Mrs. Parkin's Address

"Ladies, you have heard the reports read. Reviewing the activities of the year 1923, I think valuable work has been accomplished. The schools of the city were presented with eighteen war memorial pictures and also the Illustrated London Times. Books were donated to the scholars, a gold medal was presented to the entrance class for geography and another gold medal to the Northern Polytechnic Institute for the student making the highest marks in English for foreigners. Clothing was donated to needy families. A good deal of work was carried out for the hospital—the Queen Mary ward being renovated and Hill 60 Chapter donating additional linens for the public wards.

"Great credit is due Miss MacDonald, regent of Hill 60 Chapter, for the co-operation and harmony of the members. Adair Gars Chapter, under the splendid leadership of the regent, Mrs. G. L. Youngman, accomplished magnificent work during the year at Fairview Cemetery. No better work has been done by any chapter in Canada.

Stood In Silence

"Queen Mary Chapter suffered a great loss through the death of the regent, Mrs. Healy, who was a most loyal member of the order.

"I will ask you all to stand and remain silent for two minutes to pay tribute to our late member who has been called to higher service."

A vote of thanks was tendered to the retiring municipal regent, Mrs. McMordie replied suitably.

THELMA MEETS MORE TROUBLE

Towed Into Port After Engine Breakdown Followed by Stranding

The Canadian halibut schooner Thelma, Capt. John Dahl, has arrived in port after a series of mishaps, and is going into dry dock for engine and hull repairs.

On Friday while homeward bound from the halibut banks, the Thelma's engine broke down and she was towed to Langara Island by the Livingstone. Repairs were made with a spare piece from the Valorous and the Thelma proceeded towards Prince Rupert again. It was dark and squally with rain in Metlakatla Passage on Saturday night and the boat ran ashore and her engine became disabled again. An Indian boat brought her into Prince Rupert with her bottom damaged and leaking.

The Thelma is the boat which, two months ago, had a terrible experience in a storm on the northern banks resulting in the loss of two of her men and the narrow escape of the remaining two members of the crew. At that time she belonged to Capt. George Fritz. Since then she has become the property of Capt. John Dahl.

Disappointment At Condition Of Affairs.

Disappointment is being voiced by many men who fought in the war at the turn which affairs generally have taken in the world. At the time of the war they had high hopes. They thought that they were at war to end war. They had a notion that after the war the world would be changed; that selfishness would disappear, greed be eradicated and that a condition something like the millennium would be ushered in. Instead of this the world is in worse condition today than it was before the war. Today has come forcibly home to people the great illusion. It is found that instead of violence ending violence, violence begets violence. The deception used in the winning of the war is now being used in commercial and political life. In many cases the rich have become richer and the poor poorer, and the men who fought see no sign of betterment.

There Will Be Betterment But Not Through War.

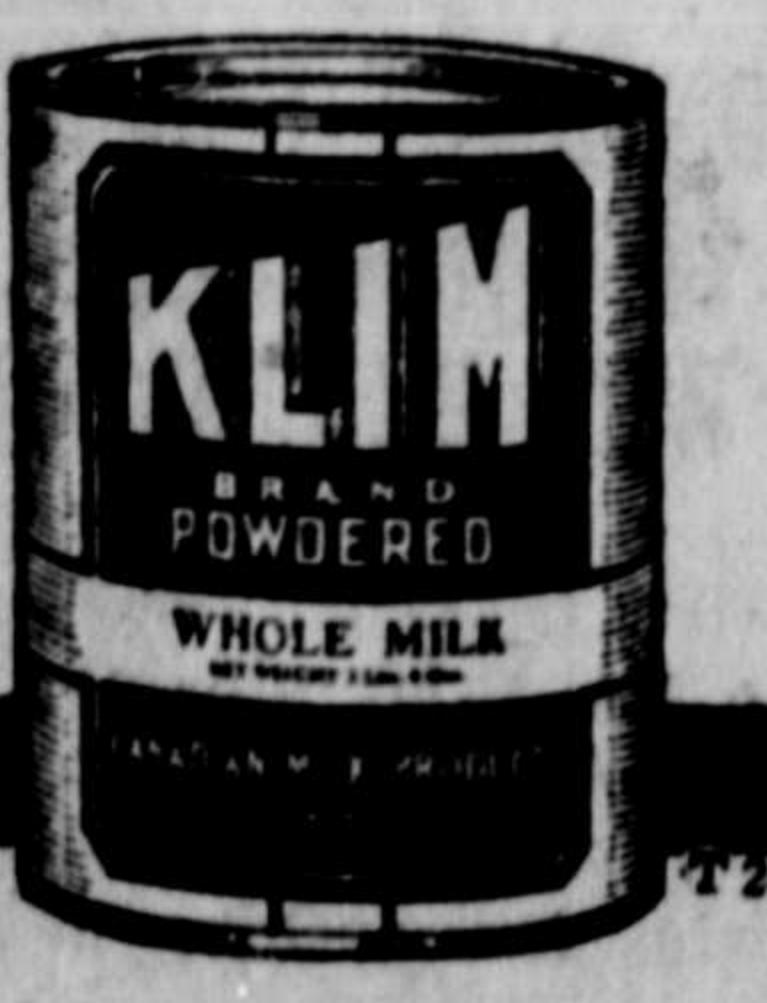

There will be betterment in the world condition, but it will not be brought about through war or injustice or deception. It will gradually develop through the arts of peace. We all went wild at the time of the war and the next generation will do the same under similar conditions—perhaps. People are changing but not very quickly. It will take time for men to see the foolishness of killing each other in order to bring about improved conditions. Victor suffers about as much as vanquished. It will take time for men to evolve a better condition of living under which eventually there will be no poor and destitute, no out of works, no professional agitators, no grasping capitalists, no soulless corporations, no deceitful politicians. It will not come in our time but we can all do a little to bring about such a condition.

Pulling Selves Up By Boot Straps.

To improve the condition of the people in any country by continually raising the tariff is like trying to raise oneself by pulling at the bootstraps. The ideal condition is one in which no nation in the world will have a tariff against any other. Only under such conditions can there be freedom of action. The customs walls and the walls against people entering or leaving a country are temporary palliatives. They are not permanent and cannot be so. There can be no true democracy while such a condition lasts. The difficulty is that today we are so deeply in debt as a result of war and extravagance that we have to raise money to pay the interest on our debts. Nobody has even suggested the paying off of the principal. People refuse to pay direct taxes, so it has to be taken from them subtly by way of customs and excise charges. By collecting the money that way the people who pay are apt to blame the merchants and manufacturers and dealers for the high cost of living. What they should know is that they have spent the money and now they must pay the bills and some of them are paid through customs duties and some through a sales tax. It is passing the buck, but the people demand that some such method be adopted. It is like putting on the clock in order to get up earlier in summer. We are all so set in our ways that we have to delude ourselves into doing things.

WALKING ALONE FOR PLEASURE

Two Distinct Types of Pedestrians Entertained in Different Manner

SEEING ODD THINGS

By H. F. Pullen

There are two distinct types of walking both of which are enjoyable but which engage the attention of two distinct types of people. The first and most popular is the brisk walk taken with one or two or more companions. This kind provides good exercise, is spots to admire and boats to exhilarating, gives splendid opportunity for conversation and is the best kind of appetiser.

The second type is usually done alone or with a particularly congenial companion and is taken in a leisurely way so that none of the sights are missed. It is what I call the intensive walk, because movement in the vegetation. The while the exercise and consequent catkins on the alders are in bloom but nothing else interesting was noticed. While I left town at ten o'clock it was three when I reached Port Edward and I was glad to sit and chat and smoke for awhile with a couple of fishermen there until the train came at four.

Clever Bird

There was a flock of possibly a thousand gulls at the mouth of a little creek to photograph and these were all sorts of beauty and which seemed very tame and which the crab catcher at Porpoise Harbor told me stayed around his place most of the time. One of these was a willow gull but the other was too far away to identify.

Former Suffragist Says Everything is Working Toward a Moral Collapse

TORONTO, Ont., March 10.—"Everything nowadays seems to be working toward moral collapse," said Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, one-time famous woman suffragist, addressing an audience at the recent social hygiene exhibition in Toronto. "You see it in the movies, where vivid and suggestive pictures are thrown on the screen before the eyes of school children. You see it in the magazine fiction of the present day. A few years ago there was no such flood of impure literature as we have now. The penny novel of an older day in which the governess invariably married the lord was entirely untrue to life, but, at least right and morality were presented as triumphant; but youth today with its dangerous, untrained emotions is almost entirely at the mercy of writers who seem to revel in fitting the imagination with suggestive impure thoughts. Even the modern dance is a factor in our moral collapse. A lovely exercise perverted to wrong uses."

Mrs. Pankhurst advocated infinite care in home training; knowledge of personal and social hygiene for young and old and a general stiffening of the moral life of the community, as means of combatting existing disintegrating tendencies in society.

Mrs. Strachan and Miss Joy returned on the train but Mrs. Sherman was home ahead of them covering the nine miles in a little less than two and a half hours.

CANADIAN DANCE ORCHESTRA GOES LONDON, ENGLAND

Will Play in Exclusive Clubs and Dance Halls and Expects to Play For Prince

TORONTO, Ont., March 10.—Canada has opened up a new line of export trade. She is now exporting dance orchestras. Eight young men left Toronto for London, England, where they go on a year's contract—the first purely Canadian orchestra to play an engagement in that city.

W. F. Mitchell, formerly a native of Guelph, Ont., now controls several exclusive dance halls and clubs in London, and he conceived the idea of taking a Canadian orchestra over there for one of his halls. He sent a representative to Canada, who heard many musicians in various cities of the Dominion, and finally picked the young Toronto men, and gave them the name of the Toronto Orchestra. It is likely that they will be playing dance

TURNED HOME INTO AN ARABIAN PALACE

Also Heroine's Father Becomes a Mule and Kicks Things to Pieces

Six thousand seven hundred years is the period of time covered in "The Brass Bottle," but the fast moving Maurice Tourneur production shown in little more than an hour, ends all too soon in the opinion of many motion picture fans who have seen here Wednesday.

Among the scores of English, Scotch, Irish, Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders, and South Africans who answered the call for British veterans to take part in this parade, there were men who represented many of the famous regiments in the British army. The Coldstream Guards, Irish Fusiliers, Black Watch, Gordons, Princess Patricias, Seaforths, Scotch Greys, London Scottish and many others were included in the uniformed ranks.

The street was a section of old London reproduced at the Paramount studio and the marching men were all British veterans of the Great War called back into uniform to take part in the production of "The Light That Failed," Baudy Kipling's famous story, which will be shown here Wednesday.

The story is founded on the legend of an ancient Egyptian court wherein a genie, who had inspired against the king, is imprisoned in a bottle. Centuries later the bottle comes into the possession of a young English white and, when the stopper is

Harry Myers, Charlotte Merriam and Tully Marshall in "The Brass Bottle"

At the Westholme Tonight and Tomorrow.

Guards, Irish Fusiliers, Black leading female role to one of the Watch, Gordons, Princess Patricias, Seaforths, Scotch Greys, London Scottish and many others others before finding one, he said, who was willing to hold art above race prejudice. This young woman has asked that her name be kept from the public at least until the play opens.

For the picture, a street of London houses and shops was constructed. Particular care was given to the selection of the persons who watched the troops march by. London "bobbies," boys in tall Eton hats, naval officers, costers and the multitude of types which make up a London street crowd cheered the marching troops.

COMEDY AND DRAMA IN DARLING OF NEW YORK

Week End Feature Picture Revolves Around Four Year Old Girl

The story of "The Darling of New York" reflects the experiences of a four year old baby girl, of Italian and American parentage. The child is introduced as the daughter of an American woman who is dying in Italy. The mother entrusted her nurse with the care of her child, requesting that the baby be taken to her grandfather in America.

Dramatic menace is immediately woven into the story, for at the dock the nurse discovers that she has forgotten her money. The boat sails in a few minutes. Frantically the nurse asks a stranger to watch the child while she hurried away for her money. The stranger carried the little girl aboard the ship, into the steerage. The gates are closed to the nurse, who arrives too late to rescue the child.

Diamond Smuggler

The stranger is a member of a gang of international diamond smugglers, who becomes greatly attracted to her.

He conceals the diamonds in the stuffing of the child's doll and escapes conviction, although he is arrested by the authorities when the boat docks in New York.

The little girl is taken by a pair of the diamond smuggler's pals. Her presence is obnoxious to the rough-neck leader of the crooks. He takes the child away, before he learns of the hidden diamonds.

There is plenty of comedy to balance the drama and the entire picture is filled with entertainment. A sensational fire scene is introduced as the anti-climax to the play, which is well handled.

RACIAL PROBLEM IS ILLUSTRATED IN PLAY

Inter-Marriage of White Woman with Negro Is Theme of Story

NEW YORK, March 10. — A young woman whose name is being withheld has agreed, after one leading actress and many near stars refused, to play opposite a negro leading man in an inter-racial play "All God's Children Got Wings," soon to be staged by Eugene O'Neill. The white woman is required, in the closing scene of the play, to kiss the hand of the negro whose wife she has become.

O'Neill's determination to go through with the staging of this play and to make it realistic with a white woman and a negro man in the leading parts, has started much talk in the theatrical circles. He first offered the

PRISON FOR TEN YEARS

LEIPZIG, March 10. — Alvine Brusiloff, the film-actress spy, who was recently sentenced to prison for ten years because of her activities on behalf of the French during the war, came to grief through her diary.

The woman worked for the French in Dusseldorf, Aachen and Nice. Her beauty made it possible for her to attract many men and the diary which proved her undoing showed she was frequently torn between many love affairs and had great difficulty in controlling her heart.

With singular childishness she recorded her emotions as well as the facts concerning her spy work in this diary which fell into the hands of German officers and proved her undoing.

'Medical Student'

She worked much of the time with a German medical student, who was also sentenced to prison for complicity in her espionage for which the evidence showed the woman received $1,000 a month. She also involved another medical student in her work, but the two students fought about the woman and the one who lost out managed to escape from her clutches before he was hopelessly entangled in her career of espionage.

Prominent French diplomats and many officers of various armies are mentioned in the diary among the men who succumbed to her charms.

When you buy advertising you buy CIRCULATION, and see that you get it.

Why?

WHY waste time in useless "shopping around" when the advertisements lay before you the choicest wares of every progressive merchant in town?

WHY use needless effort in an endless store-to-store quest when the advertisements enable you to make your choice of the finest merchandise?

WHY pay more than you ought when you can stretch your dollar to the elastic limit by taking advantage of the bargains and good buys that are daily advertised in this paper?

WHY risk dissatisfaction by buying unknown, unbranded goods when you can assure yourself complete satisfaction by buying an advertised product, backed by the integrity of a man who spends real money to establish his name and to build up public good-will?
