Seizure of Liquor Vessel in Mexican Waters by U.S. May Have International Aspect

SAN DIEGO, June 7.—The capture of an alleged Canadian rum runner off Coronado Island, Mexico, while the vessel was attempting to land a thousand cases of whiskey, ostensibly for smuggling into San Diego, was reported here by the commanding officer of the Mexican patrol steamer Tecate. The vessel was towed to Ensenada where the crew of fifteen were placed in custody and the whiskey confiscated by the United States customs.

Much interest in the case is evinced here as to what action the Canadian government may take regarding the seizure, which took place between British Columbia and Lower California.

INSTALLATION LOCAL PASTOR

Rev. T. D. Rinde Formally Placed in Charge of English Lu- theran Congregation

The formal installation to the church of St. Paul's of Rev. T. D. Rinde took place last evening, Rev. P. E. Baisler officiating. It was a historic event in that he is the first regular pastor of the first English Lutheran Church in the northland. In his charge Mr. Baisler drew attention to this and admonished Mr. Rinde to preach the word as the only power of God unto salvation and to take heed unto himself that he might grow in experimental knowledge of the truth which he is called upon to teach. Further the speaker said, he should labor patiently and suffer reproach when necessary that the cause of truth might be advanced.

Mr. Rinde had recognized in the call of St. Paul's congregation the call from God to an important field. He felt sure that pastor and people would do blessed work for the kingdom.

In his charge to the congregation, the speaker admonished the people to make good their pledge of love and loyal support as set forth in the call to their pastor. The outlook was promising.

In his general remarks, Mr. Baisler said that the outlook was promising. Three points in the northland reported in 1924, Prince Rupert, Prince George and Juneau, and now had promising English Lutheran mission congregations.

An anthem was sung by the choir.

First Aid To The Injured.

At the week-end the Daily News told of the presentation of certificates to a number of railway employees who had completed their first aid course. Two of these were ladies. The work is most commendable but better than anything we can say in regard to it is the letter from Organizer Cook who sent the following message to those who had been successful:

First Aid is a course that can never be completed. The achievement of one year is but the opening of a door to further success and advancement. The first year certificate leads to the voucher; the voucher leads to medallion; and the medallion leads to the table, and each and every table to succeeding tables to be won annually.

First Aid is like every other study; to think that you have mastered it completely after one or two years' study is a detriment to further completion and the subject itself, as far as you are related to it, if left alone, becomes stagnant, rusty and dead. Furthermore, the reception of a First Aid award is but an inspiration to continue on to further progress. There is one thing to be remembered about all other things, and that is the first aider is not to consider himself as a camouflaged doctor. This true he deals with medical subjects. He or she has a general knowledge of human anatomy, the circulatory system, the physiological organs of the human body, but all this knowledge is intended simply as an aid until the arrival of the qualified physician. In other words the first aider is but a bridge between the accident and the doctor. And you know perfectly well that a man who can convert himself into a bridge between the injured patient and the medical man has performed work of inestimable value—work which can be a life saving achievement; work that can be of assistance even to the medical practitioner. Therefore, the first aider is a servant of his fellow men, prompted by benevolence and constructed upon humanitarian principles. It therefore is indeed a privilege personally for me on behalf of the company, the Canadian National Railways, as well as the Western Region Council of the St. John Ambulance Association, to have this honor of presenting to you these certificates, as a token of your competency and ability to perform the tact, resourcefulness, dexterity, sympathy, etc., called forth by the eight points of the White Cross, the emblem of the order of which you are members, and that considered you as being worthy of its color and insignia.

Making Ourselves Fit To Live With.

Eddie Guest, the poet, is a man who is always talking about life and letting in new light on it. He says bright things in a bright way and although it is not all poetry, some of it is. He writes for the newspapers and millions of people read his verses. Seldom, if ever, has a man had such a wide circle of readers and been so highly appreciated.

One day Mr. Guest got the idea that while he had to live with others and it was necessary to fit himself to do that, his chief difficulty was to keep himself right with himself. He developed the idea and wrote this:

I have to live with myself, and so
I want to be fit for myself to know.

I want to be able, as days go by,

Always to look myself straight in the eye;
I don't want to stand with the setting sun,
And hate myself for things I've done.
I don't want to keep on a closet shelf
A lot of secrets about myself,
And fool myself, as I come and go,
Into thinking that nobody else will know
The kind of a man I really am;
I don't want to dress up myself in sham.

I want to go out with my head erect,
I want to deserve all men's respect;
But here in the struggle for fame and self
I want to be able to like myself.
I don't want to look at myself and know
That I'm bluster and bluff and empty show.
I can never hide myself from me;
I see what others may never see;
I know what others may never know,
I never can fool myself, and so,
Whatever happens, I want to be
Self-respecting and conscience-free.

SPOOK RANCH TO BE SEEN HERE TONIGHT

Hoot Gibson Picture is Funny and Weird and Full of Thrills

The story "Spook Ranch" showing here tonight starring Hoot Gibson, concerns a cowboy who is arrested in a small town for a slight offense. The sheriff has been troubled of late with a haunted ranch near the town, of which all the citizens are afraid and refuse to approach. The cowboy, a stranger in town, does not know of the unsavory reputation of the place and so accepts the sheriff's offer of liberty if he will investigate the place. Going there he finds that the ghosts are in reality a band of ruffians who are attempting to get the secret location of a mine from the rancher and his beautiful daughter.

After a fight Gibson is knocked out while the bandits disappear with the girl and her father, leaving their leader bound after a mutiny. Awaking, Gibson does not know his fellow prisoner and takes him to be someone who can help him. They chase after the bandits and Gibson subdues them in a gun battle, freeing the rancher and his daughter. Meanwhile the bandit chief disappears with the girl and Gibson is given an excellent opportunity to show his horsemanship to advantage. He picks up a stick on the run, strikes the bandit leader with one hand as he grasps the girl with the other rescuing her from possible death beneath the horse's hoofs.

This is undoubtedly one of the cleverest bits of heroic horsemanship ever shown on the screen and it is only a sample thrill from a thrill-ridden film.

There are plenty of laughs in this film.

"CLOTHES MAKE THE PIRATE" IS COMING FOR THE MID-WEEK

"Fifteen men on a dead man's chest—." The once popular ditty will be revived at the Westholme theatre at the mid-week, when as fierce a band of cut-throats as ever prowled the seas appear on the screen there.

They are the pirates of the comedy, "Clothes Make the Pirate," in which Leon Errol is starred with Dorothy Gish. Errol is the pirate leader, and among his precious rogues are Tully Marshall, James Rennie, George Marion and Walter Law.

In one of the thrilling scenes the buccaneers attack a British man-o'-war and after a furious battle between the two sailing ships, Dorothy Gish, Nita Naldi and Edna Murphy are carried off by the victorious pirates.

Mast, sails, and deck housing are shot away and the two fighting craft fire and ram each other, until the pirate crew manages to board and scuttle the war vessel.

"Clothes Make the Pirate" is from the Holman Day novel, Maurice Tourneur directed.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS PICTURE WEEK END

"Never The Twain Shall Meet" is Peter Kyne Tale Fast Moving Story

"Never the Twain Shall Meet," which is here for the week-end a new film, presented by the Cosmopolitan Corporation, and released by Metro-Goldwyn, is a picturization of Peter B. Kyne's South Sea tale of the same name, and proved to be one of Let's Banish the Children-Cheater!

"MISTER, that's not Orange-CRUSH. Why don't you give a fellow what he asks for?" Picture your boy or girl confronted by a burly buccaneer whose one idea is to profit more by selling cheap substitutes. He won't argue unless he has to. But what chance do the youngsters have with the children-cheater?

Here's why Orange-CRUSH is the finest fruit-flavored drink in the world today

First, the juice of luscious oranges—next, the delicate flavor of their peel—next, the zestful tang of the fruit acid found in oranges, lemons and limes. Added to this a pure food color, such as you use in your cakes and candies—pure cane sugar—healthful carbonated water.

Orange-CRUSH is worth fighting for. Far too many of our boys and girls are cajoled into accepting inferior substitutes. The dealer who hands out Orange-CRUSH when they ask for it is worthy of their patronage. He has to pay more for Orange-CRUSH than for inferior imitations, but in the end he profits more, because it brings him a larger volume of sales. The dealer who sells the Krinkly Bottle is a man worthy of your respect because he sells a Quality drink. Call for Orange-CRUSH—look for the name Orange-CRUSH blown right into the Krinkly Bottle. Then drench your thirst in cool deliciousness.

Keenleyside Addresses Women's Canadian Club on Problems Which Beset This Country and Others

"There are two kinds of problems facing Canada: those that we have in common with other nations and those that are peculiar to ourselves," stated Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside of Vancouver in an address before the Women's Canadian Club on Saturday afternoon on "Some Canadian Problems." Dr. Keenleyside's discourse proved most interesting in that, besides pointing out some of the problems that were facing the Dominion, he submitted some constructive ideas as to how they might be met. Mrs. S. P. McMordie, president of the club, presided over the meeting which was largely attended.

In opening his address, Dr. Keenleyside expressed his appreciation of the opportunity of appearing before the Women's Canadian Club and enthusiastically endorsed the recent remarks of Archdeacon Rix in regard to the beauties of Prince Rupert. Although the past had hardly justified the original enthusiasm of the founders of the city, every sign pointed toward a very great advance in the near future. All over Canada there were evidences of coming prosperity and, on the average, conditions were much better in the United States. In the general prosperity of Canada, Prince Rupert as one of the two main Pacific Coast ports of Canada and with a hinterland teeming with natural resources and with scenic beauties of unparalleled nature, was certain to share largely.

Stupid Pessimism

It was an added pleasure, the speaker said to meet groups who were interested in the common problems of Canada. It was the intention in his address to point out that while there was no justification for the facile optimism that easily beset some people, the pessimism which had been so prevalent during the years of post war depression was even more stupid.

"In the first class are the three great problems of the modern world—disease, poverty, and war," continued the speaker. "Against disease, civilization has carried on a constant struggle from the day when a split and very dead cat was applied as a poultice in cases of appendicitis to our day of the X-ray, electro-therapy, immunization, the germ theory, and applied dietetics. As a result the human life has been lengthened more

Greatest Problem

"Poverty is the greatest of all problems and the most widespread. Even in the wealthiest countries 90 per cent of the wage earners are getting less than $2,000 a year; 35 per cent are under the poverty line, and 30 per cent are suffering from chronic undernourishment. The results are spiritual and social depravity, the hindrance of education, disease, crime and war. This is a problem that no one country can solve and social scientists throughout the world are still lost in its difficulties."

"H. G. Wells has said, in relation to war, that modern civilization is running a race between education and catastrophe. So far, it may be added that education is well behind in the race. It is quite within the realm of possibilities that another war will end our western civilization. Another world struggle will be as far ahead of the late world war as applied frightfulness as the late war was ahead of polite disputes of the middle ages. Fortunately through the League of Nations and other agencies, attempts are being made to obviate the likelihood of another war. Canada is playing no mean part in this work."

"Canada is divided by race, religion and geography, and the greatest of these is geography," said Dr. Keenleyside in discussing the problem of unity and the closely allied question of Canada's position in the Empire and as an independent nation. He referred to the problem of British wars; Mr. Meighen's proposal, present tendencies in the Empire, and Canada's part in asserting the rights of the overseas dominions. He stressed desirability of maintaining the British connection, but under terms of perfect equality. Social and intellectual independence was necessary so that Canada might work out her own destiny—the only way in which any nation ever became great. Imitation, even of as good a model as Great Britain, would stultify Canadian progress.

American Bogey

Speaking of the problem of American influence, the bogey of annexation and the reputed Americanization of Canada, Dr. Keenleyside declared that statistics showed there were fewer Canadians in United States today, both relatively and positively, than there were in 1900. The present trend, he said, was from United States to Canada and there never was a time in Canadian history when there was less discussion of annexation than at present. Even Americans themselves were beginning to recognize that Canada had her own destiny to work out, and that she would do it as an independent state, united on equal terms with Great Britain. Annexation was never so far away. Nevertheless there was a real problem of American influence. Whether right or wrong Canadians felt that American magazines, movies, social pressure and economic power in Canada were not making for the welfare of the Dominion.

"Finally, Canada must not be satisfied with economic progress," said Dr. Keenleyside. "Material civilization is only worth-while when used as a basis for spiritual and intellectual development. In the past Canadians have been too busy selling corner lots and engaged in the more manly occupations of the farmer, fisherman, miner and logger to devote much of their energies to cultural development. In recent years, however, we have seen the beginnings of an intellectual renaissance. Carmen, Remon, Osento, and others in literature. Tom Thompson, A. Y. Jackson and the Canadian school in painting, McGill and British Columbia schools of science have all contributed to this higher development. The Canadian Forum, the International Forum, and other magazines have been established to provide centres for the exchange of opinions and the expression of the artistic impulses.

Interested Public

"In this movement all those who hope to see Canada take her rightful place in the forefront in spiritual and artistic matters as she already promises to do in economic and political, should do all in their power to provide an interested public for the appreciation of all high effort. In no other way can Canada achieve her highest destiny."

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Dr. Keenleyside for his address on motion of Mrs. G. A. Woodland and Mrs. J. G. Steen. Tea was served with Mrs. J. G. McLennan and Mrs. D. G. Stewart pouring and members of the executive serving. The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada" and closed with the National Anthem, Mrs. Donald Ross accompanying.

The Well-Managed Home

THE manager of a household is the purchasing agent for a large proportion of the family needs. In order to do a good job she must know what, when and where to buy. She must study goods and the concerns which make goods and have them to sell. She must put her home on a business basis and run it on business principles in order to make the most of the family income.

Information is the only basis for intelligent purchasing. And the right way to get the greatest amount of necessary information is to read the advertisements.

Advertisements tell you what is new and good in merchandise. They reveal improvements and inventions to make your home life easier, more comfortable and more convenient. They give you information about a thousand and one things that are useful and interesting.

Every manager of a household--every member of the household who shares the responsibility for the family's welfare--should make a habit of reading the ads.
