new view of Queen Victoria revealed by the study which appears in 'Historic Lovers" written by the late W.

L. George of England. The courtship of Her Majesty and the Prince Consort was, as dictated by the Queen's superior rank, mainly on Her diaries relate that, being Queen, she could not accept addresses, but must pay them. She told the Prince that it will make her too happy if he would consent to marry her.

The Queen then added that they embraced, and that he was "so kind, so affectionate." These words, "kind," affectionate," were slightly pathetic.

At first, the couple made a bad pair, in spite of their enforced conjugal example in the eyes of the world. The Queen liked to dance until morning. she enjoyed Court functions, she liked London. Prince Albert preferred to to bed early, to surround himself with men of science.

Here is a new light on the picture of ideal domesticity and married bliss which has been held up to the world

But in the end the Queen fell completely under the sway of her husband, and resigned herself entirely to his wishes and ways of life.

CARLYLE'S ROMANCE

Another wedded pair, Thomas and Jane Carlyle, were surely the most illassorted couple among the great figures of the Victoria age. The dour, Calvinistic Scot married a woman who would have been happy with a common composer, an actor, with any man of mercurial spirit-but she was captured! and carried off by a philosophic mentality that imprisoned her in the loneliness of a Scottish home, ruined her health, and finally brought her to London to live a cat-and-dog life in which he formed intellectual friendships in which she had no share. Yet after

"He comes here lonesome and alone," said the grave-digger, who had dug Jane Carlyle's grave. "The last time he was here I got a sight of him, and he was bowed down under his white hairs, and he took his way up by that ruined wall of the old-cathedral, and then he kneeled down and stayed on his knees at the grave. Then he bent over, and 7.30. Subject, "What can I get out of I saw him kiss the ground-aye, he kissed it again and again."

The minister and his bride were preparing to eat a bite at a luncheonette. They were busily engaged with the bill of fare when the waitress, who was a much calcimined and peroxided young miss, came up to take their order. Suddenly the young minister looked up from the bill of fare, smiled sweetly at the waitress, and said: "How is the chicken today?"

Development Work Goes Forward in This Part of Northern Canada Without Halt

VICTORIA, Jan. 22. - The work of providing means of communication and other amenities and necessities of civilization in the Mackenzie district in the Northwest Territories goes steadily forward. The administration of this area is carried on by the North West Territories and Yukon branch of the Department of the Interior, and every year an officer is sent from Ottawa to view conditions and to gain information as to local needs. This year John F. Moran, inspector of the branch, made his third trip, which extended to Aklavik at the mouth of the Mackenzie and occupied four months.

The posts which show the greatest signs of growth are Fort Smith, Simpson and Aklavik. Progress at these points has been assisted by the establishment in each of them of wireless stations, which keep these communities in touch with the outside world. The chain of stations which includes Edmonton, Alaska; Fort Smith, Simpson and Aklavik in the Northwest Territories; and Mayo, Dawson and Hershel in Yukon, has proved a great boon to all interests in the country.

Trapping which is still the main industry has been good, and considerable prospecting for minerals has been going on during the summer; on one case an aeroplane was used to carry prospectors to their base of operations.

HEALTH OF NATIVES

The health of the natives, on the whole has been good, and each year shows an advance in the application of the principles of hygiene. There are now four physicians in the Territories, located at Fort Smith, Simpson, Aklavik and Resolution, and there are hospitals at the three first named of these places. Court was held at Aklavik by Judge Dubec of Edmonton, the stipendiary magistrate for the Northwest Territories. Two natives were charged with manpost at Herschel. The whole adult part of the fire brigade prevented trials, and it is clear that the holding very serious. of these courts and the explanation of the law there given are having, along with the work of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and missionaries, a good effect on the natives throughout the whole North country.

ESKIMO MEETING PLACE

At Aklavik which is the gathering place of Eskimos from a long stretch of the Arctic coast there were in early July between twenty-five and thirty small schooners, with auxiliary gasoline engines, all belonging to Eskimos. These schooners, which range up to fortyeight feet in length, are built in Edmonton to the order of Eskimo hunters OULEN MAKY 15 and delivered to the purchasers at Aglavik. As soon as trading is over the Eskimos disperse, safling in their schooners to their fishing, sealing and hunting locations along the coast, not to return to Aklavik until the following midsummer. Viewed by old-time Eskimo standards these boats are of course costly, but they so facilitate hunting that they are considered profitable investments.

Returning form the annual conference which was held in Victoria, Arthur Dixon, resident engineer for the provincial department of public works, stated that a road would soon be built to connect Prince George with Alexa Lake. He also said that developments were taking place which would ensure the connection of Prince George and Edmonton by road before long.

At the end of last week, fire destroyed M. S. Buchanan's poultry house and thirty-five birds. The outbreak was believed to have been the result of a visit to the premises of chicken thieves.

The Well-Managed Home

THE manager of a household is the purchasing agent for a large proportion of the family needs. In order to do a good job she must know what, when and where to buy. She must study goods and the concerns which make goods and have them to sell. She must put herhome on a business basis and run it on business principles in order to make the most of the family income.

Information is the only basis for intelligent purchasing. And the right way to get the greatest amount of necessary information is to read the advertisements.

Advertisements tell you what is new and good in merchandise. They reveal improvements and inventions to make your home life easier, more comfortable and more convenient. They give you information about a thousand and one things that are useful.

Every manager of a household---every member of the household who shares the responsibility for the familia's welfare-should make a habit of reading the ads.

YOUTHFUL WIVES BECAUSE OF PATERNAL FEELING - CHARGES LITA JUST AFTER MONEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Charles Spencer

placed upon his wife's family the blame for what he termed "viperous, terrible accusations," made against him in the divorce charges laid by his wife, Lita Grey Chaplin.

"It's cruel and unjustified-this onslaught on me," he said, at the home of his attorney, Natham Burkan. "I can't understand all this bitterness, exated by my wife's family. She must be devoid of feeling. I guess."

"The unfair, malicious and wholly untrue statements of Mrs. Chaplin," said Mr. Burkan, "furnish sufficient grounds for suit for divorce for cruel and inhuman treatment."

Chaplin intimated he will be here for perhaps two weeks, in which time he would plan his divorce action. He admitted he was worried, but said he was confident of the outcome. "I have faith in the patience and sense of fair play of the people, until I have a chance in court to tell my side of the
