EFFORT TO PULL OFF CATALA FAILS

PREMIER MACLEAN BUSY MAN AT OTTAWA INTERESTS B.C.

Steamship Catala Stuck on Pinnacle of Rock is Exposed at High Tide

Passengers all Taken off and Many Brought Here Last Night by Speed Boat "Naas River"; Tugs Stand by

With all her forty or so passengers as well as officers and crew safely off, and the vessel reported to be making no water, the most serious problem in connection with the salvage of the Union steamer Catala, presenting itself this morning, which piled up at 1.15 yesterday afternoon on Sparrowhawk Reef in Cunningham's Passage three miles from Port Simpson, was whether or not the steamer could be successfully removed from the rocks on the high tide early this afternoon or a corresponding tide tomorrow afternoon. It was just forty minutes after the high tide of 23.2 feet that the stranding occurred. All efforts were being bent on refloating the steamer on the high tide of 23.8 feet at nine minutes past one this afternoon. Tomorrow afternoon at 1.50 there will be a still higher tide of 24 feet after which the high water mark will commence to recede. Morning tides, making only 21 feet, are not high enough to float the ship.

It is understood the plan will be adopted."

Clynne appeared for the accused.

NO SUCCESS PULLING OFF THE CATALA

Vessel Would Not Budge Though Tide Higher Than Yesterday

All efforts to pull the steamer Catala from the rock near Port Simpson, where she ran yesterday, early in the afternoon, were unsuccessful even though the tide was several inches higher today than when she went on. The pinnacle rock held her fast.

Another effort will be made tomorrow but it is doubtful if this will succeed unless the steamer is lightened a great deal in the meantime. She has been taking water freely but it is not known whether or not the inner chambers of the hull are pierced.

PROPOSAL TO REDUCE ELECTRIC LIGHT RATE EDMONTON NEXT YEAR

EDMONTON, Nov. 9.—Reduction of electric light and power rates, which will mean a decrease in present revenue of about $90,000 annually, will be recommended to the city council by the civic finance committee. After considering the report from the commissioners, the committee decided to make this recommendation.

Should council approve, the cut on domestic lighting from 8 to 7 cents per kilowatt hour will take effect on January 1. The reductions on certain power charges as well as the rates for signs and show window lighting would take effect as soon as approved by council.

Premier MacLean Tells East of Problems in This Province; Discusses Oriental Question

OTTAWA, November 9.—The difficulties which have been overcome by the Government of British Columbia and many problems facing the province, was the subject of an address delivered by Premier MacLean before the Ottawa Service Club. He spoke of the great distances and natural features which made municipal government almost an impossibility in many districts and this placed the burden of policing, education and communication on the shoulders of the provincial government.

Dr. MacLean told of the vast strides the province had made industrially in the past ten years and the increasing of the payroll from $78,000,000 to $175,000,000.

Dealing with the principal problem, the premier said that the people of British Columbia were opposed to the

Premiers Conference Members Guests of Canadian Club at Ottawa Optimistic in Outlook

Premier MacLean Tells Them About British Columbia and Claims Province Unexcelled in Whole of Canada

OTTAWA, November 9.—The significance of the year 1927 in the history of Canada and the wisdom and foresight of the fathers of confederation, a parallel between the provincial delegations prior to and leading up to the union of the various provinces and the present conference now taking place on Parliament Hill, and a broadly optimistic outlook for the future of the country were elements which were compounded in the address of the prime minister and the premier of the provinces delivered last night at a banquet tendered them by the Canadian Club here. Premier King and all the representatives of the province spoke.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—A radio wave band sufficiently wide to take care of the extensive development of commercial flying in Canada, has been set aside by the international radio conference, for the sole use of Canada.

Canadian delegates to the conference pointed out that in the practical application of aircraft in forest protection, survey work and similar useful purposes Canada led the world. The Canadian Government had been compelled several times because of interference from powerful European broadcasting stations to shift the wavelengths used by their aircraft. Hereafter broadcasters the world over will keep off the exclusive radio wave band allotted to Canada.

REFORM OF THE SENATE

The fact that some of the provincial premiers have declared themselves opposed to the abolition or reform of the Canadian Senate does not mean anything. Those in authority have almost invariably opposed every new move for a better condition. Barnacles are always difficult to remove. We have to remember that both church and state opposed the abolition of slavery and Captain Casey of the Church Army told us last week that the move which he heads so successfully was opposed by both clergy and laity. It is so throughout the whole world. When the suggestion was made by several scientists a generation ago that possibly man has been for ages developing instead of being once perfect and then falling, there was a storm of protest which even today breaks out in certain quarters although the idea is accepted by practically all thinkers today.

Those who advance anything new must expect to be opposed. No matter how reasonable is the proposal, it will always be opposed. New ideas are evolved. Two thousand years ago some new ideas were given to the world and the people in authority crucified the giver and those who later upheld the ideas were torn by wild beasts to the accompaniment of much hilarity on the part of the spectators. The Canadian Senate is something like the verminiform appendix. It does not seem to have any value and it is sometimes expensive and even painful. It seems almost as difficult to eradicate the Senate from the body politic as the appendix from the human system. Both are obsolete relics of a bygone age.

DR. MACLEAN A WORTHY SUCCESSOR

Dr. MacLean seems to be a worthy successor of Premier Oliver. He is making a good beginning at Ottawa in carrying on a campaign for the return to British Columbia of her railway lands and for increased subsidies to this province and also for the sole rights of the province to impose income taxes on the people, thus relieving taxation. He is supported there by the attorney general and if they do not win their case, they will at any rate impress their views on the people of the East so that eventually we shall get our own. The fight is not by any means a political one. It simply means that MacLean is the man who happens to be head of the government and he is rising to the occasion.

MUST LOOK AROUND FOR MAYOR

In view of the near approach of the civic elections, it is time citizens were bestirring themselves and looking around for a man to fill the position of mayor. We have no idea whether Mayor Newton will offer for re-election but if he does not another man must be found and even if he does decide to be a candidate again, it is possible that others also might light to contest the office. It is not usual for a man to hold the position as long as has the present mayor.

The name of Alderman Joe Greer has been mentioned as a possible man for the job. Mr. Greer has made a good alderman and there seems no good reason why he should not be an efficient mayor. At any rate the field is now open and nominations are in order. Let us at any rate see a reasonable contest this year. It is not good for the city to have the election go by default.

POPPIES ON ARMISTICE DAY

At the week-end there will be a sale of poppies under the Canadian Legion, the proceeds of which goes to a relief fund from which widows and orphans, down-and-out comrades and any badly in need of help are supplied with the necessities of life.

Very few people realize the claims that are made upon the organization of the returned men by those in dire need. It is the place to which former soldiers or their wives naturally apply first. The work is carried out quietly.

Once a year the people of Prince Rupert are asked to contribute to the fund on the annual poppy day and usually they respond liberally. This year the money is needed as much as ever and the sale of poppies should bring a cheerful response.

URGES UNITED EFFORT AMONG ALL CHURCHES

Colonel Simmonds Defends Dr. Barnes but Draws Attention to More Important Matters

In a letter to the Victoria morning paper Lieut.-Colonel C. B. Simmonds urges need of unity among Christian Churches in view of the world situation. He says in part:

I see from your issue of Sunday, October 30, you have taken up the old bone of contention about Evolution, and that many of your readers have already rushed in with avidity to gnaw at the bone. May I suggest that you have done Dr. Barnes an injustice by attributing to him ideas which are not apparent either from his sermon in Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral or in the lecture delivered to the boys at Westminster School, all of which I have carefully read as reported in the English press. I fear that you argue on the principle that because "every sailor is a man, therefore, every man must be a sailor." Not so very long ago, Chesterton, after a tour of the United States, when writing on the subject of Prohibition, said that to put up sham satans for the sake of knocking them down is folly of the foolishest. You seem, just for the sake of making sure of your hit at Dr. Barnes, to have dressed him up in a lot of false padding, and in order to bring out your case, any reasoning individual in possession of the facts will at once see that you have been missing even the padding in your efforts to make a case. This would seem a very poverty-stricken device.

HAIR SPLITTING

Just at a time when the Anglican Church (Church of England, call it what you will) is setting its house in order so as to meet the conditions of the time, is it opportune to bring up hair-splitting arguments which invariably lead into blind alleys or merely make an extra turn of that vicious circle from which there is no escape? Again, when it is all-important for Christianity to show a united front and assemble in the interests of civilization in a spirit of accommodation, is it wise to make mountains out of molehills, accentuate the minutest differences by exaggerating them into lines of cleavage, and squabbling over, what to the average reasoning man must seem mere trivialities, when there is so much that is important to be done? Your procedure can only be included under the heading that "an enemy hath done this thing," together with a number of malignant instances that have recently occurred, but are not too apparent to the average individual. If you will only have the patience to bear with me, I think you will agree that you, in common with many others, have swallowed the camel and are straining at the gnat.

DARWIN DEEPLY RELIGIOUS

In the first place I may mention that Darwin was a deeply religious man, probably none had a more profound sense of the Deity; it is only a perverse teaching that has labelled him atheist, and what not, just as the world Protestant has diverted from its original meaning of "Protagonist of the True Christianity" by those who had their own ends to serve and realized that they were fighting a lost cause; the fight is not over yet, but as Shakespeare employed the term Protestants have no reason to regret the meaning then put to it. You yourself draw the conclusion that "there is the everlasting 'leit motif' of the triumph of good over evil." Here you employ a foreign term for the very meaning which Darwin meant by "Evolution." But the injustice that you do to Darwin is to use his argument against him by a complete reversal of its true meaning. Bergson has employed the term "elan vital" for the very same thing, though the hair-splitters say otherwise.

May I remind you that the Archbishop of Canterbury has upheld all that Bishop Barnes said in regard to Evolution. He only took exception to the latter's attitude towards "Trans-substantiation," a subject which seems to interest the churchmen rather than laymen. This as a point of fact, can be dismissed in a very few words: the elements at the communion service are best regarded by the individual as aids to contemplation, and each of us must take the material view of the same in the shape best suited to our own personal requirements; beyond that it is futile to go, and only results in waste of time. Here the Bishop of Birmingham was at least indiscreet, and the Archbishop administered a gentle but, at the same time, unmistakable rebuke, with which we must all agree. I see, however, you make no mention of this. On the other hand, the Archbishop condemned the unseemly theatrical stunt (I try to make my language appropriate to the occasion) which was enacted within St. Paul's Cathedral, and which had so tame an ending. The organist helped to throw gold water on the proceedings by dropping the noise, but we are not told whether the music he discoursed was appropriate to the discord of the happening.

PETTY INTERFERENCE

Just at this time it would be well to consider far more important matter than mere back-biting, always an unprofitable pastime. The Church of England is setting her house in order, let her do so without petty interference and mischief-making. There are very important developments to be given consideration which may loom up big in the not very distant future, developments which require the consideration of the churches and laity alike.

As an outcome of the Great War, the Moslem powers have undergone wholesale emancipation. The Caliphate is for the moment non-existent. The new Turkish Republic has modelled itself on Western European lines, having adopted the Swiss constitution, and is also revising its marriage laws on similar lines. As regards religious teaching, things are in a state of flux and much depends on whether advances come from East or West as to the line of the future of Islam. In old Saracen times, Mohammedanism showed much more tolerance towards Christianity than the latter towards Mohammedanism. Moslems always placed Christians and Jews on a different plane to the "infidel," which generally included Taoism, Buddhism and Confucianism, etc., the distinction being that the former group had received "The Book" (The Bible). The Crusades certainly accentuated the Christian attitude towards the Moslem as being the infidel, but we are a long way from Crusade times now. It is not here by any means suggested that the church should amalgamate, but there is no reason why the Christian Churches should not approach the Moslems with a view to some sort of better "temporal" understanding and co-operation in the interests of world peace.

She Coughed Night and Day Could Not Sleep

Mrs. Leonard Haywood, Victoria Corner, N.B., writes:—"Last fall I took an awful cold which I caught while driving in an open car on a cold day. "I coughed night and day, could not sleep at night, and my eyes ran water so that I could hardly see a thing. "My husband got me a bottle of and before I had taken the whole of it my cold had disappeared. "Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past 39 years; price 35c. a bottle, large family size 60c.; put up only by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHURCHES MUST BE UP-TO-DATE SAYS LUTHERAN PREACHER

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 9. — The Rev. Dr. J. B. Baker, York, believes in newspaper advertising as a means of increasing Sunday school and church attendance. Speaking in St. James Lutheran church here, Rev. Dr. Baker said his "home" church, St. Matthew's Lutheran, had spent $600 during the last fiscal year for advertising which took the form of displays in newspapers, circular letters, pamphlets and incidental methods.

"One of the shortcomings of religion in many churches is that 1890 methods of conducting the affairs of the church are being used in 1927," he said. "You can't expect a man who has ridden on the 60-mile-an-hour New York Central to be satisfied with the 10-mile-an-hour New Jerusalem accommodation."

NEEDLE REMOVED BY BRONCHOSCOPE FROM LUNG OF YOUNGSTER

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—Drawing a deep breath while holding in her mouth a two-inch needle at her home at Timmins, Ontario, five-year-old Beatrice Heffernan swallowed the sharp instrument. On the child being removed to a Toronto hospital later, an examination showed that the needle had lodged in the lower part of the left lung, near the heart. To remove the obstruction by means of an operation would have necessitated the cutting away of some ribs, in itself a dangerous expedient; so the doctors tried a bronchoscope. This appliance, consisting of a tube about the size and shape of a lead pencil, equipped with a minute electric light and a pair of tiny forceps, was dropped into the child's lung while the little one was under an anæsthetic, and after a few moments only the forceps gripped the needle and drew it out.

GREAT PIANIST TELLS HOW TO BE PROFICIENT

Mrs. Gertrude Huntly Addresses the Woman's Musical Club of Edmonton

EDMONTON, Nov. 9.—At an informal luncheon arranged by the executive of the Women's Musical Club, the music teachers of the city had the opportunity of hearing Miss Gertrude Huntly speak for a few moments.

Miss Huntly spoke from the angle of a teacher, for she herself is a noted teacher as well as pianist. She shared with her audience some of the important lessons she had learned from her study with the great masters, touching particularly upon the art of practicing. In her earlier training, she said, she had been taught to play but not to practice. Consequently at the end of a two-hour period of practice, she would find herself fatigued and suffering physical discomfort. When she went abroad to study with Medtner she questioned him as to why this should be. The master explained that the secret she sought was simple—to learn to practice quietly. One might practice slowly, Miss Huntly explained, and still be tense, and become fatigued as a re-

BRIGHTEN YOUR HOME AT LITTLE EXPENSE

The great art lies in practicing quickly. She also stressed the importance of proper position of the hands and fingers and of realizing the position of the hands. This realization will enable the player to memorize without effort.

To secure speed, Miss Huntly advised her audience to learn the notes first and the proper finger position, the practice legatissimo and hold every note until the finger is needed for the next note. In conclusion Miss Huntly referred to criticism which was frequently leveled at Godowsky for daring to "arrange" the works of the great master, Bach. She quoted from articles by Godowsky in which he pointed out that Bach himself had set the example, for he had adopted the music of earlier composers to fit some particular need. Just as Godowsky has arranged for the piano Bach's Suite in C Major, written for the cello, and some of the Schubert songs.

GRANT FOR SKATING RINKS IN EDMONTON

EDMONTON, Nov. 9.—Grants of $4,218.79 toward the upkeep of community and boys' skating rinks throughout the city during the coming winter months was approved by the finance committee last week. With the contributions from the school board the total amount to be expended this season for rinks is $6,115.45.

The finance committee decided to continue the same policy with regard to community rinks as prevailed last year, but with boys' hockey rinks one change has been necessitated owing to the erection of a school on the grounds at 82nd Street and 116th Avenue. The question of finding a new location for a rink in this district was left in the hands of the city commissioners.

DIED RESULT OF SUCKING STRAW

Rare Disease Known to Medical Science Occurs in Ontario

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 9.—Victim of one of the rarest diseases known to medical science, Ernest Davey, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Davey of this city, and one of the most popular students at the collegiate institute, died here.

Davey's death is attributed to actinomycosis, the action of which is similar to lockjaw. The poison germ has been isolated by scientists on dry grass straw, and the theory is that young Davey introduced the poison into his system by sucking a grass straw on the Rugby field.

While knowledge of this particular kind of infection is so slight as to amount merely to theories, medical advice is that the poison germ is very slow of action, although it effects a very high mortality rate among its victims. This theory is borne out in the experience of young Davey, because it was December 26 last when he was taken ill. Since then he has spent long periods in the Memorial Hospital and Toronto General for special treatments.

Davey was in his twentieth year, and was a leader in school sports. He was captain of the football team last fall and a member of the basketball team, and one of the best swimmers in the district, having won several medals, including one donated by the Royal Life Saving Society of England. He also was a member of the St. Thomas Tennis and the St. Thomas Golf and Country Clubs. He was likewise a promising musician.

HARVEST FESTIVALS ENGLAND DOLEFUL

One of the Worst Seasons on Record for the Garnering of the Crops

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Many a good English rector, especially if he be rector of a country parish, has worried himself recently over the propriety of permitting his congregation to sing "All is Safely Gathered In," when, as a matter of fact, half the country's crops remain under water. The season has been one of the worst on record in England. At Doncaster parish church the harvest festival was postponed, Archdeacon Sandford intimating the unsuitability of holding it on the usual date.

Canon George Buchanan who preached at Holy Trinity, Hull, found an appropriate text for a harvest festival under present conditions in "Although the fields yield no seed yet I will rejoice in the Lord." They had to sing the customary hymns and chants because they had no other, he said, but let them get down to bedrock reality and sing them with the reservations honestly demanded.

Bishop Prosham, preaching at Coley, said a century or so ago a harvest like that of 1927 in the north of England, would have entailed almost a famine in Leeds and Bradford and Halifax. Now the bustling granaries of Canada and Australia supply what England lacks, and the people of Coley can take what comes so plentifully, with a "cheerful disregard of the Giver of all," and a philosophic indifference to the sorrows of the English farmer and those dependent upon him.

"The point I make is," added the Bishop, "that the cheerful indifference to the farmer on the part of the townsman is selfish to say the least. And to think of all farmers as though they were bloated profiteers is contrary to fact."

"My heart has ached when I have preached in some crowded country church when the harvest has been delayed and bad; when I have seen under the swinging oil lamps faces drawn and set with anxiety, singing 'What the Father does is well,' and yet feeling it hard to believe it."

ELEPHANT CAUSES FLURRY IN ENGLAND

Gets Free in Country Village and Roams Over Farms

NORTHAMPTON, Nov. 9.—The villagers of Tiffield—a small parish with fewer than 300 inhabitants, about seven miles from Northampton—had an exciting two hours one night recently when a young elephant at the farm of Robert Fossett, well-known circus proprietor, broke away from its keeper and made for the fields. Fossett keeps some of his circus animals at Tiffield, and this elephant, which was one of them, was undergoing a course of training. The animal bolted while it was out for a walk. All kinds of ruses were adopted to recapture it, but it burst through hedges and fences and crossed the village allotments.

After some trouble the elephant was captured in a yard and was secured with chains and ropes. It required the united efforts of 15 men to induce the elephant to leave the yard and walk through the village to its quarters. It was along a path lighted by torches that the beast at last made its way back home.

Henry Edenshaw of Massett returned to the city on yesterday afternoon's train from Terrace where he spent a few days visiting with his daughter, Mrs. Fred Nash, who came here with him.
