STATEMENT OF WALTER DUNCAN

Nothing Except Unimportant Diary Failed to Come Out in Customs Investigation

MONTREAL, July 29.—The Montreal Star carries a special despatch from Ottawa stating that, in view of the discussions that had arisen in regard to the Duncan report on investigations into the customs department, Inspector Walter Duncan was asked for a statement as to whether anything was suppressed. His reply was quoted in part as follows: "What I did not produce before the committee and what was not published was a memorandum book of a certain woman. The notes in the book were in shorthand and I had them extended. They referred mainly to the private life and personal relations of this woman rather than bearing upon the customs department." The inspector surmised that the diary which he had in his possession was what all the "clamor was about."

MICHAEL CLARK DIES IN ALTA.

For Many Years Was Member For Red Deer and Prominent Figure in House

CALGARY, July 29.—Dr. Michael Clark, prominent Liberal or many years and a former member of parliament, died this morning. Dr. Clark, who followed the occupation of a farmer, was born in Northumberlandshire, England, in 1861. He completed his education in Edinburgh University from which he graduated as a doctor, practicing medicine in England for some years. He became engaged in ranching in Alberta in 1902 and in 1908 was elected to the House of Commons for Red Deer and was member for that district for over ten years. He disagreed with the Liberals on the conscription issue in 1917 and for some years after was a stormy petrel in the House. Dr. Clark, who resided in Olds, Alberta, is survived by a widow and four sons.

BIG BRITISH CASE IS OVER

Geoffrey Dennis Irskine Russell is Declared Lawful Child of Hon. John Russell.

LONDON, July 29.—After a four year legal battle, costing about £10,000, the mother of Geoffrey Dennis Irskine Russell, four and a half year old, won the fight to establish her boy as the legitimate son of her husband, Hon. John Russell, and the right to succeed to the title of Baron Amphil. The British courts yesterday declared that the lad was the lawful son of his parents. The boy is known to the gossipers of Europe as the "dream baby" because his father maintained that he had never had marital relations with his mother. Counsel asserted that Mrs. Russell first learned she was going to be a mother from a fortune teller being thus informed that it "must be a miracle."

Vancouver and Prince Rupert to be World's Greatest Grain Ports

Gyro Club hears inspiring address on freight rates and Pacific coast conditions by G. G. McGeer, K.C.

If young men can carry on during present times when the country does not seem to be making the progress that it might, they should stay with the ship in such cities as Vancouver and Prince Rupert, for within a very short time they will present opportunities such as will be found nowhere else in the world, declared G. G. McGeer, K.C., of Vancouver, in speaking before the Gyro Club last night on freight rates and Pacific Coast conditions. Mr. McGeer made the prediction that the next twenty-five years would be Western Canada's and that, within the next two or three years, there would be a change in the world's trade routes that would work to the advantage of the two great Pacific Coast ports, Vancouver and Prince Rupert, which, he declared, should be the greatest grain shipping ports in the world.

MONSTER IS SEEN AGAIN

Kelowna People See Strange Creature From Their Summer Cottage

VERNON, July 29.—The Okanagan Lake monster has again been reported, this time near Kelowna, by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Dalziel, who saw the monster while sitting on the porch of their summer cottage. The lake was perfectly calm at the time and the creature did not show its head above the water but three coils, resembling portions of motor tires, were visible. The monster was about one hundred feet from shore and the couple shouted in an endeavor to force it to show itself but instead it sank from view.

LIQUOR PROFITS SHOW INCREASE

During Last Six Months Liquor Profits Have Increased $225,000

VICTORIA, July 29.—Sales of the government liquor stores for the six months ending March totalled $6,600,000, bringing the amount for the year to approximately $13,500,000 or about two dollars monthly for every man, woman and child in the province. The profits for the last six months of $1,780,000, is an increase of $225,000. In the six months period ending in March the beer parlors purchased government beer to the value of $900,000.

Canada boasted two transcontinental railroads with terminals at Prince Rupert and Vancouver. Neither of these railways had mountain grades which was more than would be said of the United States lines. If the United States had these two railways and Alberta and Saskatchewan were behind such cities as Seattle and (continued on page six)

Election Prophets
Are Warming Up.

Election prophets are warming up again, and we soon shall be deluged with the usual fantastic claims of sweeping victories for both sides, says the Victoria Times. Already the Board of Strategy which operates the Conservative propaganda factory in Ottawa has started to inform us that virtually every province in Canada will give Mr. Meighen an overwhelming majority. On the other hand Mayor Mederic Martin of Montreal a few days ago told readers of The Times that the Liberals would emerge from the campaign in triumph. He insisted that the Conservatives would not win more than one seat in Quebec, where they now have four out of 65.

Whatever may be thought of these predictions, there is one whose views can not be lightly passed over. This is The Montreal Star, Lord Atholstan's newspaper, the most powerful Conservative journal in Canada. Early last May The Star declared that under Mr. Meighen's leadership the Conservatives could not possibly be returned to power, and he urged that leader to give way to one who could win.

This is what Lord Atholstan said in his newspaper, The Montreal Star:

"The Conservatives are at high-water mark in Ontario today. They cannot possibly hope to do much better in the Maritime provinces where there are only six Liberals. The Progressive-Dunning union on the prairie will leave them worse off west of Lake Superior. Yet in the present House they are seven short of a majority.

They must break into Quebec or break to pieces on the rocks of defeat.

Must we endure another Conservative defeat and five more years of tariff uncertainty to convince Mr. Meighen and his loyal friends that he stands in the way of success? If so, the result may be disastrous to the Dominion. What will five years of Dunning not do?

Not Much Change
is Expected.

The Manitoba Free Press, edited by Dr. John W. Daffoe, in an article scouping the claims of what it calls the "hard-boiled politicians" of both sides, does not see a Conservative victory as a possibility, but thinks the situation will be very much like that which has existed since last election, but with the Liberals composing the largest group.

We doubt if any experienced observer in the country without a political axe to grind is ready to predict a victory for Mr.
Meighen, largely for the reasons set forth by Lord Atholstan last May. Nothing has happened since then to alter the basis of the Atholstan opinion. The fact that the Conservatives are trying to make capital out of the customs disclosures, the investigation of which has been confined to Quebec ports, is keenly resented in that province, the electors of which know that smuggling has been just as rampant for many years in every other province and regard the tactics of Mr. Meighen as an attempt to discredit their province in the eyes of Canada. On the constitutional issue they are strongly with the Liberals, as they might be expected to be.

How Provinces
Will Line Up.

In Ontario, as The Montreal Star pointed out, the Conservatives have 68 out of 82, and they can not expect to win more.
In fact they are bound to lose a few through the fusion of Liberals and Progressives. In the Maritime provinces, usually Liberal, the Conservatives now have 23 out of 29, also a record, and they can not gain anything there.

In the prairies, as The Montreal Star estimated the situation, their prospects are hopeless. The slaughter of the agricultural credits bill and the Hudson Bay Railway appropriation, the attack on the budget, the inclusion of two high protectionist motor car magnate in the Cabinet—almost a direct jab at them—and Mr.
Meighen's declaration of his intention to restore the duties which had been reduced by the Robb budget, assure an almost complete Liberal and Progressive complement from the three prairie provinces. As there are only fifteen seats in British Columbia and the Yukon, nine of which the Conservatives now hold, there is no scope here to discredit Lord Atholstan's opinion.

Right here The Times joins the prophets. It predicts that Mr. Meighen will not only lose the election, but he also will lose the Conservative leadership, and that the next election will be fought by the Conservatives under the leadership of Mr. R. B.
Bennett.

Much Activity in Prospecting in This District is Noted in Annual Report Minister Mines

(By G. A. CLOTHIER, Resident Engineer)

The past year has been one of strenuous prospecting all over the district, not in the sense of the old-time rambling prospector, who figured that the greater distance he travelled the greater the amount of prospecting he had done. Comparatively little new ground has been staked, except, of course, in the Dease Lake country, but apparently every prospector in the district is working on his own claims and the amount of work done is noticeably in excess of the necessary assessment work.

The prospector is becoming a "developer," the result largely of the information obtained from the Annual Reports and the publications and maps of the Geological Survey of Canada.

The following will give the prospector reader some idea of the more accessible sections of the district and how to get there:

Atlin Section

Prospecting has been greatly stimulated by the extensive development and equipment of the Engineer mine and exploratory work on the adjoining properties, the Gleamer and Kirkland groups on the lower end of Tagish Lake, and the very promising development of the Atlin Silver-Lead Mines property near Atlin.

The section is ideal for prospecting for five or six months during the summer; the mountains are, for the greater part, bare and climatic conditions are perfect. It is reached by boat up the coast to Skagway, over the White Pass Railroad to Carcross, and from there by lake-boat to the Engineer, where there is a post office named Engineer, and Atlin. Outfitting can be done either at Carcross, which is in the Yukon territory, or Atlin.

Rainy Hollow Section

This is the drainage basin of the Kichini River, a tributary of the Chilkat River, which flows into Chilkat Inlet, a branch of Lynn Canal, just below Haines, Alaska. A large number of claims were staked in this area several years ago, but its inaccessibility prevented much development, though some very promising showings of gold ore, high-grade copper, and silver-lead ores were discovered. However, last year the Alaskan government completed an automobile road from Haines to Pleasant camp on the British Columbia line, a distance of 44 miles, including a fine bridge across the Chilkat at Wells.
From Pleasant Camp to Rainy Hollow, all in British Columbia, it is 12 miles over, at one time, a fairly good road, but which has degraded through disuse until now it is almost impassable. The renewal of this road to compare with the Alaska road would make this section very accessible and encourage its exploration and development and probably put the Maid of Erin on a shipping basis.

Taku River Section

This is the drainage area of the Taku River, which flows into the head of Taku Inlet, which in turn opens up into Stephens Passage, about 16 miles south of Juneau, Alaska. The inlet is about 48 miles long to Bullard's Ranch at the mouth of the river and from there to the British Columbia boundary is about 10 miles. The river is navigable for small gasoline boats to about the mouth of the Skoko River, flowing in from the north.

Stikine River

There has been a considerable amount of prospecting done along the Stikine this year, especially up the Clearwater River, a tributary entering from the north. As the Clearwater is practically on the eastern contact, this area should be a very promising field for prospecting. Reports are that small areas of placer ground have been found and very promising float quartz.

The Iskut is a tributary of the Stikine from the south, entering it about 7 miles above the boundary line. Several groups of claims have been staked and held for years. The river is navigable to the canyon, about 30 miles up, for small gas boats.

Dease Lake

The Dease Lake section had a small stampede to it last spring, particularly to Gold Pan Creek, in which placer gold was discovered last fall. A small amount of gold was recovered in the summer and considerable prospecting done over a wide area of country, resulting in a reported discovery on Palmer Creek, a tributary of the Turnagain River, about 60 miles east of the head of Dease Lake. There is an immense country for prospecting, with conditions very favorable now that the completion of the road from Telegraph Creek to Dease Lake ensure transportation.

These sections are all easily reached from Wrangell, up the Stikine River to Telegraph Creek, by river boat operated by the Barrington Transportation Company. Service opens about the middle of May and consists of one or more boats each week, depending on traffic.

Unuk River

From the head of Burroughs Bay the Unuk River penetrates the Coast range to the eastern contact belt. There has been enough desultory prospecting done in this section to prove that it is well mineralized and worthy of serious exploration. Its only handicap is transportation. The only means of access at present is by poling and lining up the river, which is extremely dangerous and for experienced men only.

The building of a trail from the mouth of the river to its head, a distance of approximately 50 miles, would open up the section for prospecting and development.

Portland Canal

This country has had some very extensive prospecting this year, mainly on ground that has been staked for years. There is little or no available ground for staking in either the Bear River, Salmon River, or Marmot River valleys on the tide water slopes.
The prospector would have to get pretty well up to the heads of the valleys and over the divide on the Naas slope.

Stewart is the distributing point of the Portland Canal mining division. Each valley has an excellent trunk road, from which radiate pack-horse trails to all tributary valleys and creeks, giving a very efficient system of transportation throughout. There is a serviceable horse trail over the main Bear River divide and down to Meziadin Lake. From the divide down Strohn Creek to the lake, about 14 miles, is a well mineralized country opened up by a trail up Surprise Creek and along the range for 15 miles, which has had practically no prospecting. Some fine showings are reported this year on claims just over the divide. This section is worth attention.

Alice Arm

This town, at the head of Olservatory Inlet, is the distributing point for an extensive mineralized area extending 25 miles up the Kitsault River, the tributary creeks and valleys of the Kitsault, the Hiltane River valley, and the country contiguous to Alice Arm (the inlet). Here, as in the Stewart country, there is intensive prospecting each summer by the prospectors on claims held for a number of years. Because of the discouraging inactivity in this region for the past two or three years there is more ground available for prospecting and staking.
The outlook for the future has, however, materially improved this year and this section is a safe recommendation for prospectors and operators as well.

Kitsumgallum Lake

A serviceable trunk road has been completed this summer from Terrace to the lower end of Kitsumgallum Lake, about 20 miles.
From here distribution is by way of the lake, though for emergencies there is a trail following the telegraph line along the east side of the lake, continuing on through the upper valley and across to Aiyansh on the Naas River. From the east side of the lake is a

TAKES PAPA'S PLACE

Helped Couple on Steamer Niagara Who Wanted to Get Married

VANCOUVER, July 29.—Judges were in great demand at the court house this week, despite the fact that most of them are away on the long legal summer vacation. The applicants cared not whether the jurist presided over the supreme court or the county court. Any judge would fill the bill.

There was no desperate or intricate legal battle to be fought out. Cupid had a case in court and a judge was required to act as both arbitrator and papa.

Charles Theodore Haultain, dashing navigating officer of the R.M.S. Niagara, wanted to marry Miss Ruby Cust, who with her mother was making the trip across the Pacific on the liner.

Mamma was willing, but what papa would think about it was not very well known until a cable had been sent and an answer received. To make matters worse the bride-to-be was not of the full age of 21, so an order from a judge had to be obtained before J. A. Mahony would issue the happy couple a license.

Takes Papa's Place

A frantic round up of all judges ensued and after a lapse of an hour or so Mr. Justice Aulay Morrison of the supreme court, graciously condescended to take papa's place. He heard the tale and plight of the lovers, looked them over critically yet kindly, read the cables to and from Australia as well as the officer's credentials, and gave them his consent, some good advice and his blessing. The marriage took place the next day. Both young people come from Ingleburn, New South Wales.

years of post-war depression, the liabilities were not met until the succeeding year. The City of Victoria this year has been making its payments out of the moneys received from the prepayment of taxes, a system inaugurated a few years ago by City Treasurer Edwin C. Smith. While the city had made several small borrowings from the bank this year, it has already repaid these. Other loans may have to be repaid later, but they will be met in the same manner, the city saving considerable sums in interest.

"I have been here for forty years, and I have never known it happen before," City Treasurer Smith stated yesterday, in reference to the city's achievement in its payment of its bank loan so early in the year.

other branches off to claims up Williams Creek. There are promising showings in this area and considerable prospecting is being done. It is a very likely mineral country and, though rough, is fairly accessible; in all, a section recommended for prospecting.

Railway Section

A great deal of prospecting has been done along the railway, especially before and during construction, when the river boats were the means of transportation from Prince Rupert to Hazelton. From Prince Rupert to Terrace the formation is schist for about 15 miles from Rupert and the balance Coast Range granodiorite. Nothing of importance has been developed to date along the Coast and Islands

The coast and islands south and west of Prince Rupert, including the Queen Charlottes, certainly offer the most favorable transportation facilities in the district. The miles of waterways make ideal conditions for prospecting, though the rock formations and general geological features are considered not so conducive to mineral deposition as the eastern side of the coast range. This section is easily reached to almost any point by the coast-plying boats. Such properties as the Granby at Anyox, Surf Inlet on Princess Royal Island, and Britannia on Howe Sound demonstrate the possibilities for investment of capital for development and production.

An innovation in prospecting in this section of the country was the hydroplane reconnaissance made last summer by A. Little, a Detroit mining engineer, to the lower Liard and Frances Lake countries. I have no information as to the results obtained, other than that the flights were successful, demonstrating the feasibility of the use of such machines for prospecting the almost inaccessible interior.

Portland, what the United States would not do and say? Even Australia with no great timber resources, no great fisheries such as Canada's had cities like Sydney with population of a million and a quarter people. It made one wonder what was the matter with Canada. The country had lost the spirit of the pioneers, the spirit of faith and optimism and, in some cases, hope. But it had everything it had 25 years ago and the same prospects were to be seen in the future. It was a country for young men and young

If you think you are a wise guy, come on over and see what one snappy, modern, 1926 peach could do to you with the wing of one beautiful eyelash. That Felt Hats are popular and sold for summer wear on a big scale is the opinion of "WOMEN'S WEAR" Magazine, published in Toronto. BUT—

WHY IS IT SO POPULAR?

3rd: Because it does not soil easily with rain.
