LARGE CROWD HEAR MEIGHEN SATURDAY

MACKENZIE KING SAYS ANTI-AMERICAN PROPAGANDA DOING COUNTRY HARM

Premier Meighen Speaks at Two Meetings Saturday Night Before Big Crowd Prince Rupert People

A large crowd of men and women of all shades of thought and opinion turned out Saturday night to see and listen to Premier Arthur Meighen. Most of them had never seen or heard him before. They heard a clever speech of a clever lawyer and an able man and gave good attention throughout. The Westholme Theatre was packed to the doors and there was a fair gathering at the overflow meeting in Boston Hall. At the meeting G. H. Orme, president of the district Conservative Association, presided and at the smaller gathering, his assistant, E. A. Mann, was chairman. On the platform with Mr. Orme was Mayor Newton, D. C. Stuart, president of the Prince Rupert Conservative Association, J. O. Williamson, George Munro, Joseph Scott Sr., J. A. Kirkpatrick, J. H. Thompson, J. G. McLennan and John Flewin.

All three speakers, Premier Meighen, Leon Ladner and J. G. Brady, addressed each meeting although the addresses were more lengthy and more impressive before the larger audience. In the theatre Leon Ladner opened with an eloquent address. J. G. Brady followed with an impassioned appeal for support and Mr. Meighen gave a reasoned account of his view of the outstanding matters pertaining to the present political situation such as tariff, the customs investigation and the constitutional question involved in the refusal of the Governor to grant dissolution to Mackenzie King. He also mentioned several matters of local interest particularly the decision he had come to that the fish trap licenses should be cancelled for the present until further investigation had been made, that the fish boat floats should be built if it was found the Mackenzie King government had placed an amount in the supplementary estimates with which to do the work, but he refused to commit himself in regard to a post office building.

REOPENED MINE FOUND CORPSES

After Many Years Workmen Begin to Take Out Bodies of Entombed Miners.

STELLARTON, N. S., Aug. 16.—After nearly half a century, the "Old Pit," which had remained hermetically sealed in the bowels of the earth since the tragic explosion in 1880, entombing 49 miners whose bodies had never been recovered, began to give up their dead on Saturday when attempts to penetrate the old workings were successful.

Workers entered the foul interior and recovered three bodies. Little was left of the corpses but the bones and leather belts of the victims which are said to have been perfectly preserved.

BIG FIGHT BETWEEN
WHALE AND THRASHER
* * * * *
On the last southbound trip of the steamer Prince Charles the passengers witnessed a fight between a 50-ton whale and a thrasher whale while crossing Queen Charlotte Sound. The marine monsters were only about a quarter of a mile from the boat and the whale could be clearly seen jumping high out of the water. Officers on the boat stated they have never seen a whale jump so far out of the water before.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 16.—Three firemen were slightly injured and damage estimated at $350,000 was caused this morning by a fire which gutted the warehouse on Beatty Street housing the British American Paint Co. and the Gutta Percha Rubber Company. The fire was one of the most spectacular in years owing to large quantities of combustible matter and it took the entire fire fighting force three hours to gain control.

PREMIER MEIGHEN WAS WELL RECEIVED

VANCOUVER, Aug. 16.—Premier Meighen was given an enthusiastic reception on his arrival here this morning. Later he went to New Westminster to deliver an address and then leaves for Royston in the Coquihalla-Alberni riding where he speaks tonight.

The Premier expressed himself as wonderfully pleased with his northern trip and says he enjoyed the scenery immensely.

A. B. Elliott, Sir Charles Wakefield and Allan Cobham are shown here in order named. The Wakefield flight of 26,000 miles to Australia and back was interrupted in a desert stretch, 100 miles northwest of Basra, where a wandering Arab shot at the plane. Young Elliott was mortally wounded and died in hospital where Evans took him.

Perjury Charged in Connection With Cleaning up Voters' Lists Vancouver Centre Constituency

VANCOUVER, Aug. 16.—An information charging perjury has been laid before Earle Robinson, justice of the peace, against Amos G. Ferguson, said to be a worker in the Liberal ranks, in connection with the filing before Chief Registrar Haskins of affidavits demanding that upward of 3,000 names be removed from the voters' list in Vancouver Centre on the ground that they no longer resided in that constituency.

A summons was issued today calling on Ferguson to appear in court on Wednesday. The list of names submitted to the registrar included those of Hon. H. H. Stevens and his wife.

Liberal headquarters issued a statement denying any attempt to remove the names of bona fide residents and stating that they were seeking to remove only the names of persons who have long since ceased to reside in the district.

JAPANESE VESSEL IS ON THE ROCKS

SENATOR DIES

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—Senator Alfred Thibaudeau, 75 years of age, died Sunday night.

Mr. Stork has been receiving advices from the east and from all he sees and hears he feels sure Mackenzie King will go back much stronger than he did at the last election.

"The people want a government with a working majority and they are swinging to Mackenzie King in order to secure that King will get full control in the next House."

Mr. Stork took two days off at Whitehorse in order to aid Fred Congdon in his political fight with George Black. He addressed an enthusiastic meeting at Whitehorse and he says he considers Mr. Congdon has a good chance of winning. The Liberal split which caused the trouble in the last election has been healed and they are now all enthusiastically behind Congdon.

Mr. Stork is now off to visit the southern part of the constituency.

Mackenzie King Says Conservative Campaign Breeds Illwill in U.S.

KAMLOOPS, Aug. 16.—"I should like to draw attention of my fellow Canadians to the unpatriotic aspect of the campaign of prejudice against the great republic to the south which the leaders of the Conservative party are again seeking to arouse," declared Mackenzie King here Saturday night at his third and final meeting in British Columbia.

"For themselves," Mr. King said, speaking of the Conservative leaders, "it comes at a particularly inopportune moment. Every hotel in every city of Canada is today crowded with American tourists who cherish only the kindest feeling toward the people of the Dominion and who are spending their money freely in all parts of our country. It would be difficult to estimate what the tourist trade alone means to the present prosperity and future development of our and."

"It is wholly unnecessary to talk of annexation and the contemptuous terms in which many Conservatives refer to the United States does not foster good will. It breeds ill will in a variety of directions. It is a cheap sort of business at best and a party driven to appeals of that kind cannot wonder if its unpatriotic attitude is arousing in the hearts and minds of the public a resentment that will make itself felt in no uncertain terms.

"If this campaign is kept up along these lines, I intend to have much to say about it during the next few weeks. The people of Canada expected to have more positive statements from the Conservative leader and less of detractions," concluded Mr. King.

PREMIER MEIGHEN SPEAKS AT TWO MEETINGS SATURDAY NIGHT BEFORE BIG CROWD OF PRINCE RUPERT PEOPLE

was history. The speaker said he thought the people of Prince Rupert would agree, however, that events indicated the caution of Sir Robert Borden a little later. The G.T.P. immediately after it had been put into operation had gone into liquidation and if the government had not been the liquidators and supplied the money the whole road would now be a streak of rust and a pasture. The Conservative government believed that the railroad had been built by the wish of the people and that communities had been built up thereon and it was their duty to finish the enterprise. The Conservative government had finished it and when the enterprise had failed as a private enterprise the government had operated it. Other railway enterprises had failed at the same time because railroads had been over-constructed. The Canadian Northern had been saved from bankruptcy by the financial aid of the government.

The systems had been collected together and made into one great transcontinental system. Some Liberals had claimed that they had left the G.T.P. out but the order taking it into the transcontinental system based on the statute had been passed before the Conservatives went out of office and the whole work was done by the government prior to the Mackenzie King administration.

Asset to Country

The National Railway system of today, as one great railway was the work of the Conservative government. The system was showing signs of life at the present time and economies of internal management had taken place which would finally result in the railway being an asset to the country. It was nonsense to talk about the Conservative party losing interest in these lines. The national system, said the speaker, was the creation of the Conservative party which would not neglect any community resident thereon but would extend generosity at the hands of the country (applause).

Mr. Meighen said he had been defeated. While de-fated the Conservative party had known very well they had not been defeated on the issues before the people in that election. In Quebec they had then said the issue was conscription and that Meighen was a monster who wanted their sons to be murdered and by this cry the Liberals had swept the province of Quebec. But the platform of the Liberal convention and Progressive convention had not been put into effect. They did not disturb very seriously the general level of the Conservative tariff but had left it just where it was. The result of Liberal administration had been that capital had refused to invest itself in Canadian enterprises but the United States had taken the opposite course. At the end of 1921, when the Conservatives went out of office, the United States had substituted the Fordney tariff and reinforced their position. The year 1923 had been the biggest from an industrial standpoint in the history of the States which had been excelled by business in 1925, and their actual production today exceeded everything in 1925.

In Canada, just as fine a country as the United States, blessed with four bountiful harvests, found itself in four years with 3,000 factories closed and 800,000 of its citizens had gone to another land to live. This, in a few brief words, told the story what a tariff to gain the allegiance of the Progressive votes in the House, and thus maintain a majority for the Liberals, had done for the country.

Bitter Experience

The people of Canada had learned from that bitter experience, and that experience had sunk home, and on the same appeal in the last election the Conservatives had carried six provinces, evened up in one, and lost only two. In Quebec again the old question of conscription had been revived and that the speaker was the enemy of the province and would bring about a war with Turkey to get the sons of Canada murdered.

"Do you believe that the Liberal party today stands against the Protective system?" asked Mr. Meighen. A member of the government in that election, in Quebec last fall, denounced the speaker for not being a higher protectionist. The Liberal policy of the country should be to hold the resources of the country to be developed by the people of the country instead of shipping out the assets of our Dominion and then boasting about our exports. If Canada was going to ship out the natural wealth of her mines and forests and ship out the fit workers to migrate to the American Republic, then the sooner we raised the white flag and told them we were an annex of theirs the more honest to ourselves we would be.

Definite System

Mr. Meighen stated the country wanted a definite protective system applied on all our products and placed on a stable footing that the workers can know definitely that their wages cannot be taken from them by legislation and when that was done Canada would surprise the world. The principal of a protective policy did not merely apply to manufactured goods but applied to everything even to transportation. Protection was necessary for the transportation routes to see that they carried the products of the country and to see that the lines to the south did not attack our trade. With respect to the agricultural industry the Canadian tariff should be put as high as the American tariff. There was no reason in the world why the United States should shut out our surplus production and allow $149,000,000 of the products we raised to be sold here against the farm production of Canada. That was unjust to Canada.

Mr. Meighen said he had been badly defeated. While de-

Have You Met This Fellow?

THE old-time fakir is passing. But occasionally you will meet with another kind of deception. Eager for cooling, soothing deliciousness, you'll ask for Orange-CRUSH, but will you get it —?

The man behind the counter may murmur that he had some but he's just sold out—"Here's something just as good." Probably he's stocked a case or two, sold it out promptly and is foisting cheap imitations on the public. This type of dealer substitutes because of the fraction of a cent more profit on each bottle of an inferior drink he sells.

All Orange-CRUSH dealers are high-grade dealers—merchants who will hand you Orange-CRUSH when you ask for it. Orange-CRUSH costs them more than cheap imitations but it brings them far larger volume of sales. And that's what makes Orange-CRUSH such a profitable and satisfactory drink to handle.

honesty and connivance with no criminals but were themselves making a business of the very illicit traffic they were sworn to extirpate and destroy. The minister himself had made it a business to sell seized liquor to his political friends, made in illicit stills, and had also signed an order that no illicit still in his country was to be touched. The liquor had been sold to the Canadian distillers at a few cents a gallon, they being responsible to pay $9.03 per gallon if used. Man after man had gone into the witness box, business men of all shades of politeness, and had said they could add to their business 20 per cent more in employees, some said 50 per cent, and some said 100 per cent, if the customs department were honestly administered. One man had said that in his whole line of business he had not employed one quarter the number of people he could have employed if the customs department had been honest.

Amounted to Nothing

In face of those assertions the Prime Minister had come into the west and had tried to make the people believe the adverse customs report had amounted to nothing. The Liberal government stood convicted by a committee appointed by itself, namely four Liberals, one Progressive, or five Liberals. Convicted by them of the rapid degeneration of the most vital department of the government. I say that is the verdict of the five Liberal members of that committee," said Mr. Meighen. The speaker had the verdict in his hands and no clause of the whole report had once been read by the ex-Prime Minister in any one of his speeches in the present campaign. There was not a line in the whole report but reflected upon the government of Mackenzie King. The whole moral degeneration of the customs department had been compassed within the four years of the Mackenzie King government. Smuggling had become a veritable profession and that operating right under the eyes of the customs officials with the approval of the leading officials of that department. The evidence had disclosed further that products made by United States prison labor had been smuggled into the country. It would be infamous, said Mr. Meighen, to make Canadian labor compete with the prison labor of the United States. These goods had been imported not in limited quantities but in hundreds of tons, imported by the connivance and approval of the heads of departments. Goods had been imported illegally with the approval of high officials who had been made rich at the expense of the honest laborer and honest storekeeper of our country. The report showed up the officials as unfit for their positions and these officials were not only in connivance and collusion with

FINED FIVE DOLLARS FOR BARKING OF DOG

EDMONTON, Aug. 16.—Paul Robota came pretty near to committing the crime of lese majesty, or something equally serious, when he permitted an Alsatian police dog that he owns to disturb the slumbers of Inspector Alec Riddle. Mr. Riddle is employed in the city health department, and it seems that he is an inspector of scenery—in back yards—microbes and strange noises. Anyway, he was the complainant when Robota appeared before Magistrate Primrose in the city police court, charged with "disturbing the peace and quiet of Alexander Riddle."

Considerable discussion arose between his worship and City Prosecutor A. E. Popple as to the correct wording of the charge, and it was finally amended to read as above. Then the inspector and two stalwart gentlemen in blue stepped into the dock and spoke in aggrieved tones of the suffering and anguish they had sustained as a result of the unseemly barking of the unmannerly hound. The accused was fined $5 and costs.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 16.—Ranking well among the leaders today in the railroad field, the Louisville and Nashville Railroad when founded did not contain enough money in its treasury to pay for a month's ice bill, as now consumed on any one of its leading pullman trains.

The road's treasury at the time of its foundation contained but $35,45 in actual cash. Today its monthly payroll alone approximates $6,500,000.

FEATURES HORSES IN FIRE PICTURE

Love, Romance and Infidelity Are Theme of Mid-Week Showing of "The Still Alarm."

In the mid-week picture, "The Still Alarm," Dick Fay, fireman, and his charming young wife, Lucy, have as a boarher, Perry Dunn, ward politician and man-about-town. The deudgery of the little home is beginning to tell on Lucy, but she conceals it from her husband. Perry observes it and begins to act accordingly. Pretending to be Dick's friend, he starts undermining his wife's love.

On the third anniversary of Dick and Lucy's wedding Perry brings her a bouquet in which is concealed a valuable gift. Lucy accepts the flowers but refuses to accept the jewelry.

Dick returns home with his present—a cheap little picture. While the three are at supper, Dick is called to duty by a tenement fire. During his absence Perry prevails upon Lucy to desert her husband. The two leave together. In the meantime at the fire Dick has rescued a mother and baby. The woman dies and Dick adopts the baby. Dick and Andy Todd, another fireman, arrive home with the baby only to find Lucy gone.

Eighteen years have passed and the baby, known as Drina Fay, raised by Dick, Andy and Mrs. Maloney, has grown into an attractive girl with flapper tendencies. Dick is now battalion chief, Andy a lieutenant. Tom Brand, young fireman, is in love with Drina, but worried by her apparent longing for a gay life. Drina loves clothes and has a desire for the stage. Masic, a friend takes her to a fashionable modiste shop where she is employed as a mannikin by Madame Celeste.

Perry Dunn, older and craftier, is interested in the shop and is smitten with the girlish charms of Drina. One night a great fire breaks out in the fashionable apartment house building in which the shop is located. Among the fire companies responding to the alarm are those commanded by Dick Fay, Andy Todd's company and Tom Brand's are out, too. The firemen fight their way into the building. What Dick finds in one of the burning apartments is a startling climax to this thrilling picture.

THE LIMITED MAIL TO BE SHOWN TONIGHT

Plot Tells of Efforts to Wreck Train and How Three Tramps Save It.

"The Limited Mail," here tonight, is a picturization of Elmer Vance's thrilling melodrama of the west, directed by George Hill.

The story concerns the fortunes of Bob Snobson, a never-do-well easterner who turns tramp and joins forces with Spike and Potts, two others of the carefree brotherhood. When the three save the Limited Mail from destruction by a mountain landslide, Jim Fowler, the mail clerk, strikes up a friendship with Bob.

Romance and Thrills

Together the two men bring up Bob's motherless little son Bobbie and together they fall in love with Caroline Dale, an attractive little waitress. Bob's past in the form of a chorus girl returns to disturb his romance, and further complications result when Jim is killed in a wreck due to Bob's carelessness in missing a danger signal. Bobbie falls into a stream when he follows Bob in his grief-stricken wanderings, and the man sacrifices the boy to rescue the Mail Train from a landslide.

How Spike rescues little Bobbie, how Caroline's faith is restored and she and Bob find happiness together forms the climax to the dramatic story.

"THE GREATER GLORY" IS WEEK-END FILM

Adaptation of Austrian Novel Screen is Good Picture.

Despite the fact that "The Greater Glory," June Mathis' great super-feature, which will be shown at the week-end, deals entirely with Vienna during and after the war, there is not a single so-called war scene in the entire production.

One of the episodes shows the army of the former glorious Austrian empire going off to the war.

But of actual scenes showing fighting at the front there are none.

"The Greater Glory" is an adaptation of "Viennese Medley," celebrated novel by Edith O'Shaughnessy, wife of the American ambassador at Vienna. The screen production was carried out along colossal lines. More than a year was spent by Miss Mathis and a large company in filming the various scenes.

The poignant story traces the fortunes of a typical well-to-do Viennese family. It follows them from prosperity to poverty to the beginning of a rehabilitation. The central figure in the epic drama is a kindly maiden aunt, aristocratic, unworldly and intensely sympathetic to all the ills about her.

The finding of an actress to take this role was attended with the utmost difficulty, and Lucy Beaumont, well known on the stage, was selected only after more than 300 character women had failed to fill all the demands of the part.

WHAT NOT TO DO IN WRITING LIMERICKS

Be Sure You Have the Rhythm Correct Or It Is Not Eligible.

There have been some very good limericks sent in for the prize competition, but there may be better even yet. Remember that the prize is five and three dollars for first and second prize respectively. If you don't get the first, you may land the three dollars.

The difficulty is that many do not recognize a limerick when they see it. Perhaps by showing one or two that are not correct they may get the idea by comparison. Here is one that is pretty nearly correct technically, although a great many will not agree with the sentiment:

Little Arthur can make a good speech.

But sometimes he gets out of reach.

With his stories so tall, He can flam flam us all.

What a pity he can't stay and preach!

In contrast with that here are one or two verses which were sent in, but which will be seen at once are not in correct form:

The date is now set for September.

And there is only one thing to remember,

That Brady or Stork will soon be elected.

So bring in your vote and don't be dejected.

Brady you are a scholar,

A man of great renown,

Starting out for Parliament

A Liberal for to down.

King is no King David,

Nor Meighen Uncle Sam,

Byng bing banged Parliament

And dissolved it as they sang.

There is a leakage in the customs,

There is grafting in the air,

King has been dethroned

And Meighen is in the chair,

Rose made a name for himself by forcing Lloyd Bahn, the new American mile champion, to take his dust in a series of races in the Antipodes during the winter. Subsequently he has gone half way around the world in a quest of a test with Nurmi.

Randolph Rose, the famous New Zealand runner, evidently will find Paavo Nurmi in top form if he succeeds in his efforts to obtain a series of match races with the Finn on the latter's home soil this summer. Nurmi's recent triumphs over Edvin Wide, the Swedish star, first over a mile route in 4.11 and then at 3,000 meters in world's record time of 8.20 4-10, indicate that the Phantom One is ready to give Rose a speedy reception.

estly administered. Mackenzie King had allowed the most vital department of the government of Canada to fall into a state of chaos.

Dissolution

Then Mr. King had flown from the House and had hammered at Rideau Hall. He did not like the jury and wanted it discharged.

Everybody in Canada knew it and the ex-Prime Minister knew it himself. Mr. King had put an order-in-council in front of His Excellency the Governor-General and had asked him to sign it. If the Governor-General had signed it the moment he lifted his pen from the paper the House was no more. If Mackenzie King had been granted dissolution it would have been the same dissolution as the Conservative government got a little later. King had asked for dissolution but said he had been wrongfully refused dissolution by the Governor-General and that he would resign. His Excellency had asked the speaker to form an administration. What had been his (the speaker's) duty? His Excellency's course was right and those who attributed that course to him (Mr. Meighen) did him honor overmuch. Upon being asked to form an administration he—(Mr. Meighen) had agreed to do so. The only other alternative the speaker had was to advise His Excellency to call back Mr. King and ask him to reform his ministry. Mr. King had resigned, he (Mr. Meighen) was the leader of His Majesty's opposition of substantially the largest party in parliament, could he have refused to accept that responsibility? He (Mr. Meighen) had been sworn in with salary as Prime Minister and the privy councillors had been sworn in without salary. They had faced parliament next day and had gone on with H. H. Stevens' amendment on the customs report which was carried with a majority of ten, and in spite of that fact Mr. King had challenged the country to find the word censure in the motion. Mr. Meighen said one did not have to find the word censure to pass a vote of censure. Mr. King, in his own speech, had described it as a motion of censure and had denounced it as a motion of censure. Now he (Mr. King) said the government was never censured and that that was not the reason he asked for dissolution. If Mr. King had an amendment to the report to be carried why did he not move it instead of an amendment which was defeated? asked the speaker. The reason dissolution was requested by Mr. King was in order to avoid the vote of censure. "Now we are told we must bring the Liberal government back to save the British Constitution. Is the government to have the right to kill a parliament in order to keep the parliament from killing it?" said Mr. Meighen.

Defends Governor

The speaker said that never would Baron Byng move a step to impair responsible government in this Dominion. Responsible government was the holding of a government responsible to the representatives of the people. British institutions were based on responsible government which meant the holding of a government responsible to parliament. "The main point which I wish to drive home to you is that no government at all, at any time, has the right to dissolve a parliament while a motion of censure is hanging over its head in the House," said Mr. Meighen. The House of Commons was a tribunal to decide upon questions of policy and administration. The head of the Justice Department had certified over his signature that the Conservative party's action had been legal in every way, that the government had been legally constituted and in accord with precedence. There was no vote of censure pending against the Conservative, said Mr. Meighen, and they got dissolution.

As a matter of fact, the speaker said, he did not know very many who were thinking very seriously about the constitution business. The Liberal government had been driven out in disgrace and were now asking the people to save the constitution by bringing them back. The people of Canada were interested in the honest and efficient handling of public affairs. Was such a government as the Mackenzie King government going to be exonerated by the Canadian people because they (the people) were afraid of the security of the constitution?

PRINCE RUPERTLARGEST CROWD SWIMMING GALA

Many Aquatic Events on Ideal Day at Salt Lake Park Yesterday Afternoon.

COLLECTION LARGE

Not a Dull Moment for Spectators Who Watched Swimming and Diving of Young People.

The largest crowd on record visited the Salt Lakes yesterday afternoon to witness the swimming gala staged by the Prince Rupert Swimming Club. Weather conditions were ideal and the many aquatic events, which were keenly contested, created a good deal of enthusiasm.
