Prohibitionists Open Convention at Vancouver to Institute Movement Against Liquor

BOOTLEGGING INCREASE

Economic Loss Said to be Detriment to Business Interests of British Columbia

VANCOUVER, June 9.—With a bone dry British Columbia as the ultimate goal and with an initial attack directed against the existing system of beer parlors, prohibitionists in convention here yesterday organized a campaign to combat the liquor traffic. Steps were taken to organize a permanent association. Resolutions declaring the system of government sales had proved inadequate and that bootlegging had increased alarmingly, that the economic by vast expenditures on liquor were detrimental to the business interests were unanimously endorsed. The taking of a plebiscite on government liquor stores and beer parlors on these issues was suggested in resolution. Calling a convention in every city and riding of the province at the earliest possible date to inaugurate a pro-saloon campaign was recommended.

Old Maid is Sailing North to Trade With Eskimos With $60,000 Cargo

VANCOUVER, June 9.—Delayed by the desertion of a cook, who apparently regretted the decision to spend three years or longer aboard the schooner Old Maid now going on a trading cruise to the Arctic, the vessel lies at the dock awaiting a new chef to complete the crew list before sailing north.

Captain C. Kengenborg, owner and master of the schooner, said she would leave with $60,000 worth of cargo, trading goods and supplies for the Eskimos as soon as the list was complete. He expected eight men would comprise the crew.

Keystone Mining Company at Alice Arm Resumes Operations on Silver City Side of Water

ALICE ARM, June 9.—The first operations on a large scale and looking towards the development of the properties on the east or Silver City side of Alice Arm were initiated the past week by the resuming of operations by the Keystone Mining Company.

The Keystone Mining Company was incorporated in 1923 to take over and work a group of seven claims owned by G. W. Morley and associates on Ronduy Creek about two miles from the mouth of the creek. Some work was done in 1924, but financial difficulties with attendant litigation tied up the property and no work was done in 1925. However, there has been a re-organization of the company, the litigation has been settled and the company is now ready to go ahead upon a campaign of large scale development work, looking toward active mining.

Roland King, M.E., of the Fastell Laboratories of Spokane, spent the past week at the property and expresses himself as highly pleased with the property both from a geological standpoint as well as the quality of the ore. The pack trail into the property is now being repaired so that machinery and supplies may be carried in. The present development work will consist in the driving of a long adit to prove the ore at depth, after which a tram will be installed connecting up with the beach where the ore will be either milled or shipped.

R. C. Griffiths of Seattle will be in charge of operations.

SENATE KILLS PENSION BILL

Rejected Last Night at Ottawa by Vote of 46 to 21

OTTAWA, June 9.—The Senate last night, by a vote of 46 to 21, rejected the government's Old Age Pension Bill. Three government supporters in the Red Chamber voted against the measure. Senator W. B. Ross, opposition leader, declared the bill constituted discrimination against the Maritime Provinces because they were unable to participate in its financial proposals.

Resolution of Protest by Fishermen Against Salmon Traps in B.C.

Nearly two hundred gather in council chamber to voice views of trollers, seiners and gill netters of district

Nearly two hundred fishermen crowded the council chamber of the city hall last evening to express themselves against the granting licenses for three fish traps on the American border applied for by the Canadian Fishing Company and after hearing Milton Gonzales lay the company's case before them and several of their own number express their own views they passed the following resolution:

"That this meeting of salmon trollers, seiners and gill netters wishes emphatically to protest against the establishment of fish traps in District Number Two or in any part of British Columbia."

Mr. Gonzales repeated the arguments which he had made to the Board of Trade a few days before but met with little sympathy from the fishermen who did not agree that the fish were all going in the direction of Alaska, one speaker saying tagged fish had been taken on the Nass River showing that the fish went in that direction. The representatives of the fishermen said they feared this was the thin edge of the wedge toward the establishment of fish traps.

They also emphatically protested against being called from the trolling grounds to attend a meeting of this kind which should be called during the off season. They said they thought the matter had already been settled and should not have been reopened. Even if the fish did all migrate toward the American side some of them would escape and be allowed to breed but if these traps were allowed, fewer would return in four years.

It was the living of the fishermen they were trying to take away. Establishment of traps, they claimed, would put the fishing in the hands of the monied interests and leave the fishermen and their wives to go hungry.

Hanson Presides

Olof Hanson presided and there were present representing the Board of Trade fisheries committee, John Dybahn and D. G. Stewart and representing the fisheries committee of the city council Aldermen Larson and McKechnie. A. Brookbank was secretary.

President Hanson outlined the reasons why the meeting was called. It was because the Board had been asked to give an opinion on the application for the licenses and had referred the matter for investigation to the fisheries committee. They had been led to believe that the fishermen had changed their minds in regard to these particular traps.

Bob Hanna wanted to know why they were brought in from the trolling grounds. The men did not want the meeting and came here as a protest. It was an injustice to the trollers to bring them away from their work. Such a matter should be discussed in the winter. All were opposed to traps (cheers).

W. Brown, president of the Salmon Trollers Union, said they elected Fred Stork because he had said he would fight fish traps till Hell froze over.

CLOSING PORTS RECOMMENDED

United States Has 270 Ports of Entry Whereas Canada Has 680 Says Report

CHANGES ARE PROPOSED

OTTAWA, June 9.—The establishment of a board of Dominion appraisers consisting of a chairman and four members which would supersede the present board of customs is recommended in a statement presented today before the special committee investigating the administration of the customs department by R. P. Sparks, head of the commercial protection association.

The statement recommends a drastic reduction in the number of Canadian ports of entry. It says that if 270 ports are sufficient for the need of 137,000,000 people of the United States, surely that number would be ample to take care of the needs of Canada for a great many years to come. If 270 are sufficient, over four hundred of the present 680 Canadian ports should be closed.

Brakeman Pinaul of Transcona is missing and is believed to have been thrown into the river.

Fort William And Prince Rupert.

The member for Fort William is anxious to know about Prince Rupert. Hitherto Fort William has had about all the grain trade from the prairies but the supremacy of that lake port is threatened by Pacific coast ports and naturally the people there are rather anxious. They do not want to see Prince Rupert or any other Pacific port making progress.

Also it will be noted that the member for Fort William is Hon. R. J. Manion, one of the Conservative leaders, who is hoping to see the government defeated and who feels that the success of Mackenzie King is keeping him out of a cabinet position.

Brazil Leaving League Of Nations.

Brazil is said to be leaving the League of Nations. She is sore over the treatment she is getting from the great powers of Europe. As Brazil does not cut much figure internationally, it will simplify matters to have her drop out and allow Germany to come in. Germany is a much more powerful factor in world peace than is any South American republic.

Look Out For Children During Long Holiday.

This is the season of the year when parents are considering what to do with the children during the long holiday. It is quite a problem here. Most of them have to stay at home or near home but an endeavor should be made to give them all an outing of some kind. Most of them need it and a change is a great thing in life.

A good many are planning to go camping or to visit relatives or to have many week-end beach parties. It is a time when all like to enjoy themselves.

Wheat Growing Interior B.C.

Some time ago it was mentioned that a number of farmers in the Prince George district were growing wheat this year. Now we get it that Vanderhoof has 326 acres of wheat as well as 1823 acres of oats. This is not much but it is a beginning and will lead to greater things. If the grain turns out well and farmers get a good price for their product, there should be a larger acreage next year. Other points have not been heard from except to note that wheat is being grown and that it has been a success there in past seasons.

World More Stable Says Bank Report.

Discouraging as are many of the features of the present European situation, no fair appraisal fails to show the steady improvement which has characterized the years since the war, says the Royal Bank report. Politically and economically the world is more stable than in 1919 or 1921. International trade is steadily increasing in volume; its dollar value is greater than before the war, although the decreased purchasing power of gold is such that this does not mean that a proportionate volume of goods is now in motion. Even though the standard of living abroad is not yet at 1913 levels, yet the spectre of starvation no longer haunts the nations of Europe. Peaceful settlements of political difficulties, and commercial treaties encouraging international commerce are now the order of the day.

MILLERD QUILTS LOCAL CANNERY

Says Handicap Against Him Is too Great Here so Dismantling Plant

Stating that efforts made with a view to having handicaps against the operation of the plant removed had failed, Francis Millerd, head of the Somerville Cannery Co., announced yesterday afternoon that the company is dropping the Seal Cove cannery. The plant is now in process of being dismantled and part of the equipment will be taken to Ferguson Bay near Port Clements in Masset Inlet where the company is building a new one-line cannery for operation this year. The Somerville Cannery Co. will, however, continue its plans for the operation of the Prince Rupert cannery this season under lease from the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co. It is proposed to operate the floating cannery Laure Whalen as well as at Masset this season.

The specific cause for the abandonment of the Seal Cove cannery, Mr. Millerd states, is that he is unable to obtain Japanese licenses for it so that it might be operated on the same competitive basis as other canneries in the district. Not only would there be one cannery here but perhaps four or five if it were possible to get them established on a competitive basis. Mr. Millerd's grievance he states, is with the governmental and departmental authorities and not at all with the people of Prince Rupert whom he urges to see that present conditions are righted.

Mr. Millerd will move with his family at the end of this month to Vancouver where they will resume their residence.

CANADA SECOND CUSTOMER U.S.

Increase of Prosperity in One Country is Reflected in the Other by Business

At the Charleston convention of the National Foreign Trade Council, a Canadian, G. T. Towers of the Royal Bank of Canada gave an address in which he spoke of the relations existing between Canada and United States. He said:

"It is well to point out that Canada is the second best customer of the United States. During the year ending February last, for example, Canada bought 600 million dollars' worth of goods from the United States. These imports are widely diversified. Not only do we take raw materials, such as cotton and coal, and food-stuffs of a class that are not produced in Canada, but we also take a tremendous amount of iron and steel products and manufactured goods of many kinds."

Imports from Canada

What has been said in regard to the diversity of Canadian imports from the United States does not apply to nearly the same extent when we come to consider Canadian exports to the United States. Pulp and paper and other forest products are by far the largest item. The remainder is made up of such things as furs, copper, precious metals, small amounts of various agricultural products, asbestos and last but not least, beverages.

I wish to lay particular emphasis on the fact that 65 per cent of all Canada's imports are from the United States, while the amount we sell to the United States is only 35 per cent of our total exports.

We buy from you each year over 100 million dollars' worth of goods more than we sell to you.

The United States is Canada's main source of supply and any increase in our prosperity is at once reflected in increased purchase of United States goods.

That is where the partnership comes in. What happens when you buy more from us? Instantly we buy more from you.

BRIEF MEETING CITY COUNCIL

Prodigal Aldermen Return to Seats—Old Garbage Scow to be Sold to Bushby

There being little business on the agenda sheet and the chamber being required for the fish trap meeting, last night's gathering of the city council was a brief one lasting less than five minutes. All the members of the council were present including Ald. W. J. Greer, who has been away from the city for nearly two months, and Ald. Stephens who has been ill lately.

A letter from Mrs. Jessie A. Jacobs, suggesting that "before the council make any more gifts of $500 in order to effect economies" a few loads of sand be placed on some of the rough spots on Atlin Avenue, was referred to the Board of Works.

Accounts up to June 4, totaling $11,615.51 and including a number of payrolls, were passed for payment.

On motion of Ald. Perry, it was decided to call for tenders for 25 garbage cans and 12 night-soil cans, Ald. Perry pointing out that the cans would come cheaper if ordered in quantity.

An offer from George G. Bushby of $100 for the old city garbage scow was accepted on motion of Ald. Perry, seconded by Ald. Greer, the sale being favored by the Board of Works.

CHRISTIAN GENERAL IS TOURING EUROPE

(Edmonton Bulletin)

General Feng Yu Hsiang, who faded out of the picture of Chinese hostilities some months ago, is touring Europe to "perfect himself in Western ways and methods," and announces that his stay there is to be prolonged. That seems probable. Yu betrayed in turn both Wu Pei-fu and Chang Tsolin, deserted his own army in the hour of battle, stole $500,000 which had been allocated to pay the Pekin police force, and betook himself and his family across the Gobi desert en route to the protection of his Moscow masters.

PROBLEMS OF INDIA TODAY

Lecturer Tells of Difficulties in Administering Huge Empire Under British Super-vision

CONCESSIONS MADE

Suggests That More Advanced in Self-Government Must be Made Soon

MONTREAL, June 9—India today is more quiet than it has been for ten years past, and Gandhi's dreams lie shattered, but despite his political failure, wherever in India Gandhi has influence, that influence is for the good, declared Sir Alexander Frederick Whyte, Bt., in addressing the Canadian Club at the Windsor Hotel on some of the problems of India, and the causes which make such problems outstanding. Sir Alexander was president of the Indian Legislative Assembly created by the legislation of 1919, resigning that position last year. As to whether or not the effort to transplant the democracy of the west to an Asiatic country has proven a success it is yet too early to decide, he said, and the knowledge will be obtained only after the scope of action given to the natives is enlarged. Sir Alexander also emphasized that the success or failure of the plan would depend not on what Englishmen may or may not do, but on the Indians themselves.

Vivid Glimpses

Sir Alexander with an anecdote, and by giving a vivid glimpse here and there of the Indian mind, enabled his audience to picture something of the great problem which it is being sought to work out in India. The fact that to the Indian, and especially the Hindu, religion was all important as contrasted with the western conception of working out one's salvation in company with one's fellow men had to be remembered, said the speaker.

Gandhi an Anarchist

"Until the constitution has been developed somewhat further, when we have applied the test of political responsibility to produce definite results, only then will we be able to see if democracy is suitable for an eastern country," said Sir Alexander. The speaker referred to the Gandhi movement, and the home rule, and undefined plan of it, conceived by Gandhi. Gandhi is an anarchist in the true sense of the word, said Sir Alexander, believing that the human soul can develop better without government, and though he rode in trains and motor cars, disliked these western intrusions. It was because of his self-sacrifice for his fellow countrymen in South Africa and in India, and of their belief that he was the reincarnation of one of their gods that the Hindus were swayed by Gandhi.

The non-co-operative movement, despotic, mean and carrying with it bloodshed, had yet done more good than harm, said Sir Alexander.

He illustrated this by telling of a conversation with a young Indian legislator, a man with a seemingly brilliant future, who had admitted to him that when he felt the call come to him to seek communion with God in solitude he would obey the call, sacrificing any high political honors he might attain, and duties he might be exercising at the time.

Religion Fundamental

This attitude reveals one of the fundamental difficulties which India has to face in its experiment of self-government, declared the speaker. The fundamental roots of India were in religion, and since all religions come out of Asia the Hindu looks down upon the westerner with a sense of superiority, and, at the same time because of the command by the westerner of material things, he is bound to look up to him, a condition of things which rouses the Indian irritation.

The speaker said that coupled with this was also a feeling in the mind of the Indian of deference to the Englishman, illustrating this by reciting a conversation between an Englishman and a Hindu in which the Englishman had said to the Hindu: "Don't be a blank fool." The Indian instead of being angry was glad of it because he told his companion, when the latter apologized, that it had been the first time he had been talked to as if he were an Englishman.

Macaulay's Inkpot

Sir Alexander recalled that 100 years ago it had been Lord Macaulay who had laid it down that English was to be the universal language used in India, and the result of that had been for three or four generations past young Indians had turned to western universities for education, and there, in addition to learning professions, had imbibed western political principles.

The ferment of modern India began in Macaulay's inkpot," said the speaker.

English Responsible

If in Britain there had been an autocratic government, conditions in India would have not changed much, but since the Englishman had succeeded in establishing democratic government for himself, he had felt it to be only logical that the Indian should be given the same chance, hence the establishment of the Legislative Assembly in 1919, and the granting of power to Indian ministers over education, public health and local government. It was at this point that the speaker said that the result of the experiment could not now be pronounced upon, and he felt that further changes and concessions would have to be made before judgment could be made, control of education and public health does not mean to the Indian what it would mean to us, said the speaker, and after the war there had been no money to spend for education or public health, hence no progress had been made; hence the Indian statesmen, deprived of that outlet for their energy, had turned to agitation. He felt for a long time responsibility would have to be held by the British officials, that there would be a viceroy and a commander-in-chief to India for many years, for control of law and other high administrative work could not be taken from trained officials of courage and given to those who had yet to prove themselves fitted for such tasks. So far, in fundamental matters the Indian has not had to shoulder responsibilities of administration, and take the consequences of his act.

Gandhi an Anarchist

"Until the constitution has been developed somewhat further, when we have applied the test of political responsibility to produce definite results, only then will we be able to see if democracy is suitable for an eastern country," said Sir Alexander. The speaker referred to the Gandhi movement, and the home rule, and undefined plan of it, conceived by Gandhi. Gandhi is an anarchist in the true sense of the word, said Sir Alexander, believing that the human soul can develop better without government, and though he rode in trains and motor cars, disliked these western intrusions. It was because of his self-sacrifice for his fellow countrymen in South Africa and in India, and of their belief that he was the reincarnation of one of their gods that the Hindus were swayed by Gandhi.

The non-cooperative movement, despotic, mean and carrying with it bloodshed, had yet done more good than harm, said Sir Alexander.

Gandhi was essentially an enemy of government, and that led him into conflict with government, and the only thing government could do was to close his mouth. The trial which led to his imprisonment was probably the most remarkable which has happened in 2,000 years.

There was a prisoner who did not challenge the right of his judge to try him, who admitted he was guilty, and who told the judge when the latter suggested a minimum sentence that he would be failing in his duty if he did not impose the maximum sentence.

Philosophy of East

The course of that trial revealed more than anything else to the watching world the difference between the philosophy of the east, and the view of established government. That was a quarrel for which there was no solution. While we must acknowledge that there was only one thing for the government to do, we can also say that personally he was subjected to a hard fate, and the motives he expressed deserve our commendation and admiration."

RESOLUTION OF PROTEST

large a gathering. He was not there to take advantage of anyone. The proposal they made would not hurt anyone but the American packers. He asked that they be fair and give him a good hearing.

In explaining a little of the history of fish traps, Mr. Gonzales said the owner of the Wales Island cannery operated three traps from 1913 to 1919 and then got into financial difficulties and sold out to the Canadian Fishing Company. They were told by Mr. Motherwell and Mr. Found that they could get licenses but they must be in a position to operate traps. They spent a large sum of money putting them in and then were refused licenses because of petitions by the fishermen, the Trades and Labor council and a resolution passed by the Board of Trade. When this unfair position was placed before the authorities at Ottawa licenses were issued for last year but so far refused this year. He asked the fisherman how they would like it if they had spent that much money and then were not allowed to operate.

Migrating Fish

Investigation showed that the salmon at the points where the fish traps are located are on their way to the American spawning grounds (laughter and jeers). Mr. Gonzales claimed that anyone was entitled to a trap in that area. He believed that Fred Stork, member for the district, would give everyone an equal chance. If this right was conceded no one would be hurt by the American traps. He wanted them to understand that this was not the thin edge of the wedge as had been suggested there. It was a distinct area where traps were desirable.

Olof Hanson said he wished to correct an impression that there ago in going on record against traps. Producing a map he showed the locations on it and claimed the fish there all went toward Alaska (more protest). The Alaskan pack of salmon, Mr. Gonzales explained, was double and treble that on this side and the result was that the cannery on this side were handicapped and were unable to pay as high a price for fish. He did not believe in letting the fish all go to the American side to be caught by the Americans. He believed in showing some national spirit (A voice: "Who are the New England Fish

Fishermen's Protest

A. O. Morse was the first speaker for the fishermen. He said it was unfortunate that they should have to leave their work to come to town to protest against traps. He thought they had expressed themselves clearly at the time of the election, and it should not have been necessary to worry any more. Also they had a letter from Fred Stork saying there would be no licenses issued.

The traps were operated under a permit last year. He thought

LIBERALS HAVE A HAPPY TIME

Recominations are the Order of the Day in Britain Following Serious Split

MEETING ON FRIDAY

LONDON, June 9.—Until the coming meeting of the National Liberal Association at Weston-super-Mare, the full extent of the split in the Liberal party, which is now stated to be deep and wide, as far as the Parliamentary Liberals are concerned, will not be known, although some indication as to how matters stand probably will be derived at a meeting of the Liberal Association Friday.

Lloyd George yesterday won a victory over Lord Oxford when the Liberal Parliamentary party voted confidence in him.

Recominations are now passing between the two sections of the Liberal press. Journals favoring Lord Oxford are making much of an allegation that Lloyd George members of Parliament held their seats at the suffrage of the Conservative Associations in their constituencies. Newspapers backing Lloyd George report that nearly half those whose members supported Lord Oxford yesterday rely on Conservative support for their seats in Parliament.

The Premier disavowed all knowledge of the reported appointments. The appointments, he said, must be made by order of council. If Dr. Sutherland desired the appointments, no doubt they would be confirmed by the cabinet.

THE DAILY NEWS

PRELIMINARY HEARING OF MURDER CHARGE AGAINST JOSEPH SANKEY COMMENCED IN PROVINCIAL COURT.

cribed and identified the clothes

the girl had been wearing when she left for her walk on the morning in question — brown skirt, grey sweater, green slicker, high rubber boots turned down and leather gauntlets. These clothes were in good condition when the girl left the house and not in the condition as presented in court. A barette which the girl was wearing on her bobbed hair was also presented and identified. It was fine weather on the morning in question until 1 o'clock when it rained. About

3 it cleared again and was fine for the balance of the day.

Under cross examination, Mrs.

Morry said that deceased was quite strong physically. Crown counsel stated that the height and weight of the girl would be proven by later witnesses.

Constable G. A. Wyman, who assisted in the investigation, told of taking the body in charge at the scene of the tragedy. He identified certain underclothing found on the body.

Indian Girl

Margaret Pearce, Indian girl, told of getting up about 7 o' clock of the morning of May 23

and going to Paul Starr's house and thence to Kameda's ice cream parlor in town. Identifying ac-used witness stated that she had met Sankey outside of Kameda's store. They talked of a dance they had attended the night previous and Sankey then went into the store and bought ice cream cones, giving her one and eating the other himself.

She had been about 20 minutes with him. He was dressed in blue coat and trousers—with no vest—brown shoes, cap and soft white collar. The boots, which witness described as slippers were clean. After some hesitation, witness stated that it was about 25 minutes to nine when she went away after having me-

Sankey.
