JOSEPH SANKEY IS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

GOVERNMENT SUSTAINED ON NON-CONFIDENCE MOTION BY MAJORITY OF SIX

Ottawa Excited as Vote is Taken on Resolution Which Tories Suddenly Presented

OTTAWA, June 16.—After a debate lasting throughout yesterday and well into this morning, the House of Commons 2:10 a.m. rejected a Conservative motion of non-confidence by a majority of six. The vote against was 113 and for, 107.

In the division, two Alberta Progressives voted with the government. They were Lucas of Camrose and Boutilier of Vegreville. Other Progressives, Independents and Labor members present voted with the government.

There was intense excitement. The House had scarcely opened up for business when the motion came unexpectedly.

Mr. Davis, Conservative member for Calgary East, moved that the House, because of failure to implement promises made in the speech from the throne and for other causes, has no longer confidence in the present government. Davis said that much promised legislation whereby the natural resources of Alberta would be restored to the province were not being put into effect.

Particular interest was created in the announcement of the division as Premier King had told the House early in the debate that, if the vote carried, the government would not hesitate in dissolving parliament and appealing to the people.

Mr. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the opposition, declared that, if the motion carried, it would be the duty of the government to resign.

EDUCATION IN CHURCH WORK

Further Development of Schools and Colleges is Recommended by United Church General Council

MONTREAL, June 16.—After hearing a plea for special support of its schools by Dr. O. M. Sanford, principal of Columbian College, New Westminster, the General Council of the United Church yesterday adopted the following resolution: "Whereas secondary residential schools and colleges will have an important place in the educational program of the United Church, it is recommended that the council request the Board of Education of the Church to examine peacefully the requirements of these institutions financially and otherwise and developed a policy which will enable them to make a greater contribution to the Church and society."

Dr. Sanford said the Catholic Church was spending thousands of dollars on such institutions in British Columbia.

8-HOUR DAY FOR MINERS

Best of Two Alternatives in Solution of Present British Difficulties

LONDON, June 16.—The British government will introduce legislation putting the eight-hour day into effect in the coal industry. Premier Baldwin announced this in parliament yesterday stating that it seemed preferable to wage reductions as one of the two alternatives that must be adopted in solving the present difficulties.

Fifty per cent of the mine owners promised the Premier that the men would be offered continuance of the existing wages for August and September on the basis of an eight-hour day pending negotiations toward a definite settlement.

Police Change In Prince Rupert.

The provincial police, which supplanted the local force in the policing of Prince Rupert, have now been in harness just two weeks. True, rumor has it that the change has had the effect of closing down certain illicit businesses in town. Those engaged in the transaction of patronage of such businesses will undoubtedly know whether or not they have been affected but, as far as the law-abiding public at large is concerned, there is perhaps little change visible. While we may now accept what we hear that there is a change for the better in Prince Rupert, time will only show and prove whether the change has really been an effective and profitable one for the city. In the meantime, the new force is entitled to the co-operation of all citizens in its efforts to bring about the "clean-up" that was desired by the municipal authorities when they decided to make the change.

One gratifying feature following the change has been the fact that the provincial authorities have seen fit to provide for the members of the former city force who served the municipality so long and faithfully.

Not First Class Nations.

Spain and Brazil are resigning from the League of Nations because they are not permitted to hold permanent council seats. They have been non-permanent members, holding seats which may be filled from time to time by the Assembly of the League. They want permanent seats like Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, claiming that their prestige suffers from their inability to obtain them, and that their present classification reduces them to the status of second-class nations.

Certainly neither Spain nor Brazil is a first-class nation. Indeed, Brazil has not yet reached the distinction of a second-class nation. There was a time when Spain was the greatest power on earth, but that time was long ago. Greece has an even more glorious history than Spain, but Greece does not ask to be regarded as a firstclass nation.

The resignations of Spain and Brazil from the League of Nations, of course, must be generally regretted, and efforts will be made to have them withdrawn, but the defection of neither should cause any serious trouble. If the choice is between Germany for a permanent seat and retirement of Spain and Brazil from their non-permanent seats, the decision should be easy enough. The League cannot get along without Germany, and it can without Spain and Brazil.

Canada Enjoying Fundamental Prosperity.

At the present moment the position of the Canadian farmer is much more fortunate than that of the farmer in the United States since the price of Canadian farm products is above the general price level, according to the current monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada.

For some months the whole trend of basic commodity prices has been downward in both the United States and Canada and as usual, raw materials have suffered more than finished goods, the latter continues. It is evident that the balance between purchasing power and consumption is being maintained in better proportion in Canada than in the United States.

For the first time in two years the monthly total has exceeded exports, but Canadian export trade is running at high levels, the total for the month of April, $60,166,868, being the largest for that particular month since 1919. The actual volume of goods moving at the present time is greater than the figure indicates because commodity prices in 1919 were highly inflated. There is nothing that need give Canadians any concern in the fact that imports are exceeding exports, the letter says. There is no doubt that in the latter months of the year when the seasonal movements of agricultural produce gets under way the trade balance will swing back to a surplus of exports.

In the meantime the present import surplus can be interpreted as a good indication of the purchasing power in the hands of Canadian consumers. High prices for Canadian farm products, and this evidence of substantial purchasing power in the hands of Canadian purchasers, indicate a condition of fundamental prosperity in the country.

SIX MONTHS IS SENTENCE

Sympathetic Address Given Three Local Boys by Assize Court Judge

Mr. Justice W. A. MacDonald in the Assize Court yesterday afternoon sentenced Darrow Casey, Lawrence Capstick and Murdoch Mackenzie to six months' imprisonment at Okalla for indecent assault on Florence Morrison. His Lordship made a strong and sympathetic address in sentencing the three boys.

He said that, after a fair trial, the jury had properly, to his mind, found them guilty of indecent assault. "You are three young men just starting out, as it were, on the threshold of life and, as I understand it, have had no previous bad records," said the judge. "You have had every chance to get on in the community, to be a credit to your families and to yourselves, but you had forgotten the responsibility that rested upon you as young men in committing this crime."

His Lordship stated he was not going to lecture the boys but he would leave their own conscience to do the lecturing. It was a very difficult task he had before him in passing sentence and he had had no more trying experience in his legal career than in determining just what he should rightly do in this case. He had read the depositions of the case and had considered what would satisfy the ends of justice but it had been a difficult task to solve and arrive at a satisfactory conclusion. He had to bear in mind that, just as the jury had its duty to do, so had he his duty. He did not like to send the prisoners to Okalla for a long term as it was not a place for young men to go. Long sentences in jail he considered did harm.

On Edge of Manhood

"You are just on the edge of manhood, and I ask you to bear that in mind for your own sakes and for the sakes of those who are sorrowing for you this afternoon," exclaimed His Lordship. If he were too lenient, the outside people would say that the judge had come to the Assizes and charged the jury to do its duty but when he came to discharging his duty he had shown sympathy because three bright young men had to go to jail. He had to consider what the result would be. He would make the sentence light in the hope that the associations of a prison would not have a detrimental effect on their young lives. He was sending them down for a short sentence so that when they came back they could hold up their heads, having paid the penalty of the law, and show their families and friends what good they could do.

In closing Mr. Justice MacDonald said "Bear this in mind, young men. I could give you a very long sentence but I am not going to give you a long sentence. A long sentence in jail is only for the hardened criminal. You will be confined in jail for the space of six months."

STEWART WOMAN GIVEN SENTENCE

Use of Firearms Condemned by Judge in Remarks on Dolan Case

In passing sentence of five years in the penitentiary on Ruby Dolan for manslaughter, in connection with the killing of James Neil Donald at Stewart on January 1, Mr. Justice W. A. MacDonald said that in dispensing criminal justice judges had to perform a very difficult task. Speaking for himself there was no part of the procedure connected with criminal or civil justice more arduous than the passing of sentence on the case before him as it was beyond the wisdom of any judge to pass a sentence which would exactly fit the case.

His Lordship did not think any good purpose would be served in discussing the details of the tragedy, the death of James Neil Donald. Accused had no right to resort to firearms to accomplish the object of preventing Donald from doing her injury. Trade get in touch with these

The use of firearms was abhorrent to British justice. Canada, he was proud to say, had a good record, and he looked and hoped for the time when more stringent legislation would be passed to restrict the use of firearms. When accused had the revolver that night she was allegedly using for any purpose a deadly weapon, and no precautions had been taken by prisoner to avoid the result that might occur, even according to her own story, if Donald came towards her and they got into a tussle. Accused might have stepped aside. The jury had these facts before them for consideration. The revolver in accused's possession had brought about the death of Donald but it had not been intended to shoot him. One could not allow pity to carry him too far in one direction or severity to carry him too far in another direction in passing sentence. He was particularly opposed to the use of firearms but against that opposition he had sympathy toward people in distress and that included people convicted of a crime.

The jury had taken a lenient view of the case and had asked him to be lenient in passing sentence. He had not only borne this fact in mind but also the representations made on behalf of accused by the defense and prosecuting counsel. Bearing in mind the recommendations made by the jury, the observations on behalf of prisoner by her counsel and the attitude taken by crown counsel Mr. Justice Macdonald said he thought the ends of justice would be satisfied by accused being imprisoned in the penitentiary for five years, the sentence to date from the time of her arrest.

To Kingston

Ruby Dolan will serve her sentence in Kingston (Ontario) Dominion Penitentiary, the only women's penitentiary in Canada. She will be transported from here to New Westminster where she will be turned over to the penitentiary authorities and taken on by them to Kingston.

Dr. West Testifies

Dr. J. A. West was the next witness. He stated he had been engaged in the study of pathology on and off for years mostly in London, England, and later in Prince Rupert. He had been called in by the Provincial police authorities in this case to carry out certain analysis of stains on clothing. On May 31 he had been handed several articles by the police and again on June 2. Since then he had been examining the stains. The pair of shoes belonging to prisoner had been examined by him but the blood stains were negligible. The stains on the cotton button band of the woollen shirt had been examined and were found to be blood from which only crystals were obtained, further experiment being necessary. Several pieces of cloth containing stains had been taken from the coat by Dr. West and the coat produced in court was identified. In reply to crown prosecutor the doctor said he had found a number of diffused stains running into each other. The stain under the lapel of the coat was tested and gave re-action as human blood. From another portion of the coat no re-action for blood had been obtained. On examining the right sleeve of the coat in the lining a dark red brown mark was discovered and from visual observance only it looked like blood but this had not been tested. The doctor came to the conclusion that the stain had come through the fabric. The stain outside on the cloth which showed on the lining looked like an old blood stain. A pair of trousers belonging to accused had also been examined by Dr. West who had cut out certain portions from them for the purpose of analysis. There were a number of stains which appeared to be mixed up with mud or dust which adhered to the cloth. He could not discern which had been there first—the brown stain or the mud. This section had been analysed and it gave a re-action for human blood. Inside the right hand pocket there was a distinct reddish brown stain. Blood crystals were obtained from the stain but the remainder of the test had not yet been completed. Two specimens of stains had been cut from the cotton shirt and a faint positive re-action for human blood had been obtained.

Identified Wooden Post

Inspector Spiller was again called to the witness box to identify a piece of 4 x 4 wood found near the scene of the tragedy. This piece of wood had been found at a point which showed signs of a struggle and considerable blood. The jagged end of the 4 x 4 was underneath some fern and what appeared to be blood had seeped through the fern onto the wood. The ground where the piece of wood was found was muskeg. It was a fair deduction that the blood had dripped through the ferns and moss on to the post.

Doctor West was then called and stated he had made an examination of the stains on the jagged end and had come to the conclusion they were human blood stains.

L. W. Patmore, defence counsel, questioned Dr. West on the question of the blood stains on the clothing and asked if he had been able to give a definite opinion as to which class of blood they belonged to.

Doctor West said he had not been able in his investigations to distinguish to which class the blood stains belonged. Mr. Patmore, "Here in British Columbia, what are the main blood groupings—two or four?" Dr. West, "We have such a mixed population I do not know whether they have been tabulated." Questioned as to the stains found on accused's trousers Dr. West said that two patches examined had given a definite re-action for human blood. Asked if he had found any human blood stains on the shirt, Dr. West stated there had been a faint re-action for human blood. These patches had been examined twice and gave a re-action both times.

This concluded the evidence for the preliminary trial and Sankey was formally committed by the magistrate.

COPPER RIVER CANYON FOUND

Rivals That of Colorado Says
Albert Mercer, Hazelton
Trapper

NEW HAZELTON, June 16.—A deep mountain canyon, carved almost perpendicularly through a high rocky ridge, a canyon so deep that it is said to rival the world-famous Colorado canyon, has been discovered by Albert Mercer, trapper and explorer, who has returned here from a long journey through the little known wilderness of the Copper River country.

This spring Mercer attempted to penetrate the country of the south fork of the Copper River, a country that has aroused his curiosity. Even though he did not reach his objective, he discovered the canyon and he believes that this find amply rewarded him.

The canyon is from twelve to fifteen miles long and from three to four thousand feet deep. It is a paradise for mountain goat, Mercer claims. The canyon, he says, is so rough that wolves and other enemies of the goat cannot penetrate its fastnesses. He saw goats skipping about on points of rocks where a slip would have meant a straight drop of thousands of feet.

The south fork of the Copper River is described as a great grizzly bear country and would be a favored hunting spot if more accessible.

LOCAL INDIANS FLIVVER FANS

Bulkley Valley Trappers Abandon Moccasin Trail and River Barge

SMITHERS, June 16.—The Indian trappers of the Bulkley river country have abandoned the moccasin trail and the river barge in favor of the small automobile.

The Uncha Valley was treated to a strange spectacle recently when the trappers' train came through from the forests with the season's load of pelts. There were a few dilapidated wagons in the caravan, but most of the Indians rode in automobiles, for the first time in history. The Indians were from the Morice reservation, where nearly all are born hunters and trappers. The evolution from the primitive forms of travel took a good many years to accomplish, but now that the motor car has been introduced to the roads which a little while ago were wide enough to accommodate only pack mules, the Indians have quickly adopted the more progressive mode.

The advent of the automobile has robbed the industry of one of its most picturesque features, but the fur traders welcome the change because it means that the pelts are brought to market quicker and in better condition than otherwise.

VANDERHOOF

The Nechako creamery, operated by the Department of Agriculture, under the management of R. C. Abbott, is doing a fair bigger business than it has ever done in the past. In May, 1926, no less than 7,005 pounds of butter were manufactured, which only fell 900 pounds short of the previous May period combined since the creamery was commenced early in 1921. Previously the largest production in May (1921) was 1880 pounds. The output is still increasing, and the creamery's record for this week in one day was 1082 pounds of butter, or approximately equal to a ton and a half of cream. There are now 102 shippers to the creamery, and that number is steadily increasing. About 90 per cent of the production is sent to the Vancouver market, where it is scoring high.

Arthur Embrey is now sufficiently recovered from his illness to run his motor stage to Stuart Lake.

Mrs. Wm. J. Kyle of Endako spent last week end in town the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Smith.

John W. Sackner and family have left the Hulatt district, and are motoring to Grand Rapids.

On Saturday evening last, when the Boys' Band played in a Booth School last night by Angus Cooch, in charge of the lecture tour of the Canadian Forestry Association, assisted by Mr. Jeffrey, in charge of the forestry car of the association. About 150 people, mostly children, attended the lecture and evinced much interest in the talk given with the aid of motion pictures.

The special forestry demonstration car went east this morning to engage in a tree planting campaign on the prairies. For the past seven or eight years experiments have been made by the forestry department with the seedlings of various species of trees as a means of establishing plantations to act as wind breaks and wood lots and general improvements.

JAPAN WOULD HAVE HER OWN CHRISTIANITY

It Should Perfectly Harmonize
With National Characteristics
Along With Other Religions

OSAKA, June 16.—If Japan expects to absorb the benefits of Western civilization, "it will be necessary for her to welcome Christianity with open arms and harmonize the religion of the West and the national characteristics of the Eastern Empire," in the opinion of the Osaka Mainichi.

This newspaper's editorial on the subject, which attracted considerable attention, said it "is indeed a great mistake to think that Western culture grew up quite independent of its religion, just as it is absurd to think that Eastern culture is independent of its religious thought or feelings."

"Strange to say, the majority of Japanese seem to think that we can very well absorb Western culture without paying any heed to its religion—Christianity. It is our humble opinion that in order to fulfill the heaven-sent mission, if such it be, of welding the Oriental and Occidental civilizations into one, it is almost incumbent upon us Japanese to welcome Christianity with open arms, so as to be able to make that religion our own, just as we did Buddhism and Confucianism in the past."

Know Doctrines

"To welcome Christianity means not necessarily to make this country a so-called Christendom, but it means that the nation as a whole should become conversant in Christian doctrines and sentiment in a similar degree as Western peoples who confess that religion.

"Japan should have her own Christianity perfectly harmonized with her national characteristics, and so well assimilated as to make it her own religion, side by side with her traditional spiritual cults, such as Buddhism, Confucianism and Shintoism."

When brought into the house, after weeks on the stages the fish thaw out and wiggle around apparently unharmed.

While their numbers are so vast as to enable whole settlements to subsist this species, which is the sole representative of a family and order of fishes, is rare in museums and collections in general. The body is rather long, the pectorals are about half as long as the head, the eye is rather small, the mouth is moderately large, the lower jaw projects like that of an aged trout, the back fins are short and without spines, and the tail is rounded, with many slender rays. In color it is mottled brownish black. The fish resembles the pike or small pickerel.

FISH FROZEN COME TO LIFE

BLACKFISH OF ALASKA EXPORTED IN BLOCKS OF ICE AND ALIVE
WHEN THAWED OUT

CHICAGO, June 16.—The possibility of transporting Alaskan blackfish to Chicago by freezing them into solid blocks, and then bringing them back to life by thawing the ice, is being investigated by Walter H. Chute, associate director of the $2,000,000 Shedd aquarium to be erected on the shore of Lake Michigan.

After noting that after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this notice the Union Oil Company of Canada, Limited, will commence the construction of a plant at the site and plans to have a tank and time required to build it in the harbor of Prince Rupert in the said Province, on water lot four, Block "G", the said wharf comprising a narrow approach varying in width from 12 to 20 feet, 400 feet long, 100 feet deep, and 100 feet wide, the water mark distance of approximately 300', whence it widens to 400', section 50' x 60' in area, the sixty feet measurement being approximately parallel to the shore line.

Preliminary investigation has determined that the Alaskan blackfish, principal food of the natives living between Yukon delta and the Kuskokwim river, has tremendous vitality, and is as lively as ever when thawed out after weeks in their icy prisons.

Swallowed by Dogs

Cases have been reported where frozen fish have come back to life after being swallowed by native dogs. In these instances the fish were thawed out by the animal heat of the stomachs, their movements causing the dogs to vomit them up alive.

This species is probably the most abundant of all fishes which occur in the fresh and brackish waters of the northern part of Alaska. It is found in all small streams of the low grounds, in the wet morasses and sphagnum-covered areas, which are soaked with water and which at times seem to contain water sufficient only to moisten the skin.

In the low grounds or tundra there are thousands of small ponds of
