CRUEL DEATH OF INDIAN BOY RECOUNTED

MORE PEOPLE INTERESTED IN POWER EXPECTED IN CITY IN NEAR FUTURE

More Officials Coming to Look over Power Possibilities of City

James J. Warren, managing director of the Bonnington Falls concern, and general manager Blaylock expected

PATTULLO TELLS OF CITY'S NEED

"I have had this matter of power in mind for a long time," said Hon. T. D. Pattullo, at the Rotary Club luncheon yesterday afternoon. "Without power we shall not attain that ultimate success in this city which otherwise would be the case. It is my honest opinion that if it could be advertised in one edition of the newspapers that the city had installed a plant sufficient to produce 25,000 horse power, a lot of the problems would be hearing solution. It would not then be necessary to go to either the Dominion or Provincial governments asking for favors but such development would take place as would eliminate the need for them."

Mr. Pattullo spoke of the visit to the city of Lorne Campbell, vice-president and general manager of the West Kootenay Power and Light Company, who had just returned from investigating the power possibilities at the Eastall River. The company which he represented had harnessed Bonnington Falls and it had been responsible largely for the success of the Consolidated Mining Company's plant at Trail, the largest and most complete plant in the British Empire. Other visitors expected to come in connection with the power scheme were James J. Warren, managing director of West Kootenay Power Company, and general manager Blaylock of the Trail Smelter. They were interested in power and also in mining.

Folly of Self-Depreciation
Mr. Pattullo then went on to speak of the folly of self-depreciation, a disease which was today afflicting Canada. Fundamentally he was of the opinion that Canada was never in better condition than she was today. No business could succeed if the promoters were pessimistic as to the outcome and so it was with the country. The period of deflation and tax-paying following the war was something that had to be endured. It was a heavy burden on the people and so was the railway debt, also a result of undue inflation. These things would right themselves in time. In British Columbia they were particularly fortunate. Conditions he thought were better here than anywhere. Only that morning he had seen an article written by Floyd S. Chalmers, editorial director of the Financial Post of Toronto and published in that paper as follows:
Toronto Tribute
"British Columbia is the most prosperous province in Canada today. I think I can make that statement without running the risk of criticism and I think it can be supported, either by a statistical comparison or by the personal testimony of anyone who has crossed Canada from coast to coast in the last few months."
"It may not mean much to speak of British Columbia as the most prosperous area in Canada, since Canada is not as a whole, vigorously prosperous and is not making the progress that one might expect of a sturdy young nation with fabulous undeveloped wealth behind it. Broadly speaking, though, British Columbia is the most prosperous province in Canada today."

The police were suspicious that the plane might have been engaged in smuggling operations.

Mr. Justice D. A. Macdonald reserved sentence until the end of the assizes. The charge against Edie herself opened at 10 o'clock this morning and is still proceeding this afternoon, the expectation being that it will be concluded this evening.

JASPER PARK VERY POPULAR

Swimming Tank One of Features at Lodge is Well Patronized

That Jasper Park Lodge is filled to overflowing with tourists this season and it has been found necessary to sleep large numbers in Pullman sleepers nearly every night on the railway tracks at Jasper depot is word brought back from that holiday resort by Sidney Webb of The News staff, who returned on yesterday's train after attending a newspaper convention held at that point. While additional bungalows have been built for this year's business there is still a shortage of accommodation, which speaks for itself as to the growing popularity of Jasper Lodge as an inland holiday resort.

Also the new golf course has been opened this season, and an open air swimming tank, in which the water is slightly heated, has been constructed on the shores of the lake directly in front of the main hotel building. The swimming pool has proved extremely popular during the hot weather at Jasper at present.

On Monday afternoon two newspaper men were the guests of the C.N.R. to a scenic motor trip to Maligne canyon and in the evening were the guests of Major Graham Bell, deputy minister of railways and vice-president of the C.N.R. at a dinner given in their honor in the main dining room. J. Gill Gardner, member of the board of directors of the railway, was also present.

A large gang of men is kept employed on road work and beautifying the grounds generally.

It was common talk at Jasper that the C.N.R. executive are contemplating new ways and means of coping with the ever increasing tourist business but of course nothing definite was known as to future intentions of the management in this connection.

On every hand one hears nothing but admiration for the grandeur of the scenery and praise for the excellence of the service rendered to the patrons of the Lodge.

MANSLAUGHTER VERDICT AGAINST BIG ALEC FOR INCITING TO KILL LAD

cabin at the time. Moccasin had been tied up for three days.

Dan Loo also gave corroborative evidence of the conversations between Big Alec and Edie leading up to the tying of Moccasin. He had seen Big Alec's dogs hanging up. Big Alec had told him that if he tied up his dogs he would feel good.

Edie was again called to the stand to answer a question from the jury as to where Moccasin had been tied up. It was outside quite a little way from her house, she said. Big Alec had not been with her when she tied Moccasin. Moccasin had not called for help after he had been tied up.

This concluded the evidence for the crown. The defence had no evidence to offer so argument of counsel followed.

Addresses of Counsel

In presenting the case for the crown to the jury, Mr. Patmore stressed the fact that Big Alec had talked to Edie about Moccasin, inciting her to tie him up because he practised witchcraft. The fact that Big Alec had killed his own dogs was evidence that he believed in witchcraft. Accused was, therefore, just as responsible for the tying up and death of Moccasin as was Edie. Even though it was the religion of these natives to drive out witchcraft in this manner, the practice could not be allowed to continue. Because they were ignorant was no excuse. If mercy should be extended under the circumstances, it would be the duty of the crown and not of the jury to judge upon that. If the jury, believing that Big Alec was responsible, brought in a verdict of not guilty then wholesale murder in the north in this manner would continue.

Mr. Jones, in addressing the jury on behalf of the defence, referred to the superstition, ignorance and savagery of the natives involved. It would be absurd to punish such people for an act that, up to a short time ago, was permissible even in England, France, Germany and United States—namely the killing of those believed to be engaged in the practice of witchcraft. It would not be just to make an example of these poor people. What assurance had the jury that the crown would be merciful? No jury should be a party to inflicting a punishment of life imprisonment or even several years on people under such circumstances.

Furthermore, Mr. Jones questioned if the crime had actually been proven against Big Alec and, if so, had there been intent to kill? From the evidence adduced it was apparent that the purpose in tying Moccasin up had been to drive the evil spirit from him and not to cause his death. The corpse had not been identified positively and the crown needed more definite evidence. Allen, the white witness, having testified that Big Alec did not have the reputation of being a witch doctor, might not the story of the three Loo brothers that he had incited their sister have been told in order to save her? Mr. Jones referred to the mental capacity of the accused. They were little more than children and, apparently, their only God was "the old man in the woods," himself the devil, who entered the bodies of human people inciting them to do harm to others. They believed that they would be doing wrong unless they took steps to liberate the witch from Moccasin. In view of the evidence, Mr. Jones asked the jury to find the accused not guilty and not depend on the crown for mercy.

Judge's Charge

In charging the jury, Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald pointed out that, to establish murder, it must be proven that there was intent to kill or cause injuries resulting in death. The law also provided that one inciting another to kill was equally guilty of murder. There seemed little doubt but that Moccasin had been killed. The jury must be satisfied, however, that Big Alec was responsible with Edie. His Lordship said that, after some consideration, he had decided to point out to the jury that a verdict of manslaughter might be possible in his case, assuming that intent to kill had not been proven but that the lying up of Moccasin had led to his death. The action of Moccasin in having been willing to be tied up was no excuse.

University Class For Prince Rupert.

It seems rather a pity that the school board could not have seen their way clear to continue the University first year class at the local high school. The cost to the city would have been very small as the Provincial Government pays most of the expenses. If there are eight pupils offering, the class would have been worth continuing. At the time when it was decided to close down there were but three or four pupils who seemed likely to attend and even that number was doubtful. Today the position is changed.

It is the duty of the school board to carefully conserve the finances of the city and to see that no money is spent unnecessarily. At the same time their first duty is to see that proper educational facilities are provided.

While it is argued that it is better for pupils to attend the university rather than take the course here, the contra argument is that some of the students are girls who are too young to be sent away from home to a strange city where they would lose the home influences.

Just what will be done in regard to the eight students who wished to take the course here is not intimated. Possibly some of them will attend the university and the others will remain at home and their educational course is ended.

Education Obtained By Doing Things.

The other day a lecture was given over the radio in which the point was stressed that all education was the result of action. Either it was the result of action of the brain or muscles. Education cannot be imparted. It must be acquired. One does not become a runner without running and one does not learn to think without thinking. In other words education cannot be obtained by listening, although hearing an address is often a great stimulus to education.

There is a somewhat prevalent idea that a person can become a sportsman by watching games. They may be helped in learning by watching those who play well, but it is only by playing that one learns to play.

Danger In University Method Of Training.

That is one of the dangers in university training. The students listen to lectures and they have little opportunity to reproduce what they hear except at examinations. There is too much listening and not enough doing.

Many educationists believe that the kindergarten method should be followed throughout the school course. Students should be doing all the time and listening should be a very small part of the course.

Very often children who leave school at an early age and go to work excel those who attend the high school classes and the university, simply because they get down at once to the first principles of education. They learn to do by doing. As long as the student continues a system of wide reading, especially of books of an educational nature, he is educating himself often better than he would at a university. The difficulty is that most young folks lose the stimulus for study as soon as they leave school. They become absorbed in the gaities of social life and their intellectual education stops.

Time To Plan For Winter Reading.

This is a good time to plan for winter study. What course is to be followed during the long evenings? Will the time be wasted in parties and light reading or will a system of serious study be adopted, looking to real educational development? This is a good time to map out a course that will be beneficial and interesting.

The Man in the Moon SAYS--

WHEN a strange lady introduces herself and smiles and then smiles again, watch out. She has design on your pocketbook, probably by the monthly payment route.

"Early to bed
And early to rise,"
I hate those old people
Who told such big lies.

THE other day I heard of a lady with an inferiority complex. The difficulty with most people is they have a damfool complex.

MOST people when past fifty years old are like a pullman car. No lowers and very few uppers left.

IF Canada is to become a nation it will not be through the possession of a common language, common institutions, ancestry and traditions but by the application of common sense.

ONCE more the common people are becoming important. An election is in sight.

THE editor says he wishes to refute the rumor that he spent five hundred dollars on his holidays. He says as a matter of fact he still has part of the fifty left.

HAPPINESS is a contagious disease. The pessimist should give it a wide berth.

FOLLOW the birds to Victoria; follow the boobies to Vancouver and follow the fish to Prince Rupert. No poor fish here.

ABOUT a dozen years ago Prince Rupert's member in the Provincial House got hold of the tail of an idea. He grabbed it and held it up to public gaze, but the people said it was a serpent. Since that he has kept hold of the idea and today people are bowing down and worshipping it. Later on they will be adopting it as their child.

"All right," she said, "I'll enter two as twins, then, and all three as singles." SUBURBAN LAND TO BE OPENED

First Steps Taken to Make Small Acreage Available for Local People

A special committee of the Board of Trade appointed for the purpose met Hon. T. D. Pattullo, minister of lands, yesterday afternoon and discussed with him the suggestion that some of the provincial lands held in the district should be surveyed and placed on the market, making them available for market gardens, poultry farms, vegetable gardens and suburban residences.

The matter was discussed at some length and the minister expressed agreement with the idea and said he would on his return to Victoria at once instruct the surveyor general to proceed with the preliminary work. Mr. Pattullo explained that all the lands on the island new road section with the exception of a portion reserved for park purposes was the property of the Canadian National Railway.

Mr. Pattullo explained that the witnesses are not necessary to the case. His Lordship said he saw no good reason to take the responsibility of overruling the attorney general's department. Mr. McGill explained that the purpose of these witnesses would be to give evidence as to money earned from them by accused during the four months preceding the alleged theft.

A. McDonald yesterday afternoon.

CANCER CURSE KILLING MANY

Dr. Ernest Hall Tells Victorians of Advance in Methods of Treatment

"It is estimated by a distinguished London surgeon that of those now living in the United Kingdom 5,000,000 are doomed to die of cancer if they do nothing to prevent it," Dr. Ernest Hall, L.R.C.P., Edin., said on his return to Victoria according to the Times of that city.

"In the United States the number doomed to die of cancer is ten million, that is, one in ten, and possibly one in five." Dr. Hall declared that the large attendance at Dr. Hoffman's centre in Memorial Hall this week indicated the importance which the cancer situation is assuming in the minds of the public.

"The public reasonably looks to our profession for guidance in such matters," Dr. Hall went on. "As corroborative evidence of what Dr. Hoffman states about the prevalence of cancer, I may say that I have lost three patients during this last week from this disease."

"Out of 100 cases operated upon with the knife by the best available skill, sixty will be dead or dying at the end of five years, and this, remember, is the result after the ablest talent of the profession has been overshadowed in attempts to save the situation."

"No wonder, then, that consternation reigns where cancer rules, and terror strikes home when a diagnosis of malignancy is given. "Why all this? Were we created to die from cancer? Why this wide-spread prevalence which indicates a cause as far-reaching in its malignancy as active?"

Emphasize Causes

"You ask what we are doing to prevent cancer? Little, True, Dr. Hoffman mentioned certain facts of causation of great importance, but these need to be emphasized, and over-emphasized."

"We need a society for the prevention of cancer as we have for prevention of consumption. "Sir A. Lane has developed the "New Health Society" in London whose purpose is to educate the public along the lines of action that will tend to limit the intensity of the disease. He says if the public would eat proper food and attend to elimination, that in 100 years cancer would be as scarce as leprosy."

"Cancer is nature's protest against disobedience, the penalty which nature imposes upon those who disobey her laws."

"I shall not die of cancer," cries Sir Arthur Arbuthnot Lane, "for I keep my blood clean and see that my elimination is free. What he does the people of British Columbia may do."

Civilized Habits Blamed

"Dr. Mayo says, 'We have come to the conclusion that cancer has to do with the soul of the individual—the way he lives. And with this, there seems to be general agreement among those of the greatest experience. "Again he says, "Cancer of the stomach includes three-quarters of all cancers in men." And then he asks, "Is it not possible that there is something wrong in the habits of civilized man, either in his cooking or in other preparation of his food, that acts to produce the pre-cancerous condition." Meat eating has increased 400 per cent. within the last 100 years. If we ever hope to cope with cancer we must go back to his cause."

Dr. Hall has just returned from the Mayos, the great central depot for the surgical treatment of cancer.

"But with all the unrivaled skill of modern surgery the mortality rate from cancer is yet at least fifty per cent—a most discouraging factor—a discouraging factor that some surgeons are abandoning the knife and adopting other means," Dr. Hall went on.

"X-rays and especially radium has been beneficial in many cases, but the latest advancement in the treatment is by the cautery, and a word of hope can be extended to our cancer patients."

Cautery System

Dr. Hall has spent a great deal of time and money instudying cancer, having spent a time in Philadelphia studying for some delphia studying the ionization system and subsequently the East that agreed with his. The mental attitude was all that was associated with Dr. Percy in Los Angeles, who has for thirty years tested the application of the cautery in all malignant conditions with the satisfaction of reducing the death rate at least twenty-five per cent.

Dr. Hall remained with him for several weeks and left convinced that the supererudence of the knife by the cautery has marked a decisive advance in the treatment of cancer.

"If seventy-two per cent remain cured after five years, surely the outlook need not be painted so black, and this is what Dr. Percy claims," Dr. Hall went on. "Remember that we know of no treatment but excirpation, but for that the electrical cautery is apparently the best method up-to-date, and Dr. Percy is anxious that this information be extended as widely as possible."

Dr. Hall also expressed willingness to give a public address on the subject of cancer at any time he was called upon, and will deal exhaustively with the apparent cause, and the most up-to-date system of treatment. He is also anxious to start an anti-cancer crusade, or co-operate in the development of an anti-cancer society for British Columbia.

Mr. Pattullo spoke of improvements he saw going on in the city. The city councils of the past few years were to be congratulated on the improvements they had made. Prince Rupert now had a city-like appearance. Much of her prosperity he considered was due to the class of people here. He would not hesitate to say that he knew of no town, and he knew a good many, where there were so many high-class businessmen as in this. All that was needed now was power and plenty of it to insure steady progress.
