SIR CHARLES HIBBERT TUPPER DIES

SITUATION IN CHINA TODAY JUST AS STRAINED AS EVER

Native city of Shanghai seething with labor unrest and further disturbances expected
- foreigners attacked and stoned

SHANGHAI, March 31.—A party of forty-seven Britishers and Americans, evacuated from Nanking, reached here today. Before disembarking, they were attacked by mobs and stoned.

The general situation in the Yangtze Valley and at Shanghai is as strained as ever and foreign defence officials are impressed with the necessity of being fully prepared for any eventuality.

The native city of Shanghai is seething with labor unrest and may see further disturbances when the campaign of a newly organized association for fifty per cent rent reduction gets under way.

TORONTO GRADS DEFEAT FORTS

FOURTH GAME WILL HAVE TO BE PLAYED TO SETTLE AMATEUR HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP OF CANADA

WINNERS FAR SUPERIOR

VANCOUVER, March 31.—Showing a complete reversal of form from their first two performances, the Toronto Grads came up from behind last night and won the second game of the Allan Cup finals. It was a match in which the Easterners showed dazzling form and played hockey of a style and speed which completely eclipsed their Fort William opponents. The series now stands one all with another game to be played on Friday to decide the amateur hockey championship of Canada.

The game opened with both teams strenuously vying for the opening counter but there was no scoring in the first period. The Grads got away in the second period when they made the first and only score. In the third period they virtually walked away from their opponents who made one tally while they netted three.

He was unmarried and is survived by relatives in his native province. He was a member of the Wye Lodge A.F. & A.M. of this city.

Accusations Termed Abominable Falsehoods by Commissioner of British Columbia Liquor Board

VICTORIA, March 31.—"It is an abominable falsehood," said Hugh Davidson, Liquor Commissioner, before the commission investigating campaign funds yesterday referring to the suggestion that he received funds from C. C. Delbridge, Vancouver agent for a Scotch whiskey firm, and turned them over for the use as Liberal campaign funds in the 1924 election.

Delbridge said that he made absolutely no contribution to campaign funds.

Henry Reifel of the Vancouver Breweries said that he had contributed $1,000 to men representing themselves as members of the Labor party but who had presented no credentials.

Labor members denied that they had received campaign funds from brewers.

That the provincial government purchased two thousand cases of Spey Royal whiskey in 1921 from Auckland, New Zealand, at a price of 85 shillings per case when the price f.o.b. in London on the same date the order was given was only 50 shillings per case was admitted by James Paterson, government purchasing agent, on the witness stand Wednesday afternoon at the session of the commission. He told the commission that, just prior to the time that the Liquor Control Act came into force, it was very difficult to get whiskey and that it became a matter of either having liquor at any price at which he could purchase it or else not having it at all. He said that the offer of Spey Royal in Auckland had been made to him and he decided to purchase it as he said it was the best buy he could get at that time.

Unique Tribute Paid Governor General by Indian Tribes; Is Made Chief at Gorge, Victoria

VICTORIA, March 31.—Lord Willingdon, Governor General of Canada, is now Chief Gottushun or Chief Rainbow of the Vancouver Island Indian tribes, having been initiated Wednesday afternoon in one of the most picturesque ceremonies ever witnessed in the city. Lord and Lady Willingdon were borne to the Gorge Bridge in an Indian war canoe used years ago by the Cowichan Indians in their raids upon the northern tribes in the vicinity of Comox. At the Gorge Bridge a huge concourse of people welcomed the party. After visiting the oldest farmhouse on the island built in the early fifties, the party then entered the front of a teepee made of blankets ground of the old Craigflower School, the oldest school house on the island, and, before hundreds of Indians, the Governor General was made an Indian chief, the ceremony taking place in

NOW EXPECTED

TO DATE HALIBUT LANDINGS HERE
NOT AS HEAVY AS LAST YEAR
BUT IMPROVEMENT IS LOOKED FOR

Halibut landings at this port since the opening of the season on February 15 have amounted to 3,045,400 pounds, as compared with a total for the same period in 1926 of 3,721,450 pounds and in 1925 of 4,927,000 pounds.

For the month of February, landings were considerably less than in the previous year due to the very rough weather on the fishing banks. For the month of March this year, 2,923,700 pounds were landed, of which 2,337,000 pounds were from 94 American boats and 121,700 pounds from 116 Canadian vessels. In March, 1926, a total of 3,159,700 pounds were landed of which 2,159,700 pounds were from American boats.

While the landings show a decline over the previous years, fishermen report that never in their experience of fishing on this coast have they had to contend with such a prolonged spell of bad weather as since the opening of the present season. It has only been during the past week that arrivals have started to come in on the same volume as in previous years, and should the weather in April prove suitable, it is expected that there will be heavy landings as there are far more boats operating this year than at any time in the history of the halibut industry in the northern Pacific waters.

Distinguished Elder Statesman Succumbs After Brief Illness

PROMINENT KNIGHTED VANCOUVER COUNSEL WAS SON OF FATHER OF CONFEDERATION—SERVED FOR COUNTRY HIMSELF

VANCOUVER, March 31.—Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, K.C.M.G., died here last night following an attack of pneumonia which confined him to his home for nearly two weeks. Sir Charles, who was one of Canada's most distinguished elder statesmen, died at 6.15 p.m. He was born at Amherst, Nova Scotia, on August 3, 1855, the second son of the late Rt. Hon. Sir Charles Tupper Bart., at one time Prime Minister of Canada and one of the Fathers of Confederation. He had been ill for eleven days and was thought to be definitely on the mend on Tuesday but early Wednesday complications set in and he rapidly sank during the day until he passed away last night surrounded by all the members of his family except Mrs. Janet Holland of Victoria who was unable to reach her father's bedside. The funeral will be held on Saturday, the body lying in state for an hour and a half on the day of the funeral.

Until two weeks ago, the late Sir Charles continued in the active practice of the legal profession. He was regarded as one of the outstanding counsel of the province and, among public men and members of the bar, he became known as a man with a most highly developed sense of honor.

The last public address of Sir Charles was made on maritime provinces' problems on March 4 before a local service club when he made a vigorous appeal for the sympathy of all Canadians toward trade conditions in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

PECK STATES
TOLMIE LIKED

SAYS HIS SELECTION AT KAMLOOPS WAS UNANIMOUS AND POPULAR

VICTORIA, March 31.—A rally of the North Saanich Conservative Association was held at the auditorium, A. W. Bowen presiding. Col. C. W. Peck, M.P.P.; H. D. Twigg, M.P.P.; and J. H. Hinchliffe, M.P.P., were present.

Col. Peck spoke on the political questions of the day, mentioning in brief the events of the Legislature session. The Kamloops convention, he said, was the most successful ever held in the province. Representatives from all the different constituencies were present and he especially mentioned The Islands riding having seven delegates in attendance.

Col. Peck, in referring to the question of choosing a leader for the Conservative party, said they had unanimously elected the most popular man in British Columbia, the Hon. S. F. Tolmie, who, he said, would lead the party to victory in the next election.

PRODUCTION OF COAL INCREASES

THIRTY PER CENT INCREASE IN JANUARY AND FEBRUARY AS COM-PARED WITH LAST YEAR

VICTORIA, March 31.—Increased production of coal by the collieries of the province is indicated by figures covering the output for the first two months of the present year as compared with that in the same period in 1926. For January and February this year the aggregate production of coal was 426,042 long tons as compared with 340,025 long tons in January and February last year. All important producing districts showed an increase this year. Vancouver Island collieries providing one-half the gain. Last year it was Vancouver Island that went behind in production. A longer winter season and better shipping demand are the chief factors in the increased output. The Crow's Nest Pass collieries also showed a substantial increase with a greater output in coke.

ACTIVE POLITICIAN

He continued his political activities as a Conservative in British Columbia until he had a falling out with the late Sir Richard McBride. In 1924 campaign he was active as advocate of the Provincial Party's cause.

The late Sir Charles married Janet McDonald, daughter of Hon. James McDonald, chief justice of Nova Scotia, in 1879.

One Halibut and One Salmon Boat Marketed Catches this Morning

After heavy arrivals of halibut in the earlier part of the week, Dundas was the only boat in this morning with a catch of 4,500 pounds which was sold to the Booth Fisheries for 13.5c and 2c.

The Narbethong, Captain Bert Wearmouth, also arrived today and sold 1000 pounds of red spring salmon to the Atlin Fisheries at 19.5c per pound. With better weather in prospect for the near future it is expected that more salmon will be offered for sale in the next few days.

STARTLING STATEMENT IS MADE IN COURT.

Not often, even in a courtroom, is such a sensational statement heard as that made by A. M. Johnson, K.C., on Tuesday in the hearing of the Sankey application for a new trial. Such statement must be proved or disproved for assertions of the kind cannot be made at random unless they are true. They bode serious results for some one—either the person who makes them or the person or persons at whom they are directed. The Sankey case, upon the evidence of which no comments can be made while the matter is still before the courts, is developing into one of the most sensational in the history of British Columbia criminal jurisprudence.

BALKANS ARE LESS WARLIKE.

As war clouds gather again over the Balkans, the world remembers that the World War broke out over obscure Balkan issues. In the present flare-up between Italy and Jugo-Slavia over the future of Albania there are elements reminiscent of those which in 1914 awakened the war gods.

There are the Serbian secret societies, apparently working for territorial expansion now as then. There is the autocratic ruler—then Kaiser Wilhelm and now Premier Mussolini—determined that the larger country shall not suffer from the plottings of the smaller. And there is much the same system of diplomatic understandings linking various other European powers to one side or the other.

The thirteen years since Sarajevo have, however, brought great changes. Up to a certain point the old sharp practices in the guise of "diplomacy" continue in the classic style. But when the stage is set for trouble memory intervenes to make the leaders hesitate to go on with the play. Money is scarce, consequences are most uncertain, and there is an organization known as the League of Nations ready to swing enormous influence against the first power making a false move.

Had international technique not changed since 1914, Italy would have picked trouble with Jugo-Slavia instead of sending ambassadors to Germany to assure that government that Rome is most anxious to avoid an aggressive move in the Albanian tangle. With Jugo-Slavia equally anxious to avoid war the atmosphere in the Balkans should clear speedily.

NEITHER MODEST NOR BEAUTIFUL.

An echo of the beauty contest discussions is heard from Australia. In North America the season is soon to be inaugurated anew. Except for a few hardy musical comedy girls who pose for the tabloids and Sunday rotogravure sections apparently enjoying a romp in the snow in their bathing suits, the beauties have been in hibernation for some months. And so long as they remain in comparative retirement argument about the ethics, taste and morality of such contests will languish, but when they come out again in the spring, conferences on their "manners and characters will begin again.

The unseasonable protest from Australia was provoked by the world-tour of "Miss Australia." One conscientious objector denied she was truly representative of the girls of her country, for they are "distinguished by modesty and dignity."

The mania for competitions of this sort has grown rapidly. It is world-wide and includes all sorts of absurd rivalries. Winners are thrust into the limelight for no sound reason, and do not stand up well under the publicity they receive.

But it is just as absurd to think that the standards of girls who do not enter such public competitions will be lowered or at least confused by the attention which the competitors receive. The public is not fooled and the girl who "doesn't belong" is seldom if ever lured into them.

NAVAL HOLIDAY ALREADY FACT

SO FAR AS DREADNOUGHTS CONCERNED COMPARATIVE STRENGTHS OF LEADING NAVIES

LONDON, March 31. — (Canadian Press.)—In view of the United States proposals for the further limitation of naval armament the admiralty "Return of Fleets" for 1927 has appeared at an opportune moment. The return shows how drastically the capital ship tonnage of the leading fleets has been reduced since the Washington Conference. On the outbreak of the war Great Britain alone had 42 Dreadnoughts ready or under construction. Today the collective Dreadnoughts of the seven principal navies barely exceed 60. Only eight battle-cruisers are now in existence, and no ships of this type are building. So far as Dreadnought construction is concerned the "naval holiday" is already an accomplished fact.

CRUISERS

Taking cruisers first, the British Empire is found to have 14 building, with nine more projected for the period ending with the fiscal year of 1929. If this programme is carried out the Empire will have eventually 23 cruisers of the so-called "Treaty" class. The number of similar vessels now being built in the United States, Japan, France and Italy is 18 while 12 others are projected.

In capital ships the Empire has a numerical margin of two over the United States, though this is rather discounted by the superior tonnage and later design of many of the American units. The Empire has also a definite superiority in aircraft-carriers. But in destroyers and submarines Britain is far below a one-power standard, and in spite of the current building program her relative strength in both types of craft continues to decline.

A very formidable mass of submarine tonnage is now afloat and on the stocks. The six leading powers have already built or laid down 385 submarines, while 59 additional boats are contemplated.

NELSON AND RODNEY

In the present return the Admiralty has released some interesting details of the new British warships that will soon be hoisting the pennant. Of these the most important are the two battleships, Nelson and Rodney, which have hitherto been veiled in mystery. They are the first battleships to have geared turbines, designed for an output of 45,000 s.h.p. and 23 knots. This is a very respectable speed for ships carrying such a ponderous weight of armour and guns. The battery of each vessel is now revealed as nine 16-inch, 12 6-in., six 4.7-in., anti-aircraft pieces, and 28 smaller guns, with torpedo tubes. No other warships afloat will be able to develop such a tremendous volume of fire.

In The Letter Box

MR. ROWE'S LETTER

Editor, Daily News.

As you have so kindly put in several articles lately in reference to my business in Cow Bay, will you kindly publish this letter which is an explanation of my business?

C. O. ROWE.

To the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Prince Rupert.

Gentlemen:

Having noticed in the Daily News Waterfront Notices, that a small building that was being put up at Cow Bay, was stopped by reasons of there not being a permit. I have only to state that not having a permit was not any fault of mine as I was up to the office of the city engineer before I started to build and too plans and specifications, but was told that I would have to have a special kind of roof marked by the Fire Underwriters of B.C. before I could obtain the permit. I left their and went to my office and got a copy of the building bylaws, got a carpenter to make out a rough sketch of plan, also a specification to cover the by-law, took the plan up to the city office, had the engineer go over it, and he said it was all right. I asked him the costs and was willing to pay for it but he said he wanted to consult Mr. Little first in reference to guy wire which was on the property.

I not having anything to do with the guy wire and, not having time to stop to listen to a discussion that did not concern me, I left. Being in a hurry, I put on a man to do some of the work, after getting up the foundation and having the flooring down and the sidings ready, the city engineer stopped my men. I told them to go on working which they did. Then up came Sergeant Hannah to see me in reference to stop building. I may here state that Mr. Hannah was perfectly gentlemanly and I hold no ill feelings toward him as he only did his duty. The city engineer came also and, when I asked him what was wrong, he said that the piles were not up to specifications. Now as to that, I may say that I bought and paid for twelve piles and did not take particular notice of them as I bought them for 6 inch piles, but after the matter was called to my attention, I went down to the building and found that three piles were only 5 1/2 in. at the smallest end. I intend to replace them for three new cedar posts 6 x 6 which I trust will suit the gentleman in question. That is the only objection he made, and that was the reason he gave me before Sergeant

Hannah.

I have lived in good old Prince Rupert for eighteen years, and have always tried to mind my own business and obey all the laws and never shirk my obligations as a citizen but, as the piles are 1/2 in. too small, I will bow to the law and see that in future the city shall have its 1/2 in. Now, if the city engineer is so careful about those things, why does he allow so many dilapidated buildings to remain up? There have been several built lately, one close to the bridge, opposite the government warehouse that was remodelled and enlarged and which does not come up to the law. Now to put myself right, I should like to state that I applied to the C.N.R. for the lease. My application was granted and lease made out so I am not trespassing on property I have no right to.

Gentlemen, you want to take into consideration that these buildings that are being built at Cow Bay are not of a permanent nature as all the time we get on them is a thirty day rental. The consequence is that it wouldn't pay to build a first-class building as, in the future, no doubt, the place will be cleaned out and a different class of buildings erected. When that time comes, I will be pleased to put up a first-class building. In the meantime, I would like to have the same rights and consideration as the people who have built and are building in that part of the city. I am

Yours respectfully,
C. O. ROWE.

GETTING READY FOR ELECTION

JUNE BY-ELECTION IN NORTH OKANAGAN WILL DRAW LEADERS OF BOTH SIDES

VICTORIA, March 31.—With the first test of public opinion on provincial affairs in two years scheduled to take place in North Okanagan in June, British Columbia political parties will soon be on the march again.

Following Premier Oliver's announcement in Ottawa that the North Okanagan poll would be held some time in June, both the major parties will begin preparations for the struggle during the next few weeks. After the Premier's return here during the next week or so the date of the poll will be definitely fixed and meanwhile Liberals of North Okanagan are arranging for the nomination of a candidate who will seek to recapture the seat for the government.

With W. F. Kennedy of Vernon already in the field as Conservative nominee, there is a general expectation among politicians that Dr. K. C. MacDonald, who held the North Okanagan seat from 1916 to 1924, will come out again as Liberal standard bearer. Dr. MacDonald is the best-known public man in the riding, and is regarded as a strong candidate. Following the 1924 election he was taken into the cabinet as provincial secretary, but was defeated in the subsequent by-election by the late A. O. Cochrane, who died on December 4 last.

LEADERS TO CAMPAIGN The North Okanagan fight will draw leaders of both parties. Members of the government will take an active part in the fight, when Hon. S. F. Toimie is expected to make his first move as provincial leader in the fruit-growing constituency.

Under the present election laws, the government may issue the North Okanagan writ, ordering an election any time up to July 10, six months from the day when Mr. Speaker Buckham formally notified the provincial secretary's department of the vacancy in the seat. As Premier Oliver intends to call the poll for some time in June, the campaign probably will get under way in May, leaving about a month for preliminary arrangements.

WHERE WOMEN SURPASS MEN

CAN WRITE GOOD NEWS STORIES BUT THEIR FIELD IS LIMITED

TORONTO, March 30.—(Canadian Press).—"When assigned to cover a train wreck, an experienced woman reporter can count the bodies with the best of men reporters, and can be counted upon by her city editor to turn in a story which is as accurate, well-written, and as full of detail and color as one pounded out by masculine fingers," asserted Miss MacPherson, editor of "The Business Woman" lecturing before professional Journalistic Fraternity of Toronto University.

"But her field is limited," she continued, "in this respect. Assigned to a 'beat,' such as City Hall, she finds herself at a loss, because men will not confide in her, discuss stories with the same lack of restraint. She comes as a rather pleasing interlude in their day's work. That is all." Her advice to her undergraduate hearers was to confine themselves to that type of story in which women excelled—the feature story where their greater care in choosing exactly the word to express the desired meaning placed them above par.

Flight Into Cassiar Mining Region and Tropical Valley
Described by Colin Caldwell

In the spring of 1925, I joined the expedition of a syndicate of United States mining capitalists, for exploration work in the unexplored regions of the Yukon and Northern British Columbia, as assistant pilot-mechanic, says an article in McLean's Magazine told to E. L. Chicanot by C. S. Caldwell, dealing with the latter's flight in 1925 to the Cassiar district. Incidentally this was, to the best of my knowledge, the first mineral prospecting party to plan the use of the aeroplane. Colonel Williams, who was in charge of aerial transport and I appreciated quite keenly that the territory to be explored, and but very inaccurately mapped, and realized the hazards and difficulties of such an expedition as we were setting out upon. We dug up all the available data on the country but this was painfully fragmentary and it left us little better off. The machine we were to fly, a Vickers Viking amphibian, was shipped by rail from Three Rivers, Quebec, to Prince Rupert, British Columbia, and we were there ready, with the plane assembled, to commence our air trip on June 1. Altogether we made a party of nine.

We flew from Prince Rupert to Wrangell Island where we refueled, thence directly over the coast range by way of the Stikine Valley, and on to Telegraph Creek. It was a route of exquisite wild loveliness, as we sailed over glittering glaciers, high white-capped mountain peaks, and saw the ribbons of innumerable rivers winding below. We made a landing on the Stikine River and established camp there to await the breaking up of ice on Dease Lake.

On June 18 word was received that the ice on Dease Lake had broken up and on the following morning we made an early start with the entire outfit, consisting of four men, tents, dogs, and other equipment, to fly to our main base which was to be located at the head of Dease Lake. The distance from Telegraph Creek was more than seventy miles over a country absolutely devoid of landing places. A forced landing over this stretch of country would have meant not only failure to the expedition but in all probability disaster to all of us. We had fortunately no such mishap and the entire miscellany was transported to the head of Dease Lake in forty-five minutes. Ours was the first machine ever to cross this height of land. An altitude of three thousand feet having been maintained after leaving Telegraph Creek we found we were only five hundred feet above water over Dease Lake, as that body is located twenty-five hundred feet above sea level. After having ascended three thousand feet on the take-off we had to descend only five hundred feet to land.

LIKE A DUCK AND GOOSE
Our first trip from Dease Lake was down the Dease River as far as McDames, where there is a Hudson Bay post and where a couple of mining companies are engaged in dredging operations. This distance of ninety miles took up just fifty minutes. We found it quite impossible to convince the Indians of this as it took them one week to make the return trip. They plainly regarded the machine as something diabolical and could not be induced to approach closer than three hundred yards, while they seemed to believe there was something supernatural about us. "It flies like a duck and lands like a goose," one observing Indian put it. It was the sole topic of the tribes and fresh Indians came in from miles every day to view it. The younger set for long periods sedulously practiced the roar of the engine and with their arms imitated the movement of the plane in turning and banking, evidently in order to be able to take back an accurate and convincing story to their brethren in the bush.

While at McDames we chartered a large scow capable of carrying five tons of supplies and had the Indians bring it to the head of Dease Lake, where it was loaded with gasoline, supplies, and equipment and sent down the river to Liard Post, located at the junction of the Dease and Liard Rivers. The trip by scow took twenty days. We did it by plane in just under three hours.

Our arrival at Liard caused excitement enough, the Indians collecting on the river bank very much alarmed. One particularly wild-looking fellow immediately started in a panic for the bush, but as we circled preparing to land, the shadow of the machine intercepted his flight. Terrified, he returned, deciding the river was the safest retreat, and made for it. Just as he got to the bank, however, he realized we were landing there, and friendly turned

PERILOUS FLYING

While the scow was enroute, we transported the prospectors by air to various locations. Considering all conditions and the difficulties a forced landing would have put us in, it was not the safest kind of flying to indulge in.

The scow eventually arrived on July 11 and the two redmen who had brought it down intended returning on foot, a matter of five days and nights travel. As we were going back to Dease Lake and had to pass the Indian camp we invited them to go along. At first they would not consider it at all and so strong was their reluctance and so amusing to us the attitude of these two Indians who had piloted the clumsy scow down all manner of rough water that we decided to persuade them to fly if we could. It was hard work.

"No me weak heart. You big man. You strong heart."
We at length managed to overcome this objection. Then it was "Me got dogs. No can take the air."
"Sure we can take them," I said. With excuses running out, they began to look ashamed, and we summarily bundled them in to the plane.

We had seated them and got as far as putting helmets on their heads and cotton wool in their ears when the nose of one of the two began to bleed profusely. This was regarded as a very bad omen indeed and the trip was nearly off. However, more persuasive eloquence and copious cold water poured down the back of the neck stopped the bleeding, and losing no more time we took off.

These two Indians would have thought nothing of running rapids with a few poles lashed together with moose hide strings, but the plane plainly had them terror-stricken. As soon as we left the water their heads disappeared beneath the cockpit and they did not show again until after we had landed fifty minutes later. It would have taken them five days to cover the distance on foot, I will never forget their expressions as they tried to realize the distance they had come. Yet greater, if possible, was the wonder and bewilderment of their friends who had congregated upon the bank to see the big bird land as they saw two of their own people emerge from the bowels of the monster. I am sure they would either be chiefs next day or killed as wizards.

YEARS JOB IN DAY

On the evening of July 5 we picked up the prospectors at French Creek which runs into Dease River some fourty-five miles from Liard Post, and flew them to Liard. As the machine approached the post for the first time the whole population, Hudson Bay factor and Indians gathered on the river bank trying to solve the strange noise. Finally they spotted the big bird coming straight for them a couple of thousand feet in the air. The Hudson's Bay man, so we discovered later, thinking the machine was going to pass and get lost, instructed the natives to get their guns and fire a fusillade, imagining that the reports would be heard of us. We knew nothing about this, but a few hours after landing discovered considerable water in the hull of the machine, and on investigation found a fountain spouting up at the bottom just at the rear of the gas tanks. The fact that the hole was clean, and most suggestively about the size of a .303 bullet, caused us to make inquiries and we were informed about the shooting. Little damage was done though it is difficult to say what might have happened had the gas tanks been pierced.

When camp was established here at Liard Post, exploration work was carried out in many sections. The prospectors were amazed and gratified at the marvellous manner in which aerial transport speeded up their work. On one occasion in one day we transported seven men with sufficient supplies to last a month, including tents and mining equipment, a distance of two hundred miles over country quite unmarked by trails and without any sign of human habitation. The first men we landed at this point and after cooking breakfast were actually working a couple of miles up the creek by 3:30 a.m. When the operation was completed the whole party was returned to the main base in one day. By any other means of transportation, such an expedition, if not altogether impossible, would have taken them at least a year.

NO SIGN OF LIFE
On the evening of August 17 we departed from the head of Dease Lake and flew to Frances Lake, a distance of three hundred and ten miles, and about one hundred and thirty miles north of the Yukon-British Columbia boundary. There was no sign of human life, white or Indian, here at all, though at an old, abandoned Hudson Bay fort on Frances Lake there were several deserted log cabins and a few old caches. My outstanding recollection of that night is of the wolves. They seemed to be everywhere and kept up an incessant howling all night. We did not see them but their unquestionable presence in such numbers was slightly uncomfortable.

The game of that sparsely inhabited country is unbelievable. The lakes and rivers teem with the finest fish which in addition to being an important article of our diet furnished us with superb sport. Flying over the country it was a common sight to see some, sometimes as many as a dozen at a time, standing at the shore line of small lakes. Sailing along close to the mountains, caribou, goat, grizzly bear and other animals could be seen at almost any time. Sometime it will be a wonderful sporting country. On one occasion I saw a pure white moose. Another time when I was fishing I saw

BRITISH HOME DEFENCE FORCE MORE THAN HALF ACCOMPLISHED—NEW MACHINES BEING ABSORBED

LONDON, March 31. — (Canadian Press)—A reduction of £450,000 on the 1926 total is shown in the air estimates now before parliament. The comparative figures are: 1926, £16,900,000; 1927, £15,550,000.

The chief points of a memorandum by Sir Samuel Hoare, the air minister, are: There is a reduction of £980,000 in air expenditure in the Middle East. This is due to the reduction of the Imperial Forces in Iraq.

The increase in the Fleet Air Arm represents normal development, in accordance with the Admiralty program of aircraft carriers.

War stocks are on the point of exhaustion, and new types of machines and engines are increasingly coming into use, with the inevitable result of a larger expenditure on the rearmament of squadrons. The Home Defence Force consists of 28 squadrons. More than half the original program of 32 squadrons has thus been completed. It is proposed to increase the strength of the Royal Air Force during the year by the addition of approximately six squadrons (two regular and one non-regular squadrons for home defence).

ANOTHER LONG FLIGHT
Another Cairo to Capetown flight and back will be undertaken. Preparations are in progress for a long-distance flight with flying boats, with the object of developing the service air route between India and the Far East. These boats will be provided this year, and the intention is that in 1928 they should make an extensive cruise as a self-contained unit in Far Eastern waters, visiting finally some of the Australian ports.

Provision is made for the construction of two airships. It is expected that they will make their first flights by 1928. With regard to civil aviation, the work of enlarging and improving the Air Port of London at Croydon is proceeding satisfactorily. A sum of £111,000 for the construction of aerodrome buildings and the completion of the diversion of a public road has been included. The reconstruction of the Air Port should be completed during 1928.

Newadays they sue for divorce and the custody of the reputation.

FLIGHT INTO CASSIAR MINING REGION AND TROPICAL VALLEY DESCRIBED BY COLIN CALDWELL

A big moose and called to Col. Williams to come and see it as he was practising on a bannock. As he did not come immediately I went to see why and discovered he had been intercepted by a bear with two cubs which he was bluffing. Luckily his bluff wasn't called.

TROPICAL VALLEY

The last place we visited before coming out was the fabled "Tropical Valley," colored and exaggerated press accounts of which have been so sceptically received. We had heard vague accounts of the valley while at Lard post, based mainly upon the meagre information of Indians, and also about a prospector and trapper, Tom Smith, and his daughter who had wandered inland from the Yukon, had gone to that region two years before and had not been seen or heard from since. We decided to make a trip to see if the valley really existed and if possible to get trace of the missing pair.

We knew that the mysterious region was approximately two hundred miles from the post and accordingly took off and followed the course of the river, which is punctuated with frequent terrifying rapids. We had flown what we judged to be approximately the distance when we reached a region of peculiar looking lakes. We thought them familiar but there was perhaps nothing unusual about their aspect. They were familiar to us since there was no other water bodies in the country for some considerable distance in any direction. Deciding this must be the place we made a landing on the river and tied up to a sandbar. With the machine secure we started out to scout.

Almost immediately we struck a trail, faint and apparently not used for a long while, but unmistakably a trail. We followed this for about four hundred yards from the river and then surprisingly encountered a board nailed across a tree. Upon the piece of wood painted in rude characters were the words "A.B.C. Code" followed by a jumble of figures and signed Tom Smith. It baffled us for a little while but finally the combined wits of the party deciphered it and spelt out the words "Message in bottle at foot of tree."

We dug at the bottom of the tree and just below the surface struck a bottle which upon opening was found to contain two sheets of paper covered with very legible handwriting. I cannot remember the exact wording of the message, but it started off, "To any white man finding this message," and went on to the effect that by following the trail back for two miles a cabin would be found near the first hot springs and, a short distance beyond, a garden which we have left planted to potatoes and onions. By further following the trail, the message continued, the finder would come to a large hot spring overlooking a meadow in which moose are to be found every morning and evening during the summer months.

THE MESSAGE

The message, signed Tom Smith, concluded by saying that he and his daughter had been living there for two years and seen no white man and were leaving for Fort Simpson which "barring trouble with the Indians we expect to reach in the Spring."

We progressed up the trail, the atmosphere becoming more torrid and languorous as we advanced. Shortly we reached the first hot spring and just beyond that found the deserted cabin. A little farther away, was the garden, rank and overgrown. From here we started out to explore a limited area of the valley which appeared to be about ten miles square in extent.

Hot springs sprang from the ground all over. Some of them just bubbled up and ran straight away. Others formed the pools of various dimensions we had seen from the air. The rich and luxuriant growth and foliage was distinctly suggestive of a tropical region. Ferns grew to an enormous height and size, and vines spread all ways in a tangled mesh. Berries of many kinds were growing in profusion and of an extraordinary size. Flattened patches indicated where bears came in to dine. About many of the little boiling lakes were large patches of purple violets of a size and beauty I had never before known. Much of the growth was unfamiliar to me and such as I had known in other parts of Canada was of an extraordinary lavishness and production. I was brought up in Alabama and nothing has ever so reminded me of that southern state.

STRIKING OPERATION

We stayed two days and then flew back to Lard. Later when flying out we reported what we had found to the Mounted Police at Fort Simpson. They told us the rest of the story of Tom Smith and his daughter. Coming down the river in a canoe, the craft had capsized in the rapids. The girl had been taken down the river and swept up unconscious on a sandbar. When she came to her senses there was no trace of her father. She had made her way to Fort Simpson and was working for the Hudson's Bay Company.

With the summer's work completed we returned to Lard post and left there on the morning of August 28, landing at noon of the same day at Wrangell, Alaska. From there we proceeded to our starting point, Prince Rupert in British Columbia, covering the distance of over four hundred miles in a little over four hours, arriving on August 31. Thus was successfully terminated the first aerial mining exploration trip in the history of aeronautics and what I think was one of the most striking aircraft operations over isolated country ever carried out without a hitch.

SPORT CHAT

The Maple Leafs basketball team are going to have a contest for the possession of the Milburne cup this year which is desirable from every point of view. Little is known in the city of the strength of the championship team from Anyox, but it is known that basketball has been a very popular sport in the smelter town. The next few days will probably see the Maple Leafs indulge in a few hard practise matches, as, after their strenuous games in Smithers, they can hardly let the silverware go to the smelter town without a real contest. The prices of two games should attract capacity houses.

This week and next sees the finish of the hockey season with the amateur championship games being played in Vancouver and the professional championship to be decided next week in the east. The season seems to have been very successful from the point of view of patronage by the fans although Ottawa team is reported to have lost money and one or two of the American teams are not satisfied with either their teams or the support given. ### SCOTCH SHIPOWNER OFFERS BIG GIFT TO UNIVERSITY

EDINBURGH, March 31.—(Canadian Press).—Thomas Cowan, a retired shipowner, of Leith, has offered £15,000 supplementary to previous gifts, to enable Edinburgh University to implement a scheme for providing a residential hostel for male students. Previously Mr. Cowan had contributed £10,000 for the same object, in appreciation of the work the students performed during the General Strike. The gift is most welcome as the absence of any provision for communal life has long been considered a drawback to the efficiency of Edinburgh University, which draws students from all parts of Great Britain and the Dominions.
