RECONCILIATION BETWEEN LLOYD GEORGE AND LORD OXFORD IS SOUGHT

Liberal Reconciliation Suggested in England

Lloyd George said to still retain confidence of party in House of Commons and can secure vote

LONDON, June 4.—There is talk of a possible attempt at reconciling the differences between Lord Oxford and Lloyd George arising from the recent general strike and the correspondence between Lord Oxford and his followers, in which Lloyd George was practically read out of the Liberal party.

The assertion is made that Lloyd George could have a vote of confidence from the Liberal Parliamentary group, of which he is chairman, in the controversy with the Liberal chief, but it has been deemed better to endeavor to arrange a reconciliation and thus bring the party into unity and avoid a possible division.

SPEND $25,000 ISLAND ROAD

Delegation Waited on Minister at Victoria Recently and Assured Work to go on

COMPLETION NEXT YEAR

Not Yet Decided in What Manner Work Will be Carried Out But Start Soon

A delegation representing the Prince Rupert Board of Trade and consisting of Olof Hanson, F. G. Dawson, David Thomson and M. P. McCaffery, interviewed Hon. T. D. Pattullo, member for Prince Rupert, on the matter of the road from the city limits to Galloway Rapids and was informed that $25,000 was now available for continuation of the work, reports Olof Hanson, president of the board, who returned to the city yesterday afternoon following a ten-day business trip to Vancouver, Victoria, Spokane and Smithers.

Mr. Pattullo told the delegation that plans as to the manner in which the work would be carried out had not yet been definitely settled upon but that it was expected to start work shortly. Mr. Pattullo further stated that it was intended to have the road completed in 1927.

American Who Refused Evidence in Customs Probe Was Arrested Today for Being Party to Fraud

OTTAWA, June 4.—S. B. Telford of Rock Island, Quebec, who was threatened last night with incarceration in the tower of the parliament buildings for refusing to accede to the wishes of the federal customs probe committee, was arrested early this morning.

The warrant charged that Telford did commit an indictable offense in that he did knowingly conceal, purchase and sell goods unlawfully imported into Canada, said goods being dutiable and whereon duties lawfully payable had not been paid. Bail was refused.

Telford gave his address as Derby Lane, Vermont. He owns a warehouse just across the border in Derby Lane and refused to open the warehouse for inspection to accountants representing the customs probe committee on the ground of the warehouse being on foreign territory, taking the stand on the advice of his attorney.

C. Mercer warned him that if he still declined to obey the order, recommendation would be made that he be committed to the tower during the pleasure of Parliament.

Telford appeared in court this morning and was remanded for one day.

SHOOTING SEA LIONS NEAR RIVERS INLET

VANCOUVER, June 4.—Canadian Government steamer Givenchy operated under the department of fisheries, is busy killing sea lions at the entrance to Rivers Inlet, where these creatures prey on the salmon which come there at this time of year to spawn. Throughout the season the lions lie in wait for the fish and disport themselves on the small exposed rocks, and there it is the steamer is pouring shot into them today.

Russia Has Contributed Two Million Dollars to British Miners' Strike

Action sharply criticized as being forced levy on wages of poorly paid Russian workers

LONDON, June 4.—Secretary Cook of the miners' federation is peeved that the coal owners' association passed him up when they asked President Smith to attend a conference. During a speech last night Cook exclaimed "Thank God for Russia," in announcing that Russian labor unions sent nearly two million dollars to aid the British miners.

The press here continues to sharply criticize these contributions, saying that the Russian unions did not possess funds for this purpose and that the money was really a propaganda subsidy of the Soviet, obtained by a forced levy on the wages of the poorly paid Russian workers.

Enormous Quantities of Cotton Goods Smuggled into Quebec Shown in Evidence at Ottawa

OTTAWA, June 4. — Evidence regarding the workings of customs officials on the Quebec-Vermont boundary was given at yesterday's sittings of the customs probe. The inference from the auditor's report presented shows that enormous quantities of cotton goods, some probably prison made, are pouring into the small towns on the border, finding their way into Canada without payment of duty.

The auditors found that the total of such goods recorded by freight and express companies in the past three years was valued at $1,400,000. Allowing for goods reshipped to United States points or cleared through the Canadian customs, it was found that a total quantity worth not less than $800,000 could not be accounted for.

Thanking King For Proclamation.

A lot of people here are puzzled over why the British Parliament should thank the King for a proclamation recently issued. It is a matter of form. The King issued the proclamation on the advice of his ministers and they are responsible. If there is anyone wrong they are the ones to blame. By thanking the King for issuing the proclamation Parliament endorsed the action of the Government of Premier Baldwin, on whose initiative the action was taken.

Scenic Attractions Of Prince Rupert.

We have so often spoken of the scenic attractions of Prince Rupert that we have no intention of repeating it here. All we wish to do is to draw attention to the report which appeared yesterday of a speech made by Archdeacon Rix before the Rotary Club. He saw possibilities of a wonderful sunken garden on the old hotel site and the idea is a splendid one. It has all the makings of a delightful garden which would be a thing of beauty for the city. Even if it were kept up by some private person it would be almost equally useful as it can be seen from the walk above and enjoyed almost as much as if it were open to the public.

Fighting Shadows Common Amusement.

Yesterday a story was published about a Spokane man who fought his own shadow and landed up in the police court. He is like so many of his fellows, who are constantly fighting shadows. They get very much exercised over the wrongs committed by a political party, or a civic group or a neighbor but eventually it is discovered that he is just fighting his own shadow. His imagination has conjured up something which did not really exist.

Uniforms For Boys' Band.

The decision to raise money for the boys' band was a step in the right direction. If the boys are to be kept together they should have uniforms in order to make them look smart. They will take more interest in their work if they are encouraged and the provision of uniforms is one of the first necessities. It is to be hoped the people of Prince Rupert will be liberal in providing for them. The sum of $750 is needed.

Unusual Rain For Time Of Year.

The past few days have been very unusual. The almost continuous rains interfered with the normal activities of the people and were particularly hard on business. Happily everything comes to those who wait and the end of the rain, for the time being, came with a burst of sunshine this morning.

The difficulty with a rainy spell such as that of this week is that it seems to cast a gloom over the place. People imagine it will never cease and get low spirited and moody. Those who can be cheerful under such circumstances are benefactors to the community.

Birth and Life of British Gazette Published During General Strike in Britain

A copy of The British Gazette is just to hand, part of the final edition of that short lived paper which kept the British public informed on strike events and the news of the day during the recent general strike. It is an interesting four page paper gotten up in English style and one of the features is a story of its own career extending just a little over a week. Here is the story as told by itself:

At last the moment has come to tell the story of one of the most signal exploits and adventures in the annals of English journalism—the foundation in a day and a night of a daily newspaper, The British Gazette, and the multiplication of its issue within a week to the stupendous total of over 2,000,000.

Nothing like it has been done before, the world over. If the exceptional occasion provided the inspiration and the opportunity, it also imposed the severest disabilities. What was done represented a triumph of resource and determination over what might well have seemed insuperable difficulties. It is a triumph of which all who had part in it have a right to be proud, and one which has served equally well two great causes.

Attempt Defeated

It has defeated the attempt to seep the country in the dark during a formidable crisis in its affairs; and it has vindicated the Press against a new conspiracy to muzzle its freedom.

Let us tell the story, which opens on Monday, May 3, under the shadow of a general strike to be declared at midnight— a strike of which the masterstroke was to be the shutting down of the newspapers.

It was impossible to acquiesce in the prospect of a nation, exposed to the interruption of the whole of its social and industrial economy, and at the same time deprived of its news, and of the one medium through which public opinion might find and express itself.

But what was to be done?

A Famous Letter

The government were alert to emergency, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer called to the Treasury on Monday the representatives of the Newspaper Proprietors' Association (representing the London Press) and of the Newspaper Society (representing the Provincial Press). But he obtained from the conference little comfort or encouragement. Its members were unable to agree to the suggestion that they should co-operate in the production of a common emergency news-sheet, and the conference broke up indecisively.

At this juncture, the editor of the Morning Post wrote to J. C. C. Davidson, M.P., the Deputy Civil Commissioner for London, saying that, with the co-operation of the Government, he would undertake to produce a four-page bulletin paper, to the number of 100,000 daily, and suggesting that if there were any difficulty, the Government should commandeer some big newspaper office (that of the Morning Post or another) and order so many papers to be produced.

Meanwhile, the work of producing what promised to be the last issue of the Morning Post for an indefinite time proceeded. An emergency edition was sent out at 9 o'clock, and, as the mechanical staff did not strike until they had completed the regular shift, it was possible to produce at midnight a 20-page edition of the Morning Post, though its distribution was limited by the cessation of the train services.

The seed that had been sown by the editor's letter was germinating, and was to spring up presently with the swiftness of Jonah's gourd.

Must Play Part

At a hastily-snatched dinner on the Monday evening, the editor, the general manager and the managing editor agreed that the Morning Post must somehow play its part in the crisis that was approaching, and they drafted a formal memorandum for presentation to the Government, outlining a definite scheme of co-operation with the Government. It offered, if adequate protection were given at first 100,000 copies of a news-sheet a night, and to raise the output to 400,000 copies by the end of the week. It placed the staff of the Morning Post at the service of the Government, to work under its direction and authority.

Government Arrives

Late that night important visitors to the editor were announced; and into the editorial room marched the chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Samuel Hoare, J. C. C. Davidson, and a train of departmental officials. They had come to act on the suggestion of the editor's letter; to commandeer on behalf of His Majesty's Government the Morning Post; and to convert it off hand into a Government news sheet—The British Gazette. Sir Malcolm Fraser was put in charge as the direct representative of the Government.

The step about to be taken was a momentous one for the Morning Post, and hardly less so for the Government, who never before had taken responsibility for the production of a daily newspaper. In more than 150 years the Morning Post had but once intermitted its daily issue, and now not only were all its resources to be handed over to others, but its very name was to disappear.

Extreme Gravity

Only the extreme gravity of the occasion could have justified the innovation on the one side, and the self-effacement on the other.

The act of taking over having been confirmed by a cabinet minute, signed by Winston Churchill, the conference in the editor's room, with the technical hands of the paper present to advise, was continued until three o'clock in the morning.

What was the utmost that could be done with the plant and resources available? For the answer to that question everything depended on the attitude of the men employed on the mechanical side, especially the compositors.

At four o'clock in the morning on the fateful Tuesday, the general manager called a meeting of the machine room overseers, and put the case to them. All but the foundry overseer agreed to carry on.

A Crucial Test

Now came the crucial test — what would the staff of the composing room do? The printer—A. Turner, who was a tower of strength, a man of infinite resource and unfiring energy all through the unexampled ordeal — was confident they would stand by the paper. Summoned by telegram and brought in by motor car at an hour earlier than usual, they were assembled in the composing room and addressed by the editor and the general manager. They responded heartily to the appeal to stand by the paper which many of them had served so long; but they felt it to be their duty to report to their union, the London Society of Compositors. Pending instructions, they started the setting of the first number of The British Gazette, and had got up five columns of matter when, at five o'clock, their representative came back to say that they were forbidden to touch the work.

There was nothing more to be said, and it seemed doubtful whether there was anything more to be done; for the production of a newspaper without anyone to set the type is impossible.

It was a situation charged not only with fatefulness, but with poignant feeling. These old servants of the Morning Post were bound by long association and many memories to the paper, and were deeply attached to its fortunes. It was a hard and bitter choice that they had to make between the two allegiances; and not a few of them broke down under the strain.

When the last men had gone

JOHN FLEWIN HERE TODAY WITH BRIDE

Pioneer Port Simpson Citizen Married Last Week to Mrs. Emily Walker

John Flewin, pioneer resident of Port Simpson, is in town this afternoon aboard the steamer Catala bound home with his bride, formerly Mrs. Emily Walker of Victoria. They were married on Thursday evening last in St. Savior's Church, Victoria West, by Rev. Fred Stephenson, formerly of Port Simpson.

It is interesting to note that both Mr. and Mrs. Flewin were both born in Victoria and played together as children. Their parents came out to Victoria from England on the same ship well over half a century ago.

Many local friends will join in extending their best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Flewin.

TIRED PRINCE IS REBELLIOUS

Refuses to Carry Out Duties and Escapes from Palace Only to Become President

Contrary to the general belief, a son of royalty is not a gentleman of leisure, a social butterfly, a suit model for gay and glittering uniforms. Actually he is a young man leading a mighty hectic life, whose working day entails as much physical labor as that of the man digging ditches.

As proof of this, the opening scenes of "A Regular Fellow," show this young European Prince arriving at a reviewing stand, peopled with officials of high rank, and local executives. The anxiety of the group, watches in hand, is allayed when he arrives in a cloud of dust, mounts the stand, hurries through the ceremony and is whisked away by an attache and his staff to a shipyard where he is to christen a ship.

Too Strenuous

No sooner does the bottle crash against the bow of the ship than he is off to another section of the city to dedicate something or other. And so it goes. A half a dozen other ceremonies in the same day and the Prince rebels. He decides his job is too strenuous and goes back to the palace and demands a vacation of his father. The king laughs at the idea, telling him his date book is filled for a month and he must keep every appointment made for him.

The Prince decides to play hookey and gets out of the palace just in time to meet a group of tourists from America. He is not recognized and the guide informs him that his walking stick will not be permitted in the palace. This gives him an idea and he follows it through. The result is that he and the whole party are thrown out of the palace.

Loveliest Girl

In the throng the Prince sees the loveliest girl he has ever laid eyes on. When he attempts to talk to her she upbraids him for preventing them from seeing the Prince. Later he is in his roadster and sees the girl passing in a taxi. He makes a flying leap from his car and meets her. Each time he is near enough to talk to her he finds himself surrounded by hundreds who have recognized him.

Then comes a day when he meets her and she starts to run away from him. He finds himself pursued by the Prime Minister, who is trying to force a document on him. Eventually he catches up and the Prince learns that his father has died. Rather than be king, the Prince arranges with a Bolshevist to overthrow him and then rushes to tell the girl. Just as he is about to put his arms around the girl, fourteen disappearing coast defence guns appear over the rampart above them and fire the presidential salute.

"What's this all about?" the Prince asks the Prime Minister. He is informed that he has been elected president of the new Republic which has sprung up.

"And, your Excellency," added the leader of the rebels as he hands Ray a paper which falls open like a time table, "here is the list of corner stones you are to lay, public buildings that you must dedicate, parades to be reviewed and babies that must be kissed beginning at six-thirty tomorrow morning.

Ray turns to the girl with a rueful headshake: "I might as well have kept on being king," he observes, "— except for this —"

And he puts his arms around the girl and kisses her as the picture closes.

OBSTRUCTION CHARGE AGAINST CITY HEARD

Case Against Corporation Adjourned for Eight Days so that Board of Works May be Interviewed

The charge brought against the corporation of the city of Prince Rupert by A. J. Prudhomme of obstructing a thoroughfare at the corner of Fifth and Fraser Streets was further remanded for eight days in the city police court this morning, Mr. Prudhomme stating that he was prepared to drop the charge if the city would undertake to clean the location up or "make a reasonable effort to keep it half way decent." City Solicitor E. F. Jones, appearing for the city, stated he would take the matter up with the Board of Works.

Mr. Prudhomme complained, among other things, of the old building that houses the steam roller. This building, he alleged, was actually on the street. It was not strictly speaking an obstruction to traffic but it did, he said, constitute a nuisance.

Magistrate McClymont felt that an order for the removal of this building might have a far reaching effect. Garages on various streets were tacitly permitted as a convenience to owners of cars.

S. W. Taylor, who appeared on behalf of Mr. Prudhomme, expressed the view that cleaning up measures could hardly be effected if the city itself violated its own laws.

PRESENTATION MADE MISS DORIS CANDOW

Silver Circle Canadian Girls in Training Entertain Departing President

A very enjoyable party was held on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mrs. F. D. Rice, in compliment to Miss Doris Candow, who is leaving for Vancouver shortly. The hostesses were the members of the Silver Circle, C.G.I.T. group, and Mrs. Rice, assisted by Mrs. Wilson-Murray, was the convener.

The guests included the Misses Julia Walters, Dorothy Patmore, Virginia Riel, Julia Thomas, Nellie Wilson, Margaret Watson, Anita Lipsett, May Ness, "Girlie" Vance, Elizabeth McLeod, May Clark, Violet Whitlow, Alice Spencer, Winnie Hill and Betty Arney.

Many enjoyable games were played and contests held, the prize winners being the Misses Olive Gordon, Mary Walters, Alice Spencer, and Julia Walters. Later, refreshments were served.

The C.G.I.T. presented Miss Candow with an umbrella as a token of their affection and esteem, and as thanks for all the work she had done in her capacity of president of the Silver Circle group. She will be very much missed, both by the C.G.I.T. as a whole, and by the girls individually.

"For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" was sung with great fervor, and the girls one and all wished their erstwhile president the best of luck in her new home.

SPORT CHAT

The Gyro Club and Native Sons of Canada will have their second meeting of the season in the Senior Baseball League tonight. These two aggregations, in their first game on Victoria Day staged a bang-up exhibition of baseball to a 5-4 score and a repetition of that encounter is promised fans tonight. The Gyros are confident that they will be able to account for the Sons in a manner similar to their first game. On the other hand, the Sons are sure this will not happen and that defeat will be turned into victory for them on this occasion. They need this game to give them their first credit on the right side of the standing sheet.

As a culmination of a move started some time ago in favor of Sunday soccer, John Easton, president of the Dominion Football Association, resigned following the playing of a game in Montreal last Sunday under the auspices of the D.F.A. For the same reason, Tom Mitchell of Winnipeg, vice-president of the Association, also resigned. Both officials threatened to resign if the game between the Brooklyn Wanderers and Carstell of Montreal was played on Sunday and on the game being actually played, they formally effected their threats.

Players for the Junior League football game tomorrow afternoon between the High School and Borden Street School will be selected from among the following:

High School—George McLean, Joe Scott, Gordon Veireck (captain), Allan Cross, Willie Collison, James Bryant, Bobbie Irvine, W. Murray, J. Comadina, W. Hill, V. Morrison, S. Murray and R. Stalker.

Borden Street—T. Watte, K. Miwa, A. Styles, A. McDonald, C. Rogers, Y. Watte, J. Lee, E. Smith (captain), Roy Wicks, F. Millerd, W. Fisher, G. Minns, E. Kane, E. Reynolds and R. Allan.

SKED BAR INDIANS FROM POOL ROOMS BY PROVINCIAL STATUTE

Game Has Bad Effect on Them According to Department Reports to Government

VICTORIA, June 4.—Kelly pool, the great indoor American sport, is proving too much for British Columbia's Indians. They have succumbed to the game to such an extent that the Federal Department of Indian Affairs is asking the British Columbia Government to keep them out of pool rooms altogether. To do this an amendment to the present law governing pool rooms would be necessary, and may be passed at the next session of the Legislature. If Indians are to be kept out of all pool rooms, however, the co-operation of municipal councils will be necessary also, as the provincial regulations affect only pool rooms in unorganized districts.

Pool apparently exercises a fatal charm for the native mind, it is stated. Indians prefer it to their usual occupations of fishing and trapping, and it tends to inculcate habits of idleness in them, it is said. Instead of killing fur-bearing animals, the native huntsmen in some places frequently spend their time shooting pool. So serious has the fascination of the game become, indeed, that Federal officials see no remedy but total prohibition. Their proposals are now before the Provincial Government for consideration.

Having made her calls in the Skeena River, Union steamer Catala, Capt. A. Johnstone, arrived in port from the south at 2:30 this afternoon enroute to the Naas River. The vessel sails from here on her return to Vancouver and wayports at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

THE MAN IN THE MOON says:

A VILLAGE is a place where weather is the chief topic of conversation.

WHAT I am wondering is how they got things done years ago before the idea of lunching together was thought of.

HOW much easier it would be for legislators if the people only knew what they wanted and how much better it would be for the people if the Legislators were not so keen on getting what they wanted.

A ROOSTER discovered an ostrich egg and rolling it into the hen house said, "Now, ladies, I do not want to embarrass you but here's a sample of what other folks are doing."

A LOT of people are like strychnine. They are all right if you know how to take them.

IN the old days girls played with dolls. Now they often play with fire.

the iron doors of the composing room were shut with a clang, and the work went on.

For measures had already been taken to meet the emergency which had arisen.

Welcome Help

The chancellor of the exchequer had rung up Lord Beaverbrook to ask what help he could give; and Lord Beaverbrook responded by lending for the service of the British Gazette the one man without whom it is not too much to say the situation could not have been saved. This was Sydney W. H. Long, the night superintendent of the Daily Express—a man of great experience and rare skill on the technical side of the printing. After working for years as a linotype operator, he had become master printer and then night superintendent of Lord Beaverbrook's paper. He was also a stout trade unionist, and had played a leading part in getting for the Compositors' Union their present charter. It was in his hands alone that the 'setting' of the British Gazette depended. But five columns of the 14 in the first number were set. The rest Mr. Long did with his own hands, except for the little brought in from the outside by the Stationery Office.

Of the readers, three remained staunch—R. Harris, the head reader, P. J. Greene, and F. Moody.

With Mr. Long, came Mr. Evans, head machine room overseer, and Mr. Trotter, chief mechanical engineer of the Daily Express. By the courtesy of the directors, Alfred Hawkins, chief stereotyper of the Daily Mail, was provided for the foundry a little later.

In the machine room, where the great presses operate, there was left of the Morning Post staff only Mr. Holmes, works manager, and Mr. Boyd, machine room overseer of the Morning Post, but they were reinforced by Mr. Thompson, chief engineer of the Morning Post, Mr. Norris, chief electrician, and Mr. Palmer, linotype mechanic.

But three or four men, however expert, cannot run two rotary presses. Crews for each machine are required, to handle the paper reels, to oil and tend the machinery, to clothe the cylinders with the stereo-plates, and to take away printed papers as they pour from the flies.

A Memorable Scene

There was some volunteer labor available, all of it inexpert, but it was thought better on this critical occasion to depend on members of the Morning Post household; and so the editorial staff, most of which was out of commission in dealing with so small a paper, clothed itself in dungarees, and marched down to the machine room, to be initiated into its job.

Such a sight was never seen before. Leader writers, art and music critics, reporters, sub-editors, financial experts—every able-bodied man, of whatever rank or station, was recruited for the occasion, and all responded to the call with "a frolic welcome."

The machines were late in starting. There was an accident in the foundry. A mould was broken; it took nearly two hours to clear away the splashed metal so that the autoplate would work again.

Night of Toil

It was nearly midnight when the last plate had been locked on the cylinder, and the signal to start was given. It was a night of "toil and ineffable weariness" for all engaged—a night full of anxieties and some disappointments, as might be expected with what was after all but a brilliant improvisation.

But the end was achieved. By six o'clock in the morning 230,000 copies of the first number of the British Gazette had been produced, and largely distributed.

The first supplies were sent to the aeroplane stations to be conveyed to the provinces, and the remainder of the edition was despatched by motor-van or car.

On Wednesday morning the British Gazette was a newspaper in being.

It was indeed the first step that cost. Every succeeding night the organization improved, the resources, except on the mechanical side, developed, and processes of production became more methodical and easily-working.

Many Inventions

On the first night it had been necessary to leave the two inside pages of the four-page sheet a blank. On the next night, Wednesday, all four were filled with news, and the amount of the issue was more than doubled. Indeed the total print increased rapidly in geometrical progression, until, at the end of a week, no fewer than two million copies of the British Gazette were being printed and distributed all over the country.

To produce this result a complete reorganization of the office had to be undertaken.

A new telephone system was installed as in the twinkling of an eye, and arrangements were made for feeding the multitudinous staff which rapidly grew up for transporting many workers to and from their homes, and for sleeping others on the premises.

The protection of the building also became a primary necessity. Its approaches were guarded by Metropolitan police and special constables, and admission to the building could only be obtained on official pass. The building was like a beleaguered fortress.

The work on the production of the paper began at 10 o'clock in the morning—only an hour or two after the printing of it had been suspended.

One Linotype Machine

Owing to the fact that there was only one man operating the linotype, a very early start was essential. Those of the editorial staff who were not employed on editing or sub-editing took turns as copy-holders in the reading-room, where the Chief Reader and two of his colleagues had stood by, or in the composing-room, pulling proofs, or driving cars, or even acting as messengers.

To understand the strain under which the British Gazette was produced in its early days, it is only necessary to realise that many of the key-men worked, sleeping in snatches, for 72 hours on end; and that a number of these never left the building at all. Without such devotion to their task the British Gazette would never have been possible.

Machine Scrapped

Now that the end of the strike has come, and the need for a Government news-sheet is over—now that the organisation so hurriedly improvised, is working at its highest efficiency—the elaborate machine, so painfully and laboriously constructed and adjusted, has to be scrapped.

That is the irony of the situation.

But the heroic task attempted has been achieved. The situation, desperate though it seemed, has been saved. The most formidable and incidious attempt that has yet been made to cripple the freedom of the Press and to withhold essential news from the public, has been frustrated.

The British Gazette may have had a short life; but it has fulfilled the purpose of living.

It becomes a memory; but it remains a monument.

The new Orthophonic Victrola has been doing it since December 2nd

THE music of great orchestras, of famous artists, of that almost endless and ever growing host of Victor entertainers keeps its true beauty when heard upon the Orthophonic Victrola.

A demonstration is a remarkable experience. So truthful is this performance that at first you will disbelieve your ears—until you have become accustomed to the miracle.

You hear the giant anger of the storming kettledrums, the amorous cooing of the clarinets, the soft and sunny laughter of the piccolo. You close your eyes and wonder where will wonders cease. Your first query will be, "How soon can I have one?"

CANADA'S DAY IS ARRIVING

Financial Post of Toronto Sees Era of Great Development in this Country

B.C. INCLUDED

The Financial Post published in Toronto has a front page article which is of a most optimistic nature. It says in part:

There is ample evidence of late that Canada is entering upon an era of expansive exploitation such as that through which we passed twenty years ago. Not since that time have there been so many large scale efforts to develop our natural resources, especially in the North. Not at any time in our history has there been such concerted action to press into service the unexploited potential wealth of the country. This larger movement has a very definite bearing on the immediate trend of business.

Florida Operators

Some months ago it was predicted in these columns that Canada was entering upon a period of development that would carry business to a much more active scale—that business here might easily reach the point where it would stand out in favorable contrast to slackened trade in the United States. The reference was to these long-swing movements such as are now being undertaken in all parts of Canada. The prediction has much more foundation today than when it was made. Already big operators in Florida and California are turning their attention to Canada as the centre of the next big development. The development is not just of the character they anticipated. It is a steady, sound movement rather than a localized boom. Already projects are under way for the development of our vast mineral and water power resources, and capital is being concentrated for this purpose. Dominion and provincial governments and private enterprises are sending out scouting parties in all the provinces, by airplane and otherwise, to explore the possibilities of more intensive development and of new industrial projects. The fringe of settlement is being pushed northward.

Northern B.C.

This expansive movement is not confined to any one section of Canada, but extends almost from coast to coast. On the Pacific coast new interest is being aroused in the development of the northern districts, both for minerals, for power and pulp. The British Columbia government is now considering a project to have certain railways pushed farther north, to have the area they serve thrown open for settlement, and its resources exploited. United States capital is keenly interested in these developments.

WHO IS TO LEAD CONSERVATIVES?

Matter Being Discussed at Provincial Capital Just Now and Bowser Favored

VICTORIA, June 4.—The question of who is to lead the Conservative party is agitating members of that party and especially some of the more prominent members here. While there is on the surface no one in sight but the present leader, R. H. Pooley, and the former leader Premier Hon. W. J. Bowser, it is quite within the realms of possibility that a dark horse may appear.

Conservatives feel that given the right leadership they could win at the next election but with either Mr. Pooley or Mr. Bowser they would probably fail. Of the two Mr. Bowser is the stronger and has the confidence of the rank and file to a greater degree than Mr. Pooley. To quote the words of one member of the legislature: "Bowser is a leader if not a very successful one, but Pooley does not attempt to lead. All he does is tickle the Government with a feather."
