No Cabinet Ministers Elected

By The Canadian Press
VICTORIA. — British Columbia's first Social Credit government which went into office 50 days after the June 12 general election will hold its first cabinet meeting today.
Premier W. A. C. Bennett and cabinet ministers of his party, two of whom are not members of the legislature—sworn in last night at a ceremony in the Legislative Chamber of the House by Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace.
The formation of the Bennett government, which holds 19 of 48 seats in the Legislature, ended a period of frenzied action and speculation with a formal oath-taking ceremony by the Liberal administration.

Officially speaking, all but one of the Social Credit members are rookies. Until the June election, Social Credit had never been able to win a seat in the legislature.
The attorney general is Robert Bonner, 32-year-old Vancouver lawyer, and new finance minister is Einar Gunderson, 40-year-old former chartered accountant. Neither is an MLA and therefore cannot sit in the legislature.
Leader Harold Winch, who party trails the Social Credit by only one seat, attacked the appointment of the two new members and also questioned the appointment of the lieutenant-governor, asking Social Credit to demand a new government before the new cabinet is sworn in.

Mr. Bennett said today's cabinet meeting will be "simply a preliminary meeting" with no business taken. First regular cabinet meeting will be next Tuesday and that time the government will get down to work.
The cabinet portfolios of the new government went to the members of the Cariboo, Ralph Chetani, E. Sommers, 42, Rossland, member and elementary school principal, is the new minister of mines and also minister of lands and forests.
School teacher W. D. Black of Nanaimo is provincial secretary and municipal affairs minister.

Explosion Rocks Montreal
MONTREAL (CP)—A mysterious blast or explosion shook the widely-separated sections of Montreal today but an hour later there was still no explanation as to what happened. Police said they could find no trace of damage or injury and suggested possibility of an underground explosion.

HISTORIC MEETING—After two years' efforts by the leaders of the League of Red Cross Societies the first of a series of informal meetings were held with North Korean Red Cross and government officials on the question of Red Cross relief from abroad being sent to the civilian population of Communist North Korea. The meeting was held in Toronto as part of the International Red Cross conference. Attending the informal meeting are, left to right: Kim Min San, North Korean Red Cross and government delegation chief; Emil Sandstrom of Sweden, chairman of the League of Red Cross Societies; Count Bonabes de Rouge of France, secretary-general of the league; Kim Pal Joon and Ki Sek Pok, both of North Korea. ## Preacher Weakens, Brooks Lose While Parnell Wins For Bosox

NEW YORK (CP)—The Preacher and Mel Parnell gave major baseball leaguers another taste of "hot" pitching last night, but one of them lost his stuff.
Preacher Roe hurled for Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League. It was he who finally lost the ball game after seven straight victories as Chicago's Bob Rush whipped Dodgers 6-1. He was trailing 3-1 when yanked in the fifth inning.
But in the American League, Parnell, blazing along on a comeback since recovering from

Gala Swim Show Opens Sunday at McClymont

Plans were completed at a Park Board meeting last night for the first annual swimming gala at the Gyro pool beginning at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

There will be swimming and diving competitions for children between the ages of six and 17 and Mrs. Laila Svendsen, noted Danish aquatic star, will give a demonstration of freestyle and backstroke.
To make it a real treat the Park Board will give away ice cream and soda pop to all the children.
Besides members of the park board, Mrs. Svendsen will be assisted by Mrs. Lise Norgaard, supervisor of the children's pool at McClymont Park, and Fred Jones, secretary-manager of the Civic Centre.
Scott McLaren, secretary of the Gyro Club, was invited by the board to attend the meet with members of the club.
LACK OF FUNDS
During a lengthy discussion on park work done in the city this year, it was pointed out that lack of funds may force the board to suspend some development.
Commissioners agreed they were not qualified to state whether proper machinery was being used for clearing ground at Plaza Park, Sixth and Plaza, and decided to suspend operations until the board receives professional advice.
Bulldozing has been going on at the park for the past week, preparing ground for development of a children's playground.
Commissioners Murray and Balagoc and chairman Pat Forman were appointed to meet with Mayor Harold Whalen, possibly Monday, to discuss park matters.

General Strike in Belgium

LIEGE, Belgium (CP)—Belgium's Federation of Labor today called a 24-hour general strike in protest against the country's two-year military service. General work stoppage is to begin Aug. 9.

Teen-Agers Rescued
KETCHIKAN — Seven teen-age boys were rescued from harbor here this morning when a Queen Charlotte Air Lines plane sighted the boys in the water. Boat was capsized.

Explosion Rocks Montreal

Ground Parties, Airplane Search For Starved Miner

Two ground parties and a Norseman plane are searching the rugged mountain area 22 miles north of Stewart for a crippled prospector who hasn't eaten for six days.

A gasping story of starvation and travel hardship was told in Stewart today by Bill Rowe, partner of the sought-for prospector, who stumbled into this mining town at 6 p.m. last night.
Rowe said he had to swim a river, Cameron was too weak to follow and stayed on the beach.
"The country is terrible, the underbrush is so thick we had to crawl on our hands and knees much of the way," gasped Rowe as he told Stewart hotel keeper Don McLeod of his experience.

Coaches Charged For Beating Imported Player
CALGARY (CP)—Coach Les Lear of the Calgary Stampeder Football Club and Line Coach Ed Champagne Friday were charged with common assault in connection with the beating suffered Thursday night by imported Mel Embree.
Embree, his face badly swollen, told police he had made the 1952 Stampeder team and after practice Thursday night Lear and Champagne called him into the dressing room.
He said they jumped on him and knocked him down after he refused to sign a contract calling for half of what he said he was supposed to get.

Premier of Canada Visits Prince Rupert Next Month
Prime Minister of Canada, Louis St. Laurent, will arrive in Prince Rupert next month on his tour of British Columbia which begins late this month.
Mr. St. Laurent will arrive here Sept. 7 from Powell River by special plane and will address a public meeting that night, announced E. T. Applewhite, Liberal MP for Skeena, today.
The Prime Minister will leave for Smithers after the meeting by special train, then enplane for Prince George for a luncheon meeting Monday.
Last Canadian prime minister to visit Prince Rupert was the late William Lyon Mackenzie King, in the early 30's.

U. K. Likely Reject Deadline Extension for B. C. Lumber; Exporters May Lose Millions
VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia lumber exporters learned Friday they stand to lose up to $15,000,000 worth of the multi-million dollar lumber contract with Great Britain.
Exporters said the recent 45-day woodworkers strike has caused a shortage of shipping and makes it impossible to complete shipment of 175,000,000 board feet of 600,000,000-foot contract by the Sept. 15 deadline.
They have received warnings from Britain that orders for 70,000,000 to 100,000,000 feet will probably be cancelled because the lumber was not shipped on schedule in June and July.
Britain next Tuesday or Wednesday is expected to reject exporters' requests that the deadline be extended. That means, exporters said, about 45,000,000 feet of lumber will not be shipped.
The 70,000,000 to 100,000,000 feet is worth almost $10,000,000 and the 45,000,000 feet is worth about $5,000,000. It is being sold to the British at about $35 above the current world price.

States Wins Olympic Basketball
HELSINKI (CP)—In point score United States won honors over Russia today 558 against Russia's 529½. No chance for Russia to overcome this lead regardless of tonight's boxing finals.
HELSINKI (CP)—United States Olympic basketball team defeated the stubborn ball-freezing Russian team 36-25 today to retain its Olympic title. Russia was second in the tournament standing.
United States passed Russia in the battle for unofficial Olympic team point championship today with 536 points to 528½ for Russia.
Still to come are the finals in the women's diving where the Americans are favored, ten boxing finals with Americans involved in five and Russians in two, and two equestrian events.
The men's 1500-metre freestyle swim was won by Fod Kono of U.S., which put Americans ahead.

Truce Called In Quebec Prison Riot
MONTREAL (CP)—A tense, uneasy truce ruled over riot-torn Bordeaux jail today after police quelled a two-hour riot, with guns and tear gas.
At least 12 convicts were injured in the melee, the second riot at Bordeaux since May. A police official denied a published report that one of two men hit by police bullets died.
Rioting against prison food, an estimated 800 convicts broke out of cell blocks last night, set 17 fires about the prison and clashed with 200 police in a bloody battle in the main prison courtyard.
Police, using tear gas bombs and firing pistols over the heads of the rioters, drove them back into cell blocks but they smashed the main locks and spilled back into the yard to yell and taunt police.
Police, aware that broken locks made it impossible to keep the convicts behind doors for the night, stood by and allowed them to blow off steam.

KILLER AND VICTIM—Frank Steele, 23, suspected burglar and drug addict, shot and killed his 19-year-old girl friend, Betty Weber in a small Vancouver apartment then put a bullet into his brain shortly before they were to appear in court with three other persons on charges of stealing $2,800 worth of clothes from a factory. Earlier Steele had wounded Betty's father, Harry, 52, in the leg and kidnapped the girl. Police said he slew the girl to prevent her from testifying in court. Three Year Sentence For Purse Snatch
VANCOUVER.—Two men who choked, beat and robbed a Vancouver housewife early Friday and were captured seconds later by an off duty police officer attracted by her screams, were on their way to penitentiary for three years 10 hours after the assault.
Walter Eiselt, 24, and Raymond Johnson, 20, pleaded guilty to a purse snatching assault of Mrs. B. J. Woods. The woman's purse contained $57.
The hoodlums refused to say anything in their own defence and only smiled when the sentence was passed—one of the heaviest levied in recent years for this type of offence.

THE NORTH RUN—Canadian Pacific Airlines new 40-passenger, twin-engine Convair, pressurized planes will go on the Vancouver-Whitehorse run shown here. Because of their speed, flying times will be reduced. The company, said president Grant McConachie, has purchased five of the new deluxe riding liners, first one to be delivered in December.

Canada's Long Term Prosperity

CANADA'S post-war prosperity has a long life expectancy but over the short run the prospect is not quite so good, Fortune Magazine says in its current issue.

Canadian prosperity is based "not on gross inflation and promotional bubbles, but on the rational development of her magnificent endowment of low-cost natural resources—resources that the western world and particularly the U.S. will need more and more as the years roll by."

More than half the articles in the issue are devoted to Canada's "revolution-in-progress," the 12-year boom that Fortune finds "restrained, well balanced, a model expansion."

An article by Gilbert Burck says the boom has had two contradictory effects on Canada. One is that it has increased her economic dependence on the U.S. The other is to encourage Canada's political nationalism.

"And political nationalism, often blind to a nation's long-term interests, usually begets economic nationalism," the article says. "Industrial expansion, moreover, often runs into difficulties for which economic nationalism means an easy way out. Canada thus is approaching a critical stage whose outcome will powerfully affect the future of politics and business in North America."

This Canadian nationalism could work out badly.

The boom, well balanced and un-nationalistic as it may be, is making Canada more vulnerable than ever to problems beyond her control. In relying on exports for a quarter of her income, she puts herself at the mercy of the outside world.

"As a royal commission once phrased it, she is like a small man in a big poker game; when he wins he wins a lot by his standards, but when he loses he loses nearly all. Canada can win a lot and lose a lot too."

Until Canada's home market develops, she is crucially dependent on the American market. And it is through foreign trade that Canadian living standards can be kept high enough to attract the people needed for a bigger home market.

Alberta Oil Board Controls Pressure Waste of Wells

By The Canadian Press

Alberta has frowned upon the fast-living oil well. Gone is the day of the Hollywood gusher which ran wild and uncontrolled as it came in, marking the birth of a new well.

There was a time not so long ago when whole oil fields died prematurely because they literally lived too fast. That was when oil wells were allowed to produce at maximum rate, with gas pressure caps dissipating their tremendous oil-lifting energy into the open air and leaving enormous pools trapped in the ground forever.

The Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board, set up in 1938 to guard the province's underground treasure-house by conserving energy and avoiding excesses, put a stop to all this.

One of the first major problems faced by the board was the situation at the Turner Valley oil field southwest of Calgary. Tremendous withdrawals of gas, then incidental to the recovery of oil, had been made there during the previous 15 years.

Wastage reached as high as 500,000,000 cubic feet daily in 1929 alone, reducing the gas pressure needed to bring the oil to the surface. Gas was burned off in big flares, causing a continuous red glow in the sky for miles around and earning the valley the nickname of Hell's Half Acre.

The board stepped in to preserve the oil field's life. Each well was assigned monthly production quotas based on its productivity, formation, pressure and gas and oil ratio.

At first, many operators resented these strict measures but by the time of the great Leduc oil discovery was made in 1947 conservation was accepted as a blessing to the oil industry along with the spacing of wells to one producer in each 40 acres.

To ensure maximum ultimate recovery of oil from a field, it is necessary to make the most efficient use of gas pressure that drives oil through the rock pores to the well. This pressure is principally due to natural gas

Alberta Again

GULL LAKE, Alberta—Thoughts on a smooth plane ride from Vancouver. Here is how I rate methods of transportation: For romance, travel by ship. For reliability, travel by train. For speed, travel by plane.

You can't see much flying over the Rockies, but as the plane glides down for the landing the fields of Alberta look almost as green as those of Ireland.

THERE is an election here in Alberta—but you would never guess that fact from anything you see or hear. We drove north from Calgary on the main highway to Edmonton. In more than a hundred miles we did not see a single election card, not a single poster or billboard mentioning the vote, now only a few days away.

Evidently the Social Credit party is so sure of an easy victory that it feels it does not have to exert itself, and the opposing parties have not the means or inclination to do so in a way that makes a visible or audible impression on the voter.

As a matter of fact, the main highway between Calgary and Lacombe is in anything but first class shape. Apart from low spots where the level of the road is being raised there are numerous frost bumps not yet smoothed out. Some of these are dangerous. Yet less than a week before the election the government feels so sure of itself that it does not bother even to rush such repairs.

Surely times have changed in this respect. I can remember in my native Ontario, and also in many parts of B.C., where people could show you different stretches of highway which had been built just before such and such an election.

BACK around 1938 I came over to Alberta to try to find out if the first Social Credit government would be re-elected. I soon found out that it would be. I finally pinned down a group of rather untalkative farmers to give me the explanation. They admitted that the Social Credit party had not done any of the things it had promised to do when elected (for instance to give everyone a cash dividend of $25 per month). But as one put it:

"They're not as bad as them other fellers."

By "them other fellers" I gathered he meant "the old line parties." I imagine that this same general sentiment still prevails.

BUT on one matter B.C. and Saskatchewan are far ahead of Alberta. I have checked up here on the workings of their hospital system. While our B.C. system is on a province-wide basis, here each municipality must vote its people into the scheme. But once they do vote into it, it is compulsory and universal within the municipality, whereas ours in B.C., like that in Saskatchewan, is on an overall provincial basis.

Here the cost of the compulsory system falls mainly on home and farm owners. A 260-acre farm at Mayerthorpe, for instance, pays $41.58 per year in hospital tax. In the case of people who live in rented properties this tax is of course passed on by the landlords to the tenants.

THE BIGGEST myth ever put over the people of B.C. was the claim that in Alberta patients pay only a direct charge of one dollar per day while

UNDER OUR ROOF

By John Sturdy

"A friend of mine—my old commanding officer, as a matter of fact—is coming to dinner tonight," announced Col. S. Skeffington - Smutts (Ret.), when he met me yesterday. "Would you like to join us?"

I thought it was very white of the Colonel to invite me to dinner in my own house, but at the same time I was suddenly fearful.

"How long is this gentleman staying?" I asked.

"Oh, he's leaving the next morning," said the Colonel. "He's putting up at the local hotel."

I felt somewhat relieved. What with the Colonel and Anastasia and Hamish and Little Augie filling up the house and forcing my family and me to live in the shed, probably another guest wouldn't have mattered very much. Still, I felt relieved.

"We're having goose," the Colonel added.

"That was even better. The Colonel usually eats nothing but curry and rice."

"I'll tell my wife," I said. "She'll be delighted."

The Colonel frowned at me. "Boy," he declared, "this dinner is for gentlemen only."

So I had to go and tell my wife that I had been invited to our house for a goose dinner, and that it was strictly a stag affair. I ducked briskly when she threw a can of sardines at my head.

I must admit that I, too, am a little tired of eating sardines and other canned victuals. Consequently my mouth watered when I thought of roast goose.

At seven o'clock Major-General Darcy Dart-Jones made his appearance. An imposing man, he rushed up to the Colonel and shouted: "Haw!" and the Colonel shouted: "Haw!" right back at him. It really was a sentimental reunion between these two old campaigners.

"When do we eat?" I whispered to Little Augie.

"Any minute now," said the ex-blind pig king. "Hamish has the goose in the oven."

We sat down to a polished table with the Colonel at the head and the Major-General on his right hand. From the kitchen I caught a waft of something that made me drool.

We had a decanter of Little Augie's extra-special goat's milk Drambuie on the table and the Colonel said: "While we're waiting for the fowl to be brought in, I thought, sir, that..."

"Haw!" shouted the Major-General. "Absolutely...haw!"

"On your feet!" the Colonel yelled at little Augie and me, when the glasses were filled. "To the Khyber Pass!"

So we drank to the Khyber Pass and the Colonel and the Major-General smashed their glasses in the fire-place. (My wife's glasses, incidentally). Then the Colonel called Hamish out of the kitchen for more goblets and insisted that Hamish remain to in hospital. Here the average charges for X-ray and other things (which are free in B.C.) is $3.50 per day. Also there is no provision to pay for patients who must go from small towns to big city hospitals.

For B.C. to revert to the Alberta system would be a giant backward step.

ISLINGTON, Middlesex, England (AP)—Some radioactive flies are buzzing around here. They got that way because they were given a drink of brew distilled at the Hartwell atomic research laboratories.

Scientists at the pest infestation laboratory at Slough are responsible for the condition of the flies, and the idea is to determine how far a fly flies.

The insects are released here after the atomic brew snifter. Then flies are captured at varying districts, and a geiger counter spots those which are radio-active.

Greatest distance covered so far is three miles.

Reflects and Reminisces

May, June, July, 1952! Can anyone recall a three-month period in or near Prince Rupert when accidents were graver, more frequent, or the victims better known and esteemed?

After all, a spell of coolness in Prince Rupert feels pretty fair, which reminds one of the inmate of a mental hospital who kept tapping himself on the head with a hammer. He was asked if this did not hurt. "Sure," came the reply, "but think how nice it is when I stop."

A VOYAGE ENDS

An Edmonton bride disappeared off an Atlantic liner this week. Husband had fallen asleep and when he awoke could not find her. North of Prince Rupert last summer, an Ontario girl travelling alone vanished from a tourist steamer. Men appear less prone to those little, but momentous mysteries.

Halifax always has the navy—more or less. But this week, squadrons from the United States, a submarine fresh from Great Britain, and the RCN good and plenty concentrated at the Nova Scotia city. There should be everything from beer to manoeuvres.

WHY CERTAINLY!

Not the least a mooring aspect of the austere English is that once again they have been told, by Sir John Charles, chief medical officer, that their health is getting better and better. —Ottawa Journal.

Another thing about a woman, observes a contemporary, is that she can't put a pillow in a slip without biting the pillow.

Prince Rupert is about to receive unique advertising. Modelled tourists from New York permitted to drive car, alone, to Seal Cove and elsewhere. Car owner and visitors complete strangers. Don't think this won't be a little yarn to be told and re-told back home in the U.S. I surely will when they tell of their adventures away in the ferocious northwest.

A seat worth occupying at the Olympic games in Helsinki costs $60. Yet plenty of Finns have been working their heads off for love of sport. What the helsinki?

Iona Hardy Honoree at Bride Shower

A beautifully decorated basket, overflowing with gifts, was given to Miss Iona Hardy at a miscellaneous shower Wednesday night by members of the Queen Mary Chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, at the home of Mrs. J. R. Care, 925 Borden Street.

Miss Hardy, who is to be married here next Saturday, was presented with a corsage of red rosebuds by Mrs. H. C. Flood, Regent of the Chapter, as she entered the house.

Several games were played and prize winners were the guest of honor and Mrs. Margaret Stewart.

The rooms were delightfully decorated with mock orange blossoms and the fireplace was banked with foxgloves and honeysuckle.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and a lovely bride's cake made by Mrs. R. B. Skinner, was cut by Iona and served by Mrs. Flood.

The basket of gifts was placed in front of Miss Hardy by Margaret Keays and Doreen Paul, after which the bride-to-be opened each package.

Among guests were: Mrs. Ken Hardy, mother of the bride-to-be; Mesdames M. J. Keays, H. Breen, W. J. Lineham, J. A. McRae, R. Scherk, J. Ridsdale, S. G. Kelback, R. B. Skinner, M. Stewart, J. Stewart, J. A. Teng, Pat Forman, F. Hill, G. Charlton, A. C. Gillis, Ketcheson, P. Lyons, and Misses Margaret Keays, Doreen Paul, Shari Beth Ingalls, Mary Addison, Barbara Teng, Karen Forman.

The bride-elect is a member of H.M.C.S. Haida Chapter, I.O.D.E.

Ald. Daggett, Now Assessor To Study Methods in South

Alderman Harry M. Daggett is leaving here Sunday night to inquire into assessment policies at New Westminster, Nanaimo and West Vancouver.

The newly-appointed city assessor expects to be away about a week. He sails aboard the Princess Norah.

Mr. Daggett, former mayor of Prince Rupert, was appointed city assessor at a council meeting here last Monday night. He will resign his aldermanic post shortly.

Miss Mary Strachan sailed on the Coquitlam last night en route to Victoria to resume her nurses training after spending a vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Strachan, Albin Avenue.

Mrs. T. A. Marshall, the former Peggy Steen, sister of Mrs. T. A. Stewart, has returned to Prince Rupert to take up residence. Mrs. Marshall's husband is with the Columbia Cellulose Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Martin, with their two children, are leaving by car tomorrow for Telkwa where they will spend three weeks visiting Mrs. Martin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Heal.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Morton, accompanied by Miss Wanda Black, Mrs. Morton's sister, left by car last night for Los Angeles. On their return Miss Black will stop at Pentiction for a visit with friends.

FRANCOIS LAKE

William Loveseth caught a 22-pound, 11-ounce char on Sunday. It was 39 inches long and had a girth of 28 inches.

Lee Cooper has been visited by his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Streeter who came up by car from Kaycee, Wyoming. They drove via Dawson Creek.

Ralph Keefe was home for a short visit this week-end. He is with the forestry department, working from Prince Rupert headquarters.

The Riding Club meeting at the Snyder Ranch was exciting. After a little rough riding exhibition the members practised stake racing and enjoyed a picnic lunch under the trees. Afterwards they rode into the hills for the afternoon.

There are very few tourists coming through, and the cottages at the Landing are all vacant. These are beautifully situated and were all filled last summer.

Foundlanders Study in to for Social Work

On the other hand, housing has become a difficulty in St. John's and also in the rapidly growing industrial centre of Corner Brook.

What to do with the able-bodied unemployed, was another problem in a province where the scattered population largely was dependent on seasonal work such as fishing.

Enthusiasm for welfare work runs high in this new province. Seven hundred persons have applied for the 70 openings in the public welfare department since it was organized two years ago.

Workers were given preference if they had been teachers or worked in related fields because they would have had experience in dealing with people.

women were kept pretty much in St. John's, not through any discrimination but because living could at times be rugged in the outposts where many a welfare worker did his visiting by boat or dog-team.

A basic in-training program was set up by the department, but after two years the minister wanted his staff to have further training. As a result the six-week course was opened this summer.

Students: Lloyd Andrews, Patrick Kavanagh, Mrs. Rita Long, Angela Ryan, Mrs. Marion Ward, all of St. John's; Jack Anthony, Fogo; Guy Belbin, Flowers Cove; Lloyd Case, Carmanville; E. E. Crocker, Twillingate Island; N. S. Facey, C. S. Knight, Trinity Bay; H. House, Lewisport; Patrick O'Keefe, Placentia Bay; George Pieroway, Red Bay, Labrador; George Pope, Stones Cove; Fortune Bay; Doug Rideout, Westville; E. J. Russell, Bell Island; H. E. Skinner, Bonavista; J. T. Spencer, Milltown; C. J. Spurrell, Corner Brook; R. J. Tobin, Brigus; Max Vincent, Glovertown.

Godfrey, Newfoundland deputy minister is here as a member. He also acts as an officer when discussing welfare problems in Newfoundland. Delinquency, he explains, is perhaps less of a problem in Newfoundland than in other parts of the province. Communities are close-knit, small, Church and State are woven strong ties.

Time at Breakfast Less Than Forty Winks

It is so early in the morning that the Health Magazine, says that the extra minutes at the breakfast table are more good than bad. A matter of scientific fact, a good breakfast will help you feel more on the bit, less tired, says the magazine.

At a moderate, balanced breakfast, somewhere between the starving stenographer and the cigarette and time farm breakfast, all the way from fried to fried.

Medium-size breakfast, aided by nutritionist-fresh fruit, a whole egg, milk, whole grain toast, and a beverage of coffee if desired. Such a breakfast provides the important vitamins, minerals, and protein essential in the diet.

It is no need to resort to expensive and elaborate methods to achieve a well-balanced breakfast. Health, energy, milk, bread, and a beverage of coffee if desired. Such a breakfast provides the important vitamins, minerals, and protein essential in the diet.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Mr. Muzzy's Distorted Bid Was Cautious, But Not Wise

To open one club on Mr. Muzzy's hand is to distort the bidding. It is a justifiable distortion when there is no part score, a "least of all evils" proposition, made so that you will have a convenient rebid over anything partner responds.

For example, suppose you open one heart and partner bids two diamonds. What do you rebid? Certainly not two spades. Your hand is not strong enough. Likewise, a two no-trump would require more strength.

You can't raise partner's diamonds with just the trey deuce. And your heart suit is not re-biddable. To avoid this dilemma you open one club and now over the expected diamond response, you have a convenient rebid of one heart.

This is all very fine. But with an advanced partial it represents unnecessary caution. Mr. Muzzy didn't have to worry about rebids. He should have opened with one heart, his best suit. He could have passed anything his partner bid, short of a force.

In other words, one of the advantages of a good part score is that you don't have to strain to open with a three-card club suit on a hand like Mr. Muzzy's.

After the club opening and Mr. Dale's spade overall, there was no easy way for Mr. Muzzy and Mr. Champion to get into a heart contract at which they could have made three-odd.

Mr. Dale made one spade, giving Mr. Muzzy a minus score on the hand. And if Mr. Champion had stretched a point and raised to two clubs, it would have been even a larger loss.

Portable Beehive Friends of Travelling Family

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The S. W. Murphy family of Memphis, Tenn., started home today with a few thousand more passengers than they had when they arrived a week ago.

A swarm of bees has taken up residence under the left front fender of the Murphy car.

The family arrived last Tuesday, Wednesday the bees moved in.

"They stayed with us wherever we drove," said Mrs. Murphy. "They even went along to Tijuana (Mex.) and back."

The Murphys say they like bees and don't plan to disturb them.

Nudists Elect King, Queen

VANCOUVER, B.C. — Dorothy MacDonald of Vancouver, tanned all over—and we mean all over—is the new queen of Canadian nudists.

Laurie Gervais of Vancouver, also with no patches of white showing in his tan, is the new king.

They were elected last weekend by 10 delegates to the sixth annual convention of the Canadian Sunbathing Association at nearby Langley Prairie (exact location not announced).

Pictures of the king and queen were taken for publication in the nudist press only.

Vancouver Van Tans, Canadian nudist volleyball champions, were defeated by a combined team from Seattle and Corvallis, Ore.

The C.S.A. claims 500 members scattered among 15 clubs across Canada.

Saturday Sermon

By SR. CAPT. G. OYSTRYK, Salvation Army
I saw a new Heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away... Behold the Tabernacle of God is with men, and He will dwell with them and they shall be His people, and God Himself shall be with them, and be their God."
—Rev. 21:1-3.

This world is greatly indebted to its far-seeing Saint John, who had the vision to see in the distant future a new earth and a holy city. When we look back over the pages of history, we see that the world's great torchbearers, leaders and benefactors were such men. They were inspired by the light drawn from the far-off future.

Realities of divine and cardinal truth, he is enabled to keep his eye fixed on the morning star of hope. What are we doing about the responsibility that is ours? Have we a part in this Kingdom?

"Except ye be born again, ye cannot see the Kingdom of God." The first requisite then is rebirth, both spiritual and moral; spiritual in establishing a right relationship with God; moral, in the right relationship with man, and government of our own actions.

When the tabernacle of God is with man, God will dwell with His people and give them direction and guidance for their complete and perfect spiritual welfare. Notice that the people shall be HIS people. They had accepted Christ, they had become victorious through faith in Him, they are fit to inherit His Kingdom. Only the pure shall reign with Christ in the new creation.

There will have to be a necessary segregation of the wicked for God's word teaches us "there shall in no wise enter into it anything that worketh abomination or maketh a lie." Holy Godly living here will more than compensate the individual for the effort, but more than that, it will prepare that person for the future, eternal occupation of God's Kingdom.

Seek Christ, that your name may be written in the Lamb's Book of Life.

Anglicans to Study Suggested Revision of Communion Office

By H. H. GORDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A revision of the Office for Holy Communion is to be presented for information and study to the general synod of the Church of England in Canada when it meets in London, Ont., in September.

The work is part of the task undertaken by a committee of the general synod on the revision of the Book of Common Prayer, headed by Rt. Rev. W. T. Hallam, Assistant Bishop of Huron and former Bishop of Saskatchewan.

The committee considers revision of the communion service of greatest importance and in its report to the synod says: "Your committee desires it to be clearly understood that this proposed revision is submitted for the purpose only of information and study and not of obtaining authorization for permissive use."

The committee hopes that suggestions will be forthcoming from study groups and individuals throughout the church. To this end it recommends that its report be published and circulated by the church book room.

NOTABLE CHANGES

Most important changes precede and follow the consecration of the bread and wine.

It is proposed to add the following to the Prayer of Consecration:

"Wherefore, O Lord and Heavenly Father, in union with all Thy Holy Church we do this in remembrance of Him who died, and rose again, and ever liveth to make intercession for us, presenting unto Thy Divine Majesty this our thanksgiving and service, through the merits and mediation of Thy beloved Son, Jesus Christ Our Lord, by Whom and with Whom, in the unity of the Holy Spirit, all honor and glory be unto Thee, O Father Almighty, world without end."

In the proposed revision, the Prayer of Humble Access—"We do not presume to come to this Thy table..."—follows immediately after the Prayer of Consecration and will be said by the priest and all about to receive communion. Previously the prayer was said by the priest alone, immediately preceding the consecration.

The revisers would shorten the well-known General Confession. The word "confess" is substituted for "bewail" in the sentence: "acknowledge and bewail our manifold sins..." Phrases dropped are: "provoking most justly Thy wrath and indignation against us," and "the remembrance of them is grievous unto us, the burden of them is intolerable."

THE COMMANDMENTS

At the opening of the service, recitation of the Commandments has been shortened by abbreviation of the second, fourth and 10th Commandments.

The first Commandment is preceded by the admonition: "Hear the law of God which was given to Israel in old time." Following the 10th it is proposed to add: "Hear also what our Lord Jesus Christ saith: a new Commandment I give unto you that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another."

Proper prefaces have been added for use on New Year's Day, to the Eve of the Epiphany and upon the Feast of the Transfiguration; for Passion Sunday and until Maunday Thursday inclusive; for All Saints' Day, the feasts of the apostles, evangelists and St. John Baptist, except where a proper preface of any principal feast is appointed.

The proper preface for Christmas Day would be said until

THE OUTLANDER by Germaine Guevremont

(Available at the Sargent Memorial Library and at Prince Rupert Public Lib.) One autumn evening in 1909, at Monk's Inlet, near Sorel, as the Beauchemin family was preparing for supper, a stranger knocked at their door. With customary hospitality, he was invited to partake of the evening meal—a tall redheaded man, in a loud, tattered red and green check jacket.

When asked his name, he became elusive, expressing a desire to be known as "the stranger," voluntarily retaining his aura of mystery.

Around the table were seated Didace Beauchemin, son of Didace, descendant of the rugged, courageous ancestor, who, in the 18th century, had braved the perils of the Canadian wilderness and had finally elected Chenail-du-Moine, as his settling ground. From him had sprung a sturdy race of peasants.

The heir to this proud family was the weakling Amable, the last of the Beauchemin, a man with "no vices but all the faults." His wife, Alphonine, a timorous city girl "had not succeeded in investing the house with that atmosphere of security and warm happiness which transforms a home into a unique refuge against the world."

The Stranger proved a man of many skills and soon became indispensable on the farm. Didace saw in him a reflection of his own brawling youth and grew to regard him as a son. He won the love of Alphonine by numerous gestures of kindness. Amable alone remained aloof, uncompromising, jealous of this ascending popularity and untiring energy, and unforgiving of this wanderer's influence on his father.

The temptation to surrender completely to the love of Angelina, a pale, frail girl, and to the security of her enviable dowry, was great to the Stranger. Here he could find peace and contentment in the settled life of the habitant, continuing a long tradition of devotion to the soil. But the Stranger was a wanderer, with the freedom of the open road beckoning him elsewhere.

One Spring evening he slipped out of the house, but the Stranger's influence remained. Everywhere he had left his imprint, to last through the years.

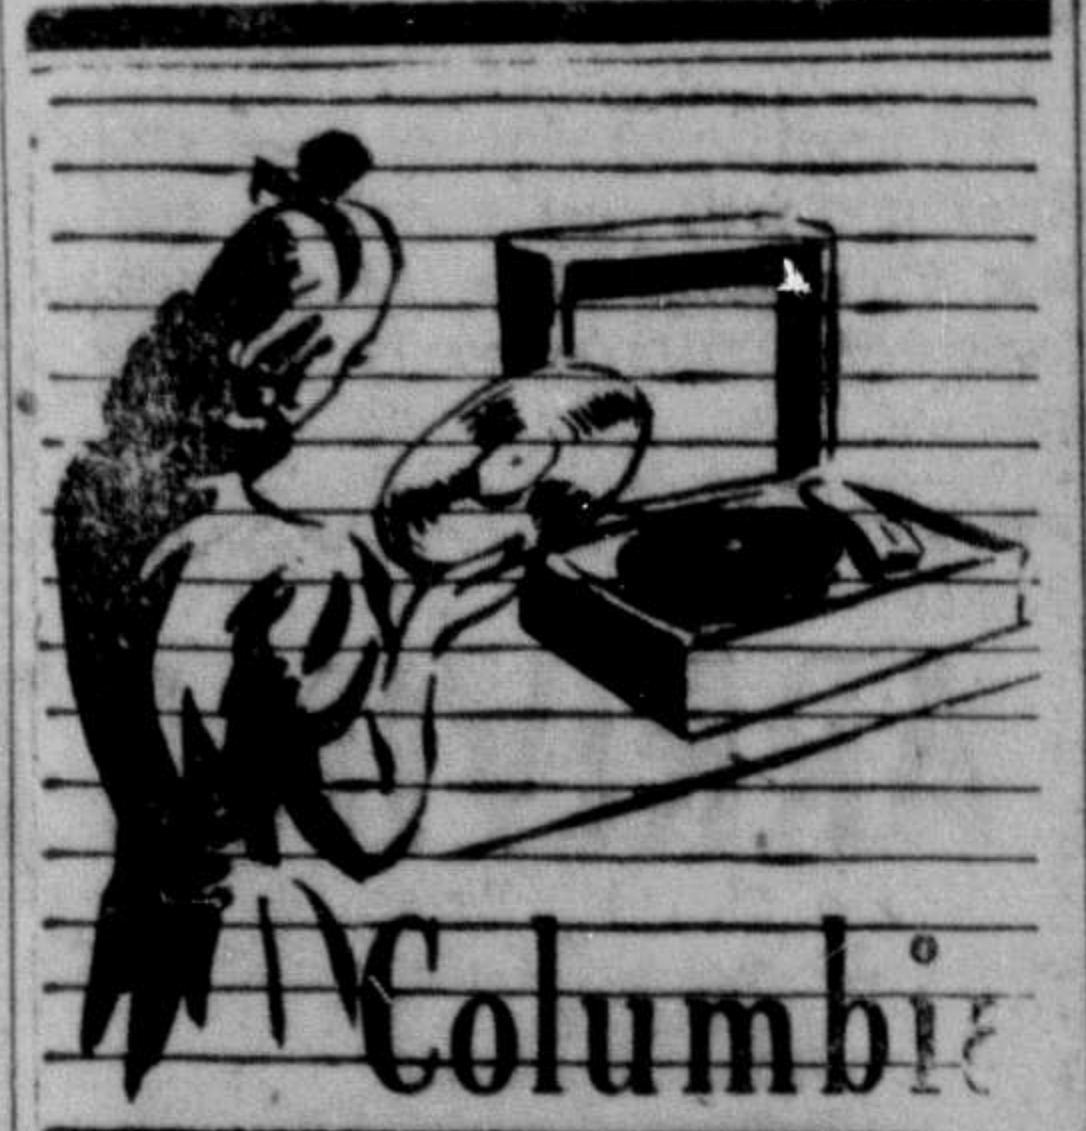

It is a quiet but profound novel, dealing with the inner loneliness and dignity of man and the elemental truths of his life—birth and death, the joys of the seasons; kindness and friendship, and the good things that come from the earth.

Mr. Eric Sutton has done the translation. "Though the sonority and rhythm of the French sentence, so admirably suited to the roman du terroir, much of its poetic beauty has been retained.

"For the sense it gives of the river alone, of the wonderful fusion of human beings and nature, this book would be worth reading." (Excerpt from a letter of tribute written by Hugh MacLennan, one of Canada's foremost writers).

ABOUT THE AUTHOR—In a recent article devoted to Madame Guevremont, SATURDAY NIGHT hailed her as a Canadian worth celebrating.

"The Outlander" has brought fame to Canadian literature. It won the Governor General's Award last year and caused Madame Guevremont to be selected by the SATURDAY REVIEW OF LITERATURE as one of the world's ten best "new writers," the only Canadian and the only

Foot Lights

by Lilian Miller

Comedy is made up of light-hearted subject-matter and, in contrast to tragedy, has a happy outcome.

The most popular comedy is the natural humour of plays like "From Five to Five-Thirty." Vaudeville, as we know it, is a series of unrelated acts, consisting of songs, dances, and "wise-cracks." However, in its birth place, Vau-de-vive, France, vaudeville was made up of a complete play in which dialogue was interspersed with songs and dances.

Flying Clock

CAPE TOWN (CPA) tiny radiu clock attached to a homing pigeon's wing to record the bird's flying time was described here by Sir Lawrence Bragg, Director of the Cavendish Laboratory at Cambridge. The clock functions only when the bird's wing is outstretched.

Mountain 'Magnificence'

Just back from a trip to Banff, Jasper and the Canadian Rockies, a Toronto amateur naturalist, after his first trip to the west, was asked what impressed him most in the mountain magnificence. "Mountain bluebirds and magpies," was his response. "And the mountains, too, of course," was added as an afterthought.

BIRD CALLS ON RADIO

For the first time in Canadian radio history actual bird calls are being used to introduce a radio program. "Outdoors" features Fete McGillen, outdoors columnist of the Toronto Telegram, and is broadcast from CFRB, Toronto, every Tuesday night.

The calls were recorded in Algonquin Park by Dr. William woman on the list. "THE OUTLANDER" is the English translation of two French novels "Le Survenant" and "Marie Didace," which had already won her the Duvernay Prize in Montreal; the Province of Quebec's First Prize in Literature; the Sully-Olivier de Serres prize in Paris (for the best novel of rural life—never before awarded outside France); the French-Canadian Academy Award; and membership in the exclusive Academy of 24 seats, whose members must have produced two books of out-standing merit interpreting French-Canadian life.

Spectacular Airlift Opens up Labrador

(Editor's Note: Across the wilderness of Labrador-Ungava, aircraft shuttle men and supplies to speed development of some of the world's richest iron deposits. In this story, last of a series, Business Editor Forbes Rhude of the Canadian Press writes about the biggest civilian airlift in the world.)

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

If Labrador-Ungava were to produce a Robert W. Service, he would probably get his inspiration from the airlift.

There's something rollicking about it—that biggest civilian airlift in the world which has carried everything from buns to bulldozers and made possible the building of a railway and the development of iron ore.

It's rollicking and informal but also down-to-business and efficient, with about a perfect safety record.

It is operated by Hellinger Ungava Transport Ltd., a subsidiary of Iron Ore Company of Canada, and it is headed by Charles Hoyt, an RCAF wing commander in wartime who got the supplies in for Goose Bay airport.

The air company operates from Mont Joli, Que., on the south shore of the St. Lawrence, first town on the outside to show the immediate effects of the shower of wealth from the brooding land across the way.

It flies supplies from Mont Joli as required, but especially it flies supplies from Seven Islands, 300 miles downstream from Quebec, on the north shore of the St. Lawrence, which receives them by ship. It takes them up 320 air miles to Knob Lake and Burnt Creek, and into the 10 airstrips which dot the way.

Only in the last couple of winters has a tote-road come to its assistance and, after this year, as steel is pushed northward from Seven Islands, its task should become easier.

Last year it carried 33,000 pounds of supplies and 22,246 passengers. This year, despite the relief of the tote-road, it will carry more than ever. Included in its fleet are five DC-3s, a Canso amphibian, a Lockheed Lodestar, five or six smaller planes, two helicopters, and two chartered aircraft.

Knob Lake airport is smack in the centre of what was unknown wilderness until a few years ago. There are gravel runways, a camp-like office, a putt-putting diesel engine to supply power for the electric lights.

I watched a silvery DC-3 drop in from Seven Islands—beautiful on the outside but stripped down for cargo-carrying inside.

Double doors swung open. A waiting throng cheered and took away to a reception two newly-weds—to total four married couples at nearby Burnt Creek. Trucks backed up to the double doors and unloaded the cargo. Empty steel fuel drums were loaded for the return trip. I got aboard with two other passengers.

One was Guy Wimmans, native of Fredericton, in charge of communications up and down the line. The other was D. J. Santer, formerly of Nelson, B.C., who came recently from Sandspit, B.C., in the Queen Charlotte Islands, and was headed for Mile 64 as a radio operator.

You certainly meet people from all over on that airlift.

The pilot was Al Coggin of Mahone Bay, N.S., formerly with Royal Dutch Airlines.

He was working a shift. He had come up from Seven Islands, was taking the fuel drums and us back, and in a few minutes would be away again to the power project at Menihok Lake.

At the busy night office at Seven Islands, now after 1 a.m., he asked:

"What have we for tonight?"

He got the reply: "Five thousand pounds and four passengers." (Chances are the 5000 pounds was cent.)

The co-pilot was Fred Van Brussel of Toronto, a former flight engineer in the RCAF, who just a year ago got a pilot's licence.

Going from Seven Islands to Knob Lake a few days earlier I had travelled without 30 men. Some were workers. Some were students still dressed as on the campus, but next day I saw them out along the railway cuts, tapping rocks and getting instruction in what they should look for.

The motto down there is, "Take the first plane you can get—you don't know when you will get another." Fog may close in; someone or a piece of cargo may have a higher priority—a worker for Mile 190, or lumber for Wacouana.

First taste of the airlift was on the "executive plane," the 12-passenger Lodestar, going down from Montreal. Pilot Don McClintock and Co-pilot Henry Hicks were typical of that cheery crew of young fellows who pilot planes on the Labrador-Ungava project.

Executive office is in Montreal, but officials from there and the United States interests are coming and going all the time.

I saw W. H. Durrell, general manager of Iron Ore, fly down to Seven Islands one evening, talk with his on-the-spot staff till midnight, and then away again next morning.

An unofficial report says HMS Sheffield will pay a visit to British Columbia. The time, it is expected, will be early in August.

WILDERNESS AIRPORT—Pontoon-equipped planes at Knob Lake in the centre of Labrador-Ungava carry food to the prospecting parties threading lake and bush. They also bring back ore samples of the latest finds in the huge iron development. Knob Lake is the last stop on the biggest civilian airlift in the world, which has made possible the opening up of this vast territory. Nearby is a large airport. It also will be the northern terminus of the railway which will run 360 miles to Seven Islands, Que. (CP PHOTO)

Shipyards Propose Wage Cut
VANCOUVER.—Three Vancouver shipbuilding companies Friday proposed a wage cut for some employees and no change in wage rates for the rest.

Burrard Drydock, Pacific Drydock and B.C. Marine Engineers & Shipbuilders told a conciliation board they are being priced out of new construction and the ship repair business.

Marine Workers and Boilermakers Union (CCL) is seeking a general wage increase of 35 cents hourly.

The union, representing 1200 workers, was offered last year's wages for all workers earning more than $1.65 an hour, a seven cent cut for workers immediately below the $1.65 classification and a 10-cent cut for laborers.

In all, at the commencement of this summer, Japanese ship owners had 298 bottoms for world trade, amounting to approximately 177 million gross tons. The pre-war deep sea fleet of Nippon Yusen Kaisha totalled better than 800,000 gross tons.

Fishing in northern B.C. waters, comments Progress Reports, is considered a job only for the hardiest, but with the construction of larger vessels,

In view of the movement of bauxite from the British West Indies to British Columbia for aluminum production, the following item regarding new orders recently placed by Alcoa, the Aluminum Company of America for special vessels for use in this trade is of interest:

"An order has been placed with Lindholm, Gothenburg, for two 8,000-ton dw and one 26,000-ton dw vessels for carrying bauxite from Dutch Guiana to Mobile. They will be self-trimming, with ore holds in the centre and ballast tanks at the sides. Diesel motors will provide about 13-knot speed.

Three of Hollywood's most devoted baseball fans—Doris Day, Ronald Reagan and Frank Lovejoy—have co-starring roles in "The Winning Team," Warner Bros. film tribute to the immortal Grover Cleveland Alexander.

The picture, based on the fabulous career of the famed pitcher, opens Monday at the Totem Theatre for a three-day run.

Doris, a gal who will drop a shopping tour for a softball game, can rattle off big league standings, batting averages and other statistics like a true aficionado. She frequently plays a "pepper" game with her 10-year-old son, Terry.

Reagan, who portrays Alexander on the screen, is nimble, a skilful player. By coincidence it was on the sandlots of Galesburg, Illinois, a hometown of the actor's youth, that Alex the Great first pitched professional ball.

Lovejoy, cast as Rogers Hornsby, an Alexander-contemporary and now managing the Cincinnati Reds, plays ball with professional skill and is an ardent follower of the sport.

Among the top big leaguers featured in "The Winning Team" are Bob Lemon of the Cleveland Indians, Gerry Priddy of the Detroit Tigers; Peanuts Lowery, St. Louis Cardinals; George Metkovich, Pittsburgh Pirates; Irving Noren, New York Yankees; Hank Sauer, Chicago Cubs; and Al Zarilla, Chicago White Sox.
