F. G. Dawson tells of some of the benefits to accrue from having elevator at port

In telling the members of the Rotary Club at their luncheon yesterday some of the benefits he thought might accrue to this port from the building of the grain elevator, F. G. Dawson mentioned incidentally that the Canadian Government Merchant Marine had promised as soon as the elevator was in operation to inaugurate a four-ship service between Prince Rupert and the Orient making this their headquarters. Each of these ships would carry about 160,000 bushels of grain when loaded in addition to a deck load of lumber.

SIR TOM WON RACE TROPHY

Fastest Yacht on Pacific Coast is Ted Geary's Seattle Yacht

ROWENA GAME VERY CLOSE

VICTORIA, July 3.—Sir Tom, Ted Geary's Seattle yacht, many times North Pacific champion, carried off the championship for the whole Pacific coast yesterday at the international regatta by winning the second race of the series of three over a twelve mile course.

As Sir Tom won Wednesday she is winner of the Lipton Cup, the North Pacific trophy and in addition for the first time winning the Pacific Coast Yachting Association cup, emblematic of the coast laurels.

The Vancouver entry, Rowena, was just 47 seconds behind Sir Tom in yesterday's race, taking second place.

ABDUCTION CASE TODAY

Hearing Was Adjudged From Yesterday to Give Crown Counsel Time.

VANCOUVER, July 3.—The preliminary hearing of a charge of illegal detention against ten persons alleged to be implicated in the abduction of Wong Foon Sing was adjourned yesterday afternoon, five minutes after the court met, in order to permit the crown to read over its evidence before closing the case.

The hearing will be resumed this afternoon.

ANOTHER QUAKE SANTA BARBARA

Mansion of Billings the Wealthy Racing Man Partly Demolished

SANTA BARBARA, July 3.—The city was rocked again this morning by a heavy earthquake which lasted six seconds and shook the city rather violently.

The district was later rocked by two less violent tremors. The mansion of C. K. G. Billings, the wealthy racehorse owner, located on the hill east of the city is reported to have been partly demolished in the first quake today.

ELEVATOR WILL BE DISCUSSED

Board of Trade to Take up Matter of Operation at Meeting Tonight

The question of the operation of the elevator will be discussed at the Board of Trade meeting tonight. Vice-president Pillsbury who is in charge of Board of Trade matters in the absence of G. W. Nickerson, states that this is a very important matter and action should be taken on it immediately. The railway company and the Dominion Government cannot be expected to secure business for the elevator as they are not in the grain business. The matter will be open for discussion by members, all of whom are being especially invited to attend.

Another matter to come before the meeting will be that of securing the marketing of lands adjacent to the city for suburban settlement.

Sale of Canadian National is Said by Financial Journal to be Under Consideration Now

The possibility of selling the Canadian National Railway to an American Railroad Company is being discussed in the East.

In a front page article under a Montreal date line the Financial Post of Toronto has the following:

"It is reported in transportation circles that offers have been made and are being considered for the purchase for certain of the Canadian National Lines by American railroads. These offers, it is understood, not only apply to branch lines in the United States which have been returning a profit on operations, but other lines which have been showing deficits as well. The name of the Great Northern is mentioned in connection with certain branches in the far West and the New York Central in connection with sections in the Maritimes.

While there would undoubtedly be a strong agitation against disposing of the "people's property" there is a growing feeling that some such course as the splitting up of the system and the absorption of various parts by other railways, offers a solution of the National Railway problem. Unless something drastic is done, it is argued, there is small prospects of relief from the present deficits.

From the investment standpoint any plan to split up the National system would be of vital interest to the holders of various guaranteed bonds on which the government has been paying interest, but in regard to which it is a question as to liability in the event of the property to private owners. For instance there are the G.T.P.R.'s of 1955 not guaranteed as to interest only which interest has been paid and which have been generally classed with government issues. Then there are the G.N.R.'s of 61 guaranteed as to interest only which have been sold at a lower price than the 3's of 62 guaranteed as to both interest and principal. Also there are the various issues guaranteed by the provinces, interest on which has so far been paid by the Dominion.

Furious Fifteen Round Boxing Bout Fought Last Night at New York between Greb and Walker

NEW YORK, July 3.—Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, world middleweight champion, successfully defended his title in a furious fifteen round match last night, when he gained the judge's decision over Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, New Jersey, the welterweight champion.

The battle was one of the fiercest and most thrilling fights since Dempsey fought Firpo in the same park two years ago. Greb was the aggressor most of the way, but he found an ambitious slugger in Walker who, badly battered, fought gamely to the end. There were no knock-downs.

Prior to the bout, Harry Wilts, the Negro heavyweight, knocked out Charlie Weinert in the second round of a scheduled fifteen round fight. Weinert was no match for Wilts at any stage of the brief fight.

Strong Man Stunts by Robber Before Capture

Threw around 600 pound safe, dived through plate glass window, evaded police and now is dying

LATTERSON, N.J., July 3.—An unidentified strong man, who has a vocabulary of only two words, is in a critical condition in the hospital here following an attempted robbery in a hardware store during which he tossed around a 600 pound safe, ripped the door off, seized $700, pushed aside seven policemen and the store proprietor who called for help, dived through a plate glass window, knocked down on the street two men who attempted to stop him, and was finally captured by a flying football tackle.

somewhere in the course of these activities the man received severe head injuries which the doctors say will prove fatal. He remains unidentified because he could only say "all right" to every question. Otherwise he appeared dumb and unable to write.

W. T. Lopp of Alaska to Give Year to Work in Baffinland for Canadian Concern

SEATTLE, July 3.—W. T. Lopp, until recently chief of the Alaska division of the Bureau of Education, has been engaged by the Hudson's Bay Company to reorganize its reindeer industry in Baffinland, Canada. He will spend a year in this service.

Lopp left on Wednesday night for his mission in the isolated Arctic to inspect the progress of the herd of 700 reindeer which were sent to Baffinland four years ago by Stefansson, the explorer. He will investigate the possibilities of establishing the deer industry on a firm basis in the far northern frontier.

Why Not Sell Canadian National?

An indication of the general trend of railway affairs is given in the proposal to sell some of the Canadian National lines to American railroads. The Financial Post, which publishes the story telling of the proposals in an article which is reproduced today for the benefit of Prince Rupert readers, is looked upon as a careful paper. It is probable that there is some basis of fact in the suggestion. While it may not mean much, it shows that the matter is under consideration and that it may yet become a question of practical politics.

Would Welcome Sale Of Road.

It is to be presumed that Prince Rupert people, speaking generally, would welcome the sale of the road to some company other than the G.P.R. Any concern taking it over in that way would do so with the object of making it pay and to make it pay they would have to encourage business. If this were a competing line with the C.P.R. for transcontinental business and trans-Pacific business it would very soon become very busy and Prince Rupert would be a real port.

The present transcontinental system is made up of two roads, the National Transcontinental, including the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern. If the New York-Central Railway, for instance, were to purchase the old Grand Trunk Pacific, which, apparently the Canadian National does not want, it would give the American line an outlet on the Pacific without interfering with the business of the Canadian National. They could still continue their Vancouver business over the old Canadian Northern line. This would relieve them of a burden and would be a great acquisition to any live railroad taking it over.

Road A Liability Not An Asset.

The railroads today are a liability to the country and a heavy one. They are not an asset. If they were sold, the country would be relieved of a heavy burden and there would be more opportunity for development.

It would look like a mistake to break up the system in the east by lopping off some of the roads, but in the west this could be done quite easily.

Attitude of Country Has Not Been Felt.

No opportunity has been given to feel the pulse of the country generally in regard to the sale of the railroads. The matter has not been seriously discussed. It is possible the people may be opposed to it, but if they are shown how they can be relieved of a big annual deficit, they may possibly take to the idea.

Prince Rupert is but a small part of the country, but if it was put to a vote here, we are inclined to believe a big majority would vote for the sale of the road.

Elevator Operation Is To Be Discussed.

Tonight the Board of Trade will discuss the operation of the elevator and possibly may take some action with a view to trying to make sure that the new structure will be made to function as soon as it is ready. Because the elevator is such an important factor in our future development, it is to be expected that most of the members of the board will be present this evening.

Stewart is Extremely Attractive as Resort for Tourists Says
Archdeacon Rix

Rotary Club Refers Matter to Committee For Recommendation

During a short visit to the Stewart and Premier Mine districts I could not but be impressed with something that one very rarely hears about writes Archdeacon Rix. Our information from there tells of the Premier Mine, which deserves all that is said about it. It is not only giving the great dividends to the stock holders, but it is doing that for two reasons: The first is that it has a large and rich body of ore, and the second is, what even an amateur can see, that much of the financial success is due to the magnificent management under Dale Pitt and his assistant, Bart Smith, and a most efficient staff of officials. I never have seen any organization which ran more smoothly and in which there seemed to be less waste.

The question will probably be discussed further at the next luncheon.

We also hear about adjoining properties on the Salmon River side of the mountains in which a number of Prince Rupert people are interested and which some day are almost sure to be fortune makers if efficiently and economically managed.

Then we hear of mines on the Bear River side in which there is great hope and which also in the near future are bound to be money makers.

Magnificent Scenery

But the part we do not hear much about is the magnificent scenery up the Salmon and Bear River valleys. The round trip to Stewart, while a delightful journey, gives no idea of what a treasure is in that district lying upon the surface and free to all who care to take of it.

The scenery on the Salmon River with the Glacier, its sheer precipices a thousand feet high, its fairy waterfalls, its winding roads and beautiful trees. The view of the valley from the highest workings of the Premier surely cannot be excelled anywhere. Then if any Prince Rupert citizen wants to see the most exquisite bit of nature that can be seen anywhere, he has only to stay over a boat at Stewart, engage a taxi to take him out to the Portland Mine by the Bear River and to ask the chauffeur to take him up the trail to the falls from which that mine got its power. If that visitor is not enthralled by the magnitude and beauty of the place, then I would be hopeless about him being impressed by anything he may ever see.

"See British Columbia first," is a good motto, but see Northern B.C. is a better one. At our doors, at small cost, can be seen Nature at its very grandest and its very best.

Ketchikan took both games from the local players on Dominion Day, by a score of 1-0 and the second by a score of 9-4.

Over one hundred excursionists sailed today by the Princess Royal for Ketchikan to take part in the celebration there on July 4.

Reports coming to the city from the fishing grounds are to the effect that fishing is very good on the Skeena. One cannery to date has put up a pack of 1,000 cases.

The private car of the General Superintendent, W. C. C. Mehan, was attached to the regular train which reached the city last evening.

TARIFF EFFECT IS DISCUSSED

Anyox Man Writes Interesting Letter Dealing with Matters of Policy.

LOWER PRODUCTION COSTS.

D. J. Sullivan, of Anyox, writes an interesting letter in regard to the effect of the tariff upon the life of the people. He takes the view that a moderate tariff is necessary but also would restrict immigration of workers. He raises interesting points for discussion. His letter follows:

Editor, Daily News.—A tariff is an artificial barrier erected for the ostensible purpose of protecting the home market of a country for the disposal of articles therein produced. A tariff divides the industries of a country and those connected with and dependent thereon, into two classes, viz., the protected and the non-protected interests. A tariff is established by imposing a tax on imported articles and is only of benefit to producers in cases where the prices of products may be controlled by the elimination of competition within the national boundaries and when production for export is not an essential factor.

Of No Benefit.

When production is carried on largely for export, such as that of the basic commodities, the products of the farms, forests, fisheries and metalliferous mines the prices of which are determined by world conditions, a tariff is of no benefit to producers as long as an exportable surplus remains. For when wheat, for instance, is purchased for export account in a country the selling price will not exceed that which obtains on the world's markets, no matter how high the tax on imported wheat may be.

The protective feature of a tariff is the one stressed by protectionists and may be justified as an attempt to establish and maintain the economic independence of a state. It is for this reason that moderate protection should be adopted and the home market protected against competition with countries where production costs may be lower.

The tariff is, however, a purely sectional issue, for its direct benefits are confined to certain industries and localities, the prosperity of which is secured at the expense of others. For when an article upon which a duty has been placed is imported for resale the tariff rate is paid separately, but when placed upon the market, this tax is included in the price. This permits of an increase in the price of the home manufactured article to the same level—hence an increase in effective tariff rates invariably means increased prices. The advance in prices which is due to a tariff is not the only cause but is a serious factor in the high costs of living and production, and in the case of the non-protected interests there are no compensating returns for increased costs, in higher prices, or increased earning power.

Economic Necessity.

While a protective tariff is an economic necessity in this country, it entails a sacrifice on the part of the majority and should be tolerated only when it conforms to moderation. It can not be defended as an economic principle for it inflates price above value and it is the difference between price and value that accounts largely for the concentration of and the unequal distribution of wealth. In this respect a high tariff is the worst possible offender in arraying side by side affluence and poverty. For in its operation it provides the means by which private parties may exact tribute from the users and consumers of protected articles. This is done by increasing the prices to the extent of the tariff rate levied on similar imported articles. This is an invisible tax which would become apparent in case the tariff rates were suspended.

The tariff is both a public and a private tax and for this reason is in high favor with protectionists. The private tax is invisible and that is why a high tariff is tolerated by the people.

The history of high tariffs is one of booms, followed by long periods of industrial and commercial stagnation. For an insidious policy which systematically exploits a large proportion of the consumers of a country, sooner or later reacts and involves the whole economic structure of a state.

Miners and Fishermen.

What have protectionists to offer the non-protected interests the farmer, the metalliferous miner, the woodsman or the fisherman? By increased tariff rates they will have to pay more for those things they must buy, without an increase in the prices of those things they must sell. The farmer may get a tax on imported wheat as an act of retaliation.

The high cost of production with no change in the price, is the cause of the gold mines closing down, and there are many mines producing other metals that are similarly affected.

The production costs will be greater with the products of the forests and fisheries without influencing the prices.

What have protectionists to offer labor? A high tariff may restrict or prohibit the importation of articles which compete with protected commodities but it places labor on the free list. In order to place labor on terms of equality with the protected interests, the immigration laws would have to be amended so as to restrict the entry of workers sufficiently to permit labor to exercise the same control over the labor market, as the industrialists do over the protected commodity market. The protectionists advocate unrestricted immigration in point of numbers, yet boast of high wages under protection.

Other Interests.

What have protectionists to offer the protected interests they do not already possess? The protected interests are victims of circumstances of their own creation and have crippled their markets by keeping their prices at a level that is higher than the trade can bear. They have banked too heavily on the bounty the tariff confers and their plants have sprung up like mushrooms on this assurance; now they want the consumer to shoulder the burden of maintaining them. They have a remedy in merging their interests as the banks are doing but they must not forget that foreign competition is the consumers' only protection against exploitation, in the absence of the public control of prices.

Increased tariff rates which would increase the price of protected commodities would affect the depositor's interest in every dollar on deposit, by ear-marking a higher percentage of it for the payment of invisible taxes.

Special Privilege.

The time has arrived when special privilege, which is maintained at the expense of the non-protected interests, should cease. If the non-protected interests which constitute a majority of the people had economic intelligence they would insist on either a bonus on non-protected products or an excise tax on protected commodities, etc.

Right To Bonus.

The producers of the non-protected products have the same right to a bonus on these products as the protected interests have to the legalized privilege of exacting tribute of the users of tariff protected articles. A tax on protected commodities such as that imposed on tobacco, etc., would have the effect of smoothing out some of the glaring inequalities that exist between wage-scales where prices are controlled and those where prices are determined by supply and demand.

The protectionist advocates high prices for protected commodities and high wages for the producers thereof. This policy of wages applies only to the protected industries and in cases where the wage increases may be added to the rates and prices and passed on for others to pay, and which reacts and produces the inevitable results of high prices and few sales and high wages and little work. For when the difference between the price of a thing and its value is due to an invisible tax which takes

This is an invisible tax which would become apparent in case the tariff rates were suspended.

The prices of the necessities of life are high because of the inclusion of invisible taxes and are further increased by high wage-scales paid in protected industries which are out of proportion to those paid elsewhere. The invisible tax is reflected in the prices of all the products of industries wherein control may be exercised, and it is this tax which accounts largely for the disparity that exists between the high prices of protected commodities and those of the products of the farms, fisheries, forests and mines which are regulated by supply and demand.

Tax Last Rag.

In relation to the indirect (invisible) tax the great Pitt has been thus quoted: "There is a means by which you can tax the last rag from a man's back and the last bite from his lips without causing a murmur. The grumblers will be against hard times. The people have yet to learn that hard times are caused by taxation." They have still to learn, and although they are aware that something is wrong they are unable to trace the evil to its source. For the protectionist advocates higher protection which means increased taxation as a remedy for economic problems which have arisen solely because of the imposition of high taxes.

When labor passes on the invisible tax it is compelled to pay when purchasing the necessities of life by increasing the wage scales, it is reflected in the costs of production, transportation, rates and services and to that extent increases prices. The high cost of labor is an effect and the present economic conditions arise as follows: The war debts, economic protection and high cost of government are the causes of high taxes; the high taxes are the cause of high prices where the taxes are added to the prices, the high prices which increase the cost of living are the cause of high wages when the increases in wages are added to the prices. When prices can not be controlled and wage increases can not be added thereto, the selling price of the product upon which labor is expended, largely determines the wage-scales.

Value of Wages.

The relative value of wages can not be expressed in terms of money without a reference to living costs but may be determined by computing the time in hours of work in any given craft to purchase the necessities of life or any of them, and comparing it with the time required to make such purchases in pre-war times or in other countries or industries, and when the prices of the necessities of life are reduced a corresponding reduction in wages to a fair average does not impair the exchange value of such.

The answer to the present economic problems is lower production costs and not increased tariff rates. Lower production costs are possible by a reduction in the multiplicity of industrial plants with high overhead expenses and by reducing the inflated prices and wage-scales in industries the products of which go to make up the cost of living. These conditions have raised the cost of living to the starvation point and have forced thousands into the bread line, have depressed the market by reducing the purchasing power of the people and as a natural consequence have reacted against the combination which is in part responsible, by threatening the protected interests. The great disparity that exists between the prices and earning power of the protected and non-protected interests can have no other effect than economic chaos. A levelling down process is therefore the only method of meeting the situation, for the non-protected interests depend on world wide economic conditions and can not be artificially controlled, while the protected interests can be regulated by artificial methods for they are the products of artificial conditions.—D. TARIFF CHANGE IS NOT LIKELY

Flexible Clause Gives President Power to Raise or Lower as It Is NO ACTION ON SUGAR

WASHINGTON, July 3. — (By Canadian Press). — Much significance is attached here to the action of President Coolidge in refusing to lower the duty on sugar under the flexible tariff law, despite the fact a majority of the members of the tariff commission favored the reduction.

The reason given by the President is that the price of refined sugar is back practically to the level of pre-war days. However, the report was submitted to him July 31, 1924, when the price of sugar was higher than it has been this spring.

No Lowering Probable

The meaning of the decision given by the President, as interpreted here, is that the administration does not intend to make any extensive use of the flexible tariff provisions of the tariff act to lower duties. It has been quite plain ever since President Coolidge came into office that he would align himself with the high tariff leaders. The ruling in the case of sugar more than ever emphasizes this. It is especially in point because sugar is a product used by every family in the land and the lowering of the duty and the probable lowering of price as a result would affect every housewife's grocery bill.

The question of whether the flexible tariff is to be used freely to increase rates will probably be more clearly illuminated when the President passes on applications for increases of rates on several commodities now pending. These are butter, straw hats, gold leaf and cotton warp and weft fabrics, including cotton loaves.

Disposition of the administration not to lower duties, despite findings of the tariff commission, is of peculiar moment just now, inasmuch as the Republican organization leaders in Congress, backed by the administration, are saying there will be no revision of the tariff next session.

No Reason For Revision

"Why revise the duties now," they ask, "when we have the flexible tariff law under which duties can be raised or lowered as necessary?"

They will emphasize the flexible tariff as a reason why there should be no attempt to revise tariff in the new Congress. But it is plain the administration is not going to use the flexible tariff to any extent to lower rates.

The real reason why the high tariff leaders do not intend to permit revision of tariff next session, it is claimed by the low tariff men, is that they fear the situation would get out of their control and Congress would lower many of the high rates which are criticized by low tariff men and moderates as excessive.

GEORGE McILMOY MARRIED YESTERDAY

Bride Is Miss Mildred Boyce Of This City; Both Well Known.

Miss Mildred Boyce and Mr. George McIlmoyle, of this city, were united in marriage last evening at 816 Third Avenue W. The house was very prettily decorated for the occasion and a large number of friends of the contracting parties were present to witness the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. W. W. Wright. The drawing room was very tastily decorated with pretty red and white carnations, and in the centre an arch had been built, under which the party stood as the ceremony was performed. The bride, attractively dressed in white and coral, was supported by Mrs. Condon, while Leo Connor acted as best man.

A very delightful luncheon was served to the immediate friends, after which the evening was given over to dancing, the music being first furnished by "Mrs. Wells and later by the Westholme orchestra.

There was a very large list of handsome presents, including silver, cut glass and linen, testifying to the general esteem in which the parties are held.

Mr. McIlmoyle is very well known as champion billiard player of the city, having on several occasions walked off with the city championship, and Miss Boyce, whose former home was in Minnesota has a very wide circle of friends in the city, who extend their best wishes and congratulations.

LARGE NUMBER GOING TO KETCHIKAN TONIGHT

TONIGHT at midnight the Princess Royal is due to leave for Ketchikan with nearly two hundred local enthusiasts who are going to the Alaskan First City under the auspices of the Elks to help celebrate the fourth of July. Included in the party will be a number of local artists who are to put on a midnight frolic there. There are also two ball teams and many citizens who are taking this opportunity to make their first visit to Alaska.

It was planned to pick up 40 Anyox people at Port Simpson, but the boys from the smelter town were unable to get a boat to bring them down.

The Royal leaves Ketchikan at midnight Saturday, arriving here Sunday morning.

HAROLD LLOYD RIDES IN THE BUTTERFLY SIX

For the "Butterfly Six" in the picture "Hot Water" here tonight and tomorrow, is the centre of one of the swiftest and funniest fictions that has ever been seen in one of Harold Lloyd's comedies. There are two other tick-tack sequences in this picture that are guaranteed blue-chasers, but for originality and cleverness the one involving the "Butterfly Six" is the equal of either.

Harold takes the family out for a ride in his new car, or rather his wife's family takes him out in his car, and if there is anything that could happen to a new automobile, and doesn't in this picture, Mr. Lloyd will give the remains to the one telling what he forgot to put into the sequence.

This part of "Hot Water" was developed in Mr. Lloyd's mind, and is the consequence of a trip the noted comedian took to Big Bear Valley several years ago when the machine in which he was riding was involved in every kind of an accident, broke every part imaginable, and wound up by going up in smoke coming down one of the worst grades on the mountain road. Lloyd never could forget this incident, and in "Hot Water" he found just the spot to relate what was actually an experience of his own.
