President of U.S. HANDICAPPED BY STRAINED RELATIONS WITH SENATE

President and Senate of United States May Again Come to Grips

People Speculating on Alignment of Forces in Second Chamber; Balance of Power

WASHINGTON, April 9. — (By Canadian Press). — The fight between the President and the Senate over the nomination of Charles Beecher Warren of Michigan, which ended in victory for the Senate, has left scars which will not soon be healed. The effects of the fight will be felt in the coming contest over tax revision, over tariff legislation, and over a number of other matters.

It will be said in some quarters that the controversy between the President and the Senate was not decided and was left a draw but the fact remains that the Senate twice rejected the nomination of the President of Mr. Warren for attorney general and, while the President was willing to give Mr. Warren a recess appointment, Mr. Warren was forced into a position where he felt impelled to refuse to accept such an appointment. Unquestionably, he foresaw the likelihood of a third rejection by the Senate.

President Coolidge, in other words, set out to put a certain man in the office of attorney general and found that, by reason of Senate opposition, he could not. In its practical workings, the outcome is a victory for the opposition to Warren in the Senate. Senators who opposed Warren are jubilant and supporters of the administration were not pleased over the outcome.

Looking forward to the next session of Congress, everybody who is concerned in what may eventuate in that session is speculating on the alignment of the various forces. It looks at this distance as if the rejection of Warren forecasted a coalition in the Senate which would be able to dictate legislation. This coalition will be made up of Democrats and Progressive Republicans. The Progressive Republican group will be led by Senators Borah, Norris, Johnson and others of their way of thinking. That group will hold the balance of power.

This means that President Coolidge, in order to get through the recommendations he will make as to tax revision, tariff revision and other matters will have to consult the views of the Progressives.

This is not saying that he will consult their views. In fact, he may choose to ignore them and to follow along strictly conservative lines. But if he does ignore the Progressive group, the probabilities are he will find many of his recommendations shipwrecked.

Going back into history, the situation today is not unlike the one President Taft faced in 1909. He chose to make war on the Progressives or "insurgents" as they are sometimes called, and the outcome was the wrecking of his political fortunes in 1912. However, it is too early to speculate on what may happen in 1928 to Mr. Coolidge. What is much closer at hand is the legislative outlook and there is practically no doubt that the latest events have revealed the weakness of the Old Guard in the Senate. The Old Guard senators, who are the administration senators, are not in the saddle when it comes to legislation.

NARROW ESCAPE MORNING FIRE

Damage Done Home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Gamula in Morning Blaze
KITCHEN WAS GUTTED

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gamula and their thirteen-month old child had a narrow escape in a fire early this morning that partly destroyed their residence at 132 Seventh Avenue West, English Hill.

Aroused about 2:30 a.m. by the cries of the child, Mr. and Mrs. Gamula found smoke issuing into their bedroom from a fire which had gained headway in the kitchen below caused, it is believed, from an overheated stove. They made their escape from the house by climbing out of the second storey window of the bedroom and over the verandah to the ground. The stairway inside was blocked by smoke of suffocating density.

When the fire department arrived on the scene, the flames had gained considerable headway and the roof of the neighboring house owned by J. Hanson was also on fire. A hose line 700 feet long was laid with some difficulty up the side of the hill from a Sixth Avenue hydrant, this all taking some time. First the fire on the Hanson house was put out and then efforts were devoted to extinguishing the blaze in the other residence. This was done but not before the kitchen had been gutted, the roof burned and other rooms and furniture damaged by water. The damage, it is estimated, will run over $1,000. The house is owned by Mr. Gamula and there is some insurance.

Vice-President of Canadian National Railways Suggests Leasing Elevator if Possible

"Without knowing anything about the plans of the Government in regard to the Prince Rupert elevator, I should say that if a good live export firm could be induced to lease it on terms fair to everybody with proper protection for the independent shipper, that would be the best way to handle the situation at Prince Rupert, especially in a new port where business has to be established." That was the view expressed to the Daily News last night by J. E. Dalrymple, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, who arrived yesterday afternoon with a party of railwaymen and proceeded at midnight to Stewart and Anyox.

He said that the dredge had been docked quickly, handled properly and he never got as good a job anywhere before in any port. The dredge was four or five days on the ways and is now in excellent shape and working well.

In connection with his contract Mr. Arnett says he has approximately 50,000 yards more fill to bring across the harbor and he is handling about 2,500 yards a day.

Cannery News Was Featured Yesterday.

News of the canneries was featured yesterday in this paper. It seems that there is to be great activity throughout the district in that industry. Not only is a new cannery to be built here but the Port Edward plant is to be enlarged, Sunnyside brought up to date, and the Lowe Inlet and Buledale plants improved. Everything seems to indicate that salmon canning is not by any means a decadent industry. Its development means a great deal to Prince Rupert.

Relations With Associated Press.

At a meeting at Syracuse, N.Y., the other day an address was given on the gathering of news. The plan is a co-operative one, each town and village doing its part. The Associated Press covers the United States and the Canadian Press covers Canada and the news is exchanged. The Canadian Press has a representative at Seattle who sends to Vancouver and other coast points all the news south of the border which he considers will be of interest here. So the Associated Press has a representative at Vancouver who does the same for the papers on the southern Pacific coast. At important points along the boundary there is a similar exchange and of course Washington and New York, Ottawa and Montreal figure largely in the exchange.

In spite of the statements to the contrary made by Upton Sinclair, the press representatives send out such news as they think would be of interest, irrespective of any outside influences, corporate, millionaire, political or social. The first consideration of correspondents is whether it is news or not.

Never Satisfied With Service.

People sometimes express themselves as dissatisfied with the news service they get, but they are never so dissatisfied as are the newspapermen themselves. Take the case here. The number of words received has to be limited to the ability of the newspapers to pay the tolls exacted by the telegraph companies. They are heavy here, the charge from Vancouver being three-quarters of a cent a word. The news is filed in an office in Vancouver that has access to all the despatches that come in with the exception of the special services paid for by individual newspapers from their own correspondents. The man in Vancouver has to select eight hundred words during the day from a mass of matter. He has not the knowledge of local conditions which would indicate just what most interests us. The result is that things are often passed up which should be telegraphed here.

If editors were satisfied with the services, there would be no improvement. Being intensely dissatisfied there is hope yet. But they will never get what they want, because the selection of news is largely a matter of individual taste.

Visualizing The Large Constituency.

When news is being selected for publication in this paper it is necessary for the editor to try to visualize the interests of eight thousand readers, each of which has a different news taste. Some are interested only in the big happenings of the day, others read nothing but the sport news, while yet a good many are keenest to scan the social and personal news and gossip. Editorial opinions may appeal to some readers. All have to be considered. There are always a lot of more or less freak idealists who consider the particular subject in which they are interested should appeal to everybody, but it does not. The editor has to publish the news which he considers will appeal to the largest number of readers. Doubtless all make mistakes but on the whole they are not far wrong. If they go wrong too often they lose out financially and they cannot afford to do that because the continuation of the paper depends on providing the goods for which the people are ready to pay.

ABE. LINCOLN IN THE MOVIES

Romantic Story of Great United States President Who Was Murdered

The story of the life of Abraham Lincoln, president of the United States, as shown in the picture here Friday and Saturday is dramatic and romantic. It starts with his birth in the pioneer cabin during a blinding blizzard when the entire family almost perished from starvation. At the age of seven young Abe accompanied his family from Kentucky to the new state of Indiana. Here Nancy Hanks Lincoln, Abe's mother, died. A year later Thomas Lincoln, the father, married a childhood friend, Sarah Bush Johnson, whose devotion to young Abe and protection in giving him an education were marked factors in his later success. All these scenes are depicted in the picture with touching realism.

Went to Work
After the family moved again to Illinois and Sarah Lincoln died, Abe went to work, building a flatboat with which to carry cargoes down the Mississippi to New Orleans. His first trip was momentous. At New Salem he first saw Anne Rutledge, whose name has been connected with Lincoln's in one of the prettiest romances of history.

Memories of Anne brought him back to New Salem, where he worked under difficulties, kicking the town bully who disliked him because of his studious ways. Lincoln was leader of volunteers against the Black Hawk Indians but on his return he found that his partner had drunk up the assets of the store, leaving them $1,000 in debt, an obligation Lincoln assumed. He mastered surveying in six weeks and was appointed surveyor for Sangamon County.

At twenty-seven he was studying law in Springfield. The next ten years saw him a circuit rider and finally a Congressman. He was nominated for the Senate but sacrificed himself in order to keep the election from an undesirable candidate. The repeal of the Missouri Compromise seemed to him an open challenge on the slavery question and in his debates with Douglas he stated his position so clearly that although he was defeated for the Senate he removed all chance that Douglas would ever be president.

Elected President.
In a highly sensational party caucus Lincoln was nominated for president and elected in a heated campaign. In the meantime he had married Mary Todd, who bore him two sons, and the entire family moved to Washington to take up residence at the White House. The trying period of the war, the moments of misery in his own household and the death of one son, the critical days, the dissension in his cabinet and disloyalty among his friends all played their part in the great man's life before his final victory.

In the very moment of triumph, Lincoln was killed. The picture is replete with little known incidents of Lincoln's life, and is remarkable for the bigness of theme, heart interest and the fidelity and spectacular grandeur with which it has been filmed.

AN ANCIENT CUSTOM REVIVED ANNUALLY

Among the very interesting customs that are revived at public holidays is the yearly feast of Hot Cross Buns on Good Friday. For centuries the cobbled streets in the towns of old England rang with the cry: "One a penny—two a penny—hot cross buns."

From street to street hawkers pushing their two wheeled barrows sold these time honored delicacies. Nowadays we do not find such strenuous methods. You naturally phone your grocer and insist upon getting "Electric-Bake" Hot Cross Buns. 25c per dozen, made by the Electric Window Bakeries. 85

ARRANGING THE PROGRAM

"We will have piano music by Miss Sosough."
"But she's a very poor player."
"That'll it; she won't interfere with the conversation."

The Man in the Moon SAYS:-

ABE Lincoln, one of the big presidents of the United States, is to be shown in the movies here.

ABE said "Never swap horses in crossing a stream."

SHOWING that Abe was a politician as well as a statesman he once said, "When you can't remove an obstacle, plow around it."

THAT Lincoln was wise is shown in his suggestion: "When you have written a wrathful letter, put it in the stove."

"Suspicion and jealousy never did help any man in any situation." That's another of ABE's.

IF I could think up wise things like ABE I might get a job on the Omineca Herald. Here's one or two of his little things:

"Never get between the woman's skillet and the man's ax-helve."

"Don't shoot too high. Aim low and the common people will understand."

"I want it to be said of me that I plucked a thistle and planted a flower, where I thought a flower would grow."

"You may fool all the people some of the time and some of the people all the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all of the time."

"The Lord must love the common people. That is why he made so many of them."

THAT Abe could shake a wicked leg seems clear even if he was tall and clumsy. That he stood in right with the girls seems evident because he once is said to have remarked: "God bless the women of America."

THEY do say that Lincoln could tell a story that would make a Deacon shiver, but then, from what I know of deacons, it takes a lot to make them shiver, especially in the way of colored stories.

NOW that I am talking about "The Martyred President" (remove your new velours please) I would like to warn our young men against thinking that, because Lincoln was a lawyer, the only road to success is through legal training. Let the boys have a chance with a typewriter, a worried look and a corneob in a stuffy office where the smell of paper and printer's ink prevails.

IF there's one man in the world that should be summarily executed without formality of a trial it is the man who invented amplifiers.

ANOTHER man who should be given the extreme penalty is the one who invented static.

SINCE I have been talking about politics and a politician, I should like to remind my large and varied audience that hot air rises. That is the elevating influence in politics.

SOME people are like birds. They cannot live in the same house two seasons following. It gets too dirty.

NEVER kick at newspaper headlines, remember that making headlines often makes newspaper drudges prematurely grey.

ONE thing about being unimportant, people never knock you.

IN applying to the bank for a loan three things are desirable, character, reputation and vice.

ELECTION TALK

(Toronto Globe)

Most of this early election talk probably arises from minor groups of politicians who have little else to do, and who are out of touch with the general business and industrial community. So far as we can see, the electors have no desire to express their opinion at the polls until a few more of the important matters are out of the way or well on the road to solution.

HER NERVES SO BAD SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

Mrs. Grace Kitchen, St. George, Ont., writes: "After having a severe attack of pneumonia I was left in a weak and run down condition. My nerves were so bad I could not sleep nights, and in the day time I had terrible fainting spells, caused by my heart being weak. Finally I got so bad I had to take to my bed for weeks at a time, but one day I read about so decided to try them. After taking one box I felt a slight improvement. I have now taken five boxes, and have gained 35 pounds in weight. I am now more than able to do all my own housework as well as considerable outside work. I cannot recommend Milburn's H. & N. Pills too highly for those suffering as I did."

LED RESCUE OF DANCING GIRL

Jack Seagert, Formerly Edmonton Boy, Took Part in Stirring Incident

HEADS WERE CRACKED

Mutilated Noss, Lips and Cheeks of Famed Indian Beauty by Thugs

A former Edmonton boy, Jack Seagert, who as a pupil at the Nightingale private school in the days before the war, has just won fame for himself by his bravery in far-off Bombay, says the Edmonton Journal. He was the principal in the daring rescue by a party of British Officers of the beautiful Indian dancing girl, Mumtaz Begum, whose capture was being attempted by a gang of Pathan thugs, declared to be acting on behalf of the Maharajah of Indore, whose former mistress the woman was.

The sensational affair, which is said to have been the culmination of the eastern potentate's love, stirred all India as never before.

Jack Seagert is known to many of the younger generation of the city. He lived with his parents for a number of years on a farm near Half Way House on the Fort Saskatchewan trail, and it was his father who built the house known as the Uplown, at the corner of 102nd Street and Macdonald Drive, now used as a clubhouse for the Knights of Columbus. The lad attended school at Westward Ho for three years, from 1910 till 1913.

Potentate's Favorite

According to the story of the affair, as contained in cables from Bombay, the nauteh dancing girl, who was declared to be the most beautiful in the Indian empire, was the light of love in the eyes of the maharajah back in the hills of Indore. Twice the potentate, who showered priceless gifts on the dancer, took her to England with him and for nine years she ruled in his palaces like a queen. Last year her love grew cold and after an affair with one of the prince's suite, she fled to Bombay. There she met the wealthy merchant, Baula, with whom she was out motoring in a fashionable quarter of Bombay when the gangsters sprang from ambush armed with revolvers and knives, and attempted to abduct the girl. Baula battled fiercely but he was cut down and died of his wounds. The girl, Mumtaz, fought like a tigress, and the thugs, seeing what they thought would be an easy capture foiled, mutilated her nose, lips and cheeks with knife thrusts.

It was while the girl was calling for help that Lieutenant Seagert and his brother officers arrived. They had been motoring back from their golf club when they encountered the armed band. A fierce conflict followed in which the natives used their knives and revolvers while the officers depended upon their physical strength and their dexterity in wielding their heavy-headed golf clubs. Heads were cracked as the heavy clubs drove home against the native skulls, hand to hand bouts were staged and by quickness and much luck the British officers escaped death.

Seagert Led Pursuit

Eventually the thugs made off, firing as they ran. Lieut. Seagert was three wounded as he caught up with the gang and grappled with one of them. Finally he collapsed, seriously wounded, but with his arms locked around the body of a thug who was captured by the other officers as they came up. When this gangster was turned over to the police he was found to have in his possession a large sum of

HAD BOILS ALL OVER HIM

There is only one way to get rid of boils and that is by going right to the eat of the trouble—the blood—as the bad blood must be made pure before the boils will disappear.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Purifies the system and removes all the foul matter from the blood in a way that few medicines will do.

Mrs. Chas. Rankin, Rutley, Sask., writes:—"A few years ago my husband had a terrible time with boils, on one arm he had 16 between his elbow and wrist; five on the back of his neck, and several more on different parts of his body. He tried everything he could think of, but got no relief until he took Burdock Blood Bitters, and to his surprise it completely relieved him of his boils, in a very short time."

money. On their way to the hospital with the dying merchant, the girl and the wounded Seagert, they were again attacked but a second time fought off the gangsters.

The belief is current throughout the country that the men were the hired assassins of the maharajah, who is seventh in the rank of ruling princes, has a kingdom of over a million people, and an income of four million dollars a year in addition to enormous private wealth.

When asked by the Journal with reference to the school days of young Seagert, W. H. Nightingale, principal of the Westward Ho school, said that he was just such a boy as might have been expected to perform the heroic deed with which he is credited. He was described as serious minded, studious, attending to his own business, and of a fearless nature. In recent years he has been a member of the Indian army, being attached to the Royal Engineers. He is now about 24 years of age.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR STARTING OF FOOTBALL SEASON MADE

League Teams to be Lined up at Once in Readiness for Opening Few Weeks Later

At a meeting of the executive of the Prince Rupert Football Association held last evening preparations were tentatively completed for the opening of the soccer season about the end of April or the first of May.

This year's play will start with the competition for the Stuart Shield instead of for the Mobley Cup, significant of city championship, as has been the custom in the past. The ownership of the Stuart Shield for this year will be decided in a series of twelve games, the competition being along similar lines to the league series. The purpose of the Stuart Shield competition is to create a fund to provide for expenses incurred through injuries to players during the season.

Registration forms will be issued tonight and in a few days the league teams will be definitely lined up.

Present at the meeting last night, which was held in the store of the president, were George Hill, president of the Association; James Black, vice-president; Delegates Harry Love, J. Watson and F. J. Fuller; secretary G. S. Russell and Frank Vickers.

Sport Chat

For the first time in the history of English professional association football, a team made up of crack players selected from the English Association, will tour Australia this summer. The team will leave England towards the end of this month, will spend about four months in Australia and possibly New Zealand, and will return home by way of Canada late in September. The expedition is being headed by John Lewis, an official of the Blackburn Rovers and one of the leading football legislators in the Old Country.

British golf clubs have begun to adopt par as the standard of their courses instead of the ancient but easier goal known as bogey. The par standard sets 72 or 73 strokes as a perfect card for eighteen holes whereas the perfect bogey is 78. The change from bogey to par, which will likely take a long time to put into complete effect, is in some measure attributable to American influence but, more influential than the accomplishments of American professionals upon the British golfing mind, have been the reports describing how an amateur, Bobby Jones, has schooled himself against par instead of merely against the strokes of an opponent even in match play.

"I Suffered Terribly With Sore, Aching Back"

Mrs. Roland Ferguson, 194 Lake St., Peterboro, Ont., writes:

"For over two years I suffered terribly with sore back. I was almost mad with the pain, and had doctored with it until I was discouraged. Then my father, who is a firm believer in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I followed his advice, and am glad to say I was completely relieved of that torturing pain in my back. It is over a year since I used these pills, and I have had no return of the trouble, but always keep them in the house."

Another of the highly successful series of Spring dances was held at the Rink last evening, which was much enjoyed by a large number of enthusiasts. The floor was in good shape and the music was fine and all was as merry as a marriage bell. L. J. Marren himself was master of ceremonies, efficient as usual.

The supper was quite an event, prepared under the capable hands of Mrs. Carrall, the variety of edibles being as much enjoyed as the dancing, and the quality the best procurable.

Another of this series of dances will take place on Easter Monday at the Rink as usual.
