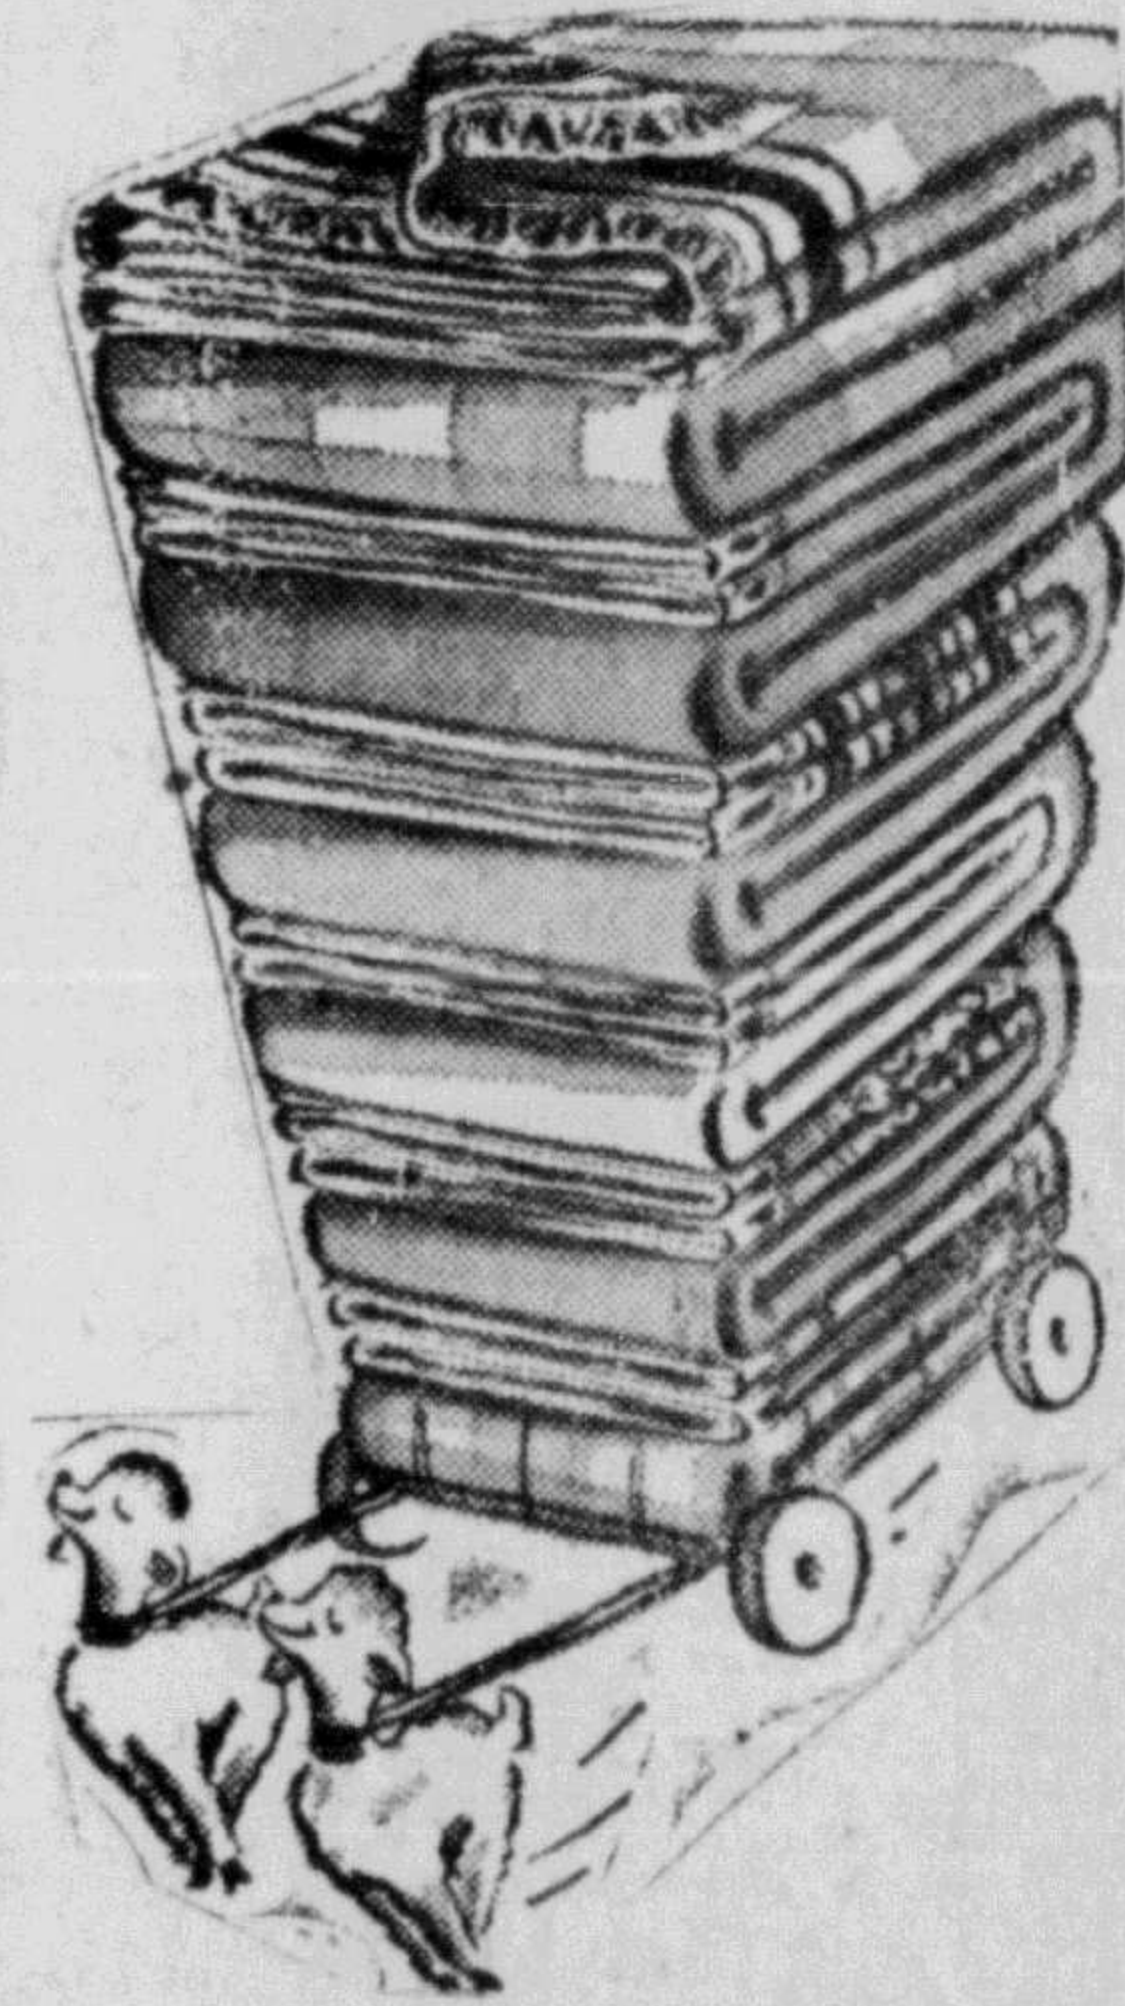

The service, which will be conducted and the special sermon preached by the incumbent, the Rev. E. N. P. Orme, M.B.E., L.Th., commemorates Nurse Edith Cavell, heroic British patriot, who, on August 5, 1915, was arrested in Brussels and later executed by German authorities for assisting British and Allied soldiers to escape across the frontier.

Each year, the service is held in Jasper on the nearest Sunday to August 5 for reasons of convenience, but originally it was held at the foot of Angel Glacier on Mount Edith Cavell itself. The traditional order of service will be followed.

The service will be attended by Lieut.-Gen. G. G. Simmonds, Chief of the General Staff, Canadian Army; Maj.-Gen. Chris Volkes, G.O.C., western command, and Brigadier J. E. C. Pangman, officer commanding, Wainwright military camp, and their staffs. The scripture lesson will be read by Lieut.-Gen. G. G. Simmonds, C.G.S.

Two Swedish Spies Get Life Terms

STOCKHOLM (CP)—Six Swedish Communists today were convicted of selling vital defence secrets to Russia. Two were sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor. A seventh was acquitted.

The government accused them of turning over to the Russians full details of Sweden's northern defences against any Russian attack across neighboring Finland.

Fritiof Enbom, 33-year-old confessed mastermind of the Soviet spy ring, and his chief accomplice, Jugo Gjernsvald, both drew life terms at hard labor.

The ring leader's younger brother, Martin Enbom, drew a seven-year sentence.

3 Unearned Runs Pave Way For No. 1 to Beat CCC 300

Scoring three unearned runs in the first inning, No. 1 defeated CCC 300 for the fourth straight time last night by the score of 5-3. The win moved them a game and a half ahead of second place Firemen. It was their ninth win against two defeats.

Rusty Ford was the winning pitcher, allowing three runs on five scattered hits, no walks. He struck out four. He allowed one run in the first and two more in the fourth. After that he retired 12 consecutive batters.

Losing pitcher, Hardy, threw a magnificent game, but the three unearned runs in the first were too much for him to overcome. He gave up five runs on six hits and one walk while striking out five. The last 13 batters to face him went down in order with not a man reaching base.

No. 1 tallied three runs in the first inning when Christensen walked, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on an error by the CCC 300 shortstop. Don Scherk going to first on the error, scored on Ford's triple. Ford scored on Don Hartwig's single.

CCC 300 scored in the same inning when Wagner reached second on a two-base error and scored on Kurdziel's single.

No. 1 tallied two more in the third when Hartwig doubled, went to third on a ground ball and home on a wild pitch. Monkman then singled and scored on

Presidential Candidate Big Factor in Election

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A contest of personalities faces the voters of the United States next Nov. 4 when they will elect a new President. The two candidates are strong personalities—probably the most appealing to enter a presidential campaign since the 1944 election.

It will be a difficult decision for those masses of voters outside the loyal party groups who vote the straight ticket regardless of personalities.

That huge, fairly independent bloc of the electorate will swing the balance. Governor Adlai Ewing Stevenson, 52, studious and quietly able, son of a great family, the task of perpetuating the 20-year-old hold of the liberal government by the liberal party since Franklin D. Roosevelt defeated Herbert Hoover in 1932.

His chief claim to political leadership is his record-breaking victory over Republicans in 1948 when he became the fourth Democratic governor of Illinois in 1949.

Choosing him as the Republican hope for return to power General Dwight D. Eisenhower, who will be 62 next October, is popular at home and abroad for his victorious leadership of Allied forces and for his sparkling personality.

Stevenson was not a presidential aspirant. He was sincere and humbly reluctant in the nomination of most fair-minded voters. He remained that way to the last and probably is one of the few instances of complete unquestionable drafting of a man for the highest office in the country; also one of the most important responsibilities of the world.

Stevenson was a reluctant candidate for months. He resisted even the suggestion in 1952 when the real drive for him for 1952 began last year it took him months to get up his mind.

In the five weeks or so since the convention he threw himself with typical vigor into the campaign for the nomination of the man—which many should be the proper subject of political affairs—does not apply in the same degree to Eisenhower as to the Democratic choice.

It is unlikely that either candidate if faced with the responsibility of office, would greatly alter the basic policies on foreign affairs which have guided the administration in recent years.

Especially their ideas on domestic problems in the major class of issues and based on the advice of their economic and political advisers. They could not differ apart considering the intellectual character of the man and their reasonable and sensible approach to such matters.

It leaves them very little ground and puts the emphasis largely on the question of personal appeal as to fitness and ability as national leaders in a time of great stress and strain.

Both candidates have indicated they believe the past is something to learn from and not to be repeated without regard for the future.

Neither has claimed he or his opponent holds the key to the country's problems or has a monopoly on decency and honor in public affairs.

Both have stressed the necessity of unity within party ranks, the desirability of retaining the party system and their belief in the equal rights of all citizens regardless of color. Along about Sept. 1 these two leaders and their team of campaigners will begin their assault upon the voters. They plan to follow the course by which Harry Truman won his amazing victory in 1948—a direct personal appeal to as many voters as it is humanly possible to meet in the flesh.

It remains to be seen which will be most successful in that field. Eisenhower is more accustomed to meeting people of all types face to face and winning them but that experience was gained while he was in the glamorous role of a winning commander of the fighting forces. Stevenson is a shy and retiring man, not so stalwart or commanding a figure, bald like Ike and slightly shorter, but with a certain nobility and obvious sincerity which has brought many comparisons between him and Abe Lincoln.

Eisenhower has a happy family life. He is still married to his childhood sweetheart, the highly photogenic and pleasant-visaged "Mamie." Stevenson lives alone with two of his teen-age sons in the governor's mansion in Springfield. His wife, beautiful and wealthy Ellen Borden, daughter of a wealthy Chicago family, divorced him in 1949 on grounds of incompatibility, complaining that his political life had come between them. Their oldest son is in the Marines.

Eisenhower has never had to give thought to the domestic issues of government at either the state or national level, apart from those which influenced the country's ability or willingness to provide a strong armed force. Stevenson is a grandson of a vice-president under Grover Cleveland, member of a long line of lawyers, a key man in the formation and development of the United Nations and a state governor since 1948.

He has long had to give deep thought to most of the problems which beset a president of the United States and he has that advantage over Eisenhower. Both are believers in the comfort and guidance that comes from trust in the Divinity, if not dogmatic religionists.

Neither can be expected to get down into the gutter of politics, engage in name-calling or carping criticism. Neither will claim all the virtues; excuse or attempt to justify errors or wrongdoing in their party ranks.

That part of the campaign will be left to party aides and it is doubtful if any sort of bitterness and acrimony will be approved by either.

Both can enter the fight of long-established party strings or obligations. In the campaign for nomination Eisenhower made some whistle-stop speeches and reporters with him said he was a bit of a disappointment. He did not seem able to get into the hearts of his listeners. That may come with experience.

Each candidate has a characteristic that should be popular. They believe in short speeches with every word meaning something and in this Stevenson probably has the edge on the General.

Pressure Started by Government To Push Defence Production Plans

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The men directing Canada's defence program are putting on a blitz in an effort to make up lost ground on a production schedule which they now concede was over-optimistic.

The American steel strike hasn't helped things. At this stage, with the half-way mark coming nearer, there is a marked probability that the scheduled three-year, $5,000,000,000 program to prepare the country for any eventuality will extend into a fourth year and cost closer to $6,000,000,000.

The program was first announced in February 1951. Its highlights were plans to build the RCAF 3000 new planes and 41 squadrons, to have a 100-ship navy and 115,000 men in uniform. The 115,000 has since been raised to 120,000.

With 98,000 or 81 per cent of that total in uniform, manpower is so far not a big problem. But production is.

The latest implication of the current situation came in Finance Minister Abbott's recent statement on the government's financial position after the first three months—April, May, June—of the current fiscal year.

In a nutshell, Mr. Abbott said that in the first quarter of the year only 14 per cent of the defence budget was used. To live up to the $2,125,000,000 appropriation, the two departments most concerned—Defence and Defence Production—will have to spend money twice as fast in the next nine months as they have in the first three when the monthly average was $102,000,000.

LONDON (CP)—A scheme to attract young men of high academic and scientific ability to the technical branches of the British regular army has been initiated by the War Office. Selected candidates between the ages of 17 and 20 will qualify.

Those recommended will be granted national service commissions as Second Lieutenants after serving six months in the ranks. Following a further six months of regimental duty they will be assigned to the Military College of Science where they will study for a degree.

Mr. Abbott's conclusion was that the expenditures "do not yet reflect the full magnitude of the defence program."

Officials confirm this. With the exception of the F-86 Sabre jet fighter, production of most of the major items of production—aircraft, electronics, warships, guns—is not up to the schedules originally conceived. The reason is said frankly to be over-optimism when the program was drafted. They underrated the tremendously complex job of producing modern arms.

Last fiscal year the defence program planners budgeted for $200,000,000 more than they actually spent. The difference would have been even greater but for mobilization and despatch of the 27th Brigade to Germany.

Officials say they won't be able to tell until early fall whether they'll "underspend"—the official term—again this year.

The U.S. steel strike is one drawback. It has had some effect but officials say the blow has not been a major one.

But there are several major factors pushing in the direction of spending the whole defence budget.

One is that traditionally a large percentage of defence spending is concentrated in the last three months of the fiscal year. Another is that production should begin to hit its stride late this calendar year.

A third is the drive, the blitz which officials report is being waged to get production programs back nearer the original schedules. A substantial number of new faces are making their appearance in key jobs in Ottawa. Whether they can get the program finished in the scheduled three years is a big question impossible to answer at this time.

Crooks Like Prison

GLoucester, Eng. (C)—Raglan Somerset, a Gloucester magistrate, believes he has discovered the reason why many criminals return to prison time and again.

The British lock-ups he claims, are simply far too comfortable. Speaking at a conference of law-enforcement officers here, Mr. Somerset said it was almost certain the food and living conditions were a considerable improvement on what they got at home.

He agreed prison reforms within reason should be introduced but sentimentality should not be tolerated where crime is concerned.

"It raises a big lump in the throat of a sentimentalist," he said, "but it only makes a large hole in the pockets of the rest of us."

Not Much Night Life

Quebec Port Developing Into Big City

(Editor's Note: Takeoff point for the new iron-ore development in Labrador-Ungava is Seven Islands, an active little town on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River some 300 miles downstream from Quebec. Forbes Rhude, Canadian Press business editor, describes what is happening there in this story, one of a series.)

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Seven Islands, at the wide mouth of the St. Lawrence River, is "city lights" for some 6000 men who work along the 360-mile railway being built into Labrador-Ungava and on associated projects.

There is not much night life, and the honky-tonk features of older construction days has been discouraged, but there are some taverns, bars and lounges and a few places of recreation.

There a man may forget the wilderness for a while or join in a sing-song when someone brings out a guitar.

Sometimes, however, a man in from the bush may be lonely. He may meet a "friendly stranger" who will talk with him, sympathize with him, flatter him—and live off him in the manner to which the "friendly stranger" has become accustomed. In a week, a man may spend the stake he has saved in the wilds.

BANKER NURSEMAIDS
W. D. Ross, manager for Imperial Bank who has served in such other frontier communities as Pickle Crow, Ont., and Yellowknife, N.W.T., says:

"We act as nursemaids for men up and down the line, doing virtually everything for them except their shopping."

"Our ledgerkeeper speaks six languages, our teller four, and the rest of our staff speak English and French. Nearly every race seems to drop in."

Ross says the history of frontier towns is something like this:

"First you can trust everyone—you are dealing with the prospectors, trappers, engineers."

"Then the drifters appear, hoping to make a few dollars while the boom is at the height. You see the same types; sometimes, even, the same individuals. When the tinsel of the construction period fades, they move on. Now they are talking of Kitimat and the aluminum development there."

Seven Islands, before iron-ore development hit it in the 40s, was a village of 800, mostly fishermen depressed through loss in storms of their fishing gear and a band of Indians who eked out a precarious living from the fur trade.

It is located where the St. Lawrence River, about 100 miles wide, flows into the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and it shelters itself behind the seven islands which form a bay and give the town its name.

Today, it is something of a boom town of 3000 people, with two new luxury hotels, new supermarket, other new construction.

The old section mostly still shows the signs of the hard days and is still without modern sewerage, though it hopes to have it soon. A few Indians cling to their ramshackle homes on the outskirts, though modern houses and a large schoolhouse have been built for them a few miles away.

WELL PLANNED
Fortunately, the town as originally laid out has wide streets, parallel to the waterfront, which seem to lend themselves to development along sound lines. It is self-governing municipally—not a "company" town.

Today, it embraces a lot of territory, about 10,000 acres, with a 13-mile waterfront.

Within it, about three miles from the old town, are the modern buildings and services of the base camps of both Iron Ore Company of Canada and the contractors on the railway and associated projects.

Within it will be the giant iron-ore terminals and loading docks, and a townsite for the people who will be employed on them and the railway.

It is even suggested that it may become a grain port, with ore-carrying ships returning from the Great Lakes with grain cargoes which would be transferred there.

Early optimistic reports envisioning a city of up to 50,000 population have tamed down.

TV BUYERS
From September, 1949, to March, 1952, a total of 85,525 television sets were sold in Canada.

Paris, Ont., who came to Seven Islands in wartime as a radio operator with the RCAF and now is personnel manager of Iron Ore Company, predicts a population of about 5000 when construction ends and the town settles into an ore-handling port. However, Labrador-Ungava probably only at the start of development. Some of the optimistic forecasts may come true.
