SOLDIER SETTLEMENT BOARD IS BRINGING MANY SETTLERS TO CANADA

Action of Engineer is Upheld by City Council at Meeting last night

Councilman Casey Urges Dismissal of Official, but Fails to get Support; Talk of Resignation

Sharp differences of opinion arose at last night's council meeting between elements headed by Ald. Gasey on one hand and the city engineer on the other as to the methods being employed by the city engineer in the engaging and placing of men on the outside work of the public works department. Some rather serious charges and acrimonious remarks were directed at Ald. Gasey and Mayor Newton against the engineer and the man was reached when Ald. Gasey moved and Ald. Larsen seconded that Mr. Pearson be given thirty days' notice and that the city advertise for a successor to him. This motion which was presented in the form of an amendment failed to receive the support of the council, however, only the mover and seconder voting for it.

The whole matter, which engaged the council in a discussion which lasted for more than an hour and a half, was precipitated on the receipt of the following letter from the engineer:

"Dear Sirs—The advice of the party of 100 families to come to Alberta under the auspices of the Soldier Settlement Board and the Immigration Department are to reach me on March 31 from the British Isles. It is planned to bring all told, 100 families or 18,000 persons."

"We have farm jobs ready for every worker in the families brought over and farm buildings ready for them to occupy," said Walter S. Woods, supervisor of the Calgary branch of the Soldier Settlement Board.

RECENTS INTERFERENCE
This order was given after one of the many lengthy discussions regarding the engagement of both laborers and strawbosses, in which I maintain that if I was held responsible for the cost and general supervision of the work I should not be hampered by the interference of any member or members of the council as to the personnel of my organization.

The issuing of this order is directly opposed and very demoralizing to my system of making appointments. I have always chosen my strawbosses from the workmen who have shown particular aptitude for this class of work and for their ability to handle men. The Board of Works has instructed me to dismiss Jas. Cochrane, one of my most efficient strawbosses, and for no apparent reason whatever.

Since coming here two years ago, I have been gathering together and perfecting an organization which would give the people of this city full value for every dollar expended. My work speaks for itself. During these two years I enjoyed the confidence and co-operation of each council and I am prepared to stake my professional reputation on the work accomplished, and challenge comparison of cost with any other cities of Western Canada, under similar conditions, but if this council is going to force me to engage any man whose only qualification is that of "old timer," "property holder," or being "married," I can only say that I will be unable to assume the responsibility of the cost. I have at all times been ready and eager

ELEVATOR WORK IS IN FULL STRIDE

Work on the construction of the terminal grain elevator at the mouth of Morse Creek is now getting into full stride and good progress is reported. A double shift is being employed in bringing the gravel and sand across the harbor from McNicholl Creek and, yesterday, a double shift was put on the tidewater excavation.

PROGRESSIVES
ARE LIBERAL

HON. GEORGE P. GRAHAM, MINISTER OF RAILWAYS, TELLS WHY THEY VOTE FOR KING

OTTAWA, Mar. 10.—In a speech in the House of Commons Hon. G. P. Graham, minister of railways, spoke of the tendency on the part of Progressives to support the Liberals in the House.

"The suggestion has been made," said Mr. Graham, "that the Progressive party has favored this government. Well, really I do not see how they could help it, and I am in earnest in that. The progressive measures of this government, though called Liberal, are still progressive, a great many of them, and although on occasions the Liberal government and its supporters could not see their way to go all the distance with the Progressives, sometimes perhaps only a short distance, at all events the government went further than the hon. gentlemen opposite, and consequently if the Progressives voted at all they would have to support those who came nearer to their ideals. I do not see how a Progressive could go home and ask Progressive electors for their support if he had done anything else."

FRENCH EXCURSION AGAIN THIS YEAR

Special Train Will Carry Party to West Over National Lines

MONTREAL, Mar. 10.—Because of the success which last year attended the tours known as "La Liaison Francaise" Rev. Father J. A. Ouellette director of the Missionary Colonizers and organizer of these study trips has decided to conduct a similar excursion this year for the benefit of such individuals as are interested in a survey of the colonization work being carried on in the west.

As was the case last year the travellers will proceed to the various points on a special train over the lines of the Canadian National Railways, arrangements to this end have been effected through the co-operation of the colonization and development department of that company and by the intermediary of G. Price-Green, commissioner, who is collaborating with Father Ouellette in the plans for the tour.

Another King's Tomb Found near the Pyramids in Egypt Supposed to be 6,000 years old

What it is hoped will prove to be the tomb of Seneferu, a sovereign reigning about 4,000 years before Christ, has been discovered near the Great Pyramids by the Boston Harvard expedition, which has been working in the vicinity for several years. The tomb was only opened on Sunday and the darkness is so complete and the state of the excavated rock so perilous that much preparation must be made before a thorough examination can be made.

LONDON, Mar. 10.—Egyptologists agree that if the tomb found near the pyramids of Giza proves to be that of the pharaoh who immediately preceded the renowned pyramid builder Cheops, its importance is greater than that of Tutankhamen, because the contents, which would be thousands of years old, may throw light on a remote and little known period.

ART EASSON IS HONORED

Elks Were Out in Force at Farewell Banquet in St. Regis Cafe Last Night

To honor one of their most popular and energetic members of several years' standing, local Elks to the number of some forty-five sat down last night in the St. Regis Cafe at a farewell banquet in compliment to Art Easson who leaves tonight for Vancouver whence he has been transferred in the service of the Royal Bank. It was an enthusiastic affair even though the spirit was tinged with a general feeling of regret at the impending departure of one who has made so many lasting friends in Prince Rupert.

L. Murray Fuller, exalted ruler of Lodge No. 46, B.P.O.E., was chairman and toastmaster. After the splendid supper, which was opened with Grace pronounced by Rev. Dr. H. R. Grant, chaplain, had been dispensed with, Mr. Fuller spoke briefly in proposing the toast to the guest of honor. This was observed in a most hearty manner both in speech and song. Mr. Fuller presented to Mr. Easson a handsome gold ring mounted with a ruby and inlaid with the Elks emblem. Among the speakers were Rev. Dr. Grant, Ben Self, W. E. Williscroft, Charles Folsom, Pete Solem, Fred Gilhuly and others, all of whom extolled the virtues of the departing member and expressed the general regret that was felt on the occasion of his leaving.

Mr. Easson replied to the honors that had been done him in a neat speech. There were, he said, a hundred and one reasons why he would like to remain in Prince Rupert but one stronger than them all was taking him south. That was to be with his mother. He amused his audience by singing his own song hit, "All Dressed Up and Nowhere To Go."

Among those who contributed to the program which was in progress from 6 until 9.30 were the Westholme Orchestra, E. Sabourin with solos, and Harry Astoria with impersonations. The affair broke up with the community singing of various farewell songs.

HON. CHARLES STEWART SAYS HE

SAY BUT GOVERNMENT NOT COMMITTED

OTTAWA, Mar. 10.—The government has not yet made up its mind in favor of any of the suggested routes for extension of the Peace River Railway. Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, informed Dr. M. Kennedy, Progressive member for Edmonton in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Kennedy quoted an Edmonton paper as saying the government favored Mountain Pass. Mr. Stewart said he personally favored whichever route the experts decided on.

ASK ROAD TO CONNECT DOCKS

CITY COUNCIL FORWARDS REQUEST
TO RAILWAY COMPANY TO LINK
UP WATERFRONT

A report from the board of works recommending that the Canadian National Railways be asked, through W. H. Tobey, divisional engineer, to construct a highway along the railway grade between the G.T.P. and government docks was adopted by the city council last night.

The matter had already been taken up with Hon. T. D. Pattullo, local member of the provincial government, who informed the city that nothing could be done by the government since such a road would have to be over railway property.

The city feels that more direct access between the two wharves is necessary.

ANTI-VACCINATION MEETING OF PROTEST

STUDENTS EXCLUDED FROM NORMAL SCHOOL AT VICTORIA CAUSE GATHERING

VICTORIA, Mar. 10.—A meeting of protest organized by anti-vaccination enthusiasts was held here and passed a resolution against the action of the provincial health department in refusing admission to the Normal school at Victoria of fifteen normal students who refused to be vaccinated under an order from Dr. H. E. Young, secretary of the board. There was talk of taking a test case to the courts.

The city council last night finally reconsidered and adopted a bylaw providing for the temporary borrowing of the sum of $75,000.

Ten Discoveries Of Great Moment.

H. G. Wells, the celebrated novelist and historian, in a magazine article tells what he considers to be the ten greatest discoveries the world has made. They are the implement, the taboo, speech, fire, domestication of animals, cultivation of the soil, subjugation of water, writing, finance and subjugation of distance.

In the article Wells gives his reasons for choosing these. To many possibly the greatest surprise will be the choice for second place of the taboo, the discovery that there were certain things which should not be done and which distinguish the human family from the animal. From it arose the whole moral code.

In excluding from the list the discovery of such important things as metals and the invention of pottery, Wells says that while they were innovations of very great importance they produced no profound and fundamental changes in human life. He thinks that too much importance has been given to the influence of metals on human life because of the fact that our early history is studied largely from museum specimens and therefore people speak of the stone age, the bronze age and the iron age. He looks upon the discovery of the wheel and the road as of even greater importance but not sufficient to be included in the first ten.

Next Two Discoveries That Will Be Made.

Wells is always strong on looking forward and in doing so he is often rather puzzling to many people. When he writes of a time that is coming, he does not necessarily mean tomorrow but within an appreciable time. Those who take him too literally are apt to see in him a dangerous person who would upset the whole social fabric. Wells sees the changes that are about to come but to him a few generations mean nothing. He has studied science and he sees the slow progress that has been made in the past and he realizes that while the rate of progress is increasing immeasurably, it is still slow and cannot be forced. So he looks forward and says that the next great discovery will be the realization of the full significance and full possibilities of modern science. The discovery of electricity and the hundreds of modern devices he considers as part of the one great discovery that is dawning upon us gradually and which has not yet fully been appreciated by the world. He says "they are all aspects of one thing, the steadily expanding revelation of modern science."

Twelfth Discovery Is To Be Made.

The twelfth and last discovery to be made is that of scientific world economics. It is necessary to man as a social being. In summing up, Mr. Wells says:

"In material science, we have the clear possibility and the promise of a systematic exploitation of all the natural resources of the planet for the good of the whole race; and in the new mental sciences the prospect of an education and an organization of mental co-operation quite beyond our present limited experiences."

"And the discovery of scientific world economics and the discovery of world education have as yet scarcely begun. They are the next great discoveries, the eleventh and twelfth, and with them man will pass onward into a phase as strange and wonderful to us as a railway train would be to a paleolithic savage, or his tents and weapons to the ancestral ape."

DOUKHOBORS ARE PROBLEM

Peculiar People are Difficult to Manage Says Writer of Letter

In a letter to the Vancouver Star the problem of the Doukhobors is discussed at follows:

Another fire-bug outrage at the hands of the Doukhobors and some straight talk by the premier to them and a strong posse of provincial police, were the glaring headlines of the city dailies today.

One statement was to the effect that the premier had been studying their case for the past eight years. We are not in any mood to criticize the Chief Magistrate of the Province, nor do we intend to tell the editors how to edit their dailies, but we would certainly like to say that the honorable gentleman's ultimatum to this peculiar colony is nothing less than strengthening their stubborn determination to ignore the authorities. If the premier had really studied them at all he would surely know that if such a stiff authority as that of Russia had no effect upon them, our methods of Democracy would fail.

Former Career

We will not dwell upon their career in Russia and the Caucasus, but the sooner we know we cannot assimilate them, that we cannot compel them by authority, that we will never be able to conscript them, and never be able to enforce legal marriage upon them, the better we will know how to deal with them. No medical man can prescribe an adequate remedy unless he has first a clear diagnosis.

Do we really know the Doukhobors? Have we studied them from all angles? Whatever other contentions we may have regarding them, the answer to these two questions is surely in the negative.

There are a few things we can be boldly positive of:

(1) Any ultimatum will not affect the situation; wholesale deportation is too costly and not free from international complications, and the engendering of irresponsible sympathy to their cause.

(2) Any open declaration as to what we are going to do with them will not facilitate the task of the provincial constables or put money in the provincial treasury.

(3) There are splits among the sect, it is true, but they will unite to oppose any authority enforced upon them.

If, therefore, we are to punish them for their alleged errors, we must find more adequate means than we are employing now.

Colonies Wrong

Sooner or later we must acknowledge and face the fact that as long as there are colonies our educational system will be futile and wasteful. If we can scatter them among the farming communities, where they may form say ten per cent of the community, there may be some hope for the future generations.

If the past 24 years of experiment did not show a tangible result; if they could not and did not show a realization of the value of an Anglo-Saxon education, it is high time that either the Federal or Provincial government took notice of it.

We must ask ourselves what asset this colony has been to British Columbia? Outside of their accumulated wealth and the proportion of the tax they pay (which has hardly paid the policing of them and the rebuilding of the schools burnt down by them) we have nothing to show.

No community is so dangerous to any form of existing state as is the one which proclaims a Theocratic dynasty, defies secular authority and denies a collective social responsibility.

Recommendation of Committee Sent Back by Council For Further Investigation

A report from the board of works recommending that a new engine be purchased for the public works' Day-Elder truck No. 4 at a cost of $400 was referred back to the committee by the city council last night with the instruction that the engine be inspected by a city expert for advice. This course was recommended by Ald. Casey, who stated that only a few months ago the engine had been reported to be in good shape whereas now it was stated that it had petered out. Ald. McDermott agreed with Ald. Casey that it would be wise to have an expert inspection and so moved.

Vice-President of Railway Sees Improvement and Says There is Activity

WINNIPEG, Mar. 10.—"There has been of late many indications of improvement in business throughout Canada and there are keen observers who believe that the general upward trend will be maintained during the year." The speaker was W. D. Robb, vice-president of the Canadian National Railway in charge of colonization and development, radio and other departments, who arrived in Winnipeg yesterday morning for a brief stay before proceeding to the Pacific coast.

"Evidences of less timidity in buying on the part of the general public are now visible," said Mr. Robb, continuing his observations regarding trade conditions, and he added, "wholesalers have recorded more active buying for the spring trade, and without any radical departure from the policy of thrift which has been so generally adopted, it is quite clear that the general consumer is now coming into the market more frequently. This is due to several causes, such as a belief that deflation has really run its course, better prices for wheat and increasing faith in the ability of Canada to successfully cope with all economic problems."

Mr. Robb spoke of many matters in connection with his trip to the west and more particularly with the relation to the radio activities with National system during his stay at the coast. Arrangements will be completed for a broadcasting station there, which will be added to the chain of nine stations now operating throughout Canada. He states that radio has now been definitely adopted as part of the Canadian National service and the department is taking advantage of every advance made and improvement effected to make the wireless system the most thorough and up-to-date on the continent.

Accompanying Mr. Robb is Dr. W. J. Black, director of colonization development, and W. H. Swift Jr., director of colonization of Canadian Railways. Mrs. Robb is also with the party.

HOW TO PLAY FOOTBALL

"Throws-in" and Trapping the Ball--How to Head

(By "Andy" Ducat, Manager of Fulham Club.)

(Reprinted from "Greenock Herald")

Many teams cluster round haphazard when a "Throw-in" is to be taken. This is wrong. There is a very definite spot for each member of the team. Goals are so frequently scored as the result of proper throwing in, that every team should be trained to take up the most helpful places.

When a fifth half is throwing in, the outside right forward stands close to the touch line towards the opponents' goal. The inside-right stands between him and centre forward.

It is a fallacy to assume that the centre forward should stand square to the man throwing in. He stands rather more towards the opponents' goal. No member of your side should stand square to the man throwing it. This spot is covered by the centre forward and the centre half.

They both stand at equal distances away from it. They are not on top of each other. The centre forward is towards the opponents' goal, and the centre half is towards his own goal.

Both backs come up for the throw-in. Where the right half is throwing in, the right back will stand in the semi-circle just about as far away from the centre half as the centre half is standing away from the centre forward.

The left back will be covering his companion. A good spot is behind the other back, about ten yards away.

Making "Throws In" Pay

Thus your semi-circle round the half "throwing in" is scientifically arranged for attack and defence. One half of the semi-circle is filled by three forwards. This is the half nearer the opponents' goal. The other half is defensive, and is filled by your centre half and one full back.

Like this:

Outside Right
Inside Right
Centre Forward
"Thrower In"

The other members of the team must keep outside this charmed circle. Otherwise, nobody knows where he is.

Trapping the ball is important at this period, though a pass straight out is the most desirable result of a throw in. Frequently the ball strikes a player on the chest. He absolutely neglects a chance to trap it by holding himself stiff. When the ball hits you on the chest, you only have to draw back a pace to find it in front of your feet.

Heading the ball is an art that can be acquired by private practice. You can throw balls up for yourself and head them. It is largely a matter of getting

If the ball hits your legs just above the knee, bend quickly over it. This forces it down and prevents it bouncing upwards. Shut up like a pen-knife. Recover an upright position instantly. It is dangerous to have your head down in a crowd.

When the ball comes knee high, take it with the inner side of your boot. This is flatter than the other, and gives more control over the ball.

Too many players try to get control of every ball by using the side of the boot. This is fine when running, but when you are standing still there are at least seven ways of trapping a ball. With the side of the boot is by no means the best of them.

Neat Ball Trapping

The neatest and surest way is to apply the sole of your foot flat to the ball. When you want to stop the ball dead, you can put your foot flat on the top of it. Step on it, as if were. The more usual way is to place the bottom of the foot square up against the back or the front of the ball.

Putting a square foot to the ball gives you complete control whilst sending the ball forward a little way without speed.

Trapping passes is so important a part of the game that it ought to be practised a lot more than it is. The above methods are ways of trapping while you are standing still. When you are running getting control presents a real problem. Delays enable your opponents to tackle. You don't so much want to trap the ball as keep it away from your opponents. Here ability to use the side of the boot is essential. You must be able to use both sides of both feet.

Taking Running Passes

Don't trap the ball. Tap it forward out of the reach of your nearest opponents. Use the side of your foot to get it away at an angle that makes you certain of getting there first in the sprint for it.

Heading the ball is an art that can be acquired by private practice. You can throw balls up for yourself and head them.

well under the ball. Half-and-half heading is very painful. You might use a tennis ball while you are training your eye to tell you when you are directly underneath a dropping ball. If you can head a tennis ball you can head a football.

Your head simply must hit the ball. Don't let the ball hit your head. It hurts. Besides that, you have no control over the ball if you let it hit you rather than positively strike it yourself.

Keep your head tilted completely up. Never stoop. Your opponents may have decided to try to kick the ball that you have stooped to head.

Work is progressing on the building of tennis courts by the Canadian National Railways Employees' Tennis Club. The site is that across from the station where last year the Gyro Club had intended starting a skating rink. There will be two courts with foundation of cinders and concrete surfaces. The cinders have already been put down and the arrival of gravel and sand for the concrete is being awaited. It is hoped that the courts will be ready for operation in about a month's time. There is no doubt that the new courts will be kept busy throughout the summer by the people of the railway and their friends. The game is gaining in popularity throughout the country and already the new courts are being worked overtime.

The selection of the balls to be used in the forthcoming city individual billiard championship tournament caused considerable difference of opinion with the result that, when it was decided to use heavy balls, players of the Prince Rupert Billiard Parlor headed by George McIlmoyle refused to enter leaving only the three entrants from the Great War Veteran's Association—Col. McMordie, Sergeant Jebson and Fred Pyle. Now it is announced that the Billiard Parlor will hold a tournament of its own using the lighter balls. Bert Morgan, who is in charge of the organization of the championship tournament, is still in hope that all the players may yet be brought together in the one tournament.

to give these men the preference, provided they have the necessary qualifications.

Not Personal Matter

Gentlemen, I wish to emphasize that this question of hiring men is not a personal matter with me. The City's interests and welfare as a whole have at all times been my only objectives, but I feel that due to this prolonged agitation some final decision must be reached by this council as to what policy they intend to pursue.

I believe I enjoy the respect and confidence of the majority of the members of this council and plead for the continued co-operation in the interest of efficiency generally.

Respectfully submitted,

F. W. PEARSON,
City Engineer.

After the letter had been read, Ald. McMordie and Ald. McKechnie moved that it be referred to the Board of Works for report.

Ald. Casey took exception to this course being followed. Inasmuch as the matter had arisen through instructions that had been issued by the Board of Works, he was of the opinion that no progress could be made by referring it back to the board. Either the Board of Works or the city engineer were out of order and it was up, he felt, to the council to stand by the Board of Works or do otherwise as it deemed practicable.

Continuous Agitation

The matter had developed, Ald. Casey continued, through continuous agitation on the part of the Board of Works during the past two years that preference be given in employment to resident workmen all things being equal. The city engineer had taken continuous issue with the Board of Works, giving as his reasons that resident men were not qualified. As a matter of fact, positions had been given to men without taking the Board of Works into consideration and the city engineer had absolutely refused to comply with the wishes of the board along these lines. It was the opinion of the majority of the members of the

Engineer Speaks

The engineer was then heard, with reference to James Cochrane, this man had started working for the city a year ago at 50¢ an hour. In the fall he had been made a strawboss at 57½¢. He was a capable man with experience and he did not see why he should be turned out.

Mr. Pearson said that his entire endeavor had been to obtain results for the city. He did not know Phil Macdonald but stood prepared to give him his chance though he had never yet asked him for a job. The engineer felt that, since he was to be held responsible, he would like to have the privilege of picking his own men, giving preference, as he had always done, to city men. All straw bosses, he asserted, had been worked up in the service.

ACTION OF ENGINEER IS UPHELD BY CITY COUNCIL AT MEETING LAST NIGHT.

it was not fair to go out into the highways and byways to give better jobs when there were men already in the city's employ capable of filling those positions. To do so would be nothing less than partisanship. Committees would thus be given license and city officials would be given no chance. "I am still of the opinion that the city engineer is trying to do the best he can for the city, that he is conscientious and that his system of employment is sound."

Getting Results

Ald. Stephen said that only last week he had caused to examine the public works payroll. Out of 133 men employed, he had found only 18 were single. "And only through our persistent fighting is that showing possible," said the mayor.

"And I should say that you are getting results," answered Ald. Stephens.

"Partly, only partly," replied His Worship. "I have no hesitation in saying that I am growing sick and tired of continued pleadings with the city engineer and I want to know if the council has anything to say in the matter in question. I am not going to sit quietly by and let the city engineer come along and nullify our efforts. If the Board of Works cannot get co-operation from the city engineer and if anybody moves a motion that be be discharged, I am going to vote it."

Ald. Stephens again asked the mayor if he thought it was fair to put men outside the present force into the jobs of bosses when there were already men working for the city capable of filling such jobs.

Not Getting Justice

The city engineer again spoke. He said that there had always been a scarcity of men for city work up to the end of the fishing season last fall. This question had come up since last September. "Mr. Mayor, I do not think you are giving me justice when you state that I did not endeavor to co-operate. I challenge anybody to say that I did not give a chance to everybody who came to me. I think you do me an injustice."

"Why did you not try to meet the recommendation of the Board of Works?" asked the mayor.

"First I want my men tried and if they are competent I surely will be willing to give them a job," replied the engineer.

Contrary to the statement made by the engineer, the mayor said that the question had been a hot bed of trouble all last summer.

The engineer said that if any men had been turned down, there must have been good reasons. He still stuck to the opinion that there were not a lot of men involved in the complaints of which he had heard so little.

Supports Engineer

Ald. McKechnie thought it was too bad that this matter had been brought up in the city council. Perhaps, there was a lot to be said on both sides. Perhaps the city engineer had not employed some married men but he must be given leeway. If he was not confident of the men under him then the work could not get on. "I would not run any job myself if I did not control the men who were under me," declared Ald. McKechnie.

Ald. Brown thought that local men should be given the preference but he was also of the opinion that the city engineer should have power to hire and fire his men as he saw fit. It was not fair to ask the city engineer to fire a man in whom he had confidence. He thought the principle of bringing the men up from the ranks was a sound one. The trouble had arisen, perhaps, because the men had approached the mayor, aldermen or foreman when they should have gone to the city engineer.

Attack Fails

Expressing the belief that he knew more about the city public works through his experience of many years than the two previous speakers, Ald. Casey moved that the city engineer be given thirty days notice and that the council advertise for a successor. This was seconded by Ald. Larsen. This was in amendment to the original motion that the city engineer's letter be referred to the Board of Works. This amendment was lost, only the mover and seconder voting for it.

"Now it would seem to me," said Ald. Casey, "that the next thing to do would be to make a motion repudiating the action of the Board of Works for interfering. The board as it now stands is incapable of altering the situation. You had better make provision for a new board of works. Personally, I do not feel like wasting my time with it any further for I can do nothing and everything I suggest is deemed to be wrong."

The mayor felt that the situation being such as it was, there was nothing else to do but pitch the whole thing into the hands of the city engineer and admit that the council could do nothing.

CANNOT SEE POINT

Neither Ald. McKechnie nor Ald. Brown could see the mayor's point. Because the council had
