Citizens Banquet Last Night to Japanese Was an Enthusiastic Affair

Optimistic addresses and useful suggestions relating to business of port given by visitors and others

Last evening many of the citizens of Prince Rupert met at the banquet table at the Commodore Cafe to do honor to the captain and other officers of the first grain ship to visit Prince Rupert, the Aden Maru. Happily the second ship had arrived and the captain and officers of that vessel were also present so that it became doubly interesting. Olof Hanson, president of the Board of Trade, was in the chair and the proceedings were kept up for several hours. Optimistic addresses were delivered both by local citizens and by visitors and the utinost enthusiasm was shown especially by many who have for the past fifteen or twenty years waited for this event.

The banquet was a fine one and there was a small orchestra present to play at intervals and Piper Macdonald later in the evening roused everybody with a skirl on the bagpipes.

In opening, Mr. Hanson extended a hearty welcome to the visiting officers. He said it was an event for which they had been waiting a long time. He expected the shipping of grain would be followed by the shipping of other products of the district from the port.

EUGENE DEBS AND HIS THEORIES.

Eugene Debs did not believe in war, yet he was one of the best fighters of high positions wear Russian blouses then the workingman has had in the United States yet. He was a Socialist and had of silk, beautifully tailored. Many of theories in regard to the division of goods and the ownership of property which the shops are filled with French cosmeare shared by a good many but which are generally considered impracticable. In a social community and especially in such a community as Debs would have formed if he had the power, one of the essentials is conformity to the general recognized opinions and standards. Today it is not so necessary as it would be under a socialistic order of things. In Russia they compelled conformity.

Where Debs failed was in not recognizing that such changes as he sought one building which Mr. McWilliams take a long, long time to bring about. It cannot be done in a day, or a year visited, were two former aristocrats living or in a generation. Changes have to come gradually.

Possibly Debs may have been right in his theories. We have no way of formerly lived in palaces. Deliberately telling for the theories have never been worked out in practical life. Until they are we cannot say they are correct or incorrect. All we can do is speculate on results. The probability is that the socialism of the future will be quite a different theory from the socialism of today and when we get that system, if we ever do, we shall still have men of the type of Debs saying it is wrong and using their influence and possibly giving their lives to change to another system. survey which had revealed that fifty-

The railway is all right. All that is needed is business over it to make it pay, and the business is coming now and seems likely to increase. One thing leads to another. The eyes of the business world are being directed this way and the probability is business will increase even more rapidly than people expect.

While the ship lining is going on, there are at the drydock in all about 250 employees, making a pretty nice payroll for the city from that one source alone. Very soon other payrolls will have to be increased such as the railway shops. One thing leads to another and the house building which is bound to come should also add very materially to the city payroll. We are off to a good start and it is to be hoped we shall be able to keep it up.

WHY VANCOUVER SHOULD SUPPORT PRINCE RUPERT.

One of the speakers at the banquet last night mentioned that Vancouve should always support Prince Rupert because whenever Prince Rupert made dollar it was spent at Vancouver. Most of the buying here is done at Vancouver and the people go there for their holidays and in every way Prince Rupert is a benefit to the larger city.

draw from the smaller and the benefit is to both. For that reason alone the wise Vancouver merchants favor the building up of an important port at Prince Rupert and important towns and villages at other places. People in that city do not need to be unselfish to make them support this place.

Delirium supervenes the other effects of exhaustion, and probably is merciful in its ministration. Apparently drowned persons who have been resuscitated after being below consciousness have described their sen sations in scientific terms and with scientific accuracy. The sinking of the senses below consciousness, in drowning or apparent drowning, has been . established to be probably the least anguishing of realized deaths.

On the other hand, the person experiencing death or apparent death by freezing finds the lulling of the senses a delicious experience, to which the inexperienced or unwary gladly resign the death signal, to be sternly refused with every atom of physical and wil

SMITHERS, Oct. 22.-The executive of the Smithers G.W.V.A. held a meeting at their headquarters on Tuesday evening and among the matters under discussion were many items of a social and entertaining nature. To make it more comfortable at the club rooms it was planned to alter the lay out of the ground floor rooms in which the lounge and reading rooms is to be enlarged. A hot air furnace will also be installed in the building and for entertainment an up-to-data radio and a billiard table are being purchased.

It was also decided that their annual Armistice Dance will be held on Thursday, November 11, and the committee has promised to make this a social event on a par with the dances held on former anniversaries of the signing of the armistice.

ANGELO POGNOTTO IS FINED $300 IN POLICE COURT SELLING LIQUOR

with the option of three months' imprisonment by Magistrate McClymont, to in the city police court this morning. Witnesses for the crown were Liquor Board and police officers, no evidence being offered for the defence. City Solicitor E. F. Jones appeared for the crown while L. W. Patmore had the case for Pognotto.

The evidence of Constables Thomas and George Sheeves and Gibson, Liquor M Board operators, was largely corrobora- M tive. They went to the house at the M rear of the Royal Hotel and first M bought three wiskeys and one beer from M Roy McKinley. Then McKinley wens out stating that accused (Pognotto) would take care of them if they wanted G anything. Then three beers and a G whiskey were bought from accused and later four whiskeys. In each case two y dollars was paid.

Mr. Patmore's cross-examination was brief and brought out little further H evidence.

Corp. Markland and Constable Kench were also witnesses.

INTERESTING EQUIPMENT OF NEW HALIBUT BOAT

Capt. Magnus Hanson's Explorer is Operating Out of Juneau

Capt. Magnus Hanson's new longliner, the Explorer, which is now operating out of Juneau, Alaska, is one of the most up-to-date halibut vessels built on the Puget Sound this year | says the Pacific Fisherman. She is 65 feet long, with a 171/2-ft. beam and 8-ft. depth, and is of very heavy and substantial construction. The main power plant is a 125 h.p. Western-Enterprise diesel engine of the solid-injection type. The fuel capacity is 2,-800 gallons, while the lubricating oil tanks hold 200 gallons.

Probably the most interesting feature of the vessel is a DeLaval fuel oil purifier, similar in type and design to those installed last year on salmon cannery tenders for cleansing lubricat. ing. Fuel oil purifiers have proved a success on larger vessels, and this installation, which is believed to be the first made for this purpose on a Pacific Coast fishing vessel, is being watched with considerable interest. Owing to the long trips now necessary in the halibut fishery, involving large boats, with heavy investment and high operating expense, it has been necessary for vessel owners to adopt the most modern equipment and introduce all possible features for curtailing ex- severe conditions, it is believed that the purification can be carried on while oil is discharged into the storage tank Baker. pense and increasing the efficiency of elimination of dirt and foreign matter the vessel is at dock or at sea, or while nearest the purifier and is fed to the their vessels. At mid- delayed progress here. He had been waiting for twelve years since the railway was built expecting what they had now at last secured. The fact that the vessels were loading here proved that the men who built the railway were men of vision. Their dreams had come true. He urged upon the visitors from Vancouver that it was good business for the people of that city to support Prince Rupert. If any money was made in Prince Rupert, it was spent in Vancouver. People here read the Vancouver papers and there was every reason in the world why that city should be supporting this. He expressed deep appreciation of what the drydock had done Without them it would have been physical impossibility to do what had been done in the lining of the ship. He CARS TO SHIP'S SIDE hoped the people here realized that the drydock had done something that was really worthy of appreciation.

F. G. DAWSON F. G. Dawson said he was particularly gratified to see grain coming here over the rallway and pouring out into the nection with Old Country sailings dur- ship. The people here had worked long time to get something started and at last they had succeeded. It was at gratifying to know that the grain was going to Europe as some people thought such a thing could not happen. There was another enjoyable benefit The production and distribution of Canada's good products was one of Canada's greatest industries. The grain was grown on the prairies and the interior valleys and here was one of the factlities for distribution. The business was so far only in its infancy for millions of acres of good land were not yet producing wheat which would later be brought under cultivation. Not one elevator but many would be needed here. He joined in welcoming the visiting captains to the port and hoped they would come as often as possible.

Mayor Newton then presented Captain Hombo of the Aden Maru with a fine framed picture of the elevator and a is was the first ship to load there. USEFUL SUGGESTIONS Captain Hombo in reply thanked the people of Prince Rupert for the many courtesies to his officers and himself of the first ship to load here. Th Aden Maru was carrying this cargo to Hamburg, Germany. It was rather won derful that Canadian grain should carried 9,600 miles from one side the world to the other. He hoped this foreshadowed that the port of Prince Rupert was to become one of the grea ports of the world.

Captain Hombo then gave a few impressions and suggestions and said he hoped they would be taken in the spirit in which they were offered. He sai the port of Prince Rupert was a good one and the connection with the ocean was good. The harbor also was deep and nature had done everything possible in that respect. The rest depended upon proved. A larger supply of experienced stevedores was needed. The harbor fee charged were high and a reduction would be appreciated.

The captain said that though he had visited most of the important ports o the world he had never found one where so much friendliness was evidenced as here. This promised well for their rela tionships in the future.

CHECK SPECULATION IN GRAIN TRADE IS EFFORT BEING MADE

TORONTO, Oct. 22.-At the instance of the Secretary of Agriculture, the Chicago Board of Trade, which is the seat of the principal speculative market in the grain trade, has put into effect certain amendments to its rules, which have been proposed with a view to limiting an undesirable class of speculation. A clearing system is being established which will compet prompt settlements between brokers, and it is thought compel them to reduce the credit extended to their customers. Whatever effect it has will be upon the class of traders who operate upon harrow margins, and it is agreed that restriction in this quarter will be wholesome, says the National City Bank Let- -

SUSPEND TRADING

Another effort to limit violent fluctuations is made by creating a committee which will have authority to suspend trading of fluctuations exceeding certain prescribed limits within a single day. A rule of this kind has been in force on the New York Cotton Exchange for some time. The efficacy of such a rule, however, must depend largely upon having the limitations conform rather closely to market conditions, for if such a rule hindered trading in wheat in Chicago the operators might be readily shifted to Winnipeg, and cotton trading forbidden in New York might be shifted to Liverpool, and in either case the action of the markets where business continued to be done probably would be more influential upon prices than the absence of trading in the markets that were closed. Efforts to control prices by the suppression of bona-fide trading do not give promise of important results.
