RE-ELECTION OF COOLIDGE IS EXPECTED

TWO PEOPLE WERE DROWNED IN HARBOR YESTERDAY FROM SMALL BOAT

Local People Drowned in Harbor Yesterday When Small Boat Sank

Jack Macdonald, Fish Packer, and an Indian Girl Disappear After Being Precipitated Into Water

Jack Macdonald, aged 30, fish packer for the Atlin Fisheries, and Dorothy Gosnell, aged 23, Indian girl of Port Simpson residing in the city, were drowned in the harbor just off G.T.P. shed No. 1 when a skiff also containing Albert Holden, who escaped, was overturned about 5:30 last evening. The details of the fatality were related to the city police this morning at 7:50 by Holden who escaped only with difficulty from the icy waters of the bay. The matter is being investigated today and soon after dragging operations were instituted the body of Macdonald was found near the scene of the accident.

Holden's Story

According to Holden's account of the circumstances, he and Macdonald and the girl set out across the harbor yesterday about noon on a crab catching expedition. The boat, which was flat-bottomed, about 12 feet long and painted green with a sharp bow, was obtained by Macdonald. When they were coming home about dusk and were about 75 feet from the G.T.P. wharf off Peter Black's coal pile, Macdonald said "We are at home now" and, pulling out one of the oars, turned the boat right around filling it with water. Holden told Macdonald to stop or he would sink the boat. Macdonald replied: "Who is running this boat? You or I?" Holden answered that he was filling the boat with water. Then the boat filled and sank underneath its occupants. Macdonald and the girl, whom Holden believes could not swim, attempted to grasp hold of him but he managed to break loose and swim towards shore where he became lost underneath the piles of the wharf. He believed the man and the girl were drowned as he did not see them again. Holden himself, who was in a dazed condition, was unable for several hours to get out from under the wharf.

Eight Thousand Mourners Sang Dirges at Funeral of Veregin; Name of Leader to be Changed

NELSON, Nov. 3.—The body of Peter Veregin was yesterday buried in a sepulchre of living rock on an eminence overlooking Brilliant, the British Columbia headquarters of the Doukhobors.

From early morning until night six to eight thousand mourners sang dirges interrupted occasionally by funeral orations, while laments continued. Young women held aloft for hours bouquets of flowers, while

For the most part the women and girls wore the gayest colors though some were in black.

Anastasia Veregin, niece of Peter Veregin, who was in charge of the ceremonies, Larion Veregin, nephew and secretary treasurer of the community, read Veregin's biography, announcing that Veregin had desired that his name be changed to "Lordly" and this is now done.

FIGHTING ENDS AMONG CHINESE

Generals Arrange Armistice and Negotiations are Proceeding Between Leaders

TIENTSIN, Nov. 3.—Peace negotiations are proceeding between General Feng Yun Hsiang, the Christian general who recently captured Peking without meeting armed resistance, and General Wu Pei Fu. An armistice has been arranged and actual fighting has ceased.

LARGE AREA OF PLACER GOLD

Fifteen Miles Located and Staked for C. T. Cabrera and Geo. B. Fletcher

Having located and staked fifteen miles of placer land on Omineca River near Tacla Landing for C. T. Cabrera and George B. Fletcher of Philadelphia, R. E. Burger arrived in the city from the interior at the week end and proceeded on the Prince John to Massett where he will take charge of Mr. Cabrera's mining interests while the latter is on a trip east. Mr. Cabrera, who for several years has been interested in the Omineca mining district and who was personally in the field last year, stated this morning that it was the intention to develop the ground staked by Mr. Burger. The field is reached by way of Hazelton and the point where the locations have been made is 180 miles north of Fort St. James.

GOVERNOR NEW YORK

Two Prominent Candidates for That Office in Election Tomorrow

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—New York's gubernatorial campaign, which impartial observers consider the most hotly contested in years, has attracted national attention because of the prominence of the two leading candidates—Governor Alfred E. Smith and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy.

Although the issues involved are mainly state ones, the campaign between one of the most popular men who ever sat in the governor's chair at Albany and the son of the former president has been closely watched by the Democratic and Republican national leaders.

WEMBLEY EXHIBITION LIKELY TO REOPEN

LONDON, Nov. 3.—In a speech delivered in connection with the closing of the Wembley exhibition Saturday afternoon the Prince of Wales, president of the exhibition, said he understood negotiations were proceeding in connection with a view to having the exhibition reopen shortly, probably next spring.

NEW GOVERNMENT IN BRITAIN THIS WEEK

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The Labor government is expected to resign tomorrow and the King will call upon Baldwin. The new government it is expected will be formed in time to attend the Lord Mayor's banquet Saturday.

BETTING IS ON COOLIDGE

Eleven to One That he Will be Elected and 13 to 1 Against Davis

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Following a Republican forecast of certain victory at the polls tomorrow the betting odds that President Coolidge would win went 11 to 1.

Odds against La Follette, independent leader, was 25 to 1 in Wall Street. The odds against Davis, Democrat, are quoted 13 to 1. The street is willing to bet 6 to 1 the election will not go to the House.

HOUSE OPENS AT VICTORIA

King's Speech This Afternoon and Election of Speaker and Deputy

VICTORIA, Nov. 3.—The first session of the sixteenth legislature of B.C. opens at three o'clock this afternoon when Lieut. Governor Nichol will deliver the King's speech to a House of 47 members, there being one vacancy owing to the death Wednesday of J. W. McKittrick of Grand Forks.

There will be the usual formalities in connection with the opening and a resolution of regret at the death of Mr. McKittrick. The election of J. A. Buckland of Columbia and H. G. Perry of Prince George as speaker and deputy speaker will conclude the opening session.

Tomorrow the debate will begin when J. R. Colley of Kamloops, East of Martha Jane Woodry, will move the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

Many special functions are arranged for tonight. The Lieutenant Governor is entertaining at dinner members of the government and opposition and other members of the House.

New Plants to be Erected on Graham Island Says Cabrera in Articles on the Black Sands

Probably the first scientific article ever written on the black sand beach placers of Graham Island comes from the pen of C. T. Cabrera, M.E., who is actively interested in plans for the extraction of the gold therefrom. The article will appear in the first issue of a quarterly publication that the recently established Graham Island Miners Association is getting out. Mr. Cabrera's article is doubly interesting because it also tells of preparations that have been made and that are proposed for the development of these placers. The article is as follows:

Beach placers on Graham Island are formed by the concentrating action of waves and tides on sloping beaches. Heavy storms wash out large bodies of auriferous gravels and sands composing the terraces above the beaches and so thoroughly disintegrate and puddle them by the rushing and flowing of the sea that they leave behind on the upper beaches their heaviest portions (black sands and gold) and carry out to sea their lighter portions (garnetiferous sands).

These surface concentrations of black sands and gold are constantly shifting and changing, consequently they do not occur in large permanent deposits, therefore with one hereinafter described exception the Beach placers of Graham Island, so far as is known up to the time of writing this article, have no great economic value and would not justify the undertaking of large mining operations.

Real Values

The real economic values in placer mining on this island is in the Tertiary sand, gravels, and clays forming the terraces along the northern and eastern coast, and which, in many instances, extend considerable distance inland. These auriferous gravels will be described at length in the next issue of the Quarterly, it being the object of this article to give a short report on the much talked-of and so-called "Black Sand Gold."

To the small operator, who must be experienced with sluicing and thoroughly familiar with the use of the blanket and other means of recovering fine gold, these beach concentrates will quite probably yield a splendid profit. Quite a number of "old-timers" along the coast tell of the profits they have, from time to time, recovered from the black sands, but they, being agriculturists and not caring to stick to the daily grind of shovelling in, have only made spasmodic efforts to work the beaches, and their stories of rich recoveries should not be taken as a criterion for the prospector caring to try out the beaches here. Placer mining means hard work and constant work, here in Graham as elsewhere.

DAILY EDITION

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1924.

U.S. Election Takes Place Tomorrow.

Predictions as to the result of the United States election which takes place tomorrow are useless and Canadian people are not vitally concerned as to which side wins. There are influences, however, which affect or may affect Canada to some extent.

Taken on the matter of general policy it is usually considered that a Democratic government is more favorable to Canada than a Republican from a trade point of view, although it is the Democratic newspapers that have been anti-British. In Alaska the Republicans are more favorable to close business relations with Prince Rupert than are the Democrats, although they call themselves Progressive Republicans. If they are elected and their party is elected throughout the country, there is likely to be better business between Alaska and this port.

Speaking generally Canadian people look at the United States election from a purely disinterested point of view and regard it somewhat as a big sporting event in which they bet on the winner as they would on a horse race or prize fight.

Soundings Completed For New Elevator.

Soundings are complete for the new grain elevator to be erected at this port and it is announced the contract for the foundation is likely to be let in December. Work on the completion of the plans will follow taking of soundings.

When the elevator is complete it will have a very far-reaching effect in stimulating business at this port. With grain cars rolling in and out and ships coming here for cargo, there will be such a revival of business as has not yet been seen. Everywhere there will be increased activity. The section gangs will have to be increased, the machine shops will be more active, longshoremen be more numerous and the crews of the ships in port will spend money here. The telegraphs, mail and all public utilities will have more to do and this will be followed by building and other activities.

Manager Instead Of Committee.

No business can be successfully run by a committee. There has to be a manager. We have found that true with city business and it has been true with the liquor business. One man must have the final say and he must be the responsible one.

The Provincial Government has now placed the liquor business in the hands of one man, who will be the responsible head and will report to the government. He should be in a position to give better results than could a committee or board. It is to be hoped he will be able to conduct it successfully, not with a view to increasing sales or profits but so that it may be in the interests of the people as a whole.

May Re-open Wembley Exhibition.

The Prince of Wales announces that the Wembley exhibition may reopen in the spring. Negotiations are still under way with that end in view. Canada has finally agreed to do her part in the work and most of the other sections of the Empire are also in line.

While a good deal of money was lost on the huge enterprise, the loss has fallen on wealthy guarantors who were interested in fostering the Imperial idea or who made money from the affair indirectly. Next year the expenses would be immensely less as the buildings are all there and many of the exhibits could remain unchanged or be easily replaced.

The new British government is likely to be favorable to extending the life of the exhibition by another year, so there is every prospect that it will again open its doors.

The Man in the Moon

SAYS:-

GIRLS and boys
Who are under sixteen,
Keep well away
From Jack Niek O'Tine.

PEOPLE are always looking for cheap things and yet they have plenty of talk.

MY sympathy goes out to the poor chap whose wife will not spare him fifty dollars now and then to lose at poker.

A MAN once thought he was marrying an angel and he found that all he had was a painted woman.

IF father parks himself in the road in the average apartment he is likely to be hawled out by the traffic cop, and she speaks in no uncertain voice.

THERE are a number of famous parking places. Father parks himself on the lounge, sister parks herself on half of the easiest chair and brother's shoulder is a parking place for his Sunday girl.

IF a girl earns a hundred a month and a man a hundred and fifty and neither is able to pay their bills it is hardly to be expected they can pay instalments on furniture, prepare baby clothes and both pay their way on one of the salaries.

THE CAUSE AND THE CURE

AMENDMENT OF PRESENT TIMBER ROYALTY ACT WOULD RESTORE CONFIDENCE IN THE INDUSTRY

Present Uncertainty Holding Up Capital and Delaying Trade Extension

The great basic industry of British Columbia is in a state of "nerves" at the present time.

THE CAUSE is the unsatisfactory state of the timber royalty laws, which threaten to place such a prohibitive tax on raw material as to render the manufacture of lumber entirely unprofitable. On January 1, 1925, unless repealed or amended, this measure will increase the timber royalty rate at 700 per cent above its original level and compel the closing down of our saw mills.

THE SYMPTONS are the uncertainty of one-fourth of the male working population of the province regarding the duration of their jobs, the anxiety of the supply houses and storekeepers regarding the eclipse of an annual purchasing power of over one hundred million dollars and the fear of the operators regarding the safety of their investment of two hundred million dollars, confidently made in anticipation of fair treatment by the people of this province.

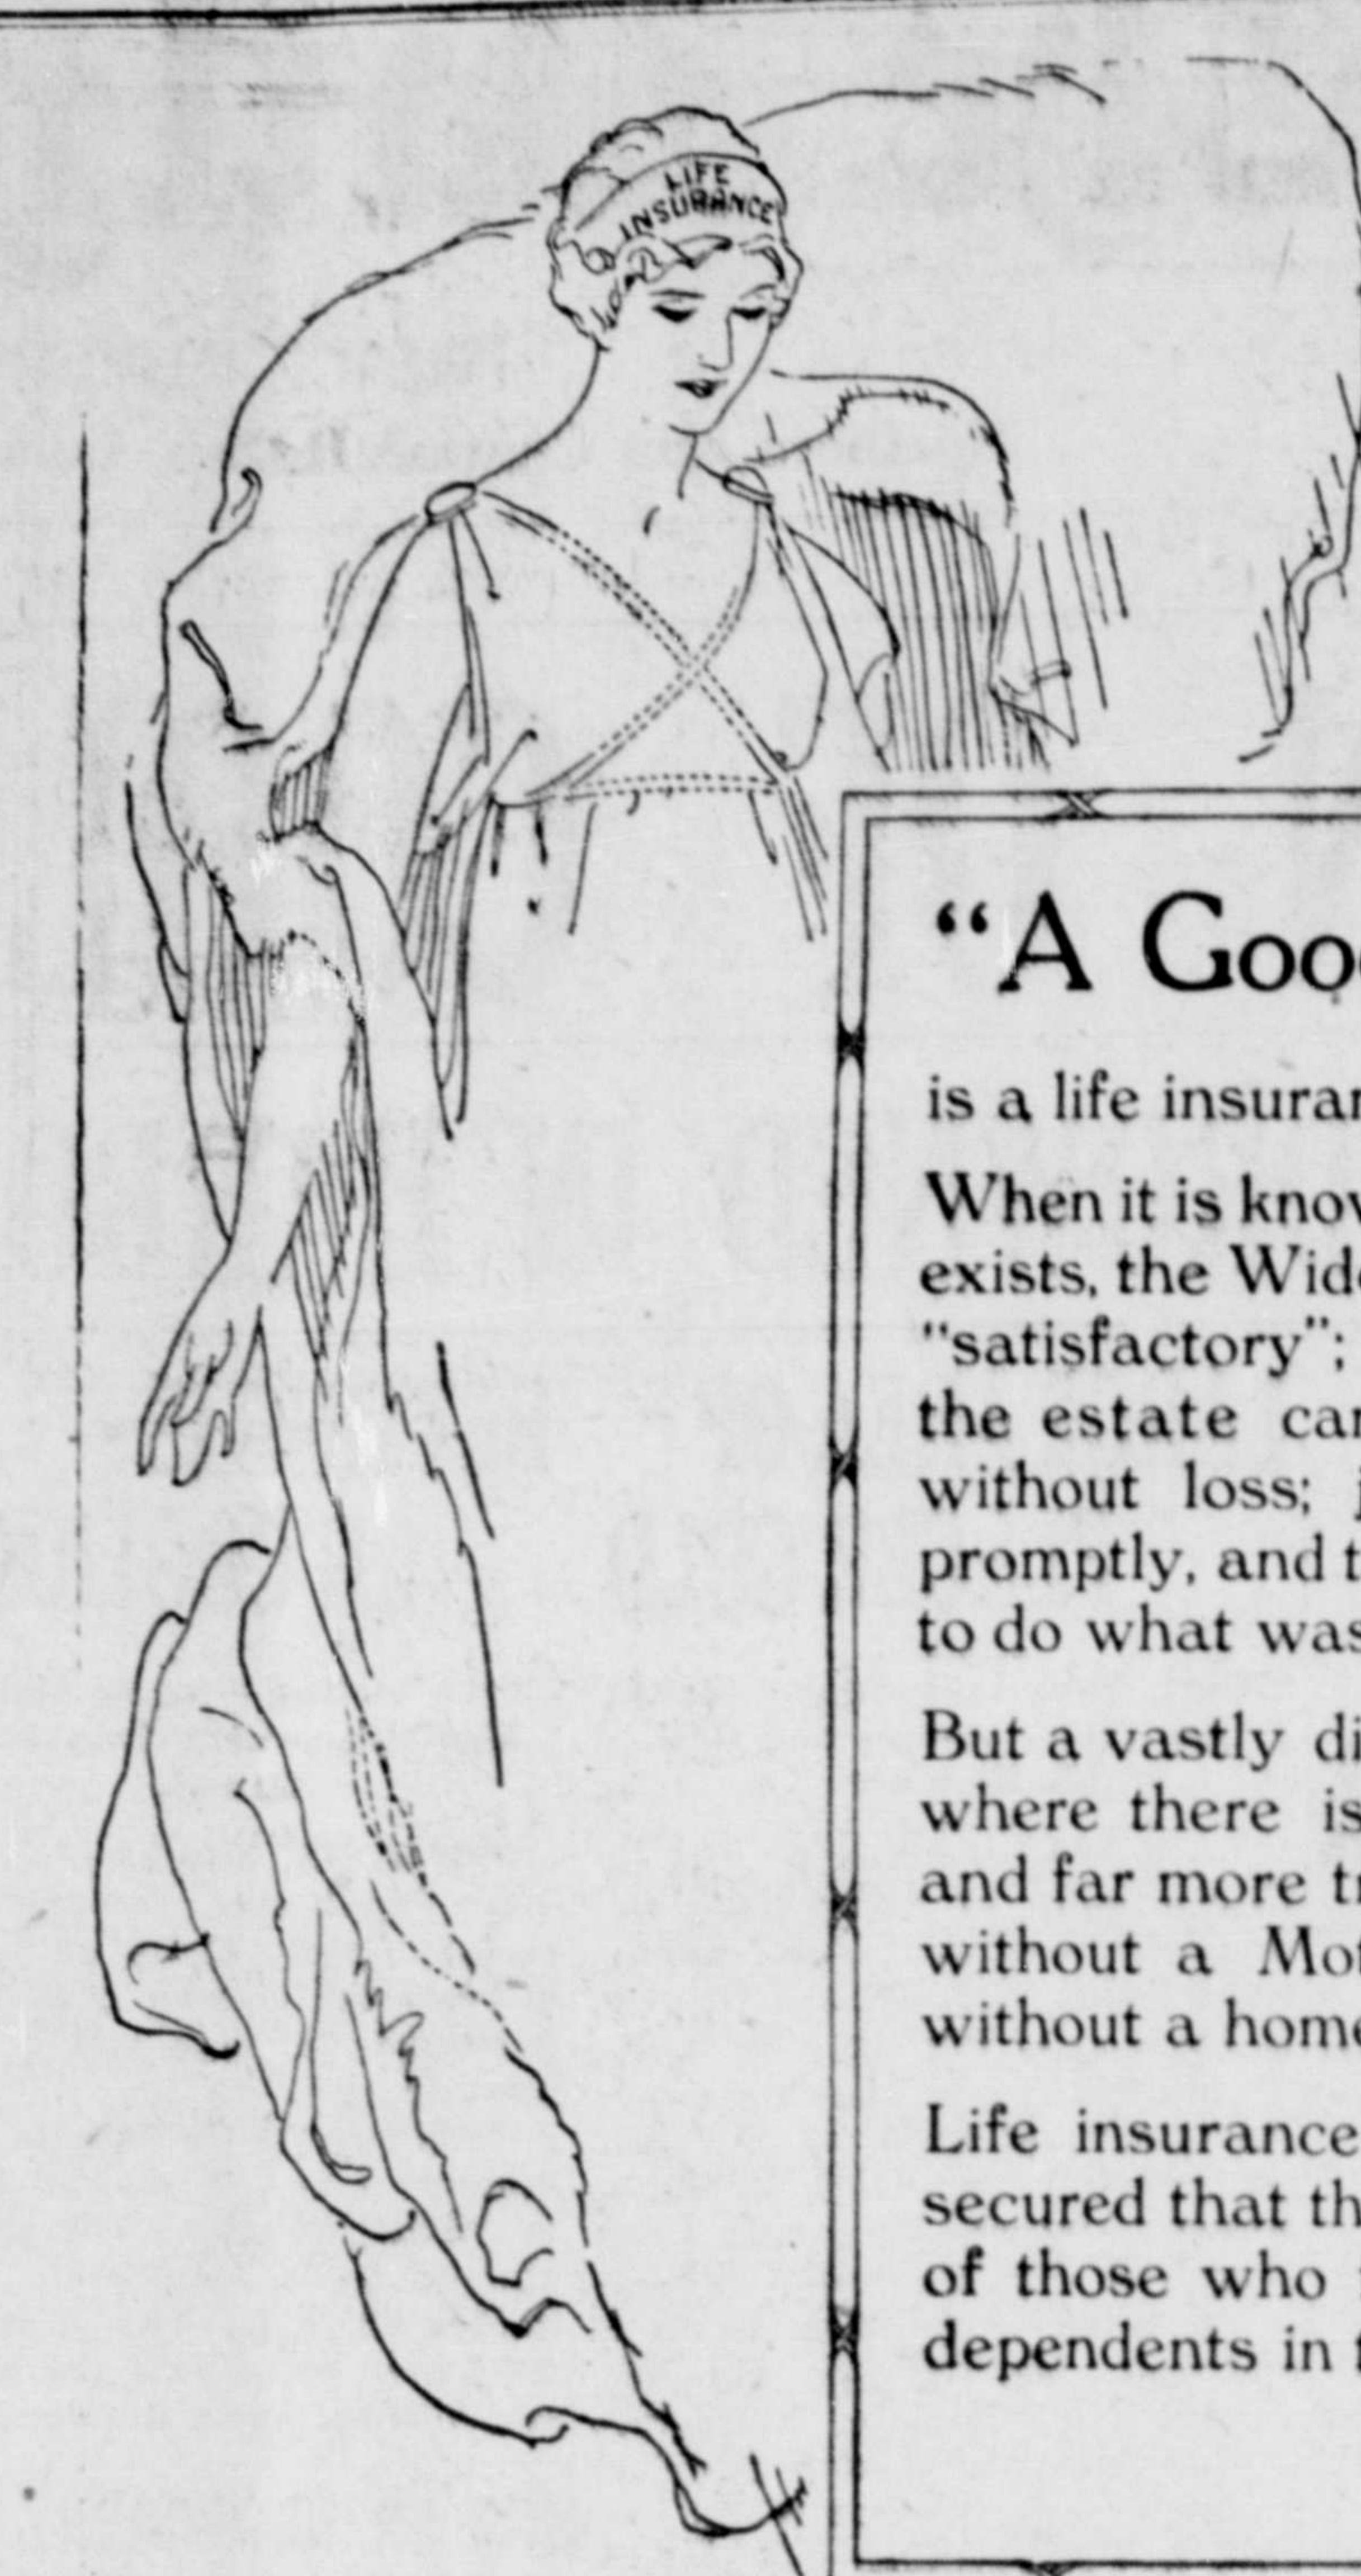

THE CURE is the repeal or amendment of the unworkable Timber Royalty Act of 1914 and the substitut for it of some measures that, while establishing the equity of the people in the standing timber of the province, will at the same time recognize the bare rights of the already overtaxed timberholder, from whose pockets the country already draws one-third of its total annual revenue.

This is a particularly unfortunate time for the industry to be in uncertain health. Millions of dollars are awaiting investment in our plants and timber areas and strenuous work is ahead in the development of new markets for B.C. lumber. Further taxation of the lumber industry will frighten away capital and of course remove all incentive for market extension effort.

This series of articles communicated by the Timber Industries Council of British Columbia.

is a life insurance policy.

When it is known that life insurance exists, the Widow finds her credit is "satisfactory"; the home continues; the estate can be administered without loss; just debts are paid promptly, and the Will has a chance to do what was intended.

But a vastly different story is told where there is no life insurance; and far more tragic than "a home without a Mother" is the Mother without a home.

Life insurance may be so readily secured that the world thinks little of those who fail to protect their dependents in this way.

CONDITIONS IN GREAT BRITAIN NOT VERY BAD

H. A. PHILPOTT Says that Reports in This Country are Exaggerated—No Bolshevism

"It is true that there is a good deal of unemployment in Great Britain but conditions are not nearly so bad as one might believe out here," stated H. A. Philpott, local businessman, who returned Saturday on the Princess Beatrice after spending three months in England and Scotland. "There has not been the rise to Bolshevism that is imagined. I think the result of the election was enough to disprove that."

In the steel industry there is still a good deal of unemployment, Mr. Philpott stated, but the hosiery and boot industry is good. The cloth industry which has been bad, is improving because the India market is buying again after a cessation of purchases during the past few years.

The fact that the Lancashire cotton mills are now turning to the manufacture of silk also tends to improve conditions in the cloth industry.

While in England, Mr. Philpott visited the Wembley Exhibition several times. It was remarkable he declared.

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

November 3, 1914

Col. G. W. Peck announces that a second contingent for service in the Great War will be raised from Prince Rupert and district very soon. The first contingent will go south by boat but it is proposed to have further ones entrain here direct for the East.

A delegation consisting of Rev. H. R. Grant, G. W. Morrow, Canon G. A. Rix, M. M. Stephens, D. G. Stewart, J. A. Kirkpatrick, George Frizzell, J. Y. Rochester and Harry Rochester appeared before the city council asking that money be voted to give Prince Rupert's first contingent for the war a suitable send-off. It was decided, on motion of Ald. Morrissey, seconded by Ald. Bassett-Bert, that $2,000 be granted for the purpose.

The city council has decided to advertise for a staff to man the new hydro-electric plant at Shawlans Lake which will shortly be ready for operation.

one of the redeeming features of the case, provided it for her. He himself has taken to drugs more than once, but is making a big fight to overcome the habit.

Time and again she tried, with the help of others, to give up the terrible habit which had made her a woman of the streets, but after each attempt she succumbed to the temptation. The Native Daughters of Vancouver took a special interest in her case, and more than once she was, apparently, completely cured.

Swords Off for a Year

Strange as it may seem to those unacquainted with the underworld, she was, even when she had sunk to the lowest depths, possessed of some of the finer qualities which must have marked her in her youth. For instance, she would never give drugs to young boys or girls. Knowing through what hell she had passed herself, she was determined that they, at least, should not start on a similar path through her instrumentality.

Several times during her periods of partial recovery from the hold which the habit had upon her, she attended meetings of those who were endeavoring to aid her and those in similar plight and exhibited her arms and legs to show the innumerable marks which the needle had left upon her, in order that these girls might realize the havoc which the habit had wrought.

Only those who knew her well were aware of the effort which, despite her loss of self-respect, these exhibitions caused her.

Husband Was Loyal

A rather singular feature of her case was that, unlike many women of the underworld, who use large quantities of dope and earn the money to pay for it on the streets, she was not forced to do this, because her husband, a logger up the coast, whose attachment for her throughout is deeply interested in the drug question, Mrs. J. Z. Hall, Mrs. E. H. Tomer and Mrs. James O'Brien were among the mourners. As they sat there, many of the underworld, including several negroes, entered in ones and twos to pay a last tribute to the memory of their friend.

The most pathetic feature of that last scene was the presence of the dead woman's daughter, a beautiful girl of 18, who had travelled from the United States for the funeral.

The object of making public this, one of many stories which could be told of the Vancouver underworld, is to arouse again the public to this the most terrible evil.

George Russell, foreman of the Prince Rupert Daily News typographical department, who has been taking a holiday in the Old Country, writes to say he expects to be here about the middle of December.

SINNERS IN HEAVEN IS THIS EVENING'S PICTURE OFFERING

Story of Love on a South Sea Island, of Native Dancing and Battle with Natives

Barbara Stockley, straight-laced daughter of a conventional English family, who lives in a prim little English village, is persuaded by her intimate friend, Mrs. Fields, to go on a round-the-world flight in a hydroplane with her brother, Alan Croft, a flyer of international fame. Barbara leaves her fiance, Hugh Roehde, with the promise that when she returns the following Christmas, she will marry him.

The flyers get caught in a south-sea typhoon and are wrecked off the coast of a small island in the tropics. All are lost but Barbara and Alan who manage to get to shore safely. To their dismay they discover that the island is inhabited by savages. However, with the aid of the radio outfit which he salvages from the wreckage, Alan scares the superstitious natives into believing that he is a white god.

Unconventional Marriage

As time passes, Alan and Barbara realize they love each other. Finally they plight their troth before God, and without clergy, perform a marriage ceremony.

When hope of rescue is almost gone, an aeroplane suddenly appears on the horizon. A searching party that has been working months to find trace of the lost flyers, lands on the island. Just in the nick of time! For the natives, having discovered that Alan is not a god, decide to kill them both. In the fierce battle that follows, Alan is shot by a native and left for dead, while Barbara and the aviators escape.

When Barbara returns home, she finds the town outraged at the news of her unconventional marriage. Although believing Alan dead, Barbara, nevertheless, defends her action.

Happiness Comes

But happiness comes to her at last, for Alan miraculously appears one day and takes her in his arms. A native girl had hid him and nursed him back to life, and a passing steamer had rescued him. So Barbara and Alan renew the vows they had taken on the desert island.

There is dancing by native girls and all sorts of interesting scenes in this picture.

THE GOLD DIGGERS BRIGHT AND BREEZY

Relasco Play Done into a Picture is Mid-week Offering at Westholme Theatre

A gold digger is a woman, generally young who painlessly extracts money and other valuables from the gentlemen of her acquaintance, usually without making them adequate returns. But the fascinating and fun loving Jerry Lamar, brightest of the clan, is a good girl without; she attends parties where gayety and good cheer prevail, where wealthy millionaires offer rare jewels and thousand dollar bills as favors—but she never forgets her mother at home, or an injunction offered by a strange soap-vending woman to buy soap and keep clean.

As leader of her co-gold diggers, she enjoys life to the full. There is Mabel, Topsy, Eleanor, Trixie and Violet whom handsome Wally wants to marry, though this act will cut him off from inheriting fifty cool millions.

Jerry had got her start on the stage through a letter of introduction by a certain Cissie Gray, friend of her mother, who had once been a stage beauty, but whom misfortune and a sad love affair had driven from the footlights. Nobody suspects that she is the sad little old woman who sells soap, and whom Jerry, with instinctive good-nature, befriended.

Plot Thickens

To further the happiness of Vi and Wally, and still keep the millions for Wally, Jerry decides a bold course, that of bringing Wally's uncle, Stanley Lee, into her apartment. He readily comes, accompanied by his lawyer, Blake, meaning to clean out the den of what he calls gold-diggers. Mabel soon has Blake in her power and is digging for all she is worth, while Lee falls a victim to Jerry, who poses as a bad chorus girl who means to marry Wally.

At an elaborate party given in her room, she tries out her scheme, and has Vi act the cute innocent girl whose greatest thrill in life consists in lighting the match for Lee's Coronas. Everything fails; in despair she tells Lee—who she secretly cares for, unknown to him, to come back after the party is ended; this done, she makes him drunk, and pretending to be tipsy herself, tells him what a bad vamp she is, and that she had stolen Wally from sweet little Vi. Lee proposes, then something is said that makes him think himself spoofed, and he leaves in high dudgeon.

The Proposal

The strenuous plotting has exhausted Jerry, who takes to her bed, nursed by her lately arrived mother. Her friends urge her to call up Lee, but pride prevents her, as it does him. Days pass; suddenly Lee comes, proposes a second time, and utterly happy, gives his consent to Wally's marriage.

And Jerry, happy herself, has the further happiness of finding that Cissie Gray and the soap-vender are one and the same person, and that her friend, Barney Barnett, is the man who had once wanted to marry Cissy. So she proves the instrument of smoothing the path of love, not only for herself, but for two other couples.

THE ACQUITTAL IS WEEK END PICTURE

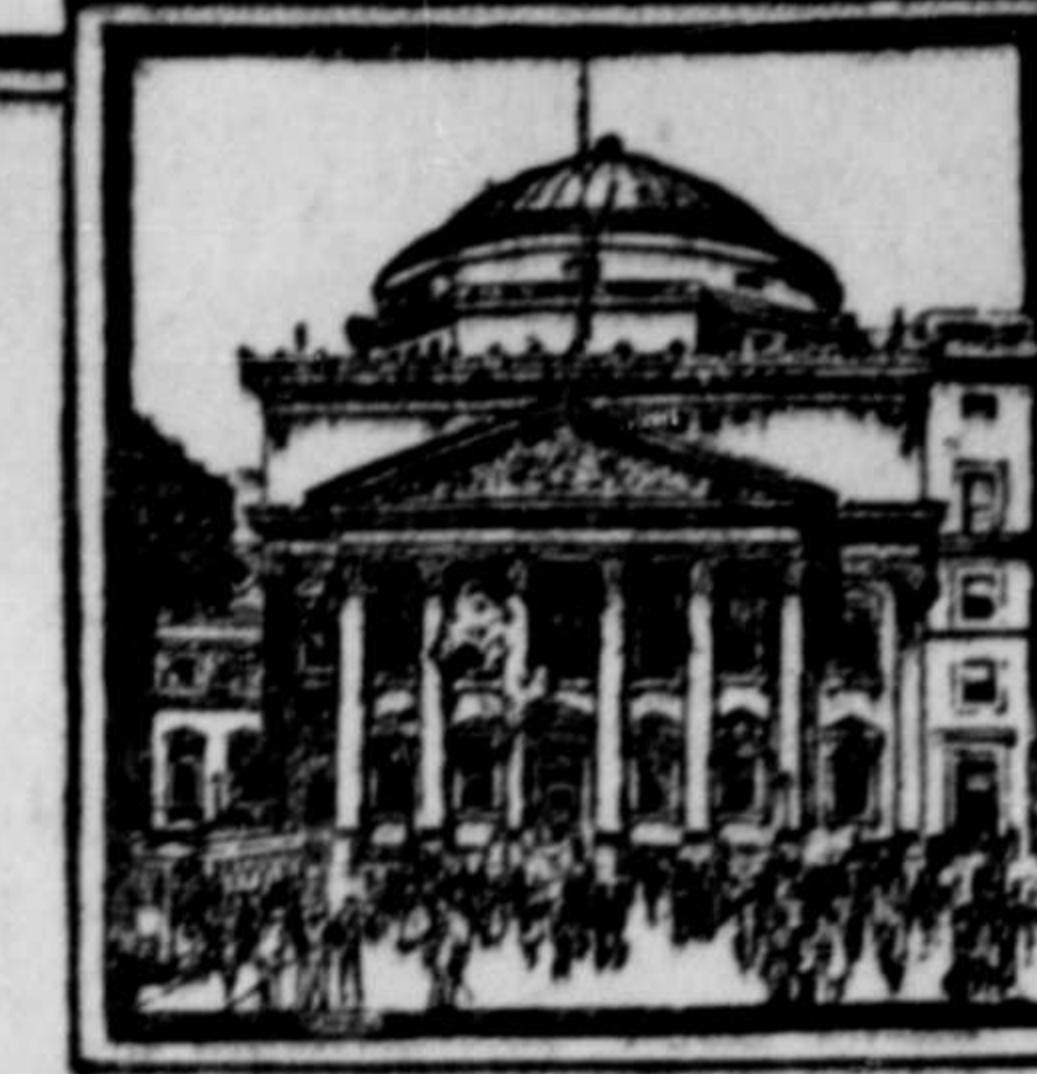

Audience is Kept in Expectation Until the Very Last in Famous Play

Placing a spoken play into pictures is a strange task; the task of translating words into pantomime. This is the feat Clarence L. Brown achieved in "The Acquittal," new mystery play, to be screened here at the week end, when he took the proceedings in a murder trial, witness after witness, translating spoken evidence into pictured action without the use of explanatory titles.

Brown placed each witness on the stand. Then, as they began their stories, he faded the big court room scene into the scenes described in the evidence. The characters went through the action being described to the jury—and the result is one of the most gripping, enthralling mystery dramas in the history of pictures.

The audience is at sea until the dramatic climax. Suspicion fixes first on one character then on another. It veers from one to the other with each added shred of evidence—and excitement marks every step.

Photographs of famous trials, borrowed from the newspapers of Chicago, New York, San Francisco and Los Angeles, were the guides to almost every debated point in the conduct of the trial scenes in the play. Charles Furthmann, former deputy district attorney of Chicago, sat with the director throughout, watching every legal point involved, and every bit of court deportment. The news photographs, snapped during the various stages of important trials, showed how defendants sat, where the press tables were located, how reporters, judges, bailiffs, attorneys and juries sat, looked and

series of stratifications of black and garnetiferous sands. This property has been most thoroughly tested, some three months having been spent in determining work with the results showing that there is a considerable tonnage combined with a very high per yard value.

Quite evidently the alternate black sand strata starts with the lighter garnet sand strata were formed by alternate periods of heavy storms with quiet inactive periods, in various successions until the present series of stratifications were formed. Some 57 pits, each about three feet wide by five feet long by six to twelve feet deep were dug in a zig-zag course along the bedding. These pits disclose a uniform stratification of black and garnet sands extending in depth to the loose gravels of the lower beach line, an average distance of about 12 feet. The thickness of the black sand strata vary from two to twenty inches. In length they run along the entire two miles of tested beach. The depth of these strata from the face of the bench to the escarpment above the bench will average about 200 feet. Thus there is in this one deposit of black sand concentrations a considerable tonnage which seems to justify larger operations. Assays taken from the above-described pits together with samples taken from small workings along this beach deposit show a general average of more than $1.50 per yard in gold values. These values are very high, but the work of sampling and assaying has been so carefully done that the writer is in no doubt of their accuracy. In addition to the above assay results the writer has been told that check assays on all the above assays are to be made by eastern assayers, and it is quite probable that the association will be able to report further to its members on this subject.

Problems Presented

The recovery of gold from deposits like the above presented quite a problem and for many years it has baffled all operators. The action of waves and tides classifies sands and gravels into equal falling bodies in water with the result that the black sands and the gold have been so classified by this wave action that they are nearly of the same weight, therefore mechanical means of recovery based on specific gravity has been a failure. The engineer at that time in charge of the above companies' operations conducted a series of tests on the chemical recovery of the gold from the black sands with the result that after five months of effort and at considerable expense it was proven to their satisfaction that chemical processes of recovery were the means of making economic gold extractions from the sands. One test made under operating conditions with 52 tons of sands gave very satisfactory results. This was followed by a test run of six tons which resulted better than the larger run. These field tests followed months of laboratory tests. The final results being that all interested here are using chemical means of recovery.

Uncertain Element

From the above it can be readily seen, and the association wants to make it very plain to all interested that:

First — The beach concentrates of this island (with the one exception now known and above-mentioned) are a very uncertain element and not to be depended upon for the production of large quantities of gold.

Second — Only those who are thoroughly experienced in the recovery of fine gold should undertake to take advantage of the small but profitable gold concentrations on the Islands north and east coast.

Plant Construction

In closing this article it is in order to set forth the progress that has been made in constructions of plants to date, together with reports of what is reasonably authentic future prospects.

At Massett, a chemical plant, having a capacity of about 100 tons a day, is nearing completion. This plant is in the village of Massett, and the land was acquired by purchase by the company. No construction work was started. This company purchased, in addition to the piece of land fronting on the inlet, some 22 building lots adjoining their plant.

At Rose Spit, a testing plant having a daily capacity of five tons has been in operation over six weeks. This plant has been closed pending a reorganizing of the company, at which time it is expected a large plant of considerable capacity will be erected.

On the east coast it has been reported to the writer, by good authority, there will be erected a plant of at least 200 tons capacity.

Three Phones: 210, 211, 212FINAL FIGURES
ON FISH PACK

TOTAL MUCH GREATER THAN LAST YEAR FOR CANNED SALMON

Final figures for the 1924 salmon pack obtained this morning show that a total of 1,140,497 cases of all varieties were put up in District No. 2 as compared with 875,803 cases in 1923. The large increase over last year was largely due to pinks and chums which totalled much in excess of 1923. Sockeyes showed a slight increase while springs and cohoes were down.

The figures are as follows:

	1924	1923
Cases.	Cases.
Sockeye	294,447	285,879
Springs	16,662	27,230
Coho	48,982	60,211
Pinks	506,654	330,738
Chums	272,694	178,828
Steelheads	1,058	1,528

Totals 1,140,497 875,803

The decrease in cohoes was simply due to the fact that the fish were not obtainable.

A similar reason does not apply to the decrease in springs. The mild curing of this variety has proven more popular and a large quantity were thus put up.

The figures will compare favorably with last year. The quantity of dry salted will be larger than last year.

The big increase in the pink pack was largely due to the fact that the north end of the Queen Charlotte Islands only packs alternate years and in 1924 the largest pack on record for the Massett area—over 410,000 cases—was put up whereas last year there was none.

The increase in chums was principally in the central division between Ogden Channel and Fitzhugh Sound.

All salmon fishing except trolling is now closed and there is very little trolling. The canneries are all closed now and such fish as is caught is sold over the local fresh fish exchange.

IT WAS AN ACCIDENT

Mrs. Huggins was in the dock. She was charged with assault and battery, and the recipient of her unkind attentions was none other than the husband whom she had promised to love, honor and obey until death did him from her part. "So you broke an umbrella over your husband's head?" said the Magistrate. "What have you to say?" "It was an accident Sir," replied the accused. "How could it be an accident?" asked the Magistrate. "Well, Sir," explained the guilty party, "I didn't mean to break the umbrella."

D. S. Cameron, who has been stationed during the past summer at Swanson Bay as fisheries overseer, has returned to the city for the winter, the salmon season now being over.

H. L. Robinson was counsel for the crown and L. S. McGill and M. Gonzales for the defendant.

The second appeal that of Jos Kelly of Smithers against a similar sentence handed to him by Magistrate Hoskins on the charge of having liquor for sale, was disallowed by Judge Young and the conviction confirmed.

H. L. Robinson also handled this case for the crown, while L. S. McGill acted for the defendant.

In addition to minor court work there were two appeals slated for a hearing. The first being that of Wm. G. Cooper of Moricetown against a sentence of six months given for an alleged infraction of the B.C. Liquor Act, the charge being that of selling

Free Milling Rock Carrying Coarse Gold Brought from Interior

SMITHERS, Nov. 3.—E. G. Bellicini of Houston, was a business visitor in Smithers at the week end and he again brought in a number of fine specimens from the new strike made on Sibola mountain this summer.

Mr. Bellicini recently had a visit from this co-owner, Chung King Ho, a retired merchant of Vancouver, who came up as far as Houston for a personal inspection of the ore that had been packed out to that point. He was very greatly elated with the ore taken out and stated that he was prepared to finance a much more extensive program of de-development work next season in order to determine if there was a sufficient body to warrant a mill being erected at the mine.

The samples exhibited by Mr. Bellicini are free milling and appear to be extremely rich, being well studded with coarse pieces of gold. He has had no assays made, however, as the samples brought out would show values of several thousand dollars which might have a tendency to raise their hopes too high. They wish to prove the extent of the vein before making a report on values.

The Sibola mountain which is located in the Tatla Lake country is about 90 miles from Houston and about fifty miles from the salt water, and therefore the question of transportation to and from the mine is a serious one. The route at present being by wagon road and trail from Houston.

Sweeney Mountain which is about five miles from Sibola has also very rich values, but in silver, copper and zinc.
