Captain Wingate and Crew of Five Drift Helplessly on Lumber Barge in Face of Almost Certain Disaster

GERMANY AND CANADA HAVE NO RELATIONS

OTTAWA, Jan. 9.—The Canadian Government has adopted an attitude of watchful waiting in regard to trade relations with Germany, the acting minister of finance announces. He characterized as most misleading the Berlin despatches stating that Canada alone among the British Dominions had opened negotiations for a German trade agreement. He asserted that if Germany exercises unfair discrimination against Canadian products, the Government will know how to act in the light of past events.

FASCISTI ARE STILL ACTIVE

ROME, Jan. 9.—Following Fascist opposition to the announcement that the opponents of the government will cease from further participation in parliamentary work, comes an intimation from the same source that they will urge the voters to remain away from the polls if the projected elections are held under government auspices. Fascist leaders predict the death of the opposition, which, they say, represents the old regime. They maintain that they will as soon as possible prove the innocence of Mussolini and his lieutenants of any responsibility for the acts of violence of last year.

Cable Parts in Gale when Tug Massett is Towing Bergamon off Triple Island Light This Morning

HELP WAS DIFFICULT TO OBTAIN HERE

After Noon Wireless got in touch with Lighthouse Tender Newington which is Gone to Rescue

Early this afternoon the Wireless Station at Digby Island got into communication with the lighthouse tender Newington close to this port and that vessel went at once to the rescue of the distressed barge Bergamon supposed to be drifting in Hecate Straits. Since that no word has been received from either the Newington or the barge.

Drifting helplessly in the mountainous seas of Hecate Straits lashed to fury by a terrific southeast gale, the only salvation for the new lumber barge Bergamon with her owner, Capt. W. Wingate, and a crew of five men aboard, is the possibility of having some larger vessel than there is available in the port of Prince Rupert today go to the rescue at once. Up to noon no such boat had been secured although radio broadcasts had been sent in every direction and it was thought at 11:30 that the Union steamer Venture, bound from Port Simpson to Anxox, or the lighthouse tender Newington might be diverted to give aid. Capt. Wingate and his crew are in great peril and even by this time may have perished, although hopes are still held out that the Bergamon might still be drifting northwards or have crashed into an island where those on board her might make shore and save their lives. This was the situation respecting the Bergamon at noon today.

Massett Arrives
The West Coast Towing & Salvage Co.'s tug Massett, commanded by Capt. Pearson, steamed into this port at 10 o'clock this morning bringing the news of the Bergamon's plight and how it occurred, and seeking aid forthwith.

Capt. Pearson was greatly agitated this morning and was virtually at his wit's end to know what could be done. His own boat the Massett is leaking and cannot venture forth itself again in an attempt to effect a rescue. There is no boat available here large enough to weather the condition of the sea outside and at noon no response had been received to frantic messages that had been sent to ships that might be in the neighborhood.

Gold output, 175,000 ounces, an increase of 12 per cent.; silver output, 3,610,000 ounces, an increase of 10 per cent.; copper output 36,700,000 pounds, an increase of 10 per cent.

Talk About Separation.

Undoubtedly there is some truth in what the London Morning Post says in regard to the talk in this country about separation from the Empire. Anyone who travels about the country is bound to hear it, if he keeps his ears open. The Native Sons are the most outspoken. Many of the boys born in this country object to the idea of subservience and particularly to the attitude of some Old Country people toward those who live here.

There is a very considerable group in the big cities that openly urges in general conversation the advantages to be gained from joining the United States while others would have Canada independent.

Just what influence these groups will have on the future policy of the country is not clear. At present it is not very influential, or apparently not. However, it is vigorous and unless the federation of British nations becomes very clearly defined, will steadily increase.

Argument in Vancouver Regarding Separation.

The editor of this paper had an argument on the subject in Vancouver recently. The argument of the other man summarized was something like this:

"You live in Prince Rupert? Then you know something about the handicap Canada suffers. You know that Canadian fishermen have to pay two cents a pound on halibut they catch, for the privilege of being subjects of King George. You know that on almost everything you buy you are taxed for the same privilege. You know that if you go south to the States you are under no stigma but if you remain at home and mention that it would be good business to join the States you are immediately branded as disloyal. You know that if you have children they will probably become Americans before they die. Why not let them have the privilege without migrating south?"

There were other arguments but these were the chief and they are given here just for the purpose of letting people know how a considerable group of citizens are talking. The man quoted said that nearly every man he met held a somewhat similar opinion.

Feeling Not Very Widespread.

While this feeling exists among the younger element of native born Canadians, we do not think it is widespread. It will be remembered that only a few years ago the Liberal party in Canada was defeated because people feared that the policy of reciprocity would lead to union with the United States. As a matter of fact the opposite has been true. The policy of handicapping the Canadian has led to the feeling, such as it is, toward separation and possible amalgamation with the union to the south.

It is useless to shut our eyes to conditions. In Prince Rupert we have had somewhat similar sentiments more or less freely expressed and burying our heads in the sand or saying "pooh, pooh!" does not change them. What we have to do is face the fact and seek for a remedy.

No Need For Being Uneasy.

According to the abbreviated report coming on the wire, the Morning Post says some uneasiness exists in the Mother Country over the matter. We do not see why this should be. If anyone is uneasy it should be Canada. Britain gains nothing except prestige from having Canada as an associate nation. We trade with United States and United States money is spent freely here. It is doubtful if we should do much less business with the Mother Land even if we were part of the States. The question is of more importance to Canada than to Britain but it is a problem for both to consider and to solve. If the feeling is to be allayed it must be by giving Canada equal treatment both in business and in formulating imperial policies. Also Canada must consider this question carefully when formulating her fiscal and domestic policies.

PREPARING WAY FOR HEBRIDEANS

Commander Jones Visits Islands and Tells of Conditions he Found There

SETTLERS WERE HAPPY
Even London Plumber Was Meeting With Success in Establishing New Home

"While the Hebrideans are a peculiar people and a little given to despondency and are easily discouraged, the life here would be very similar to their home life and I do not see why they should not make good on this coast," said Commander Jones, chairman of the fishery board of Scotland, in addressing the Rotary Club yesterday.

While it seemed a simple matter to advise people, Commander Jones said he felt the responsibility in regard to what message he took back to the Hebrideans. Many of them were married people with children and it was a serious matter to them to come to a new country. In the Hebrides there were but two industries, fishing and farming, and the people had not made good at either. Many of them had been on the verge of starvation. The crops had failed and the peat on which they depended for fuel had not dried out. The result was they had neither food nor fuel. Many lived under the most squalid conditions but their greatest handicap was their temperament, the tendency to despondency and discouragement.

Condition of Settlers

Commander Jones said he had been trying to sum up conditions here. The resources of the sea were inexhaustible but he was not so impressed with the islands for farming purposes. However, he found all the settlers there happy, healthy, robust and contented. The only tenderfoot he had found was a man from London who had formerly been a plumber. He had built himself a comfortable but rough house and was clearing a little land around it where he had a garden. He had worked as tallyman in the canneries and now had a boat with an engine and was intending to fish for himself next season.

The others were old timers. He was surprised at the variety of food they secured. They had abundance of duck, fish, clams, crabs, venison and other food. They had undoubtedly roughed it but had emerged successfully and were making a good living. The happiest man he found was one with eleven children. This man was determined to make the best of everything and was equally determined not to leave.

Migratory Life

The difficulty was that in the Hebrideans he had to deal with a different people. They lived a somewhat migratory life, following the herring from the north of Scotland to the east coast of England, working on the fishing boats and then returning home for a couple of months. The work was seasonal, as it was here, and he thought they might adapt themselves to the conditions on this coast.

The speaker said he had interviewed cannerymen and those engaged in the halibut fisheries and he was assured by them that any man who was willing to work hard could make good. He feared that the Hebrideans would feel homesick but with sympathy and encouragement they should eventually do well.

SCHOOL REPORTS SATISFACTORY

Average Attendance of Pupils Keeps High Principals State

Attendance figures for the month of December for the various schools were submitted to the school board last night by the respective principals as follows:

Borden street school - total, 280; attendance per centage, 94.86.

Booth school - total 377; attendance percentage, 91.48.

High school - total, 131; actually attending, 129.

Borden Street

It was reported by Miss S. A. Mills, principal of Borden Street School, that Tom Savoff, the 17-year old Bulgarian youth, was proving a hindrance to the progress of an elementary class in which he was enrolled. Through education in the Old Country, he was well advanced in all subjects except English of which he knew very little and in which he required special tuition. On motion of Trustees Rochester and Casey, it was decided that the youth in question be requested to discontinue attendance in public school until he had learned more of the English language.

Miss Mills also reported on the October exams, in the various divisions of the Borden Street School. Satisfactory progress was being made in all grades but the Entrance Class work was suffering through the fact that the class contained several students who had been promoted on probation and were not making good progress. There was no room for them in the next division lower.

Money raised at a recent school concert, Miss Mills reported, was being devoted to the purchase of supplementary readers. Book-cases, which had not been built according to specification, had been repaired and were now very satisfactory.

February Beginners

Miss Mills and D. H. Hartness, principal of Booth School, were questioned as to the number of beginners that were expected in February. Miss Mills stated that six were contemplating entering Borden Street School and Mr. Hartness reported twelve for Booth School. It was felt that these could be handled in the present classes without engaging new teachers.

High School

Principal Brady reported 44 boys and 87 girls in attendance at the High School. Three new pupils had been admitted at the first of this term and 10 had left at the Christmas holidays.

Mr. Brady reported the school premises in good condition. The matter of purchasing blinds for the High School was left in the hands of the secretary.

S. E. Parker, chairman of the board, inquired about physical drill work in the High School. Mr. Brady stated that it was intended to resume this when more favorable weather came in the spring. Signalling and first aid classes were also to be instituted. Mr. Brady pointed out that such instruction as this was outside the regular curriculum and was given gratuitously by the teachers. It was given by officers of the militia department in southern schools.

The charm of the trip through the Rocky Mountains on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Prince Rupert and Edmonton is already becoming widely known although the railway has only been in operation for a few months. Eastern travellers speak very highly of the trip.

An offer from E. H. Shockley, who is disposing of his planing mill stock, to sell the school board a quantity of quarter cut oak at $19.50 was left in the hands of the secretary at last night's meeting. Donald Ross, manual training instructor, stated that the material could be used to good advantage in his work providing the price was satisfactory.

Chairman Parkoe reported at last night's meeting of the school board that arrangements had been made to proceed with the prosecution of a pool room keeper who, it was alleged, had allowed boys on his premises. A conference between the city solicitor and one of the boys in question had been arranged as a preliminary step. The other boy in the case had left town and was not returning.

Trustee Orme reported at last night's meeting of the school board that some cases of alleged truancy had come to his ears. Secretary Vance stated that this was probably a mistaken idea in view of the chicken-pox epidemic which had been keeping a number of children out of school. This view was supported by Principals Hartness and Brady who reported that there were no complaints of truancy.

DANGER OF TOO MANY PEOPLE

CHICAGO, Jan. 2. — Persons living will see a population of 250,000,000 in the United States if the present rate of increase keeps up, according to Professor A. B. Wolfe of Ohio State University, speaking here before the American Statistical Association. But it will not keep up, in the professor's opinion. He is fairly certain the women themselves, the potential mothers of the future, will take measures to prevent it.

"Unless increase is quickly and greatly retarded, reaching the saturation point is a matter of only a few generations at most, not thousands of years as popularly supposed," Professor Wolfe said. "In the absence of an improbable revolutionary improvement in agriculture, we shall be pointedly confronted with the choice of reducing either our birth rate or our standard of living. A very essential part of the population problem is to get the people to see that they are confronted with a condition, not a theory.

Unthinking People

Education, Enfranchisement and British Citizenship Offered as Solution of Indian Land Claims

(By G. Harrison.)

The Indians, in their land contentions, have somehow or other, got themselves mixed up with advisers who seem more determined on mischief than on justice, but justice must be done notwithstanding. What then can be done to end this ceaseless jangling over the Indian land question? At the present time, the Indians have excellent reservations with the best land in the province in them and each reservation and band of Indians in the province must be dealt with on its respective merits.

I would in the first place strongly advise that all the younger generation who are able to read and write and are striving to live as good citizens be given the franchise and be allowed all the privileges and responsibilities of natural born British subjects. This would be the first step towards their emancipation from the reservation laws and restrictions which I consider a great hindrance to their advancement and civilization.

Local Jealousies

We, who have lived so long with the Indians know that under the reservation discipline as individuals they are not encouraged to do their duty. By this I mean that the reservation is held in common for all living therein, and that no one is entitled to more of it than another; therefore, should anyone desire to improve a certain portion of it for his own particular purpose and derive a benefit therefrom, a considerable amount of jealousy is engendered against him as though he were getting more privileges than he was entitled to. Secondly, a sufficient part of each reservation should be set apart for the old people and those who refuse to be franchised, which would only be a small proportion, and the remainder could be divided equally amongst the male adults over eighteen years of age that desire to be franchised. Let titles also be given to them so that they could either hold or dispose of their holdings as white men do when they are satisfied they are receiving a fair price for their properties.

Give Homesteads

I would not advise that the Crown should sell their reserves and hand the money over to the Indians, as this would only have a bad effect and cause trouble. Outside of the small acreage required for the old people, cut the reservations into 160 acre homesteads and let each franchised male adult be given his title, and should there not be sufficient land in these reserves to give each man 160 acres, the government of British Columbia would, I feel convinced, after matters had gone so far, allow those who were unable to get homesteads in their old reserves have the privilege of taking up pre-emption claims on any part of the vacant lands at their disposal. By so treating the franchised Indians they would, then be placed on a level with white men as far as obtaining land is concerned. They would then have every inducement to do their duty, and I have not the least doubt but that the majority of them would become useful and respected citizens of our great Canadian nation. Thus by a gradual process and in due course of time the whole of these reservations could be sub-divided and all the Indians admitted to citizenship, for I am fully convinced that under the present reservation system there is no encouragement whatsoever for individual effort, and this certainly is morally wrong.

If these few suggestions were carried out and the Indians treated as white men and allowed to assume all the responsibilities of white men, then we should hear no more about their supposed ownership of the country.

Board at Final Meeting Last Night Says Nice Things about Miss Mortimer

REPORT FOR YEAR

At the last meeting of the library board for the year held in the library building last night with President G. G. Hacker in the chair, Miss Violet Mortimer, the Librarian was complimented on having carried out the work so well. Each member of the board spoke appreciatively of the excellent work done and of the unfailing courtesy of Miss Mortimer. Alderman Evitt said it was a pleasure to think a Prince Rupert girl had been able to take up the work where Miss Grant left off and carry it on so successfully.

The report of the librarian on the work of the year just concluded showed that there had been 32,027 borrowings as against 31,474 the previous year. This showed that on an average each book in the library had been out eight times. The borrowings were classified as follows:

Fiction	22,843
Philosophy	241
Religion	178
Sociology	187
Language	43
Science	361
Useful Arts	444
Fine Arts	283
Literature	784
Biography	389
History	444
Travel	618
Juvenile	6,270

The board found themselves at the end of the year with $7.58 on hand after paying all accounts. They prepared a tentative estimate of costs for next year which they will recommend to the incoming board.

The Librarian reported that during the year there had been 595 books received by purchase, 251 by gift and 109 had been withdrawn giving a net increase of 737. However some of the books were in need of rebinding and an extra amount should be placed in the estimates for this work.

December Report

The report of the librarian for the month of December showed that 3,083 books had been loaned, or an average of 124.1 a day. Forty-three new members had been enrolled and six had cancelled, leaving a total of 1,740, about one thousand of whom were active borrowers.

The librarian further stated that twelve books had been donated to the library during the month and 32 acquired by purchase while two had been cancelled, leaving a total of 4,190 now on the shelves or in circulation.

SPECIAL GRANTS TO BE PAID TEACHERS

Board Decides to Meet Applications of Four Members of Staff Who Took Summer School Courses

The school board last night decided to pay to Misses Scott, Mills, Macdonald and Mercer grants of $50 provided for under the former schedule in the event of members of the teaching staffs taking summer school work. The board had previously denied paying over these sums in view of the fact that application had not been promptly and properly made.

Miss Mills brought the matter to the attention of the board

WHOOPING COUGH IS A VERY SERIOUS TROUBLE HER 5 CHILDREN HAD IT

Mrs. S. H. CRAIG, R.R. No. 1, Palmerston, Ont., writes:—Two years ago, last winter, our five children had very severe attacks of whooping cough. We were recommended, by our druggist, to use which we did with the greatest of success. It cleared out the throat and bronchial tubes, and loosened the phlegm so that they were able to cough it up, and in no time I had quenched the 'whooping'.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

"Dr. Wood's" is put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, and has been on the market for the past 35 years. Be sure and get the genuine.

again and reported that applications had been properly made by the teachers involved through Mr. Campbell, then superintendent. Mr. Campbell had apparently never forwarded these applications to the board.

Members of the board took the view that the applications had been made in good faith and, as such grants were then provided for in the schedule, it was moved by Trustee Oeme and seconded by Trustee Casby that they be paid as requested. The motion carried.

Such grants will, however, not be made in the future as provision for them has been wiped off the salary schedule.

MANY CLAIMS TO VALUABLE LEGACY

Correct Use of Famous Title has Encouraged Pretenders

About the year 1880 the pioneer prospectors of British Columbia discovered a remarkable coal. After many trials and tests it was positively established that this coal represented the acme of economy, efficiency and comfort.

To this fuel they gave the new famous name of "Nanaimo-Wellington," representing all that was best in coal.

No sooner was it found that the public insisted on getting this Wonder Fuel than other coals were put on the market under very similar names. So much so that the public were at a loss to say which was the genuine and which the imitation. Of course it was easy after a trial—a single sack will prove it—more lasting and more powerful heat from a few shovelfuls, hardly any ash, no clinker or rock, all these points stand out when you make a practical test in furnace, fireplace, heater or cook-stove.

This famous Nanaimo-Wellington coal is sold only by Albert & McCaffery to whom all orders should be phoned direct. Prompt delivery service given by their own teams and trucks. Their phone numbers are 116 and 564.

ROTORSHIP IS NOT BEAUTIFUL

One Who Saw Her Trial Trip Tells About his Experiences

The English papers are devoting a good deal of space to the rotorship that was tried out in Europe recently. The London Times' special correspondent says:

The Buckau presents an extraordinary and somewhat un-beautiful appearance. Before her conversion into a rotor-boat she was a three-masted schooner of 600 tons. She now carries two revolving towers or cylinders of thin sheet-iron each about 50ft. high, 8 1/2ft. in diameter, and capped with a kind of flange or metal lid. She looks something like a steamship with two grotesquely enlarged towering funnels so wide apart that one is well forward, the other well aft. The hull is painted green, the two towers are painted grey. Apparently it has been stated that they are grooved or roughened, but this is an error, for they are just as smooth as the coat of paint on the sheet-iron and the small rivets have left them.

At a distance, and especially in today's mist, it is the great towers that first come into sight. The hull is inconspicuous by comparison. The absence of canvas sail or of any propeller (save a small auxiliary screw that only works in emergency), and nothing but the silently revolving towers, make her an uncanny object as she "glides" through the water.

Run by Four Men

She passed us towards two o'clock in the afternoon. She was sailing in a free wind blowing at seven or eight miles an hour. Her own speed was five or six knots. She was very steady in the water, and had no perceptible list. Just as she was growing faint in mist the aft tower slowed down. She began to turn, and then the aft tower began to revolve again while the forward tower slowed down. Then she headed towards us, and soon sailed by at the same even pace, both towers describing about 120 revolutions to the minute.

It would have been interesting to see how close she could sail to the wind, but the experiment was not attempted. She was being run by four men, a considerable reduction of the number who must have been needed to run the original schooner. A small diesel engine works the towers, and then there is the small auxiliary engine; thus the amount of space left for cargo is far greater than on a steamship.

Towers Large

The towers are large but relatively fragile (the iron sheeting is not more than two millimetres thick). Would they resist the battering of a hurricane and the smashing impetus of heavy seas? The inventor apparently has good reason to think that they would, but this is one, and perhaps the most important, of the things that await a conclusive trial.

ashes and coal.

Cable Parted

The fight back across the straits with tug and barge safe was all but won and the shelter and safety in the lee of Triple Island was but one mile distant after Capt. Pearson had skillfully navigated the reefs and shoals in the face of a furious gale and driving rain when the tow line from tug to barge caught bottom and snapped, the Bergamon going adrift.

Understanding that the large salvage tug Nitinal was at Prince Rupert and his own boat in a serious plight, Capt. Pearson made the decision to come in here with all speed possible and send the Nitinal to the rescue. Arriving here at 10 o'clock, he found that there was not a boat in the port that could venture into the storm and live itself. Then radio messages were sent in all directions for help that might be in neighboring waters.

"Had I known that there was no boat here that could be sent out, I would never have come in myself but would have stayed by the Bergamon in spite of the danger we ourselves would have been in," declared Capt. Pearson. In the meantime, the Massett is moored at the dry dock here and her crew are still working to pump her out. It would be suicidal for them to venture out again, it was deemed by the crew, although Capt. Pearson was still willing this morning to make another dash for the Bergamon.

Drifting Toward Island

When the Massett left the vicinity of the accident, the Bergamon was drifting towards Dundas island but Capt. Pearson was of the opinion that she may have missed hitting it.

There was not even one of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co.'s trawlers in a position this morning to go to the rescue, Capt. Pearson stated.

Capt. Wingate is well known in Prince Rupert. Formerly he was master of the C.G.M.M. Canadian Winner and at least once brought that vessel here. About a year ago, he left the C.G.M.M. to go into business for himself. The names of the other members of the Bergamon's crew were not available on the Massett. They were signed on at Vancouver.

A remarkable new departure in motion-pictures was inaugurated in this photo-play, every scene being filmed in its natural colors by the Technicolor process, showing a wonderful contrast to the ordinary black and white photography. Stirring incidents include a fight with a rattlesnake, an avalanche in the Grand Canyon, the hero's 60 foot leap into the sand which completely buries him and a first-class fistie battle. A delightful romance runs all the way through mingled with comedy. Strong cast. Jack Holt, Billie Dove, Noah Beery, James Mason, George Irving, Kathlyn Williams and others.
