PATTERN—A 6½-ton dynamite blast makes an unusual pattern throwing more than tons of rock, mud and Rideau River water into the air. The blast, a few miles southeast of here, made a trench in the river bottom for one of the last sections of the Trans-Canada Pipe Line Company's 440-mile linking Hamilton, Ottawa and Montreal. 'Consideration' of Airport Demands Led by Transport Department Head

Mr. Minister Chevrier, Minister of Transport, has today announced that the Department of Transport is considering the demands of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce for a suitable landing field near this city.

Following is the text of the resolution:

WHEREAS it is understood that the Department of Transport has caused surveys to be made of various possible sites near the City of Prince Rupert for an airplane landing field;

an Opens New Schools at Kitimat, Kemano Sites

Children living with their parents at the giant Aluminum Company of Canada projects at Kitimat and Kemano are attending class in new, modern schools.

Graham, Inspector of Schools for Prince Rupert, today there is a new school at Kitimat and a four-room school at a 103 students.

Mr. Graham said both the schools operate under the same textbook plan as other schools in B.C. but all costs are borne by the companies.

Principal of the school at Kitimat is F. J. Bower and teachers are H. L. Schuetze and Miss H. Caville.

I. A. Gledhill heads the Kemano school, teaching grades 7, 8 and 9, and his wife handles grade one. Mrs. Violet Crane is in charge of grades 4, 5 and 6, and Miss Constance Miller teaches children in grades two and three.

Accuse For ing Talks

Communist negotiators today broke off peace talks Wednesday, saying they were waiting for our side to make a move.

The Allies insisted the Allies make the talks "at a time and place put forth a reasonable proposal capable of solving the question of reparations for prisoners."

Whaling Industry Saved by Record Catch as happened in Newfoundland, because of the depressed market for whale products. But the crews withdrew their demand for a wage increase and agreed to work on the basis of the 1951 contract.

Unlike European whaling fleets, which set out with half a dozen killer boats and a mother, or factory, ship and a helicopter to spot the animals, B.C. whalers tow their kills to Coal Harbor shore station, once an RCAF base, on the northern tip of Vancouver Island. There the whales are cut up and processed into oil, meal and fertilizer.

The ships are on the hunt an average of nine days before returning to the shore station to deliver their kills and take on fuel and supplies.

Six species of whale are sought in the Pacific. Sperm and finbacks are most plentiful. Some sulphur, humpbacks, bottlenose and sei whales are also taken. The fleet made a rare catch this season—two blue whales measuring 83 feet each. Each whale is worth between $5,000 and $7,000.

Though the fleet's gunners are tops in their field, it sometimes takes as many as five or six 110-pound harpoons to kill a whale despite the fact each harpoon carries on its tip an explosive charge which detonates inside the whale and tears open its vitals.

If a shot hits the whale's heart, the mammal soars straight up, like a rocket. Sixty feet long and weighing more than 35 tons, a whale seems to stand on its tail 20 feet out of the water before toppling over on its back. Five crew members chain their catch by the tail to the ship and the hunt goes on.

There are nine men on the two diesel-powered craft and 11 on the three steamers. Deckhands get $300 a month, mates about $700.

B.C. Hospital Scheme Still Compulsory

VERNON (CP)—B.C. still has compulsory health insurance. Health Minister Eric Martin made that clear to the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention Friday when Councillor George Isherwood of Burnaby, pressing for a definite answer to his questions, asked:

"Have we a compulsory insurance scheme in B.C. or not?"

"Yes," Martin replied.

Earlier, he had stated the Social Credit government intended to be "very careful" in anything to do with compulsion, because it "strikes at the roots of our freedom."

4 Children, Father Found Dead on Trail

CHESTER, Calif. (CP)—A missing grocer and three of the four children with him today were found dead on an old logging road near here.

A surviving child, the 3½-year-old daughter of grocer Gard Young was so gravely beaten that she is not expected to live.

Police have no details of the manner of death.

Young disappeared with four children Friday enroute to a bank in nearby Westwood with $7,100. Authorities immediately expressed fear that the party had been kidnapped and a search party combed the area.

With Young were daughters Sandra Judy, 6, Jean, 7, and a neighbor's boy, Michael Faile, 4. It is reported the money is missing.

Canadian Jets Land In France

GROS TENQUIN, France (CP)—Fifty-six RCAF jet fighters, the vanguard of Canada's contribution to western air defence in Europe, arrived at their new operations base here today ready for action in an emergency.

The squadron's arrival in close formations at intervals of several minutes marked the culmination of a flight of more than three thousand miles across the North Atlantic—the largest mass movement of its kind in history.

Civic Delegates Ask For 80-20 School Cost Split

POLICE OFFICE BRAWL LANDS TWO BEFORE MAGISTRATE

Two men chose the wrong place to exchange fisticuffs yesterday and as a result were charged with intoxication and fined $30 and costs in police court today.

Evidence in court today disclosed that one man was laying a charge of theft against another in the police office when the man he accused entered.

Complainant immediately sent an irate fist into the defendant's visage. Actually, only one blow was thrown as Cpl. McLeod, officer in charge of city detachment, put a hasty stop to the brewing duel.

Today, both were defendants as they pleaded guilty to being intoxicated before Magistrate W. D. Vance.

Natural Gas Pipeline To West Coast Approved 25-Year Supply Estimated From Alberta-B.C. Peace River Area

OTTAWA.—The Board of Transport Commissioners today authorized Westcoast Transmission Company to build a natural gas pipeline from the Peace River area to Vancouver and the British Columbia-United States border.

Earlier, the board had given the company qualified authorization for the 96-mile project, provided a survey would establish there were enough gas reserves in the Peace River district to justify the line.

In its final decision today, the board said a survey made by federal engineers had indicated reserves of 2,506,000,000 cubic feet in the area straddling the northern Alberta-British Columbia boundary.

Basis of evidence before the board estimated the reserves would be enough to supply for at least 25 years the company's expected markets in British Columbia and in the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

Today's decision authorized the company to run its line from the Pouce Coupe section on the Alberta side of the Peace River area through Dawson Creek and Prince George, to Vancouver with a branch leaving the main line at Abbotsford, to hit the United States border near huntingdon.

Westcoast now holds a 22-year permit to remove gas from Alberta from that province's Gas and Oil Conservation Board.

RCAF Nurses Get Publicity In New York

By HARRY J. WITTSCHEIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK—A pair of attractive RCAF nurses have just got themselves a spread in a U.S. national magazine and showed American television audiences how they carry out para-rescue work, but they got an even bigger kick out of shopping and sightseeing in New York.

FO. Marion MacDonald of Vancouver and FO. Isabelle Thomson of North Bay, Ont., headed home to duty today after a two-day visit here.

The nursing sisters were invited to New York by Look Magazine and the NBC in conjunction with a five-page picture story in the magazine's current issue of their para-rescue work in out-of-the-way areas of Canada.

They were the guests yesterday of Dave Garraway on the television show "Today." A film was shown of the girls in action over heavily wooded country near Jasper, Alta. Miss MacDonald explained the action of the film which showed the two nurses jumping from a plane, falling into the tall timber with their cumbersome gear and making their way through the bush to their patients.

The girls were shown riding with an accident victim on a stretcher, across a deep, wide canyon with only a nylon rope and a system of pulleys for support.

But they were more inclined to talk about their New York visit.

"Oh, we've had a wonderful time shopping and visiting some of the night clubs," Miss MacDonald said.

"Canada's very civilized," Marion told Garraway when he referred to the Dominion as the wild north. "You have to go pretty far north to get away from shops and towns."

Miss Thomson made a jump last July 22 in a vain attempt to aid eight airmen after a mid-air collision near Baggotville, Que. The men were all found dead.

"We can't always be successful," Miss Thomson said, "but if we can reach them while they are still alive, we are prepared for anything."

The volunteer rescue corps—there are only seven nurses, five doctors and 53 non-commissioned airmen in all—are trained as qualified medical personnel as well as in bush lore and the art of controlled jumping. Each must make at least 10 jumps to qualify.

City Schools Serve Many Port Edward Students

Nearly 100 students are being transported daily from Port Edward to attend schools in this city.

Mrs. M. M. Roper, school board secretary, in her report to trustees at their monthly meeting last night, listed 94 pupils who have to be brought here because of lack of space in the school at Port Edward.

Of the number, 43 are attending Booth Memorial High, where total registration is 573.

All told there are more than 1,800 pupils attending schools this year in Prince Rupert district. It was pointed out that while registration at Port Edward at one time this year totalled 86 it had now dropped by 20 because of the return to reservations by natives.

Enrolment at Sunnyside Cannery also has declined considerably, trustees were told, as Native families left to live on their reserves.

Higher Pension Scheme For Workers Approved

By The Canadian Press

VERNON.—The Union of British Columbia Municipalities will continue to press the provincial government for an 80-20 split on cost of education.

Decision of a special convention in February, which offered to give up 80 per cent of the municipal share of sales tax if the government would take over 80 per cent of education, was reaffirmed by the UBCM convention here Friday.

In other resolutions, the UBCM asked the government to eliminate the per diem payments made by municipalities for every hospital patient; requested government assistance for bedside nursing services as a means of reducing hospital insurance cost; and called for action to prevent pollution of water supplies by mining, logging and other operations.

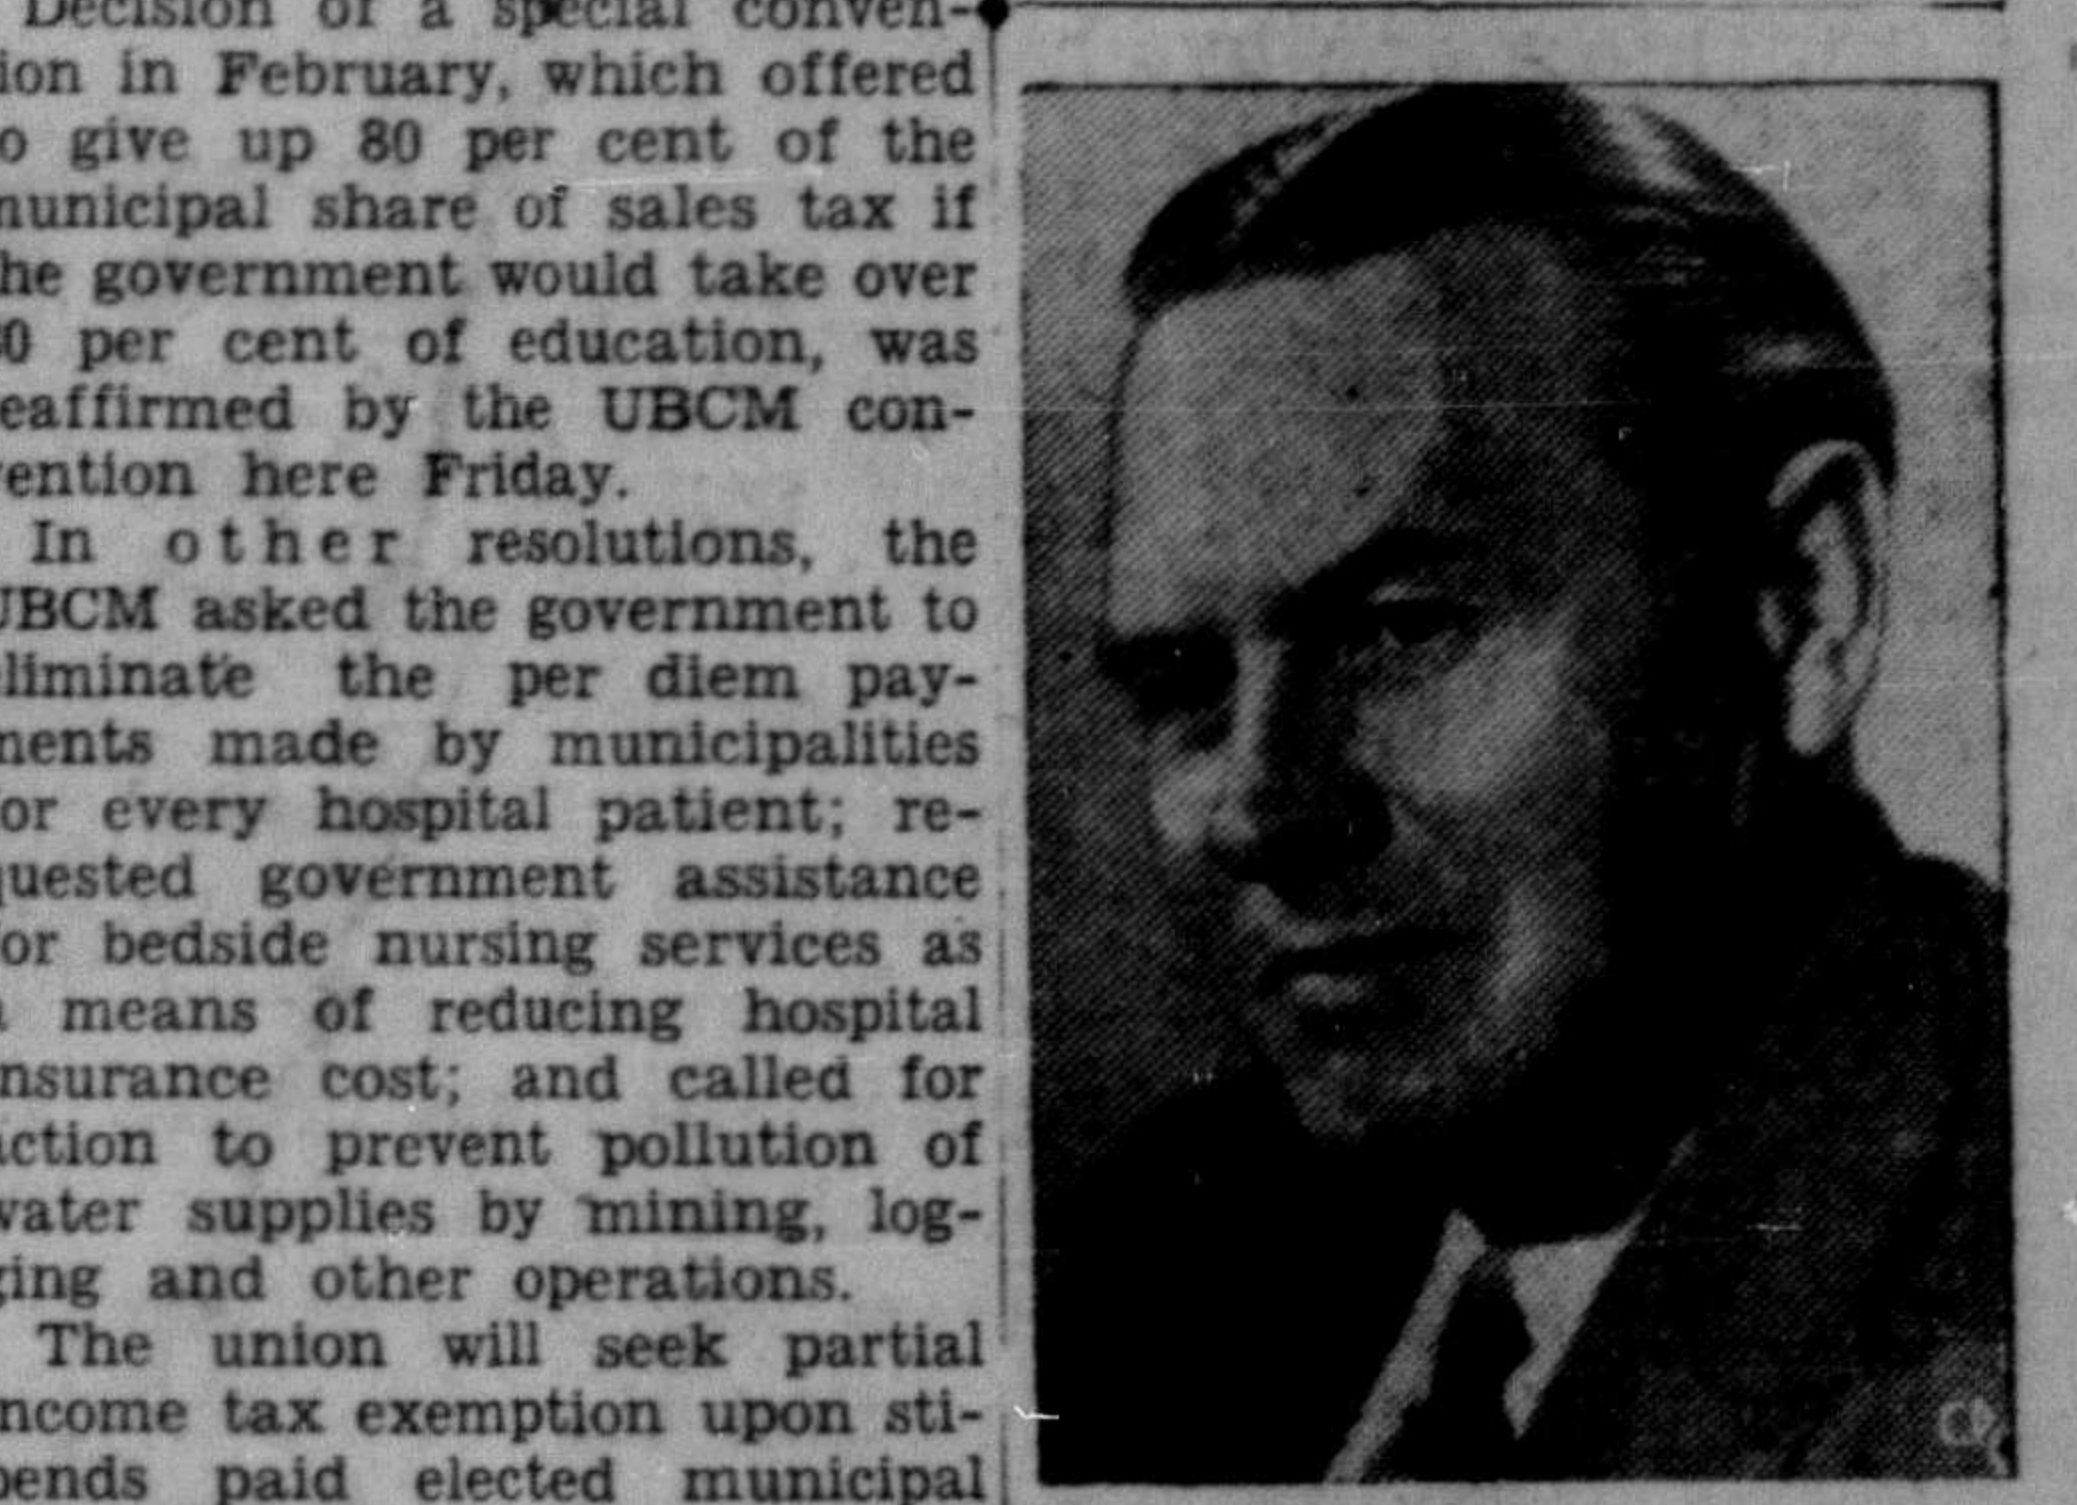

The union will seek partial income tax exemption upon stipends paid elected municipal representatives, similar to exemptions now granted Parliament members.

It will ask for payment in lieu of taxes on provincial and federal government property, similar to what would be paid if the property was privately owned. At present all crown property is exempt, though partial payment has been arranged in some cases.

The union approved an increase in pensions for municipal employees.

Under the new scheme, they will receive $2 a month for each year of service, 50 cents more than on the former basis.

Employees would be called upon to increase their minimum contribution to the pension scheme from four to five per cent. The increased cost to participating municipalities will vary in relationship to the municipality's position in the overall scheme.

In 1947 he was made music adviser to the CBC on a part-time basis. He was born in Leicester, Eng., in 1904 and came to Canada with his family when he was three. He was educated at Lethbridge, Alta. Koje Incident Not Enough To Fire Officer

VICTORIA (CP)—Maj.-Gen. G. R. Peakes, V.C., said Friday he did not think the Koje incident could be the sole reason for retirement from the army of Brig. Alan B. Connelly of Calgary.

Gen. Peakes, military critic for the Progressive Conservative party in Commons said in an interview:

"The Koje incident doesn't seem to me to be an adequate reason to fire an officer. I can't believe that would be the sole reason for retiring Brig. Connelly."

THANKSGIVING

"Thou shalt remember the Lord Thy God."—Deuteronomy 8.

HERE on this northwest Pacific coast it is true that we have experience of the changing seasons but our harvest would seem to be built on a longer term than in the strictly agricultural parts of Canada.

There are the trees, for example, being harvested after many generations of growth.

The fish are also the result of years of growth and conservation.

The minerals have lain for milleniums awaiting their need of service for mankind.

All this should remind us of what we owe to the generations which have gone before us and that it is fatuous and ignorant ever to say that we got it with our own two hands.

Prince Rupert and district has lately entered into much material benefit for which more than one grateful thought could be spared for the planners and pioneers of former generations who established our communities in law and righteousness and died receiving not the promise.

It is in community as well as in nature that through the generations we are heirs of the mercy and kindness of our Creator. There is a dependence upon one another in the present and in the past through which we receive all these mercies.

It is not so much that those who lived before us thought of the future, but that they kept the laws of their existence in acknowledging God and His laws, and when we do that, we help with regard to His provision for all the generations.

So the grand experience of Thanksgiving is that it unites us with all God's people, both of this and other generations, that we may with one mind and one mouth glorify Him and be bound together in ever closer community in Him.—Contributed.

Saskatchewan Turns on Taps; First Venture in Gas Field

Natural gas will be turned on this month in the booming west-central Saskatchewan town of Kindersley to signal the provincial government's first venture into the natural gas distribution field.

Kindersley and the village of Brock a few miles east will not be the first Saskatchewan communities to be served by gas. Lloydminster, Lone Rock and Unity have gas but they are served by private companies.

The significance of Kindersley and Brock is that they are to receive gas from a government organization, the Saskatchewan Power Corporation.

The two communities are also the first to be served by natural

Jewel-Smuggling Checked in Leak Of British Money

LONDON — Financial arrangements which permit some British travellers to enjoy lengthy holidays abroad despite prevailing currency restrictions, are being closely scrutinized by treasury officials.

Current regulations authorize an individual leaving on a vacation to take a maximum of £25 out of the country. To tighten up the law against possible evasion, treasury authorities have launched an investigation into a number of individual cases. Questionnaires have been sent to those concerned asking how they managed to meet their normal expenditures on extended visits abroad.

Victor Feather, assistant secretary of the powerful Trades and Union Congress, said labor generally would welcome the government's action. A lot of people, he said, are "snapping their fingers" at the currency restrictions.

"I hope the treasury people will not confine themselves to questions about pound notes," he said. "Nearly every high-class jeweler in this country sells second-hand jewelry as well and there is no purchase tax on it. A diamond ring or brooch costing anything up to £500 or more takes up very little space and dealers in France buy second-hand jewelry and pay for it in francs, of course. It is done as easily as that."

All Scots Love It

I WENT to see the Alec Finlay show the other night with mixed feelings.

Like all others who have Scottish blood I naturally looked forward to the show itself. It is Scotland's most popular export these days, for another long time favorite in a different field, has been watered down.

But I knew I was again to meet the company at supper. I wondered how the lovely soprano, Francis Derry, would feel about what I wrote two years ago about her legs. That the minute I looked at them on the stage I suspected they were not Scottish at all—but Irish.

YOU SEE two shows for the price of one, when you go to Alec Finlay's. These Scottish professionals put on a top notch variety concert by any standard. Alec himself has borrowed a leaf from the late Harry Lauder—he is not afraid to repeat his most popular skits year after year, although he knows the audience knows them off by heart and is almost splitting with laughter, all set to burst out in gales, at the right spots. Francis Derry is an excellent popular singer, by any country's standards. George Cormack has a fine tenor voice. He has not as yet, the superb stage presence of the man who preceded him—Robert Wilson—but I think the scores of thousands of Scots who have heard him on this tour must feel proud that there is another Scot who can stand so well in Wilson's place.

Margaret Smart and Timmy Burns round out a top notch company, all admirably relaxed in action.

BUT IT IS when Will Starr brings out that accordion that you really see what makes these Scottish shows such an overwhelming success. For when Willie plays that instrument he is performing not just to those 2500 Scots but WITH them. They are so much in rapport that at precisely the right moment the spirit of the wild ancestors of the Scots bursts right out with bloodcurdling yells.

When they do that the Scottish side of my ancestry wants to get up and fight—and I am not ashamed to say that my English side wants to get up and run for home.

Starr is the only man I ever heard play The Last Post on the accordion with as much pathos in it as a good trumpeter.

FAR FROM being peeved at what I wrote about her Irish legs it turned out Francis Derry was highly pleased.

"Did you know what you wrote was printed in our professional theatrical paper?" she asked me. "It was in a column called Scotch and Soda and was headed 'Legs Not Scots Enough.'"

Francis missed the tour last year as she was giving birth to a darling girl baby—named Coleman. In a year or two when her husband gets his discharge from the Royal Navy they may move to Canada. The husband is a diesel engine instructor.

I had another pleasant surprise for the slender blonde violinist, Margaret Smart turned out to be a good friend of my favorite Scottish MP—Gilbert McAllister. She played at his wedding.

Cathedral Gets Face-Lifting

The St. Andrew's Cathedral has undergone a facelift job at a cost of approximately $5,000, including dark grey asphalt shingles and walls have been weather-proofed with dark green cedar shakes.

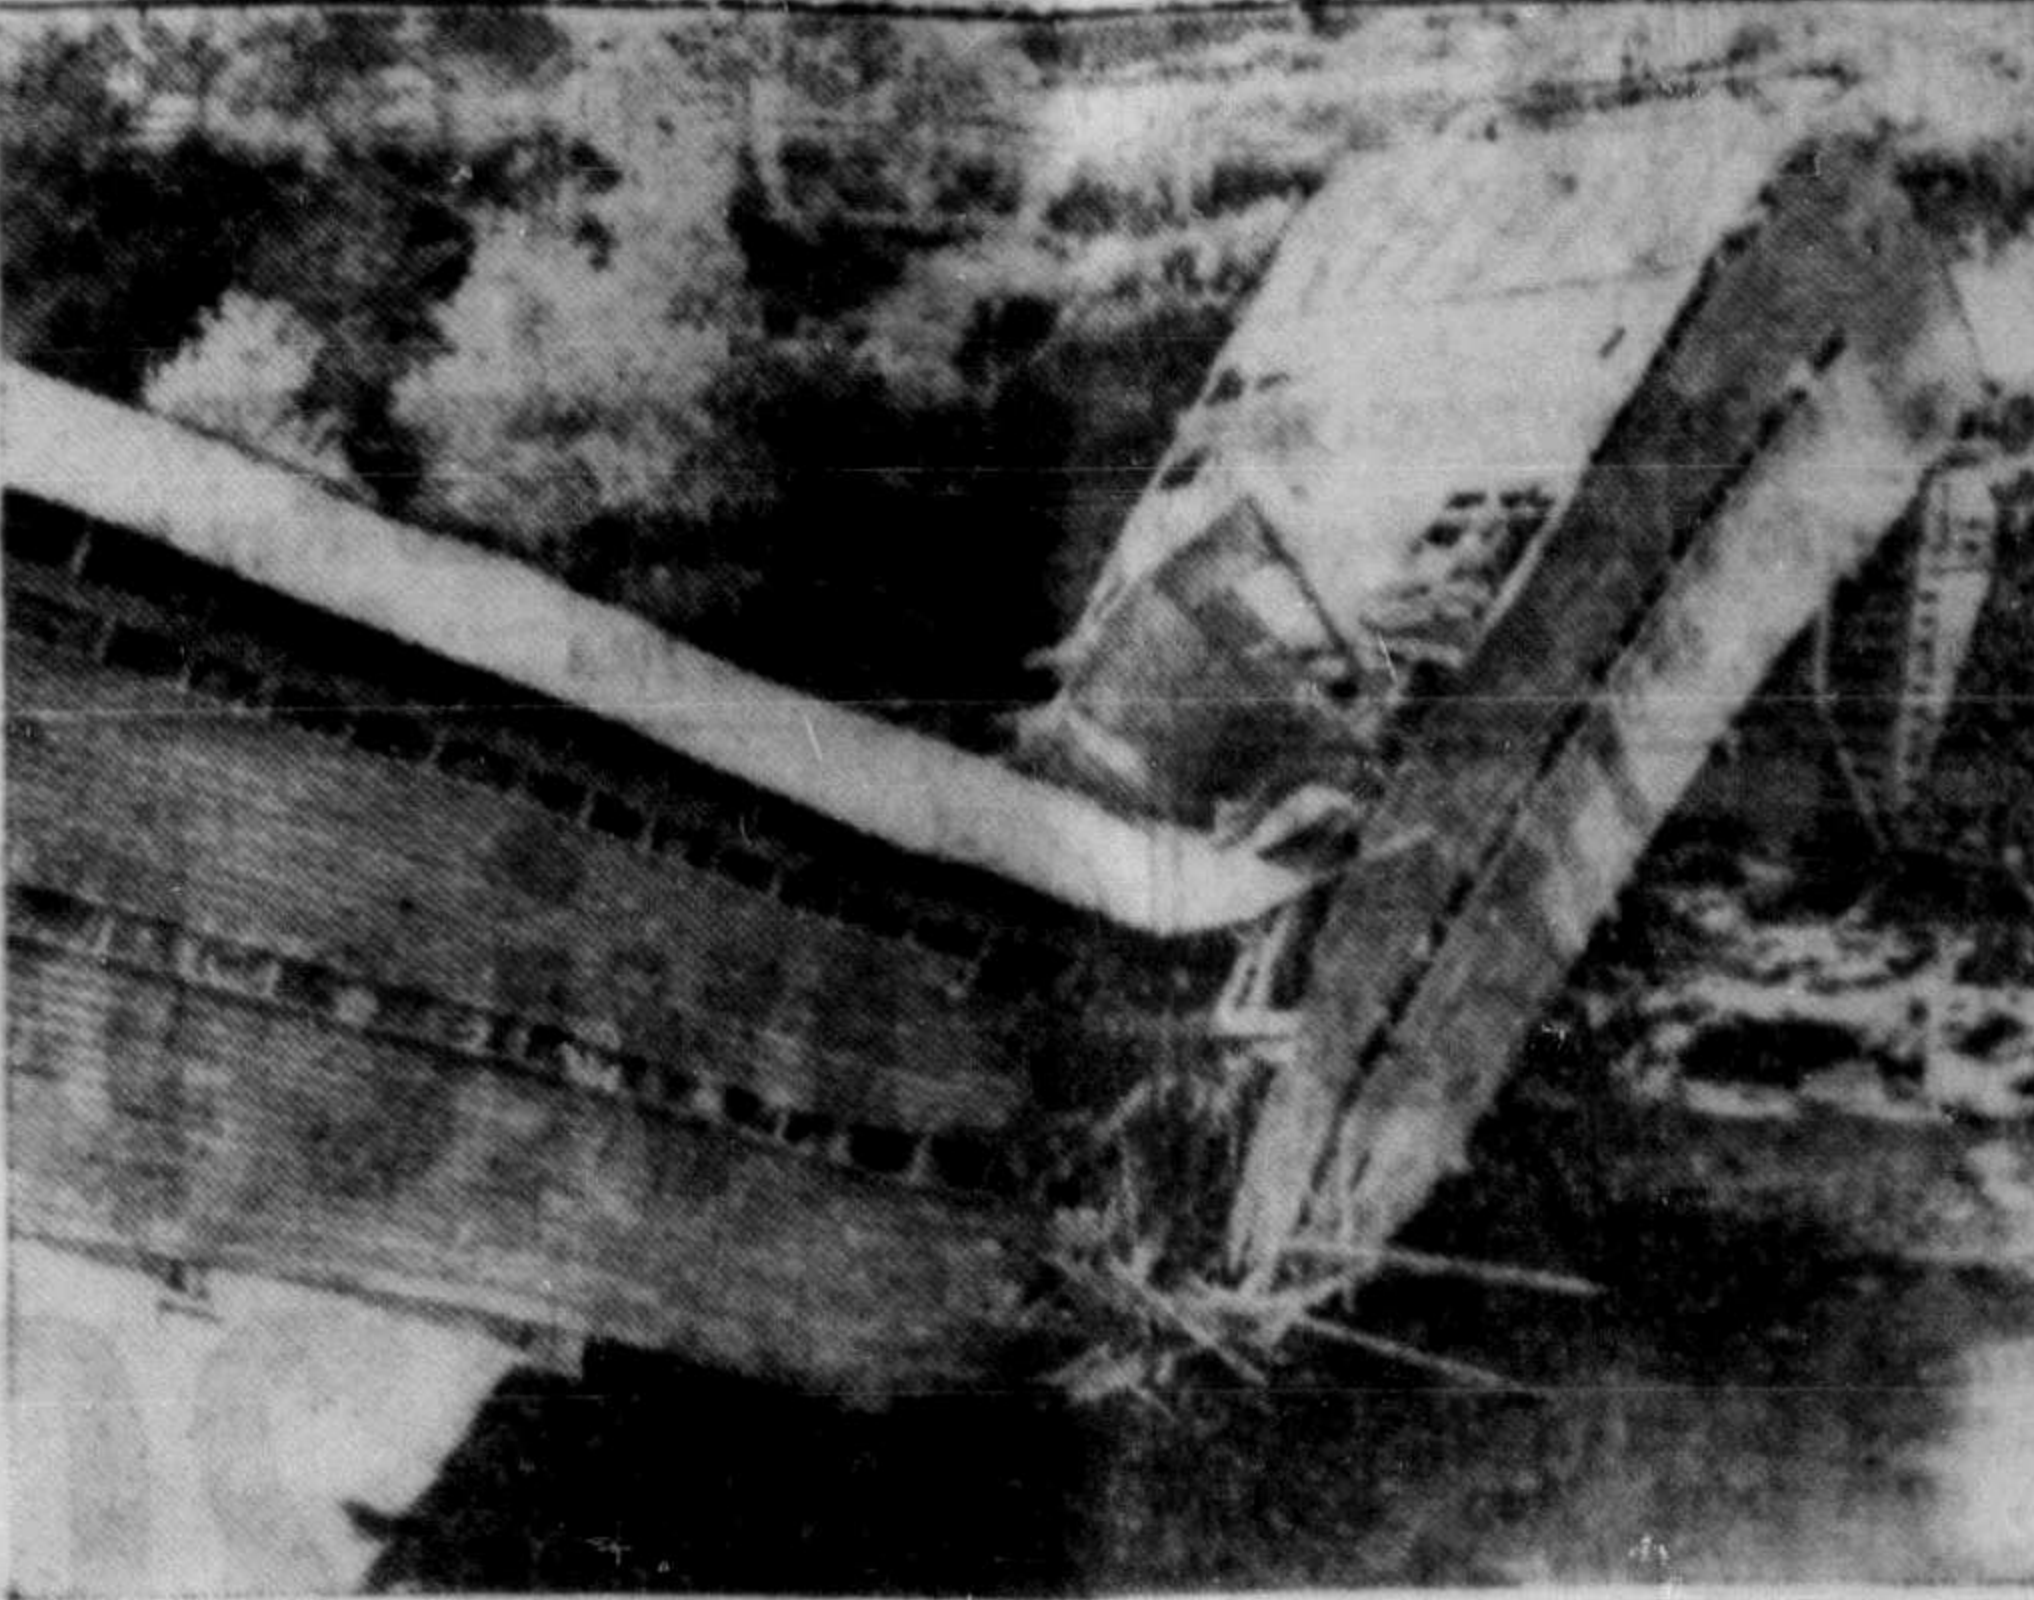

In addition, a handsome and permanent approach has been erected. Volunteers of the congregation painted the white trimmings.

The Rev. Canon Basil Prockter says that "this has been a most necessary improvement and has a most handsome result."

UNDER OUR ROOF

By JOHN STURDY

That last freight train brought us as far west as the Sunny Okanagan, and it looks as though we will be here for several days, mainly on account of Col. S. Skeffington-Smutts (Ret.) being in the hospital.

It is fortunate for the Colonel that Social Credit is now in power, because he has been desisting in his hospital insurance payments since the very start of the scheme. Instead of being nasty about it, however, the secretary of the hospital said:

"Just give us a buck a day, and all will be forgiven."

The attending physician, who had been examining the Colonel, then added: "A couple of bucks should cover it."

"You mean," I asked, "that my friend the Colonel will be discharged after two days?"

"That's one way of putting it," agreed the doctor. "On the other hand, I wouldn't waste any time notifying his next of kin."

Actually, when the doctor got around to cleaning out the holes in the Colonel, he discovered that the bullets had not penetrated much beyond the third layer of fat and decided that the Colonel would be up and walking within a few days.

So in the meantime Hamish and Little Augie and I are enjoying the beauties of the Sunny Okanagan and this pretty town of Kelowna which is on the banks of the lake. Kelowna is famous for its annual regatta and for a sea serpent called the Ogopogo which is said to inhabit the waters of Okanagan Lake, and of course I can't tell you whether there is any truth to that legend or not.

Personally, I doubt its veracity because I think that the people of the Okanagan are a pretty excitable crowd when it comes to the Ogopogo.

Well, of course Hamish and Little Augie and I decided to follow the crowd, and when we arrived at the shore of the lake we heard a lot of firing and saw a great mob of people gathered there, and then the firing stopped suddenly and some men waded out into the water with a net. They pulled it back to the bank, and there appeared to be a large shape of some kind emmeshed in it.

"The Ogopogo!" went up the chant. "The Ogopogo!"

Those silly, excitable people! It wasn't the Ogopogo, of course. It was Col. S. Skeffington-Smutts (Ret.) and he was ridden with buck-shot.

So that is why we must stick around the Sunny Okanagan until the Colonel is released from the hospital.

I must say that the people of Kelowna were keenly disappointed.

So that is why we must stick around the Sunny Okanagan until the Colonel is released from the hospital.

I must say that the people of Kelowna were keenly disappointed.

For five years Canada's ambassador to Turkey, Major General V. W. Odum, CB, CMG, DSO, is back home in Vancouver, and likes it. He says of Turkey:

"Their feet are on the ground. Whoever invades Turkey will have a tough fight. Sounds worth cultivating. The general will write his memoirs."

ADVICE TO UNIONS

Remember, the banana never got peeled until it left the bunch.

Some fifteen hundred wild horses in Alberta are to be rounded up. Corrales will be built, and other jobs done. Nothing definite is known as to marketing, but speaking off-hand, one assumes the more wild they are, the more doubtful the chops and steaks.

When the cruiser Sheffield was on the coast recently, four tourists were greatly pleased to be shown around by a well-informed plain clothes sailor, who gratefully thanked them for four one dollar bills. Next day they noticed his photo in the press. Promotion had been rapid. He had become a lieutenant commander.

NO MORE OLD STUFF

Announcement was broadcast Friday that in future the cowboys of Canada will find it quite unnecessary to do any spurring. They are to be outfitted with helicopters.

The mayor of Nanaimo is urging a ban on travelling shows being allowed to carry reptiles. For example, a rattler, was recently killed in a Vancouver backyard. No question about support for His Worship.

Coronation Souvenirs in Varied Forms

LONDON — A varied selection of souvenirs to commemorate the coronation next year has already been approved by the Council of Industrial Design, entrusted with the assignment. Of 330 articles submitted, 75 have been accepted and some 40 approved provisionally.

Among the articles officially confirmed is a prototype design of a plaster bust of the queen, by sculptor G. H. Paulin, designer of one of the coronation medals. Commemorative glass goblets, showing the royal cypher, have also been accepted as well as a small brass table bell, with the royal insignia. There is also a profusion of ashtrays, brooches, teaspoons, mugs and such novelties as a loving-cup and a horse's nosestrap.

"On the whole, the standard of design is rather better than we expected," said a spokesman for the council. "The articles submitted are not very original but the quality is good and the designs pleasant."

A number of souvenir ideas were rejected because of discrepancies in reproduction of the royal insignia, but manufacturers will be allowed to re-submit revised designs. Reproduction of actual pieces of the regalia, such as the Imperial Crown, St. Edward's Crown, the Orb, Sceptre or Swords of State, are forbidden.

Manufacturers have also been informed that if photographs of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh are used together on souvenirs, they should not be shown surmounted by a crown, or with the date of the coronation, as only the Queen is being crowned.

Although there is no law against early sale of coronation souvenirs, once they have been approved, manufacturers have been urged not to display the articles in shops for the Christmas trade, but to wait until January 1, start of the Coronation Year.

Saturday Sermon

The popular cry today seems to be about a good night's rest, cure diseases, make us prosperous in business, help win friends and influence people, and all that of thing.

It will give us poise, dignity, culture and grace. And on the wider canvas, it will give us world peace. Industrial peace and probably good weather and freedom from earthquakes in the bargain.

Surely a deal like that is worth looking into. It should at least rate the occasional five dollar donation and is worth fitting in between cocktail parties and fishing excursions.

But it isn't New Testament. It isn't the Christian Faith. It is not for this that the generations have had three witnesses which have been slain, sawn asunder, burned alive, starved and so on. No, Christianity has to do with something that is true regardless of whether it pays off or not. We are called to unlimited allegiance whether or not it is good for business or makes us popular.

It is true that we are not asked deliberately to make ourselves uncomfortable in order to secure Salvation, but we are called to hold that Salvation as worthwhile, no matter how much or how little it may at any moment be costing us.

There is an ultimate paying-off, it is true. For in the final count the truth is the only thing that is worthy of allegiance and the only thing that is good for you, and me, and everybody else. But you cannot reverse this and say that what is good for you and me at this moment is therefore true.

It may be the biggest lie ever perpetrated—which is one reason

Wainwright Take Vows St. Andrew's Cathedral

Elizabeth Kelly and Alan Jerome Wainwright were united in marriage in St. Andrew's cathedral on Wednesday in a pretty double ring ceremony with Canon Basil Prockter officiating.

NEWS...

The main item of the wedding was the bride's gown. The bride, in a white satin evening gown with pink and white carnations, was given away by her father.

She was attended by a cousin, Mrs. Richard Gray of Prince Rupert and by Mrs. Yvonne Hageman of New Masset. Mrs. Gray wore a mauve evening dress, headpiece and bouquet to match. Mrs. Hageman wore a yellow dress, with yellow veil and bouquet to match.

Best man was Henry Hageman and Wilfred Bennett was usher.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Broadway Cafe.

The couple left on a motor trip to California and on their return will live at New Masset.

Borden Street Juniors Aid CNIB Drive

Donation of $63.66 was made by the Borden Street Junior Red Cross branch yesterday afternoon to aid the Canadian Institute for the Blind fund.

Receiving the donation, St. John Madeley, district CNIB chairman, thanked the students for "your very generous donation."

Mr. Madeley told the class of the work of the institute in helping the blind learn useful occupations. The substantial contribution made by the school would further such work.

Junior Red Cross President Joanne Prockter welcomed Mr. Madeley on behalf of the branch. Reports were presented by the treasurer, Gilbert Chow, who turned over the proceeds to Mr. Madeley; the convener for health, Margaret Leighton; the convener of coupons, Maureen Hopkins; and the magazine convener, Billy Marchant. The secretary's report was given by Katherine Carter.

Other guests at the meeting were Richard Paulding, president of Division Two, Junior Red Cross branch, with vice-president Judy Rossiter; and Division Three branch president, Gail Davidson and vice-president Paddy Greene.

Mr. Madeley congratulated President Prockter on her efficient chairmanship and the executive on the capable way in which they and the members had conducted the business of the meeting.

Hospital Auxiliary Tea at Bank Opening

Women's Auxiliary of the Hospital met for a tea at the bank on Wednesday. The tea was given in aid of the hospital. The auxiliary members were assisted by the bank staff. The tea was a success and the auxiliary members were thanked for their contribution.

Donated to the hospital, the gift of Mrs. George Dover. V. Harper was thanked for the posters he made and donated. Plans were made for the tea and home cooking sale to be held in the Credit Union Hall today.

Newcomers to Terrace interested in helping with hospital work, mending, etc., are invited to join the W.A. and are asked to contact Mrs. George McAdam for further information.

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. A. E. Norton for the use of her home for past meetings. Future meetings will be held in the Credit Union Hall to accommodate more members and guests. The next meeting is Oct. 23.

New Schoolroom Opened at Skeena River Cannery Site

Another schoolroom has been added to the total now supervised by Prince Rupert School Board.

Trustees were advised by board secretary Mrs. M. M. Roper at their regular monthly meeting last night that a classroom was opened for 16 children at Inverness Cannery on September 24.

A former teacher at Langley, Miss May Elliott, accepted the position at the cannery school. The Board confirmed her appointment.

In disclosing the facts for the first time, Mrs. Roper said the cannery is supplying the building and light for the classroom and living quarters for Miss Elliott.

She said parents of children attending the school helped to put the classroom in order and only cost to the school board was the teacher's salary and fuel.

G. W. Graham, inspector of schools here, visited the school and said it appeared quite satisfactory.

Natives at Inverness Cannery asked the Board to open the school there so their children would not be forced to trudge the four-mile distance to the nearest school at Sunnyside.

Children had been in the habit of walking along the Canadian National Railway tracks and parents felt the practice too dangerous, specially for beginners.

A committee of three, headed by Dr. R. G. Large, chairman of the Prince Rupert School Board, has been appointed to investigate a request to improve Booth Memorial High School grounds.

A. M. Hurst, principal at the high school, urged action before the visit of Canada's Governor-General, Vincent Massey, to the school on Oct. 22.

Other members of the committee are Trustees Joe Scott and A. J. Dominato.

Trustees Brown and Scott, delegates to the annual convention of the B.C. School Trustees' Association at New Westminster in September, reported briefly to the board.

Mr. Brown said there were 68 school districts represented and Nelson was selected as the site for next year's convention.

Among resolutions endorsed was one from Maple Ridge which urged the provincial department of health and welfare and the University of B.C. to consider establishment of a school of dentistry at UBC.

New Fall Fabrics Fine For Home Dressmaking

Since this fall's fashions put the accent on fabrics and textures, the "make-your-own" brigade of home dressmakers have a wonderful chance to shine. The two style trends are softer, more flowing lines for daytime or formal occasions, and stiff, stand-out silhouettes, as well as the softer drape, for evening.

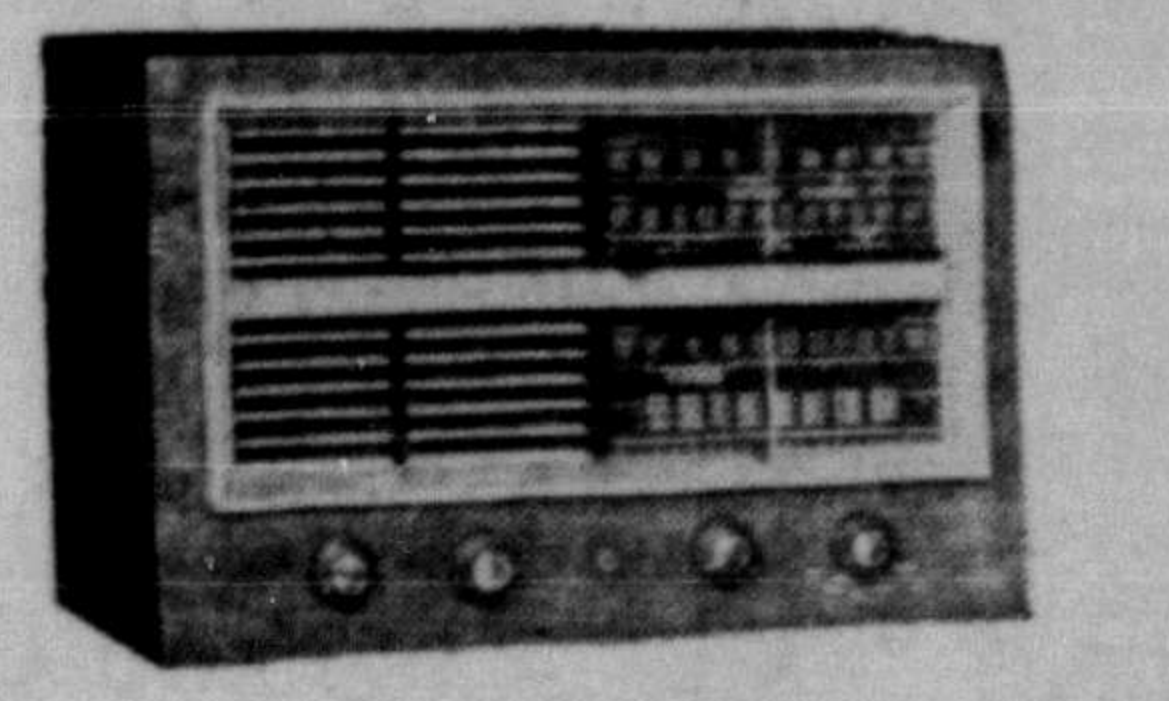

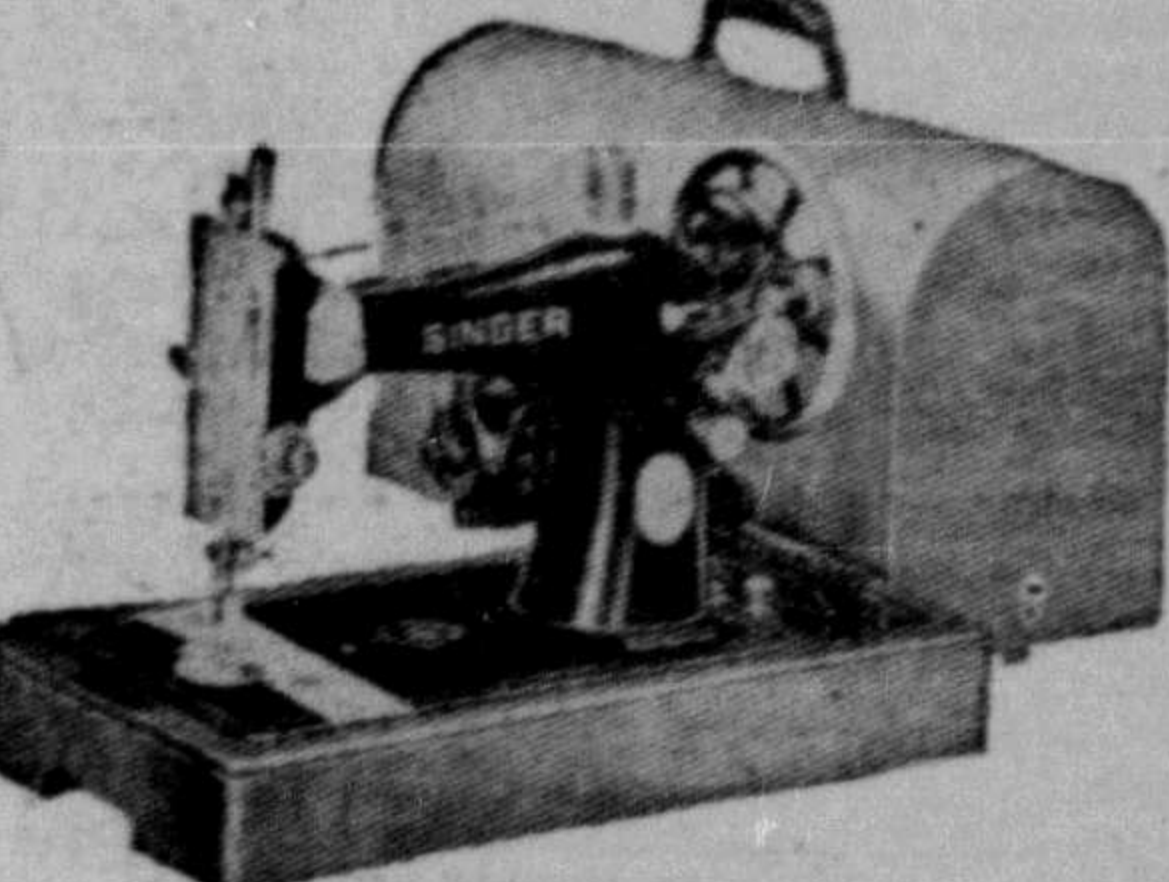

Wool jersey is the fabric way out front for informal, and even occasional evening wear. Available in the new shades in sewing centers, it lends itself well to soft draping. It is the leading favorite with the younger set. Sewing centers report their tweeds and corduroys are holding up well for street wear and suits. For afternoon or dinner dresses, poodle crepe, velvet and unusual taffetas are smart. Chiffon velvet gives the soft line for evening, and the glitter-sheen taffetas furnish the stiffer effects.

Stiff interfacing is high fashion for peplums and collars to accentuate the flare. For best effects in interfacing, evershape sheer canvas is the answer. A new feature in sewing centers, this sheer canvas gives the stiffness of buckram or crinoline muslin — and, this is news — it will stay stiff when dry cleaned or washed.

New, too, this fall, in sewing centers, are mix-match tweeds. They are light-weight enough to make into the softly draped suit or dress. They are also new in their pattern treatment; tiny crosses in two colors, red and green, for instance, are threaded through the fabric in long darning-like stitches on a grey background. You can make a matching crepe blouse for a suit from crepe material, available in a wide selection in sewing centers, to highlight either color in the tweed.

Funeral Held For Pioneer City Fisherman

Funeral was held here Thursday for an old-time resident fisherman who first began fishing on this coast in 1909.

He was Leonhard (Leo) Bredal Mikelsen, 65, who died in St. Paul's Hospital, Vancouver, last Saturday.

Born in Berg, Helgeland, Norway, Mr. Sandvar came to Seattle in 1909, went to Alaska subsequently and arrived in Prince Rupert in 1912, following the fishing industry.

He went to Norway in 1926 where he married, then returned to Prince Rupert where he since lived.

Besides his wife, surviving him are one son, Melvin of this city, and four brothers and five sisters in Norway.

Services were conducted from Grenville Chapel by the Rev. H. O. Olse, Lutheran Church minister.

Mrs. G. C. Gilker was organist and Mrs. F. E. Anfield sang a solo, "Take My Hand, Precious Lord."

Hymns played were "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." There was a large congregation and many beautiful floral tributes were offered.

Active pallbearers were Martin Berg, L. Sollie, W. Bussey, Carl Giske, Olaf Clebo and Barney Roldal. Honorary pallbearers were Pete Wold, Hans Langholm, Jens Husvik and A. C. Clark.

Burial took place in Fairview cemetery under arrangements of B.C. Undertakers.

Newcomers To Interior Bring Home

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Robert Harris and their two children brought their home with them from their native Leicestershire, England.

A television appearance by Mrs. Nancy Hodges, former British Columbia legislature speaker, during a visit to England interested the Harrises in B.C., so they sold their home, packed up and embarked for Canada with a trailer and their youngsters, Jennifer, 3, and Stuart, 5.

They travelled for three weeks across the country via the United States.

Mr. Harris has been appointed principal of Riondel high school. Mrs. Harris is a registered nurse.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

"Obvious Play" Is Not Always Best Procedure

One angle which even experienced players have to watch is the tendency to make the obvious play—the play which has turned out well for them on hundreds of previous occasions.

Playing a no trump contract, for example, it is usually best to set up your longest suit first. But that is not always the best procedure. The fine player is continually on the alert to recognize when deviations from "normal" lines of play must be made.

Mr. Abel is a pretty good player but he is often guilty of carelessness and failure to think out each specific problem of play.

In today's deal he got the trey of diamonds opening, played small from dummy and killed Mr. Champion's jack with the ace. He saw that he had two sure winners in the diamond suit, three heart tricks, one spade trick and one club trick—a total of seven.

Now he figured that if he could break the club suit 3-2, he could win three tricks in clubs, bringing the total up to nine. He had a total of eight clubs in his hand and dummy, leaving five for the opponents. By giving up two tricks, he could win three.

This was all very fine, except that in the process the enemy won five tricks in all, defeating the contract. On the lead of the ace and another club, Mr. Dale won the second club and returned a low diamond. Mr. Abel won with the ten and fired another club, losing to the queen. Mr. Champion led back his last diamond and Mr. Dale won two tricks in that suit. On the last diamond, Mr. Champion flashed the eight of spades and a lead to the ace of that suit put the contract down one.

Mr. Abel would have had a better chance if he had gone after spades at trick two, leading a small one from his hand

Sonja, Barbara Ann in Box Office Battle

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A box office battle of ice-borne blondes—Canada's Barbara Ann Scott and her Hollywood Ice Revue versus Sonja Henie and her 1953 Ice Revue—opened here Thursday.

They'll appear simultaneously in Indianapolis for eight of the next 10 nights.

Barbara Ann, the sweet school girl type, took Sonja's job in Arthur Wirtz's Hollywood show a year ago.

Sonja immediately organized her own show. Her management claimed a total attendance of more than 1,000,000 for her 1951-52 tour. The Scott show claimed more than 2,000,000.

The little Norwegian wasn't able to book her own show into Indianapolis, and it always has been one of her best audiences. This year she brought a portable rink to the Butler University fieldhouse and opened Oct. 3 after a premiere in Chicago.

The Hollywood Ice Revue management thought it was more than coincidence that the Henie show came to town almost a week ahead of the Scott premiere, announced last April. Sonja didn't improve relations with an announcement that ticket sales are so good she'll stay an extra week to Oct. 18.

The Hollywood Ice Revue's first stand this year will run through Oct. 26 at the Indiana State Fair Grounds Coliseum. It played a private "pre-opening" show Wednesday night.

Barbara Ann and Sonja are both former Olympic figure skating champions, but they never competed against each other. The Canadian girl is 24, Sonja 39.

A reporter asked Barbara Ann Wednesday what she thought about Sonja. She said she was a long-time admirer of Miss Henie's skating.

"When I was a little girl," she said, "I went to see all her movies."

Critics after last night's private performance called the Hollywood show one of the best of the 18 annual Wirtz productions. They found Miss Scott more sure of herself, "a real pro now."

at the CIVIC CENTRE

Craft classes are again underway at the Civic Centre. Many of the members from last year attended the opening sessions this week and already are busy with new projects offered in the craft catalogue.

There is a large and varied selection of leather this year to choose from including the finest English Morocco and pigskin for wallets to the colorful shades of cowhide for purses and briefcases. Shearling is available for the cozy slippers which make nice Christmas presents. The ever popular suedes are now in stock along with new shades in horsehide. A white pigtex should appeal to those who have a flare for the unusual and will make an attractive project.

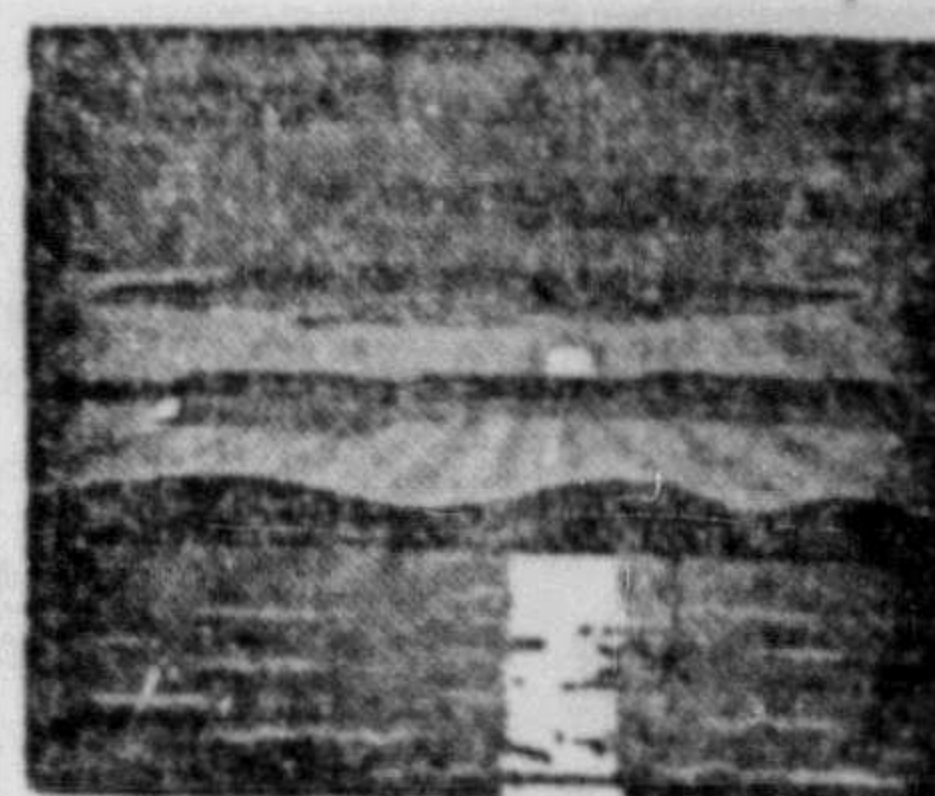

Carving class on Thursday night was of interest to a few and purses are the ultimate goal of those who started this week.

Mr. J. Bremner is going to give a course in the art of metal tooling on Tuesday evenings in the craft department of the Civic Centre and those interested in attending are invited to be on hand this Tuesday so that they may learn the fundamentals of the art. This class is open to adult members and will be held each week.

Mr. Bremner has done extensive work in this field of crafts and has various pieces to display to those attending, as well as patterns and designs.

PLAYING HORSE—When constable F. A. Watson saw two horses wandering loose in Calgary late at night he was stumped momentarily to get them to the city's pound. Finally he opened the patrol car's trunk, took the reins and, with another policeman driving, led them away. (CP PHOTO)

Gerald McBean, managing director of Union Steamships Limited, does not know when he will be able to meet Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce to discuss the boat situation.

WATERFRONT -- WHIFFS

Mr. McBean advised the Chamber about a month ago that he planned a trip here to discuss the change in boat schedule inaugurated by his company last May.

In a letter last week to Philip M. Ray, Chamber secretary, he said he cannot state yet when he will be here but will endeavor to arrange a meeting as soon as possible.

Frank Skinner, manager of USS office here, asked, to comment on elimination of the Sunday boat arrival here by Union Steamships, told Chamber members "it is merely a matter of economics."

"If it weren't for Kemano and Kitimat we would have only one boat a week on our northern run."

City council, the Chamber of Commerce and most merchants recently signed a petition urging resumption of the Sunday boat arrival here to guarantee delivery on Monday of fresh produce and milk.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The age of vaudeville is over for television, says Milton Berle, whose variety show made him TV's top drawer.

Berle has abandoned his slam-bang vaudeo format this season, substituting a story-line program.

"I'd say I did about all I could with the vaudeville format," he remarked. "I was the first one in it, and I played it for four years. I milked it."

"The vaudeville format was great. In all modesty, I can say that I introduced to TV such performers as Lucille Ball, Martin and Lewis, Tony Martin, and many, many others who now have their own shows. That's one of the troubles now—so many of the big names have their own shows. There isn't good talent left to provide top shows 39 times a year."

"And another thing—people have gotten tired of the vaudeville type of show. You can't go on doing the same skits. The material is bound to get thin."

NEW SHOW Berle said he was delighted with his new show, which permits him some moments of restraint.

"People get to see a new side of me," he said. "I play myself Milton Berle, and the troubles of putting a show together."

"Another thing—I am now merely a performer," he added. "With my old show, I did everything—producing, directing, writing. The result was that I was neglecting my own performance."

"But now I'm happy to sit back and let other people do the work. It's about time. Next year I'll be celebrating my 40th year in show business." He blushing admitted to being 44 now.

Q Is 20 years a long time?

A It depends on your age.

A man of forty can look forward to many interesting years and in 20 years can build up, within his present means, an income to help him enjoy his later years. At the same time he can provide for the welfare of his family should the unexpected happen to him. ...and that's the story of the Silver City

This busy, progressive community, nestling in the mighty Columbia River valley, is "home" to over 12,000 men and women.

The City is Trail... Behind it, like a giant backdrop, stands the huge plant of The Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company. On the first level are the metal plants daily turning out Canada's largest production of lead, zinc and silver. On a higher level stands the largest fertilizer plant in Canada, performing feats of chemical magic in making a vital product for a food-hungry world.

All this has been made possible by continual investment of profit dollars in exploration, research, plant construction and expansion. The city grew with the company. Many local businesses, large and small, grew also by using part of their profits to provide better facilities and services for the citizens of this fast-growing community.

Thus, like any other company or community which has been successful—the key to that success was profits—dollars over and above everyday operating expense—dollars to be spent on expansion and growth to provide jobs, permanence and security.
