Let A New York Writer Have Column.

Prince Rupert people doubtless sometimes tire of reading editorial articles by the same writer. He has the same style all the time and owing to lack of time and opportunity does not read as much as he should. Here then is an opportunity to let a New York editorial writer fill the column. It is from one of the journals that is not illustrated but that depends upon its literary quality and intrinsic interest for the patronage it receives from the public. Commenting on the race to Nome with anti-toxin for the diphtheria sufferers "The Drifter," one of the regular editorial writers for "The Nation" says:

The Musher's Account Of His Terrible Journey.

When the Drifter reads the musher's account of his sixty-mile journey, carrying diphtheria anti-toxin to Nome, he is reminded once more that the history of man is a chronicle of impossibilities. "It kept getting colder. It went down to 28 below. The wind was fierce. I don't know how fast, but I've never felt it faster. On my head I had reindeer parka and hood and a drill parka over that. But the wind was so strong that it went right through the skins. Along a ways is Spruce Creek. It's always the worst spot for wind in any kind of weather. The wind was picking up the snow like it was a comb. My right cheek got frozen. I couldn't even see the wheel dog. It was dark, too—black. The trail turned so that the wind was with me. That boosted me along so I made the twelve and a half miles to Safety in eighty minutes."

Man Rises Above His Surroundings.

Bitter cold, darkness, icy wind, clinging snow could not quench the spark that drove on the dog team and its valuable cargo. The driver says that without his lead dog he could not have followed the trail; the driver maintains that without that indefinable spark, or perhaps the burning flame, within this creature we call man, the attempt to follow the trail would never have been made. Man is a feeble animal compared with a hundred others; most of the time he is content to take the line of least resistance, to maintain himself in comfortable places, to think of sleep, or food, or warmth, or leisure. And then the occasion arises for him to renounce these things and live for a while in pain; and some urge within him for adventure, or fame, or justice, or mercy makes him take up the challenge and accomplish the impossible or burst his little frame with trying. The world looked on in astonishment while Terence MacSwiney took more than two months to die of starvation for a principle. It hears tales of treks through the desert, of burning thirst and raging fever, of cold being borne, and privation; of Dr. Grenfell of Labrador sitting out all night on an ice-floe, with insufficient clothing, waiting calmly for rescue, killing two of his dogs and wrapping himself in their skins, and at last apologizing to his rescuers for causing them so much trouble; it reads of Doughty, frail and even ill, making his way through Arabia; it knows that every stormy night men at coast-guard stations are ready to venture out.

Distinguishes Man From The Beasts.

Such facts as these are ordinarily forgotten or made the subject of cheap romances; they are, nevertheless, the chief thing that distinguishes man from the other beasts. It is not only courage, or ability to endure pain and hardship; it is the fact that man alone will attempt difficult and arduous tasks for some reason other than his own safety or hunger. He is, indeed, the quintessence of dust; he is weak and frail and selfish and unreasonable—most of the time. When the time comes for him to act like a god, however, he does so, no one, least of all himself, knowing quite why. Nor is this occasional capacity for superhuman endeavor limited to physical things; it turns out Socrates, Euripides, Milton, Lincoln; it means a renunciation of the flesh for whatever urge is uppermost at the time. It does not happen every day, but if it happened much more rarely than it does, it would still be a conclusive answer to those who find life meaningless because it is mediocre.

MEN'S BANQUET IS SUCCESSFUL

Large Number Attend Annual Event at St. Andrew's Anglican Church

The annual men's banquet at St. Andrew's Anglican Church held last night in the Church Hall was very successful. The seats at the tables were all taken and an excellent spread was provided. There was a program of good music and high class addresses and following an evening of pure enjoyment the guests were sent away with something serious to think about, given them by Rev. Archdeacon Rix. A. E. Bazett-Jones presided. The whole arrangements for the supper were in the hands of the Women's Auxiliary of the Church, headed by Mrs. Andrews as convener, and with Mrs. W. Orchard, Mrs. Willett, Mrs. Philpott and Mrs. A. E. Wright in charge of the respective tables. Those assisting were Mrs. Eviit, Mrs. Ponder, Miss Marsh, Miss Ellett, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Hinton, Mrs. Gade, Mrs. M. M. Stephens, Mrs. Crowe, Mrs. Parkin, Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Holby, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Vickers, Mrs. Homer, Mrs. Nicholls, Miss Carter, Mrs. Bix, Mrs. Arnot, Mrs. Groer, Mrs. Pyle, Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Max Collison, Miss Lennox, Mrs. Trevor Clark, Mrs. Buzh, Mrs. Woodland, Mrs. Barnsley, and Mrs. Bazett-Jones.

The Program

The program, which was in the hands of a committee headed by Mr. Bazett-Jones was an excellent one, including addresses by American Consul Wakefield, J. C. Brady and the chairman; selections by the orchestra consisting of W. Vaughan Davies, J. A. Kirkendall, George Rorie, Jr., H. Gawthorn and George Woodland; instrumental selections on the violin by Miss Marjorie Langester and on the xylophone by George Rorie; vocal selections by C. G. Minus, Mrs. H. C. Fraser, John Davey, Mrs. McMillan and Miss Dabry.

The tables were decorated with candles and flowers and as the guests sat down presented a very beautiful appearance, especially as the electric light fuse had burned out and the only lights in the hall were what seemed like myriads of candles in silver candlesticks. However the light soon came on and the feast began.

Mr. Bazett-Jones made a humorous opening address in which he thanked everybody for services rendered or about to be rendered in connection with the event.

Consul Wakefield

Consul Wakefield spoke on peace between Canada and the United States in which he mentioned the ideals, hopes and aspirations that held the two nations together as friends and neighbors. He spoke of the unsettled condition of the world and suggested that even the efforts of bootleggers in running liquor into the United States contrary to U.S. laws was not sufficient to impair the friendship existing between the two countries.

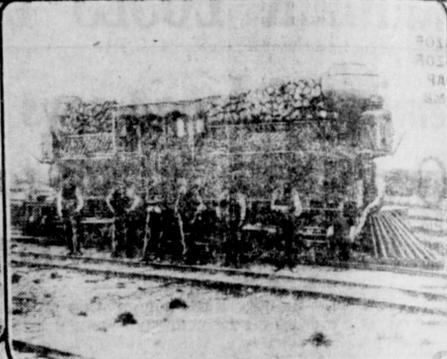

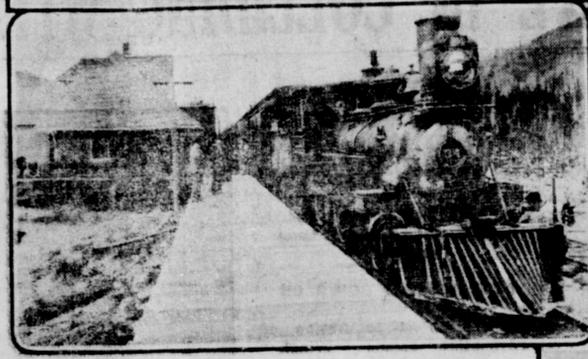

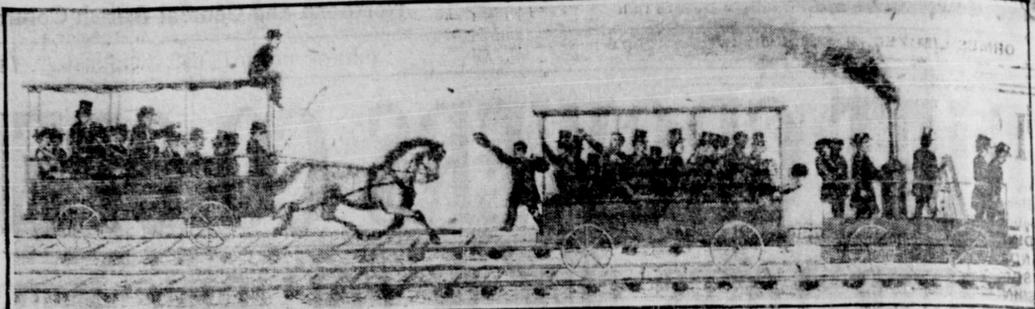

J. C. Brady spoke on Humor, which he considered the most necessary thing in the world today, illustrating his points with humorous stories. Humor, he said, was necessary for success and happiness. It was a God given gift. There was more comedy than tragedy in the world. He referred to the humor of Dickens, whom he classed as the greatest humorist in the world. However no country had a monopoly of humor. It was of the very essence of courage. It was found in the trenches during the war. The humorous man was the big man, kind, sympathetic and one who forgave easily. Here was a message to the world to develop real humor, which was found in every walk of life. The speaker said he regretted the tendency to omit reading the humorous classics stories. At no time were there greater opportunities than occurred today to take the greatest out of life.

Applying it locally Mr. Brady said what was needed in Prince Rupert as never before was to meet difficulties with courage and to see the humorous side of everything.

Fortieth Anniversary of Canada's First Trans-Continental System Marks Centenary of Locomotive.

TWO events make 1925 notable in the annals of rail transportation. It marks the centenary of the locomotive engine and the fortieth anniversary of the completion of Canada's first transcontinental, the Canadian Pacific Railway's main line from Montreal to Vancouver. The first opened a new chapter in the history of the world; the second a new chapter in the history of Canada.

Looking back over the events of the intervening century it will readily be agreed that the introduction of the locomotive was one of the most important events in modern history. It has enriched the life of the Old World by delivering to it at low cost the products of the ends of the earth; while it has brought within the reach of the pioneer on the frontiers of civilization highly finished products which can be developed only where a numerous population makes possible a minute division of labor. It has given the settler in Northern Alberta, over 5,000 miles distant from London, a market in that great metropolis just as certain as that enjoyed by the English farmer. It has also made the same settler as much a customer of London as are the people of near-by countries.

The locomotive engine made its first appearance in Canada in 1837 on the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railroad. This road was only 16 miles long, and ran between the town of La Prairie on the St. Lawrence River and St. John's on the Richelieu. This railway was opened in 1836, being operated by horses during the first year.

However, it was not until with the incorporation of the Grand Trunk Railway in 1852 that the railway era in Canada really began. While a beginning had been made in 1837, still during the next fifteen years only 50 miles of line were added. The Grand Trunk linked up Ontario and Quebec, and gave both provinces direct connection with the Atlantic coast through Portland. It also laid the foundations for direct connection between that port and Chicago. Much railway building followed in Ontario. The next project of importance was the building of the Intercolonial, which was begun in 1868, and completed in 1875. This gave Ontario and Quebec direct connection through Canadian territory with a Canadian port on the Atlantic open all the year round. In the meantime an agitation for the building of a railway to connect Ontario and Quebec with the Pacific Coast culminated in the incorporation of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

On November 7th, 1885 at Craigellachie in Eagle Pass, a gorge in the Gold Range, British Columbia, Sir Donald A. Smith, afterwards Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, drove the last spike in the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, thus connecting Montreal with Vancouver. This was a notable event, not only in the history of Canada, but of the British Empire. By the connecting of the Pacific Coast with Montreal Canada secured its first transcontinental railway. Indeed, it was the first real transcontinental on this continent, for while in 1869 the east coast of the United States was connected with San Francisco by rail, and several other such connections have been added, still even now no single railway in the United States extends from Coast to Coast as does the Canadian Pacific in Canada. November 7th was also a notable day for the British Empire in that the Canadian Pacific provided a shortcut from Britain to the Orient. As Sir Charles Tupper in his Reminiscences has pointed out, it brought Yokohama three weeks nearer to London than it was by the Suez Canal.

The history of the Canadian Pacific Railway is the history of Greater Canada. When it was first proposed there were only four provinces in Confederation, Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Between 1870 and 1873 Prince Edward Island, Manitoba, and British Columbia entered, the last mentioned on the express condition that it would be connected with Eastern Canada by a line of railway. At that time Manitoba was a mere postage stamp in dimensions, and the regions between it and the Rockies were unorganized territory.

The promise of the Canadian Pacific not only brought British Columbia into Confederation, and gave Canada a window on the Pacific; but the building of it, by establishing direct and quick communication between the east and the west fixed the destiny of the vast regions west of the Great Lakes and north of the 49th parallel. The ties of sentiment were thus strengthened by the economic link of steel. Fifty years ago it was by no means certain that the territories between Lake Superior and the Rockies would not pass into the hands of the United States. The shortest route from Eastern Canada to Fort Garry, now Winnipeg, was via Chicago and St. Paul. Trade moved north and south rather than east and west, so that political absorption seemed likely to follow American economic penetration.

bishop DuVernet, who had always brought them a thoughtful message. He asked that they stand in silence for a few moments out of respect for his name, which was done.

The Archdeacon mentioned that this year he was unable to look after the annual banquet and it was relegated to a committee which handled it just as well as he would have done himself, possibly better. He complimented the head of that committee Mr. Bazett-Jones. He urged those present not to shirk their responsibilities. There was always some work they could do better than anyone else, either in business, the community or the church. Incidentally he said he was doubtful of the spirituality of the men who did not go to church. He urged all to attend both for their own benefit and as an inspiration to the clergyman and the rest of the congregation. It was not necessary to believe everything. All the church insisted on was a belief in God, in the Saviour and eternal life.

STARTED FOR HOME LAST NOVEMBER REACHED IT TODAY

Miss Edith Taylor, Eleven Years of Age, Had Many Difficulties Coming from Old Country

WINNIPEG, Feb. 25.—A century and a half ago it took forty days to cross the Atlantic ocean but the travellers of those days had nothing on eleven year old Edith Taylor, who started for Canada in November last and passed through Winnipeg tonight on the last lap of her journey to Calgary over Canadian National lines. Nor were the hardships and disappointments of the early voyagers so much greater than those she had suffered in her efforts to return to her mother, Mrs. Nellie Taylor, in Canada after a four and a half year visit with her grand parents in the Old Country. Little Miss Taylor first booked passage home for November 18. The authorities, however insisted on a birth certificate. Before that arrived two months nearly had passed. She finally arrived at Halifax on January 18 to be taken with appendicitis and rushed to the hospital the moment she landed. When she recovered from the operation three weeks later and all reservations had been made for her to resume her trip an attack of flu overtook her, causing a week's further delay.

In spite of it all, Miss Edith is the most cheerful and content little traveller imaginable and remarked at the Canadian National depot here tonight, when informed she would be in Saskatoon tomorrow, "we do get along fast, don't we." Her travelling companion, no doubt, has a good deal to do with the lack of loneliness, a beautiful doll given her while in hospital and provided with a sumptuous and most suitable wardrobe during her convalescence.

U.S. Congress May Abolish Flexible Clause in Their Law

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(By Canadian Press).—As the present session of Congress moves toward a close, there is growing talk and speculation over the way the tariff question will be presented in the new Congress. A recent statement of Chairman Green of the House Ways and Means Committee to the effect that he will seek to bring about the repeal of the flexible tariff provisions of the existing law is one phase of the matter that is attracting interest.

Apart from the interest in the flexible tariff question itself, the statement of Chairman Green means that he looks for the tariff question to be an issue in the new Congress and revision to be sought. Pressure from the agricultural industry for higher rates on agricultural products is one of the strong reasons why it seems likely the revision of the tariff schedules will have to be considered.

Abolition of the flexible tariff will meet with opposition from the friends of a so-called scientific tariff. It is true the flexible tariff provisions of the present law have proven almost farcical in the way they have worked out or, rather, have not worked out. They have had the strong opposition of the high tariff elements from the beginning. These elements are determined not to allow any commission or other administrative agency to have a say about adjustment of duties. They do not want flexible rates but want rates which can be dominated in large measure by the Ways and Means Committee of the House and the Finance Committee of the Senate, committees which they make it a point to control as far as possible.

As a matter of fact, the flexible tariff provisions of the tariff law have never been given a fair trial. With half the tariff commission against using them to lower rates and with the administration committed to high tariffs it is easy to see there has been scant opportunity for their exercise. If put into the hands of a commission and president in favor of low or moderate tariffs, however, the situation would be very different. The high tariff elements recognize this fact and they are anxious to wipe them from the statute books and will try hard to do so at the first opportunity. The tariff commission, presumably, will be kept but it will be reduced to an investigative status that will make it of little influence on tariff rates.

LEADER WRITER IS SHOCKED TO HEAR OF SKYLARKS IN CAGES

Most right-minded persons will be surprised and shocked to learn that English skylarks, in wire-cages about a foot square, are being offered for sale in Vancouver.

Such a sight in England "sets all heaven in a rage;" how much greater the fury when the bird of the high air has been trapped, boxed and shipped six thousand miles to a country where liberty is glorified, so that some sentimentalist may be reminded of home?

It is a terrible penalty to inflict on a wild creature because it has a pleasing song.

Were our native meadow larks so treated, the law of two nations would boom and roar in vengeance, but no law apparently

WRIGLEY'S "after every meal"

Parents—encourage the children to care for their teeth! Give them Wrigley's. It removes food particles from the teeth. Strengthens the gums. Combats acid mouth. Refreshing and beneficial!

defends the bird of freedom that inspired Wordsworth and Shelley.

The skylark has been brought out here before, but the earlier importers gave the bird its liberty, hoping it would thrive as do other immigrants, and it may be heard now occasionally in the open spaces about Victoria.

Science has impressed the song of both skylark and nightingale on gramophone records. There are pictures, descriptions and poems innumerable to serve those who sigh for them. There is no excuse in reason or in mercy for caging the soaring songster and sentencing its wild wings and hopeful heart to life imprisonment in order that a weak repetition may be given in that high carolling which falls falsely everywhere but over its homeland meadow.

JOURNALISM NERVE WRACKING BUSINESS SAYS LORD BURNHAM

LONDON, Feb. 20.—"Journalism is a nerve-wracking profession," Lord Burnham told the guests at a Newspaper Press Fund concert.

"Although our profession," he continued, "has a great deal of attraction superior to any other, it involves a vast amount of wear and tear. There are very few who do not suffer from it. Sometimes, looking back at the years of the war, I am surprised that we were not broken down by the anxieties and responsibilities we bore. Those anxieties and responsibilities may not be recognized so much in Downing Street as we know them in Fleet Street. You know the stress and strain we went through in our different capacities to serve the Commonwealth to the best advantage in its hour of desperation."

February is Hard on the Skin

What with cold winds and bright sun the face has a hard time of it. Using Baby's Oxy Soap and washing in tepid or warm water—rinsing well and drying perfectly will usually prevent chaps or scalding and ensure skin health and beauty.

It's far better to keep the skin beautiful than to have to cover up blemishes with powders.

Coal Prospects of Bulkley Valley Give Promise of an Industry Being Developed

(Eighth of Series of Articles on Mining in Bulkley Valley, based on Smithers Board of Trade Report)

Coal seams are found in various parts of the Bulkley Valley district and it is probable that possibly in the near future an important coal mining industry may be developed. For many years some of the valuable deposits have been held with a view to development. Some of them have been tested with diamond drills and the co-operation of the railways has been sought to help market the product. Transportation is the chief drawback in nearly all cases. Building spur lines is expensive and without them it is almost impossible to compete with other sources of supply.

The report of the Telkwa Board of Trade deals with the mines briefly as follows:

Telkwa Coal Mines

At present the only operating mine is that of the Telkwa Collieries in the vicinity of Coal Creek, about five miles from Telkwa. This is owned by J. McNeil of Telkwa and others, and has operated steadily throughout the winter season for the past two years. The coal being shipped is from a seam six to eight feet in extent and other seams in the vicinity are owned by the same parties. It is hauled to Telkwa on sleighs and there shipped, chiefly to points between Prince Rupert and Prince George. Some thousands of tons have been mined in the past two seasons. It is hoped that larger scale mining will develop in the future, though without a spur from the railway this may be impracticable.

Another very large coal field is found in the Copper (Zymoetz) River valley about twenty-five miles west of Smithers. This field is held by Vancouver interests. Development has been carried on at different times and the field is well-proven but until such time as a railway is built to it the actual mining and shipping of coal is probably out of the question.

EDMONTON AND FREIGHT RATES

Newspaper of That City Welcomes Announcement of C. G. McGeer on Reduction

A most welcome and cheering piece of information was given by C. G. McGeer, railway counsel for the British Columbia government, at the board of trade luncheon on Friday, when he said that he has received reliable and definite assurance that freight rate discriminations under the mountain scale differential will shortly be removed. The Alberta public has been hoping, working, and waiting for such action, and it is gratifying to know that it is soon to be taken. That the justice of the case is so apparent and its arguments so inescapable will not detract from the satisfaction with which the news will be received.

IN THE MORNING HER TONGUE WAS COATED HAD BAD TASTE IN MOUTH

Miss Pearle, L. Zinck, Barss Corner, N.S., writes:—"I was awfully troubled with my liver, and used to get such dizzy spells I would have to sit down while I was doing my work."

I suffered in this way until a friend of mine who had used your ceived.

Mr. McGeer did well to point out that in its efforts to get the discriminatory rates removed the west has not been asking for favors. The question has been presented and argued always on the ground that the present scale works out unfairly to western interests and that an adjustment of rates in such a way as to remove the existing inequalities and discriminations is necessary for the well-being not only of the west but of the whole dominion.

Western people know and appreciate this fact. It has been misunderstood in other quarters, however, and repeated emphasis of the western position—which is that a square deal only is wanted and asked for—will do good.

When things are made right, as Mr. McGeer has assurance they will be, the many-sided interests of westernmost Canada will quickly feel a new impetus, and the righteousness of the action will be demonstrated in a ready response to the relief thus given. For railway freight rates have a very close relation to the life of these provinces.

EDMONTON MINISTERS OPPOSED TO USE OF SCHOOLS FOR DANCING

EDMONTON, Feb. 24. — The Edmonton Ministerial Association has been protesting against the use of the school buildings for dancing. The buildings are used for recreational purposes and a schedule of charges therefor has been arranged.

Rev. A. G. Bingham, Baptist, led the attack in an interview with the committee in charge. He said he was opposed to dancing under any conditions and quoted figures obtained from police women to show the ill effect of dancing on youthful morals.

PICKED UP LASCAR ON FLOATING BARREL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. — The submarine V-1, cruising in the freezing, black darkness off Thimble Shoals recently, swept her searchlights over the sea surface in response to a cry for help, and discovered a Lascar seaman clinging to a barrel tossed about by the waves.

Reporting to the Navy Department, Lieutenant Commander Pickering, said the sailor was lost overboard from the British steamship Lucerne. He was delirious and wore only a thin shirt when picked up, and the strangeness of the submarine added to his discomfiture until he was transferred to a pilot boat off Cape Henry.

BULLDOG TRAVELS TO TORONTO BY WAY OF RAILWAY BOX CARS

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Feb. 24. — From Moose Jaw to Toronto is a long journey for an unaccompanied dog, but a local bulldog has made the trip via the box car route.

Missing since last December the dog was found in Toronto by the police and turned over to the Humane Society, who traced its Moose Jaw owner by the license tag it carried. The dog was in a starving condition when found, the owner Mrs. Knowles, has been advised. It probably had been locked in a box car for a considerable length of time.

NEW HAZELTON

New Hazelton now claims to be a point of departure for the Dease Lake gold diggings. It is suggested that prospectors from the south leave the boat at Prince Rupert, take the train to New Hazelton and proceed thence overland to Telegraph Creek by pack-horse in the summer or by dog team in the winter. It is stated by local men who have been over the trail that it is by far the best route of any.
