Editorial Writing Is Being Revived.

There was a time in the history of journalism when the editorial expression of opinion was spoken of as the "leading article" and the person who wrote it was termed the "leader writer." While the former name has disappeared to a large extent the editorial writer is still spoken of as a leader writer.

The editorial was supposed to summarize and explain the most important theme before the public on that day. It was often dealt with at length and sometimes made rather dry reading. With the development of the writing of the news story and the tendency to develop the editorial idea in the news features, the leading article became somewhat neglected and the editorial writer was less esteemed.

Within the last few years, however, there has been a revival of interest in editorial writing. The Hearst newspapers and in fact all the popular or yellow press newspapers of the United States are using editorials with good effect.

In order to make the editorial interesting to readers and at the same time instructive, it was found necessary to utilize the best brains of the country. The editorial writers became highly paid men and were enthused with the idea that not only the readers of the one paper read the articles but that a whole syndicate of perhaps hundreds of papers with millions of readers were interested, amused or instructed by the articles which they wrote.

Simple And Interesting But Not Commonplace.

The editorial articles should be simple and interesting but never commonplace. Not only should the ideas expressed be fresh and striking but the method of expression must be such as to appeal to the reader. It should be written in such a way that the reader seems compelled to go on to the end, once he has commenced to read.

In the old days only the learned read editorials. Today an effort is made to appeal to everyone who can read. To do that and at the same time to hold the educated is a task worthy of the pens of the greatest writers.

Directness Is Important Feature.

Directness is an important feature in the modern editorial. Writers avoid using too many words. If an idea can be well expressed in two words it is useless and a waste of time and effort to use a dozen. There must be no doubt of the idea that the writer would convey. As in all other newspaper work the idea of the writer is to inform the reader in the first sentence of what is coming, so that in case he is not interested he does not have to read any farther.

Dealing With Commonplace Things.

While in the old days only the important events were discussed editorially, today editorial writers deal with commonplace subjects and often illuminate them and cause new interest to be taken in them. To do this the writer must be a poet, philosopher, scientist, moralist, humorist, and last but not by any means least, a master of expression.

High School Students To Write Editorials

Following the splendid effort of the students of the local high school some weeks ago in editing one number of the Daily News, the member of the Legislature for this district, who is also the minister of lands, has offered a prize for the best editorial article written by a member of the student body of the High School. These articles will be written soon and the prize winning article and possibly a few of the others will be published. The young people will choose their own subjects which may have to do with matters of local interest such as civic improvement or any phase of life as we know it here, or with matters of provincial import such as those discussed by the legislature at Victoria, of national import such as is discussed at Ottawa, of Imperial import, having to do with the Empire as a whole or, finally, of world importance covering every nation of the earth. There are no restrictions.

EASTERN VIEW OF WESTERN PROVINCE

Visit of Hon. T. D. Pattullo Caused Editorial Outburst at Ottawa

Picking up an old copy of the Ottawa Citizen from the exchange table the following article met the eye of the editor:

"When the Canadian Club in Ottawa invites the minister of lands of British Columbia, T. D. Pattullo, to give an address on that province, the club is performing a truly Canadian function. Canadians need to learn more about Canada. The best way would be, of course, for Canadians to travel more extensively about Canada, as Americans do in the United States. The next best thing is to meet fellow citizens from other parts of the Dominion and to hear representative spokesmen when opportunities are presented.

Banner Province

"The opportunity to learn more about British Columbia should bring out a good attendance of members of the Canadian Club at the luncheon tomorrow. For scenery, there is no doubt about British Columbia being the banner province. For climate, too, the Pacific coast province can furnish the most wonderful variety. It is possible to enjoy skiing at Revelstoke one day and to pick daffodils in Victoria on the following day.

"The minister of lands will doubtless dwell on the vast untapped sources of mineral and other wealth in the province; or perhaps on the wonderful possibilities of the development of Vancouver, in this century when all paths of foreign commerce tend to lead to the Pacific ocean.

The waterpowers and the wooded lands suggest possibilities of profit in the pulp and paper industry, or of new lumber kingdoms arising in the far west, as the forests of Ontario and the eastern provinces are denuded. But there is something far more attractive about the forests of gigantic Douglas firs than the commercial possibilities of cutting them down. They form an integral part of a beautiful country within the Dominion of Canada—for British Columbia is virtually a separate country, almost as much akin to New Zealand as it is to New Brunswick.

Dizzy Heights

"Just as the Douglas firs grow tall and stately, so do the wonderful sweet peas up the trellis-work of the typical British Columbia bungalow home. The mountains indeed seem to have inspired everything to grow tall; provincial politics even sometimes have attained to dizzy heights, but that is another story."

INDEPENDENCE MINE AT STEWART ASSAYS WELL: PROSPECTS GOOD

VICTORIA, March 7. — Word has been received from the Independence Mine, in the Stewart district, by Henry C. Hall, K.C., one of the directors of the company in this city, of new and extensive operations in that property, where the latest assays show a value of $62 per ton, in all values. Although the snow, which is particularly heavy in the district at this time, greatly impedes communication, the company will transport an air compressor to the mine within the next two months. In this way it is estimated that from six to eight feet of tunnelling may be done in a day, where previously only one foot could be accomplished by hand labor.

Jack and Sam Fitzgerald, who have spent fourteen years in the Stewart region, and who are practical and experienced prospectors and miners, have every confidence in the Independence mine, and in their capacity as directors of the company are in a position to know the worth of the property. Both have been working the mine intermittently for the past seven years.

A tunnel at the 3,200 foot level, 180 feet long at the first of the year, will be extended a further 100 feet now that a contract has been let for the work. This tunnel is now almost 400 feet long. At present the mine is following four parallel veins of ore which have at various times of assay, shown remarkably good values.

HUNTRESS OF SPROAT LAKE

Lady Lives in Houseboat and Traps and Hunts for Her Daily Bread

Nimrod got his name in the Bible as a mighty hunter, but Mrs. Wark of Sproat Lake, Vancouver Island, was born after the book had gone to press. However, Mrs. Wark's friends don't concede Nimrod a thing. They only know about Nimrod through hearsay, but they have seen the trophies that Mrs. Wark brings home.

She is a unique character, primitive in her calling but up-to-date herself. Her home is her houseboat on Sproat Lake, not far from Alberni, and there she lives alone except for an old man who does such jobs as mending traps, helping with the boats, cleaning the guns, cooking the meals and dressing the pelts.

The houseboat is reached by a trail that winds away through the forest, and when a visitor finally reaches his destination he is likely to find Mrs. Wark in mooseskins and velveteens, with a cartridge belt about her, and, like as not, an axe and a heavy automatic thrust in it. A tweed hat will doubtless be shading her steady quiet eyes. There is usually a dog at her heels. Three miles away from the houseboat is Mrs. Wark's guest house, not even accessible by trail, and there she has a wonderful collection of pelts and trophies.

Mrs. Wark is the Empress of this Wonderland, which spreads for many miles about Sproat Lake; for it is more truly "hers" than if she owned it. She knows every flower and plant, every bird and insect. She knows all the habits and habits of the animals, all the moods of the weather. She loves to talk of them. A poet in taste, she surveys her empire with all the romantic sentiment of Hiawatha and muses on it with the joy of Keats.

Cougar Before Breakfast

But her prowess! This lady of the lake, with the cultured mind, the heart of oak, shoots cougar before breakfast, pots bear in the afternoon, hunts deer before tea, and at sundown sets traps for beaver and rodents—all in their season, of course. During the winter, she lives alone with her dogs and an aged retainer who mends the traps, helps with the boats, cleans the guns, cooks the meals and helps in dressing the pelts.

Not even the retainer accompanies her, however, on her hunting and trapping excursions which are the feature of her romantic year. Alone she makes her way up one or other of those long fingers of the lake, hugging the jade-green shore; alone she penetrates the forest in quest of game. She may be absent a few days, or as many weeks, but when she returns it is never empty handed; more often it is with some hundreds of dollars' worth of peltries—fox, badger, raccoon, mink and beaver—with certainly a deer or two, a bear, a grey wolf, and a couple of cougars. On one occasion, in the depth of winter, when she had penetrated farther than usual, she moored her canoe and went a few yards into the thicket to set some traps. Her food and camping outfit, together with her gun, she had left in the boat, with the dog on guard. Returning an hour later, she was dumfounded to find the dog, the canoe and its contents gone.

Long Way from Home

Darkness was already falling, and the nearest habitation was many miles away, separated from her by deep forest, on the one hand, and the icy waters of the lake on the other. Her absence at headquarters would provoke no alarm, as her excursions were always of uncertain duration. And there was the disquieting mystery of the boat's disappearance, and the dog's.

That night she lay down, anxious and hungry, on a couch of fir. In the early dawn she drew in her belt and set out along the shore in the direction of home hoping in two days' time to reach a point opposite headquarters and attract attention. At nightfall on the following day, however, on approaching a spur of land that jutted out into the lake, she heard, at long and regular intervals, the mournful howl of a dog; and, on turning the promontory, beheld the canoe with her animal aboard drifting slowly—by what heaven directed current she knows not—towards the nearer shore. What had happened remains a riddle. Her own explanation is that the dog, tired of waiting on the bank, must have sprung into the canoe to lie down, and in so doing detached it from its mooring.

MOTHERS SHOULD NOT NEGLECT BRONCHITIS IN THE BABIES

Mrs. E. Langdon, Kingston, Ont., writes:—My baby boy had bronchitis when he was two weeks old, he recovered from the attack but took it again, several months later, and on account of the severity I was almost panic-stricken to know what to do for him. My mother advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, as she had used it for several years with splendid results.

I got a bottle, and after I had used it could see a decided improvement in him; after several bottles he was completely relieved.

My boy is now two years old, and he has never had an attack of bronchitis since.

As a mother, raising a family, I am very grateful to know that I have found a real remedy for bad colds and bronchitis, as it lifts care and anxiety from an anxious mother's shoulders.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 35¢ bottle; the large family size 60¢; put up only by The T. Muburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Gyro Club's playground fund should provide sufficient attraction to warrant a bumper attendance. Besides getting a good four bits value, there is also the knowledge that all the proceeds are to go to a good cause. The committee in charge of this affair has been working hard to make it a success and a good measure of patronage, it is anticipated, will crown their efforts. The medicine ball game between the Gyros and Rotarians promises to provide the spice of the program. J. W. Scott has framed up the rules and will referee the match. The bayonet contest between two North B.C. Regiment men will be another interesting item.

Tonight is playground night at Elks' Home. Be there.

The basketball games scheduled for to-night are about the most interesting left on the season's schedule and the Gyro Club is appreciative of the generosity of the Basketball Association and the Elks in foregoing their share of the proceeds therefrom. The meeting of the Adanaes and Teachers in the Ladies' League will give the former team the opportunity of obtaining an even position again with the leading Maple Leafs in matter of victories. The Intermediate League game will be between the High School and Grotto—two evenly matched aggregations.

Letter From London Tells of Interesting Things Happening There

CHANGING CUSTOMS

Chinese Banquet, Freedom of City, Leap Year Festivities, Empire Exhibition

(By Pantou House, for the Canadian Press.)
LONDON, March 7. — London celebrated this year the day of St. Valentine, after neglecting that saint for many years. Elderly people can remember a time when the postman arrived on February 14, weighed down with "valentines"—objects resembling the more elaborate kind of Christmas card, but bearing amatory sentiments. Often these missives were anonymous, and damsels of the Victorian age derived much mild excitement from endeavors to identify the senders. Even 10 years ago, the drawing room had deserted St. Valentine; the kitchen honored him a few years longer. Attempts were made to reintroduce his cards, but they fell flat. London, however, liked the idea of Valentine dances and dinners, and February 14 this year was a gala night in some of the most important hotels and restaurants. So many people took parties to these entertainments that nearly every private omnibus in London was booked for the night of the festival.

Though woman's privilege is held to apply to every day of Leap Year, it is associated chiefly with the day that makes Leap Year—February 29; and this, too, was celebrated in the West End of London with special dinners and dances. As each of these occasions was new to London, nobody knew the precise form which the celebrations would take. The hotels and restaurants planned all kinds of charming and amusing surprises for their guests.

On February 5 the Chinese colony in London kept their New Year with a banquet of their national foods. This was easily arranged as the West End of London already possesses at least one restaurant which specializes in Celestial menus. British guests, who had come heroically prepared to tackle such alarming dishes as two-year-old eggs and sea-slug, were delighted to encounter such familiar articles of diet as fried sole, stewed chicken, roast pork and steamed duck with mushrooms. Bamboo shoots appeared in several forms, and bamboo skin formed the foundation of a soup. All these delicacies made up a dinner that took two hours to work through. The men were in ordinary evening dress, but the women guests wore their picturesque national garb of colored silks.

Prince George, the youngest son of the King and Queen, who attained his majority not long ago, is to receive the Freedom of the City of London. The city bestowed this compliment upon

Zam-Buk
FOR THE SKIN!

Mr. Mackenzie King last October. Sons of "Freemen" (and Prince George comes into this category) have certain privileges; otherwise the city confers her freedom or withholds it, uninfluenced by outside opinion. The City Guilds, of Livery Companies, also give their freedom as a compliment, and Prince George is to receive that of the Clothworkers. This is one of the twelve "Great" Companies, who take precedence of all the rest—about 80 in number. The companies are so ancient an institution that their origin and early growth is "wrapt in mystery." Founded for social fellowship, mutual help, and trade supervision, they became the governing bodies of their various trades, and acquired the control of important monopolies. By the 13th century they had acquired great influence in municipal affairs, which they retain to this day. Many of them possess trust incomes of $50,000 and upward, which is spent largely on charitable and educational work. Several own ancient halls, where they transact business and give sumptuous dinners. Although these interesting halls are not open to the public in the same way that, say, St. Paul's Cathedral is open, they can usually be seen on application.

Before the British Empire Exhibition opens its gates on St. George's Day, April 23, a vast sum will have been spent on it. As an example of the scale on which preparations have been made, the electric power plant (which has to supply current for 2,000,000 lamps) is of the type that would be required by a city of 200,000 people. At a quite moderate estimate 25,000,000 people will visit Wembley during the summer—say 4,000,000 a week, or 170,000 a day. One will move about the 210 acres by the "Never-Stop" railway, seen here for the first time on more than an experimental scale. There are no drivers or conductors; the cars move on continuously, slowing down to 2½ miles an hour at the platforms where one enters or leaves them, and reaching a speed between stations of 24 miles an hour. This railway can carry 20,000 passengers an hour.

In the British Government Pavilion at Wembley the British Royal Navy will be represented in a way altogether new in the history of exhibitions. A "water-stage"—a semi-circular tank 70 feet wide—has been prepared for the displays, which will be witnessed by 500 people at one time. Beautiful model ships, some of them six feet long, are in course of construction. Not all will float, in some cases rails on the "sea floor" will be used. Several historical episodes will be shown; the long running fight with the Spanish Armada, the Battle of Trafalgar, the raid on Zeebrugge. Owing to the immense area of sea over which the Battle of Jutland was fought, and to its complicated actions, it cannot be represented; but we are to see a modern naval battle based on the experiences of Jutland. There will be a procession of ships illustrating the evolution of vessels of war and commerce, from the 11th century to the present day. Submarines and naval aircraft will be seen in action. All these will be made more realistic by clever lighting effects. The tank is backed by a white semi-circular wall, on which sunshine, moonlight and mist can be indicated.

This is the season when London's huge pets, the elephants at the Zoo, get their annual treatment for the complexion. An elephant may suffer from a chapped skin, just like you or me, and when one's skin is several inches thick cracks are a serious matter. The remedy is neat's-foot oil, applied with a whitewash brush. The rhinoceros, too, would be all the better for this kind of face-cream, but as he is much less intelligent than the elephant, and has a far worse temper, his beauty doctor has an

SCIENCE DEMANDS UNIFORM QUALITY

Careful research made in recent years in the study of dietetics has shown a great importance to the human system of purity and uniform quality in foods. It is a great blessing that today so many delicious foods as well as tea and coffee can be procured in tins and sealed metal packages. "SALADA" Tea was one of the first pure food products to become widely popular in Canada. The flavor preserving aluminum package keeps the tea fresh and delicious. Skillful blending maintains the quality absolutely uniform.

FINE CONCERT LAST EVENING

Methodist Men Stage Entertainment for Parsonage Building Fund—Large Attendance

A humorous and original musical sketch entitled "Peggy's Proposal," depicting in local color a Leap Year logging camp romance, was the feature of the "Tall Timber" concert given last night in the Methodist Church by the men of the church in aid of the parsonage building fund. The entire program, which included besides the play a list of splendid instrumental, vocal and recitative numbers, was an excellent one and the entertainment was patronized with an attendance which filled the church auditorium to capacity. Miss E. M. Earle presided.

The opening number was a two-part selection by a string orchestra from the Ladies' Musical Club consisting of Mrs. G. A. Bryant, conductor, Mrs. Theo. Collart, Mrs. W. H. Mellicer, Mrs. Adam Mackie, Mrs. W. S. Ackroyd, Mrs. G. A. Woodland, Mrs. Max Heilbroner, Mrs. A. T. Parkin and Mrs. J. A. Hinton, piano accompanist.

Following was a pianoforte duet by Miss Nora Pryce and Miss Marjorie Lancaster; vocal solo by Meth Davies, Miss Lancaster accompanying; humorous recitation by Mrs. B. Fenning; vocal solos by J. E. Davey, Miss

You Can Get Strong and Well Just as I Did by Using Dr. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Lancaster accompanying; instrumental quintette selection in two parts by A. J. Lancaster, Prof. Pryce, C. Woodworth, Miss Lancaster and Miss Pryce; vocal solo by Mrs. C. Woodworth, violin obligato by Mr. Woodworth and Miss Lancaster accompanying; piano duet by Miss Mary Walters and Miss Jean Grieve; vocal solos by Mrs. P. S. Bonney, Miss Muriel Grant accompanying, and physical training and pyramid demonstration by Alex. Mitchell, Russell Bulger, Gordon Kerr, Don Matheson, Richmond Mortimer, John Nickerson, Jack Kelly and Ivan Cameron trained by C. Woodworth.

Vocal soloists in the musical sketch were A. Clapperton, Frank Dobb and A. D. Plant. C. Woodworth gave a novelty saw solo as well as violin numbers. Frank Vickers took the feminine role of Peggy and other characters were represented by B. Fenning, G. W. Hunt, Earl Barrie, Frank Derry, John Westenholme and Rev. G. G. Haeker. The stage had been specially decorated to form the sylvan setting for the play.

LOCAL GIRL WEDDED TO EASTERN STUDENT

Miss Agnes Doris Gawthorn becomes Bride of William Armstrong of Montreal

The wedding took place last night at 6 o'clock in St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Archdeacon G. A. Rix officiating, of Miss Agnes Doris Gawthorn, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gawthorn, 1017 Third Avenue West, and William Armstrong of Montreal. The bride, who wore a gown of grey tulle with hat to match, was attended by Miss Dot Bond, wearing navy blue gabardine with hat to match. The groom was supported by the bride's brother, Harry Gawthorn.

After the ceremony a wedding supper, attended by relatives and a few immediate friends, took place at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will remain in the city for a few days and will later take up their residence in Montreal where the groom, who is now engaged in a tour of Canada for Eastern publications, is a medical student at McGill University.

PAPAL INFALLIBILITY FUNDAMENTAL DOCTRINE

LONDON, March 7.— Cardinal Bourne, archbishop of Westminster, in a lecture pastoral to the Roman Catholics of his archdiocese, reminds the people that there is a wide gap to be bridged before the union of the Christian churches can be effected.

The Catholic clergy are willing to make unlimited sacrifices in order to achieve the great aim of restoring England to Christian unity, the pastoral states. He, however, declares that papal infallibility is the fundamental doctrine of the Catholic church and all discussions on union are useless and a mere waste of time until that doctrine is accepted by the other churches.
