Evangelist McPherson Hits Back at District Attorney Prosecuting

LOS ANGELES, October 4.—Bitterness accumulated during the past few days pervaded the Almee McPherson case today as the preliminary hearing which adjourned on Friday was resumed this morning.

Since Friday Mrs. McPherson from her pulpit and over the radio has carried on an incessant attack on District Attorney Keyes, bitterly denouncing the prosecutor and his aides for what she terms her "prosecution." The evangelist charges that Keyes had been unfair in his questioning of herself and her mother before the Grand Jury.

"The vile insinuations which fell from his lips during the examination could not in my opinion, exist in the mind of any pure man," she said.

ATTORNEY GENERAL OF ALBERTA WANTS TO PROSECUTE MEN DOING SIX YEARS IN B.C.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 4.—The attorney general of Alberta has filed a suit in the Supreme Court here to have Reginald Garrett and Fred Barrett taken from the New Westminister penitentiary, where they are serving six year terms for having forged bank notes in their possession, and brought to trial in Calgary for trial on charges of actually forging the notes.

The action of the attorney general of Alberta is regarded in legal circles here as unique in the history of Canadian criminal jurisdiction.

Garrett and Barrett were arrested in Victoria in July and were convicted and sentenced for having forged bank notes in their possession. Calgary police raided the building formerly occupied by them there and found an elaborate counterfeiting plant.

When the men were sentenced it was thought in British Columbia legal circles that Alberta would enter what is known as "nole pro." that is "no prosecution," but the attorney general of that province, according to his application, is opposed to that course in this case and desires to bring the two men to trial on the more serious charges of forging bank notes.

FOUND BODY CARIBOO MAN

WAS NOT FAR FROM PLACE WHERE HE WAS REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN SHOT DOWN

QUESNEL, Oct. 4.—Pierced with a bullet which entered his right breast and penetrated one lung, grazed the heart and emerged beneath the left shoulder blade, the body of Morice Otioli, whose disappearance a week ago provided one of the most sensational mysteries in the history of Cariboo, was found Saturday in the thick bushes a few yards off the roadway between his homestead and the adjoining one of Aaron Kostl, who is held on a charge of murder in connection with the case. The body was found by Harry Boyd, one of several Indian trackers engaged in the search under supervision of the provincial police.

The body was found lying face downward on a patch of soft earth with the hunter's rifle in the crooked arm. A rope had been passed thrice about the middle of the body and it is believed it was used to drag it from the spot before Kostl's cabin where the latter reported his neighbor had been shot down from ambush.

LONG ILLNESS ENDS IN DEATH

A. W. HEALY, WELL KNOWN BUSINESSMAN, DIED YESTERDAY IN HOSPITAL

After a serious illness from which it was realized recently he could not recover, Archibald Whitman Healy, a well known businessman of Prince Rupert, expired at 7 o'clock Sunday morning in the Prince Rupert General Hospital where he had been a patient for the past few weeks.

The late Mr. Healy came to Prince Rupert to reside in July, 1915, as representative of the firm of W. H. Malkin Ltd. of Vancouver. Later he severed his connection with that firm and for two years was identified with the marine department on Digby Island before he came into town again to join the staff of F. G. Dawson Ltd. A few months ago he became interested in the B.C. Butchers & Grocers Ltd. and acted as accountant for that concern.

Deceased, who was a native of Nova Scotia, first came west to Manitoba and later to British Columbia. For some time he was manager of the Reid Estate at Quesnel from which point he proceeded to Vancouver to travel in the Cariboo and Northern British Columbia in the interests of W. H. Malkin Ltd.

The death of the late Mr. Healy's wife three years ago was a sore shock to him and since that time his health had gradually failed. He is survived by a brother in Winnipeg and a brother-in-law and sister-in-law, C. H. McAuley and Miss Bertha McAuley of Vancouver.

Deceased was born 56 years ago at Round Hill in the Annapolis Valley, Nova Scotia, and was a member of Tyee Lodge, A.F. & A.M. at one time having been an officer of the lodge. The body is resting at the B.C. Undertakers.

The remains will be forwarded tomorrow night to Vancouver where they will be laid to rest in Ocean View cemetery beside the grave of the late Mrs. Healy.

MRS. CORSON, the first mother to swim the English Channel, is shown on her arrival in New York waving to the enthusiastic crowds that thronged to meet her.

Aden Maru Due Here End of Next Week to Load Grain at Elevator; Coming from Japan

G. W. Nickerson Co. Ltd., agents for the Empire Shipping Company, received word this morning from their principals advising them that the Japanese freighter Aden Maru is due to arrive here on October 15 to load grain at the local elevator for the United Kingdom and Continent.

Joe Bennett, superintendent of the elevator, stated this morning that the vessel left Japan at the end of September and he thought it might be a few days later that she would arrive. However, they would have the grain ready for her, there was no doubt of that.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN FLAGS PULLED DOWN BY RUSSIANS ON RECENT VISIT

St. Louis Turned Tables on New York Yesterday Winning by Score of Six to Two in Exciting Game

NEW YORK, October 4.—Grover Cleveland Alexander, one of baseball's old masters, uncorked a mighty power when his ancient right arm pitched the Cardinal to a victory over the New York Yankees yesterday in the second game of the World Series before the greatest crowd that ever saw a baseball game. The stadium rocked with the roar of the record gathering of sixty-three thousand fans as the 39-year-old veteran of St. Louis checked the impetuous Yankees while his team mates clouted Urban Shocker, the Yankee spitball ace, from the box and battered their way in triumph to a decisive margin of 6 runs to 2.

The rousing victory for the Cardinals turned the tables on their rivals in convincing fashion, leaving the series deadlocked as the teams entrained for baseball mad St. Louis where the battle will be resumed tomorrow afternoon.

For six innings in yesterday's game Alexander was given an even battle by Shocker but in the seventh another Cardinal hero, Bill Southworth, stepped to the fore with a towering homer into the right field bleachers. The blow came with two men on bases and ended the two to two deadlock and clinched the game.

The official paid attendance of Saturday's game was 61,600 and the receipts amounted to $198,000.

DOCTOR UP ON MURDER CHARGE

THOMAS VERNER OF NORTH VANCOUVER CHARGED IN CONNECTION WITH ILLEGAL OPERATION

VANCOUVER, Oct. 4.—Charged with murder in connection with the death of Mrs. Nora M. Grahame of North Vancouver, who died in the General Hospital on September 30, allegedly the result of an illegal operation, Dr. Thomas Verner, health officer for North Vancouver, appeared in the police court yesterday and was remanded.

The case was transferred to North Vancouver by Magistrate Shaw, who stated that the alleged operation took place there.

"That Flora Margaret Grahame came to her death in the General Hospital, Vancouver, on September 30 from acute diffuse peritonitis and no blame for her death is attached to anyone," was the verdict of the coroner's jury which investigated the case.

Dr. Verner was released on bail of $10,000 and comes up for preliminary hearing today.

Price Fixing is Declared to Be Illegal and Contrary to Public Interests Says Report

Drug Trade Affected by Decision of Commission Which Handed Down Findings Made Public Yesterday by Minister of Labor

OTTAWA, Oct. 4.—That price fixing agreements of proprietary articles by a trade association organization with headquarters at Montreal, which includes practically all the wholesale and retail manufacturing druggists in Canada, are in violation of the Combines Investigation Act, is the finding of a report made public yesterday by Minister of Labor Heenan.

The report follows an investigation into the association by S. A. McGregor, registrar under the Combines Investigation Act, and Dr. W. A. McKintosh, professor of economics at Queen's University.

The report is dated September 6 but owing to the general elections it remained unpublished by former Minister of Labor Jones.

The prices of more than 600 proprietary medicines and toilet articles is included in the Association's first price list which became effective August 28 last. The object, the report says, is to extend operations until the price of every proprietary article sold by the drug stores of the Dominion is fixed at an irreducible minimum under P.A.T.A. control.

The chief indictment in the report is based on the effects upon the public of the artificial restraint which the P.A.T.A. system imposes upon the drug business, which works to the disadvantage of the public. Public interest, however, is safeguarded by legislation through the Combines Investigation Act, which gives power to restrain if the combination works a detriment to the public.

ARTHUR BEALE IS CONVICTED

FINED $300 FOR SELLING BEER—THIS AS WELL AS MCKINLEY CASE BEING APPEALED

Arthur Beale was convicted by Magistrate McClymont in the city police court Saturday afternoon on a charge of selling beer and was fined $300 with the option of three months' imprisonment.

In rendering his decision which followed the argument of counsel, Magistrate McClymont declared that, from the evidence adduced, it was clear that the crown witnesses had visited the premises in question. The only point in which the evidence conflicted was on the matter of time. On the one hand, the two crown witnesses had written the time down in their notes while, on the other, defence witnesses were entirely depending on their memory. Time was a difficult thing to keep track of and, accepting the evidence of the crown on the time, he would also accept its evidence on the other points.

After the magistrate had announced his decision, S. W. Taylor gave notice of appeal.

The McKinley case is also to be appealed, it is announced.

HAIR PULLING MATCH STAGED

NORMA TALMADGE AND GERTRUDE ASTOR BETWEEN RIVALS IN "KIKI"

Norma Talmadge and Gertrude Astor recently engaged in a hair-pulling match in Hollywood. They fought like a pair of wildcats, scratching and kicking, until the stage hands separated them.

When the battle ended the honors were about even. Miss Astor had lost part of her hair, while Miss Talmadge was minus her skirt, which was torn off during the melee.

Then they shook hands amidst the applause of many interested spectators. Miss Talmadge and Miss Astor weren't really angry. It was all part of the "shooting" of "Kiki," Norma's latest picture showing here at the week-end.

BATTLE NECESSARY

The story of "Kiki" calls for a knock-down, drag-out battle between Miss Talmadge, playing the part of a Paris wail, and Miss Astor, as a French theatrical star. They are rivals—in the picture—for the heart of a theatre manager, Ronald Gloman.

Director Clarence Brown declared that it should be a real fight, with no doubles or love pats.

"Fight!" urged Brown. "You're bitter enemies. French women—when they get mad enough—make Carmen and other wild ones look like kindergarten girls. Now, get in front of the camera and fight—and keep on fighting until I slap my hands."

SO THEY FOUGHT

And they fought. Norma's admirers, who associate her with dignified, cultured roles similar to Princess Yvonne in "Graustark," would have had a difficult time recognizing the star if they had seen her battling with Miss Astor. Eyes ablaze and hair disheveled, they were what the spectators termed "a sight" as Brown gave the signal and hostilities ceased.

The "Kiki" fightuffs were realistic enough to call a halt on work for the remainder of the day.

"I hope there are no relapses on that score," gasped the star as she slumped into a chair. "Ditto," was all Miss Astor could say.

posed, in talking about movie folk, to denote the very essential quality of screen appeal. Well, Ken Maynard has "It!" It goes without saying that he is handsome, but he also displays a great deal of acting talent, and how that boy can ride! And the stunts he does on and with a horse!

There is also, of course, Dorothy Devore, with whose charm we are much more familiar, and whose work is highly pleasing as Ken's mountain sweetheart, who conducts the "restaurant" in the isolated mining camp. The highly thrilling story is by Marion Jackson, and she, too, has done a good piece of work in giving a number of unusual twists to the story.

JOHNSTOWN FLOODS SCENES DEPICTED IN DRAMATIC STORY

"The Johnstown Flood" is to be shown tonight and tomorrow in the Westholme Theatre.

To most of the older population today this greatest of American disasters means but a hazy memory of a calamity, and to the rising generation it means nothing but history, an event described by inadequate words.

It remained for Fox Films to weave a dramatic story for motion picture production around this shocking event to show realistically the ravaging horror created on May 31, 1889, when the dam above the city of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, broke and millions of gallons of water rushed madly through the valley destroying cities, homes and human beings.

There is nothing more dramatic than a calamity of this nature, and around this powerful theme has been woven a narrative that is filled to the utmost with action.

All the historical facts of the great disaster have been retained in a powerful dramatic story.

In a moment Johnstown was gone—destroyed. In less than fifteen minutes the cruel, resistless destroying wave had come and passed, having levelled the busy mart which supplied the wants of 30,000 people; and in the same brief time, at the very lowest possible estimate over 3,000 humans perished.

This is the gigantic sweep of the story, which brings to the playgoers scenes never before printed on celluloid by a motion picture camera.

ANCIENT ART OF ESKIMOS

DISCOVERIES OF EARLY CULTURE MADE BY CANADIAN ARCHEOLOGIST

OTTAWA, Oct. 4.—Diamond Jenness, Chief of the Division of Anthropology in the Victoria Memorial Museum, has just returned to Ottawa from a four months' field trip to Bering Strait, Alaska, where he was excavating some of the ancient Eskimo ruins and studying the local dialects in an effort to determine the origin and antiquity of an ancient Eskimo civilization that has left its traces in Canada from the Mackenzie River Delta right across to Hudson Bay. He reports that travelling in this region is very uncertain on account of the small size of the coastal vessels, the lack of sheltered harbors, and the storminess of middle and late summer. Much of his work was necessarily in the nature of a reconnaissance, but he was fortunate in making some interesting discoveries.

AT WALES, ALASKA

At Wales the nearest point of Alaska to Asia, he unearthed ruins belonging to four distinct periods, all of which preceded the discovery of Alaska by Europeans; and—significantly enough—the remains in the ruins of the second period coincided very closely with those from the oldest known ruins in Arctic Canada. Subsequent excavations on the Diomed Islands confirmed those at Wales, and revealed also the presence of a still earlier culture of which no traces have yet been found within Canadian territory. The most remarkable feature of this earlier culture was some beautiful curvilinear engraving, curiously reminiscent of the work of Melanesian natives in the South Pacific; but since contact with Melanesia seems entirely out of the question, one will have to seek among the neighboring Indian tribes, or in Near-East Asia, for the sources of this strange Eskimo art, so unlike what we know from Eskimos elsewhere, or indeed from these same Eskimos in more recent times. The local Eskimo folklore and traditions do show, in fact, strong Indian influence, which Mr. Jenness discovered also in the masked dances, in the use of body armour made of bone or ivory, and in certain sounds in the language.

1,000 TO 1,500 YEARS

Historical records being altogether lacking in this region, and geological evidence not available, Mr. Jenness was unable to assign definite dates to the various cultures he unearthed. He is confident, nevertheless, that the earliest must go back at least 1,000-1,500 years, and may well be much older. He believes, also, that more extensive researches around the shores of Bering Sea will reveal still more ancient remains, and throw much light on the origin and history of the Eskimo tribes not only in Alaska, but also in Canada and Greenland.

WENT TO LIVE WITH TRAMPS

MAGISTRATE SPENT WEEK WITH DOWN AND OUTS IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Harold A. G. Stevens, a Weymouth magistrate, clerk to the Weymouth Board of Guardians, and for many years the Registrar recently spent a week "on tramp" in London: Sleeping "rough," mingling with down-and-outs.

Spending his nights on the Embankment, lying huddled up at the entrances to tube stations, or against green park railings, the Daily News says.

In fact, playing the role of the vagrant—watching and listening to the stories of others.

Mr. Stevens, whose appearance suggested the country squire, stepped out of the Weymouth train at Waterloo and confessed to being Mr. Stevens, magistrate, of Weymouth.

Swiftly he got to work, and indicated his bag of make-up; and then rushed to his hotel and thence to an "unknown destination" to change into the rags he is wearing "on tramp."

In the taxi from Waterloo he told the Daily News reporter that he had not cut-and-dried plans.

"I want to find out why, in every month we are getting 60 vagrants a week instead of the eight we used to get a few months back. They come in shoals now—men and women over 70 years of age who shouldn't be on tramp at all, young couples, unmarried mothers, young women scarcely out of their teens and carrying babies."

"It's distressing," said Mr. Stevens. "And the number of young men who come to us! They are even more distressing. The majority have never worked at all. Why is it? I want to find out."

"And this is why I've elected to spend my holidays in this way. Now I must be busy."

"Look at these..." He undid a bag and held up the light a pair of moth-eaten old brown breeches. Will they do?"

Two hours later a tough-looking customer shuffled up to the reporter near the Cenotaph in Whitehall and whined, "Got a match mister? Got a tanner on yer?"

It was Stevens, completely transformed, and playing his difficult role with the assurance of an old actor.
