Russian Soviet Tries To Stir Up Revolution in Britain by Giving Secret Instructions to Communists

LONDON, Oct. 25.—In a letter issued by a permanent official of the British foreign office published in today's newspapers addressed to Christian Rakovsky, Russian Charge D'Affaires in London, attention is drawn to an accompanying copy of a letter received by the Central Committee of the British Communist party from M. Zinovieff, president of the committee of the Communist Internationale, containing instructions to British subjects to work for the violent overthrow of existing institutions in this country and the subversion of His Majesty's armed forces as a means to that end.

The letter from the foreign office says: "It is my duty to inform you His Majesty's government cannot allow this propaganda and must regard it as direct interference from the outside in British domestic affairs."

STOP SLANDER OF NEWSPAPERS

British Premier if Returned to Power Will Consider Curb-ing of Press

LONDON, Oct. 25 (later).—Publication of the foreign office document, supposedly revealing a Red Moscow plot against Great Britain startled the public today. The text of the letter, which was marked "very secret," from M. Zinovieff, president of the executive council of the Communist Internationale to the central committee of the British Communist party containing, in the words of the foreign office, "instructions to British subjects to work for the violent overthrow of existing institutions in this country and for the subversion of His Majesty's armed forces as a means to that end."

Communications from the foreign office to the Russian Charge D'Affaires, M. Rakovsky, calls attention to Zinovieff's letter and protests against this "violation of the specific and solemn undertaking repeatedly given to His Majesty's government."

The letter immediately came to the fore in the election campaign and opponents of the Macdonald government are making the most of it.

MET ESKIMOS NEVER BEFORE SEEN WHITES

Knud Rasmussen Says He Has Evidence of Origin of People: Travelled 20,000 Miles

SEATTLE, Oct. 25.—A complete history of the Eskimo race is to be written by Knud Rasmussen, Danish explorer and leader of the fifth Thule expedition of Denmark, declared Rasmussen on his arrival here from Nome yesterday on the steamer Victoria. Rasmussen says he has positive proof of the origin of the Eskimos but it is not yet ready for the public. He says it is proved that one can travel from Greenland through the Arctic and to the coast of Siberia and be understood by all the Eskimo tribes in a common language. He met tribes never before visited by white men.

OBJECTION TAKEN BY RAILWAY MEN TO CROW'S NEST RATES

J. E. Dalrymple Visiting West on Tour of Inspection Says Taxpayers Would Have to Pay Loss

WINNIPEG, Oct. 25.—If the Crow's Nest agreement rates were enforced permanently there would be a deficiency to be made good by someone, and in the case of the Canadian National Railways, it would be the taxpayer who would have to make good the difference, according to J. E. Dalrymple, Montreal, vice-president of the Canadian National Railway in charge of traffic who left here today enroute west on an inspection tour.

"We railwaymen do not consider that the Crow's Nest agreement rates are a fair compensation to us at the present time, when one considers the high operative costs of today, and it must be remembered that our only revenue is what we get from transportation," said Mr. Dalrymple, in an interview at the Fort Garry Hotel. He also states that while he did not expect the Canadian National to reach its objective of $30,000,000 net profit this year he confidently believes that they will improve on last year's figures. Business is picking up and he understands that the East is selling quite freely to the West, he therefore considers there are good months ahead and hopes for a vast column of grain to be moved before the freezeup.

Mr. Dalrymple is accompanied by W. C. Muir, acting general manager of Canadian National Express, who will visit the branches of that department at all the larger points in the west during the next week or ten days.

Tariff Commission Is Here Inquiring Into Duty on Canadian Fish

For the purpose of determining whether or not the present tariff on halibut entering the United States from Canada is compatible with differences in production costs and competitive conditions and with a view to obtaining information so as to bring about any revision in the tariff that may be found warranted, a commission of field representatives under the U.S. tariff commission is visiting the city having arrived from Vancouver on the Princess Mary last night. The field commission is headed by L. T. Hopkinson of Washington, D.C., special expert, and the other two members are Samuel Schoenfeld and Thomas H. Joyce also special experts with duties particularly as accountants. They will spend several days in the city obtaining particulars of production costs and will interview fish buying concerns, supply dealers and all others directly interested in the fisheries from commercial or administrative standpoints. The commission is registered at the Hotel Prince Rupert and started its work this morning following an interview with U.S. Consul A. E. Wakefield.

Pointing out that it was not for him to make any predictions as to what the outcome of his investigation might be and that any information the commission obtained was strictly confidential, Mr. Hopkinson in an interview with the Daily News this morning told something of the purposes of the investigation and the auspices under which it was being made.

Cost of Production
"Under the flexible provisions of the United States tariff act known as the Fordney tariff which came into effect on September 22, 1922, the president of the United States has power to change the tariff on the basis of differences in costs of production as between the United States product and the product of foreign competitive countries," explained Mr. Hopkinson. "It is the function of the U.S. tariff commission which consists of six members and has its headquarters at Washington to report to the president. We are working under the U.S. tariff commission particularly with regard to halibut production and its distributing costs. The information we obtain is strictly confidential and is only used in the form of averages and totals of production costs. We do not take any individual enterprise and use its figures exclusively but take the country as a whole through figures obtained from different interests or from official sources. Other commissions such as this are sent out to various countries of the world when the occasion arises. For instance, there is a commission at present investigating butter production costs in Denmark."

Competitive Conditions
"The whole sum and substance is that the United States tariff commission wants to base its decision with respect to the halibut tariff strictly on the facts as collected by ourselves as field representatives. The purpose is to determine whether or not the present tariff on halibut is compatible with the differences in production costs and competitive conditions and to place the industries of the two countries on a competitive basis in the United States market. On recommendation of the tariff commission, the president is empowered to revise the tariff to a limit of fifty per cent one way or the other. As it stands now, it is 2c per pound on halibut. It could not be made less than 1c per pound or more than 3c per pound."

Public Hearing Later
Following the investigation, Mr. Hopkinson stated that there would be a public hearing at Washington at which the interests of both Canada and the United States would be given the opportunity of presenting their cases.

This commission started its work at Seattle and the next stop was Vancouver. After it is finished here, it will proceed to Ketchikan and other Alaskan ports.

Mr. Hopkinson is accompanied on the trip by his wife.

Why Build Up Foreign Ports.

A large portion of the grain raised in Canada is sent to the seaboard by way of United States ports, which it helps to build up at the expense of Canadian. If the grain could be carried that way more cheaply than any other no one could object. No one wants to handicap the producer. The way to build up Canadian ports while at the same time not interfering with the present status of the producer is to make the westbound rates the same as the eastbound, mile for mile. That would tend to send the grain out through Canadian ports.

What people want to know is why grain is forced into foreign ports when there are good Canadian ports that could handle it?

Opposed To War But Like To Fight.

Many of those who are causing disturbances and preventing candidates from putting their views before the people in England and Scotland were opposed to the war. They like to use force to get what they want, but they object to force in the interests of the nation.

Most people are opposed to war and they also are opposed to interrupting meetings and especially at election times when people are anxious to hear both sides of the questions at issue. However, when the nation needs their services they are willing and ready to go and do their duty.

Ontario Decides To Remain Fairly Dry.

Ontario by vote has decided to remain dry or fairly so. It is said that in the cities whiskey is sold in large quantities. However, taken by and large, the province is dry and will remain so for some time to come.

It was expected that the big cities would vote wet. They look across at Montreal and see thousands of people going there to assuage their thirst and they think they see prosperity for themselves if they open up the traffic. The same was prophesied for Prince Rupert when the liquor law was passed, but it has not been anything to notice.

Returning To Two Party System.

It looks as if Britain was about to return to the two party system, only they give them new names. In the old days there was a radical section of the Liberal party that was recruited from the industrial districts. East Bristol, which was reported yesterday as breaking up Liberal meetings, formerly returned a member of the Radical Liberals. Handel Cosham who represented them for many years was in the habit of speaking slightly of the Royal Family and designating Queen Victoria as "The Old Lady of Windsor." He was much like the extreme Labor candidates of today except that he had some money of his own and paid his own election expenses.

Labor Is Taking Place Of Liberals.

Formerly most of the people who now form the Labor support in Britain formerly formed the Liberal support. There is little real change other than a change of name. If the Liberals should be eliminated as a separate entity in the state, many of them will join the the Labor party and that will mean a steadying down of the Labor groups with the Liberals for ballast. It happened in Australia and other countries. The name given a party does not count much. Already there are many noble lords and other titled gentry campaigning on the Labor side and the number will probably increase if the Labor party is wisely led. If it is not, Liberalism will revive, and again take its place as representing the masses as opposed to the classes.

Not Enough Labor Extremists To Govern.

There are not enough Laborites of the extreme type to govern the country and never will be. Of the very nature of things there cannot be. British people are naturally conservative in their ideas and ideals. They refuse to be led away by every new doctrine, however plausible it may seem. They are governed very largely by the traditions of the past and they can be depended on to be reasonable in the future.

In the past the underdog has had a bad time. Now there is a greater measure of equality and in time, it is to be hoped, people will learn to so administer affairs of state that there will be no really poor and no inordinately rich. To such a condition we all look forward. Most people are workers and strongly object to the barnacles that encumber the ship of state and impede her progress.

The Man in the Moon

THESE joyful dull days—
Just listen to the patter
Of the rain on the walks.
Yet what does it matter?

For we snuggle round the fire
Or hug the radiator,
As we delve into a book
Or chatter to the mater.

Ah, the dear, dull days!

Gone is the blazing sunset
But still we have here with us

RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION VIEWS ON TAX SALE

Editor Daily News.

May I respectfully ask for your indulgence in setting out the position of the Ratepayers' Association towards the proposed sale of City Tax Sale lots.

It has been stated that the change in the motion before the City Council last Monday was made with a view of meeting the wishes of our Association, in spite of the fact that our letter to the Council was filed without being read.

The proposed change does not meet the wishes of the Ratepayers' Association. The Association is of the opinion that the City Council could hardly have chosen a more inopportune time for such a sale, and for that reason are opposed to it.

A sale at the present time will not affect the financial conditions of the city as far as this year is concerned. Consequently there is nothing to be gained by rushing a sale at this time, just immediately after the ordinary annual tax sale.

SANDY MACDONALD

SCOTCH WHISKY

Try a Bottle & Make a New Friend

"SANDY MACDONALD" is one of Scotland's very old Whiskies. Once you taste it you'll know how "Sandy" mellow and stimulating Scotch Whisky really is.

For many generations "Sandy Mac" as it is usually called, has been known all over Scotland—pretty well all over the world too—as a whisky that never varies in its high quality and reaches a degree of purity and "delicacy" of flavor that is as unusual as it is satisfying.

Drink "Sandy Mac" yourself and get it before your friends who know what is good.

Why stay on the washday treadmill?

No matter how long you travel on a treadmill, you never get anywhere. For the treadmill carries you back as fast as you move forward.

It's much the same with the weekly washday. You spend a day or more every week getting the clothes clean. Then the next week you go through the same thing all over again.

Send your family bundle to us. Our prices are as moderate as our services are varied—our work is always thorough, careful and reliable. Call us and step off the washday treadmill forever.

New American Boats

When the closed season for halibut fishing on the North Pacific ends February 15, 1925, at least four new schooners will be ready to leave for the fishing banks, says the Seattle Times. Three of the vessels are now building in Seattle and the keel for the fourth schooner will be laid soon. An 86 foot schooner is now being built for Harold Nesland and E. M. Erickson of Seattle, and will be ready for launching about November 15. The vessel will have a beam of 18 feet and will be equipped with a 165-horse power engine. A 69 foot halibut schooner is expected to be launched in about ten days from the yards of Olson & Sundt Machine Works. The vessel is for John Iverson of Seattle. She will have a beam of 16 feet and will be equipped with a 75 horse power engine. This firm also has the contract for a 72 foot halibut schooner to be built for Ehler Brothers & Armstrong. The vessel is to be ready for service about February 1, and will be equipped with a 100 horse power engine. The Sagstad & Moberg plant is building a 73-foot halibut schooner for Fred Sorenson of Seattle, which will soon be ready for launching. This vessel will have a beam of 19 feet and will be equipped with a 125 horse power engine.

The owners of the new American halibut schooners are all well known locally and have been fishing out of Prince Rupert for some considerable time past. While a number of the American skippers had often talked about building new boats and disposing of their old ones nothing definite had been decided upon until their reaching Seattle. The arrival of these fine new boats on the northern banks will considerably augment the halibut catch and will mean increased landings for this port next year.

Fish Business

From Monday to Friday 337,000 pounds of halibut has been marketed on the Fish Exchange. Americans were high at 23.6 and 10c and low at 18.2c and 7c. Canadians were high at 22c and 8c and low at 17c and 7c. Arrivals were: Canadian; M. M. Christopher, Pair of Jacks, Koyosu, Mab, P. Doreen, Prosperity A., Thelma, Fanny F. and Livingstone. American—Helgeland Anna J., Rainier, Mildred H., Wireless, Wabash, Western, Senator, Superior, Brisk, Prosperity, Atlas, Valorous, Aloha, Foremost, Pioneer and White Star.

While the halibut landings have been considerably lighter this week than for some time past, owing to very bad weather having been encountered on the high spots, prices for both first and second class fish have remained high in consequence. The American schooner Superior, Capt. Forde, which arrived in port Wednesday with 22,000 drew down the record high price of 23.6c for first class. With the tail end of the halibut fishing season drawing near many of the home boats are now out on their last trip of the present season.

Unwelcome Visitor
Skipper Pete Leighton of the good ship Verna L., who recently came out of hospital after having undergone a successful operation, is very much annoyed with the antics of an unwelcome rodent, which made its way aboard his craft during his enforced absence. The peculiar thing about this particular rat is that although it does not seem to like its surroundings, judging by its strange behavior, it will not leave the ship, and the nature of its appetite is remarkable. First of all it started a shaving soap diet, but the smell was misleading, and the rat was not according to the rat's interpretation of the outside label. To offset the disappointment some red blanket was next attacked but this proved too hot, so a can of milk was upset and lapped up as a sort of "chaser." Next the rat took a fancy to the flour sack and did more damage to twenty pounds of flour in a short while than a young bride would have done during her first year trying to make bread. Even such ridiculous things as carpet tacks and sewing cotton found a way to the rat's lair. But perhaps the meanest trick of all, on the part of the rodent, was the chewing off of the buttons on Pete's pyjamas necessitating his sitting up all night. That has proved the last straw and Cap has vowed to have a terrible reckoning with Mr. Rat. Armed with axe and crowbar he is now busy taking up the planking in an endeavor to bring the midnight thief into the daylight. The boys are putting their money on Pete to win in the first round.

Tom & Al Disabled
Word reached the city this week that the big American schooner Tom and Al, Capt. Brown, was disabled in a heavy sea while fishing off Kodiak. Efforts to get the engine going proving of no avail four of her crew volunteered to row to Seward, a distance of 60 miles, to get aid. In view of the fact that no subsequent word has been received locally to the contrary it is surmised that help was sent from Seward and that the Tom and Al is now safely at that port undergoing repairs. The Tom and Al is a sixteen man boat and is one of the largest schooners fishing out of this port.

The Canadian schooner Volunteer, Capt. J. Orvik, has made her last trip of the season and on Thursday placed all her gear and deck appliances in storage at the Royal Fish Co. preparatory to tying up. Her skipper has not yet decided as to his future movements but will in all probability take a well earned rest with his crew.

Capt. "Handsome" Jim Morrison, of Cayceon fame, is now out on his last halibut hunt prior to the closed season. On his return to port with a record catch Jim intends to take a little joy ride in the way of a prolonged hunting trip down the coast. If the trip does not result in Cap getting any game for himself it will doubtless be the means of driving the flocks of geese and mallards northwards, which will make it easier going for the local nimrods.

The Bi-Products power boat M.T.3. came off the dry dock on Thursday morning after undergoing a general overhaul.

The power boat P.R.T., Capt. Reggie Green, preceded to Georgetown on Wednesday night to bring down scows of lumber for the Big Bay Lumber Co.

Cpt. Jimmy Thomas has been busy with his power boat Viner doing freighting work for the Somerville cannery.

Frank Lockwood, the well known nautical, is laid up with a bad attack of rheumatism.

During the week Capt. Oriel brought in a boom of some 200,000 feet of logs from the Skeena river in tow of the power boat Wyandotte. The logs are for the George Jawn mill.

Got Some Birds

Great excitement prevails around the Booth and Pacific fish houses this week. C. A. Kirdendall and Charlie Starr, the respective managers, have just about topped the list for the highest bag of game to date secured in local waters. These two "double barrelled" wonders went out on Sunday last to look the situation over and did the job so thoroughly they returned to port with two geese and about 10 mallard ducks. The slaughter was done around Pillsbury Cove and Metlakatla. According to an official version of the hunt the birds were secured in rather a peculiar manner. The hunters, while centering their attention on the ducks, were attacked from the rear by the two geese, which tried to wrest the artillery from their grasp in an endeavor to save the lives of their duck friends. However, Charlie proved too quick with the gat and with deadly aim toppled them both over with one barrel while he in turn fell over a log. The sight of the sudden turn of events so overcame the ducks that they fainted and fell to the ground. Kirk, in the heat of battle, clubbed them to death before they could regain consciousness. When the smoke of the fray had cleared, and Charlie had got back on his feet, one can imagine his surprise when he saw the two geese and the ten ducks lying on the ground—a silent tribute to their wonderful presence of mind.

Cold Storage Office

We start the day at half-past eight.
Some come early — some come late.
The first to start is poor old Dave
On distributions he will slave, Bales he rides down in state
To obviate being one hour late
While Woods in his industrious way
Balances ledgers and smokes all day.
And Reith who seems to be so tireless
With ice and bait will mix up wireless.
The next is Parr—the sockeye bloke
Who works like hell and "Bull" does smoke.
And Shell has worries, cares and woes,
But still looks well—can't see his toes.
Dick Lambe the silent one of all
Balances Pinks and Sockeye tall
And not forgetting Mrs. D.
Who makes lunch time a sewing bee.
Miss Parker with a heart of gold
Sits by the pipes and braves the cold.
Miss Hitchings though not very tall
When typing makes more row than all.
Then through the din a voice comes shrieking,
"Hello! Hello! Winslow speaking."

THE ORDER TO "CARRY ON"

The British Columbia lumber industry today asks merely for the order to "carry on"—to complete its job of placing this Province in front in the march of progress.

What our lumbermen have accomplished is written very plainly across the history of British Columbia.

There is assuredly no community in the world that owes so much to a single business group as British Columbia does to its premier industry.

Pioneering in the truest sense of the word, the lumber industry of this Province has built up its cities, attracted trade to its ports, provided millions upon millions of capital for its development, employed a fourth of its population and furnished a third of its administrative revenue.

And now comes a badly conceived act of the legislature, dating back to the pre-war days of 1914, which, if unrepealed, threatens to nullify these magnificent efforts and set up an effective bar to a further advancement.

There is very much more for British Columbia's chief industry to attain, more communities to be built up and more foreign trade to be attracted. Further millions are awaiting investment in our forest industries and more revenue for the carrying out of public works can be later on legitimately levied on an expanded lumber output.

The most serious problem before this Province today is the settlement of the royalty of timber on a basis fair and equitable both to the public and to the industry that serves them.

This series of articles communicated by the Timber Industries Council of British Columbia.

A general meeting of those attending the Central City Mission was held on Thursday evening, the following business being transacted—the Secretary Treasurer Sister Isaac Lear, read her report which showed that progress had been made spiritually, the financial statement showing a balance on hand.

The secretary treasurer Sister

ARISTOTLE WAS THE FATHER OF SCIENCE

And he said "Nature makes nothing without a purpose." Man has been given and has taken a command over nature which on the whole has been for the benefit of the human race. He has not yet been able to find a beneficial use for every natural thing but he has made wonderful progress in subduing the earth and making modern life one of comparative ease and comfort. Probably the most important factor in making our lives comfortable today is an inheritance from nature, namely, coal. And man in his restless desire to discover the best has brought to the market Nanaimo-Wellington coal which is now recognized to be the best obtainable. This coal has some wonderful qualities—freedom from clinkers and rock—small ash deposit and powerful, lasting heat—equally economical in furnace, range or fireplace.
