Former Lands Minister Makes Reply To Criticism

Kenney Denies Charge Concerning Alcan Deal

VICTORIA—British Columbia's former minister of lands and forests, E. T. Kenney, Wednesday replied to criticism of his policies by the present minister, R. E. Sommers.

In Prince Rupert last week Mr. Sommers criticized the former government for permitting Alcan to flood the Tweedsmuir Park area for its power development.

Mr. Kenney said Mr. Sommers should "get out and bring some industry to B.C. before he starts tearing down what somebody else has done."

Mr. Kenney denied the government had failed to consult with experts in the civil service before concluding the agreement with Alcan.

In Prince Rupert Nov. 6, following an inspection trip of the Tweedsmuir Park area, Mr. Sommers blamed the former government for not discussing "at any time" the timber situation with any of the technical advisers in the forestry department, and said that blame for the present situation "should fall fairly on the shoulders of the former minister of lands and forests."

BURNS LAKE DEMAND

A demand that the government or Alcan take immediate steps to remove merchantable timber from the area to be flooded and to clear the projected shoreline of the future lake of some 350 square miles, is spearheaded by the Burns Lake and District Board of Trade.

The Board's demands have been followed up with support by several public figures, including B.C. leading naturalist and author, Roderick Haig-Brown.

Mr. Sommers visited Burns Lake and the Tweedsmuir Park area the first week in November and said the government hopes to send "competent engineers to the site to try to estimate cost of clearing the timber before it is too late."

But he stated in Prince Rupert that removal of merchantable timber from the area now being flooded by Alcan "would never eliminate an eyesore that will stand as a monument to the callousness of the former B.C. government."

The Aluminum Company of Canada recently blocked off the northward flow of the Nechako River by a huge dam and the water which was drained into the Fraser from the lake-rich Tweedsmuir Park area now is backing up against surrounding mountains.

The huge lake which will be formed in a few years, expected to be 135 miles long, will find an outlet through a 10-mile tunnel in the coast range just above Kemano Bay, where it will provide the necessary hydro-power to operate Alcan's huge smelter to be built at Kitimat.

City Firms To Bid on Phone Work

All electrical contracting firms in Prince Rupert have been invited to tender on the outside plant of the new automatic telephone system here. Deadline is this Saturday.

Tenders will be opened at a special meeting to be held here Saturday at 2 p.m. at which George Knowles of Vancouver, sales engineer for Automatic Electric (Canada) Limited, will open the sealed bids before the mayor and aldermen.

Automatic Electric was awarded the contract to construct the new system following endorsement by ratepayers of the $675,000 telephone bylaw last Sept. 11.

Council asked Automatic Electric several weeks ago to give local contractors a chance to bid on the outside plant and to open tenders here.

In the bylaw, it is stated cost of the outside plant will not exceed $187,000.

WARM NOVEMBER—The calendar says November but grass still is growing on Victoria, B.C., boulevards and city workmen Art Farley, on a power mower, and his assistant George Bryant find it hot work under a brilliant sun. Bus Lines Proposes New Scale

Cannot Continue Without Raising Fares

Officials of Arrow Bus Lines Limited said today the company can not continue operations unless it is permitted to increase fares in this city to offset increased operating costs.

A new scale of rates which it wishes to put into effect will be put forward at a special council meeting Saturday, replacing two other proposals that have received unfavorable criticism.

Mel Forbes, manager of the bus line, said inactivity in the fishing industry has caused a decline in revenue of about $100 a month for the past three months while operating costs have moved upward.

In a compromise proposal the bus line will seek the following scale of fares:

Adult fare—13 cents cash or two tickets for 25 cents.

Children, six to 12 years of age—five cents at all times.

Children over 12 and holding student cards—five cents on school days between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. and 10 cents at other hours and on non-school days.

All children under six years of age travel free.

Any child over 12 years of age with no student card would pay an adult fare.

The original application by the company last August, which was opposed by council, sought an increase from 19 cents to 15 cents for adult fares and from five to 10 cents for children except on school days between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

This request was rejected by the Motor Carrier Branch of the Public Utilities Commission, which controls all rates on buses, taxis and truck transportation in B.C. It suggested, however, the bus line draw up a new proposal and obtain city council backing before submitting it to the PUC.

The bus line last week submitted a request to increase adult fares by 25 per cent and make school children pay adult fares after school hours and on all other non-school days.

Disclosure of the new offer for the first time at the council meeting last Monday, brought severe criticism from several aldermen and led to the bus company's decision to draw up the new proposal and ask support at the Saturday meeting.

If council supports this proposal, the bus line will again seek permission from the PUC to put the rate structure into effect.

Arrow bus lines has been operating here for the past 10 years and while costs have increased no advance in fares has taken place.

Annual report of the line shows 438,950 passengers were carried on city lines during the year ended last July 31. This is an average of 120 per day and the company contends that passenger revenues are likely to reduce even further because of the increasing number of private vehicles.

The bus line, in its submission to the PUC, said the Port Edward line operated at a profit, and loss on the city line was being subsidized by that run.

In the proposal advanced to council last Monday, aldermen did not object to the increased adult fare but opposed the boost in children's fares.

During the discussion, Alderman George Casey asked Mr. Forbes, who was a spectator, if the company intended operating a bus service past the new housing projects and was advised it would "when the houses are occupied and it was warranted."

Alderman Darrow Gomez said he objected to the increase "because there is no recommendation for an improvement of service."

"I don't think the buses are up to scratch. We are looking after the interests of the citizens and if we are going to back this proposal I think we should have some assurance that the company is going to do something."

Arrow Bus Lines does not operate under a franchise with the city and Mayor Harold Whalen said "if we don't like the service (Continued on page 3)

Candidates File Papers for By-Election

VANCOUVER (CP)—Six candidates filed nomination papers Wednesday for British Columbia's two Nov. 24 by-elections which will renew the struggle between CCF and Social Credit for political power in the province.

Social Credit won 19 seats and CCF 18 in the 48-seat Legislature at the June 12 provincial general election when alternative voting was used for the first time in B.C.

Social Credit formed a minority government, taking into the Cabinet two ministers who were not elected as members of the Legislature.

The Social Credit members in Columbia and Similkameen resigned their seats to open the way for two ministers to try for election.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner is being opposed in Columbia riding by CCF's Chris Madson and Liberal George Keenleyside. Madson was defeated in the summer election.

Finance Minister Einar Gunderson is seeking election in the Similkameen riding. His opponents are H. S. Kenyon, CCF, and Joseph Klein, farmer-laborer.

The present standing in legislature is: CCF 18, Social Credit 17, Liberal six, Progressive Conservative three, Labor 1, Vacant three.

The third vacancy was caused recently by the death of Ernest Carson, Progressive Conservative House leader and member for Lillooet.

Constitutional experts in Victoria contended Wednesday that a double defeat for Social Credit would not mean the end of their fledgling government.

They said the government could be displaced only by defeat on the floor of the Legislature. The House will not meet until spring.

There are some 15,000 eligible voters in Similkameen riding, at the southern end of the Okanagan Valley along the U.S. border, and about 3,500 in the Columbia Rockies along the Alberta border.

Parliament, in which Malan's Nationalists have a small majority, took action after the courts struck down the key law in Malan's white supremacy program.

The country already is torn by recurring bloodshed and violence and a Negro civil disobedience campaign against restrictive laws.

South African Appeal Court Holds Malan's Action Illegal

BLOEMFONTEIN—South Africa's appeal court today unanimously decided that Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan's high court of parliament is illegal.

Power Firm Must Get City Notice

The city of Prince Rupert must give Northern B.C. Power Company notice of termination of its contract within 12 months of its expiry date if it wishes to purchase the business.

The city solicitor, in answer to a query from council, disclosed this fact and added that the 12 months' notice applies only if the city wishes to purchase the power company assets in the city. It does not include the power plant at Falls River.

Aldermen decided at a meeting last Monday to start negotiations immediately with NBPCP and the B.C. Power Commission concerning the city's future power supply.

Contract with NBPCP expires on March 1, 1954.

Allied Planes Drop Flaming Gasoline Bombs

SEOUL (CP)—Allied planes today dropped flaming jelled gasoline bombs on entrenched Chinese Reds in the Sniper Ridge-Triangle Hill area on Korea's bleak central front.

The victorious South Korean infantry, meanwhile, mopped up Red remnants around Pinpoint Hill, the dominant height on blood-soaked Sniper.

Republic of Korea troops recaptured Pinpoint Wednesday in an artillery-supported charge.

Elsewhere along, the 155-mile battle line action was confined to patrol skirmishes.

Fifth Trip Coming Up for Restless Office Worker

By LARRY STANWOOD

Right now Bill Robertson is heading back to a typewriter—or a pen and a ledger book—for another stint of work but a pocketful of memories, a trunkful of notes and photographs, and a large sheaf of travel folders already beckons another cross-country tour.

The next one will be Robertson's fifth trip and it's to take him to some of the few places on the North American continent he has not yet seen.

But first there's work to be done. The man who has set an objective of seeing as much of the continent on which he lives before he settles anywhere, soon will be following a daily office routine for...

"Well, at least until next summer," the Ontario-born continent-trotter said as he dug through a raft of photographs he had taken of a trip just completed.

Robertson, who is 44, single and a happy-go-lucky sort of fellow, was born in Ripley, Ont., near Goderich. He's been a "west-coaster" since 1945. He spent several years in the B.C. interior on the P.G.E., two years in Alice Arm, with time out for "just one trip," and last year worked at the Kemano Bay site of the Alcan project.

He began taking extended trips of one or more months' duration in 1940. Since then he's averaged one in slightly more than two years but they are getting more frequent of late.

"The more I see of this continent, the less I really think I know about it and the more I want to see," he says simply.

He travels by bus, train, boat, or by private car—when he has one. The last trip he made with his own car. When he reached Vancouver he sold it. Too hard to get around with it in the north country he claims.

"And it doesn't cost as much as most people think," he adds. "Many have said to me, 'you must be a millionaire' for me to take such trips. But actually, it costs only as much as your tastes—and mine are of a necessity not extravagant."

His travels have taken Robertson on two trips to Florida and New England and Southern states enroute and from the eastern to the western seaboard in both the U.S. and Canada.

Each trip has cost him less than $500, but he admits that "I could have spent nearly that much in one place."

"And many holidaymakers do. They visit swank night clubs and places where a glass of beer costs a dollar.

"I may have the same glass of beer; but it only costs me a dime. And I think I get more for my money. I see a lot more than most people on a holiday."

His last trip was made from Sarnia, Ont., through Chicago and through all the northern states, including a tour of Yellowstone National Park.

Before he left Ontario, he visited his home town then spent some time in Toronto. There he was interviewed by Clare Wallace, well-known commentator, and his story was broadcast over the coast-to-coast Dominion network of the CBC.

But, claims Robertson, he has the westerner's distaste for Toronto.

"I know that's one place I'd never settle," he said, although he hasn't made up his mind where—or if—he will ever "settle down."

Robertson's next trip, he says, is to take him to Nevada, New Mexico, Texas and Arizona, and while he will spend his days working to save money for the trip, at night he will scan travel folders, study tourist literature and communication schedules to chart the course of his next "holiday."

Meanwhile, the smiling, chubby-statured gent. from eastern Canada who walked into the Daily News office six months after the first time he was here, is packing for a short trip—to Kitimat and a job.

Before this, however, he revisited Alice Arm to say hello to friends and acquaintances there "whom I might never see again."

"I have learned to know a lot of people. Most of them I like a lot."

City to Bill Province for Use of Local Jail

City of Prince Rupert is going to send a bill to the Provincial Government for its use of the city jail.

Recently asked the city to investigate the number of prisoners held in the jail since the beginning of the year.

City jail, according to a report of the provincial government, is not to be used for long term prisoners. It is mainly to house inmates until they appear in court.

A person is sentenced to a city official said, is sent to a provincial jail.

Recently suggested establishment of a common jail in B.C. in which persons are held.

2 Sentenced For Attempted Theft

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two men who took part in an unsuccessful holdup on the fifth floor of Hudson's Bay department store Nov. 1 were sentenced Wednesday to four and three years in prison.

Sentenced to four years was Donald Francis Swan, 20, who pleaded guilty to the charge along with William Jamush, 21, who received three years.

Friends on the Stage

A COMMENT heard after the Alaska Music Trail concert last night was that extra enjoyment is added to a performance when the artists appear to be personal friends of the audience rather than somewhat strange and distant figures on the stage.

Whether by accident or design, it so happens that in each of the concerts this season there has been one performer who, assuming the role of spokesman, has offered the listeners a little talk in addition to music. In each case he has injected it with humor and in each case the audience has, to use the colloquialism, eaten it up.

In a larger city this added fillip probably never would be attempted. It is not that the people there are any less susceptible to amusement. Collectively, however, they are more formidable. As a general rule there is a faint implication that the artist is there on sufferance and that he is, by advance judgment, poor until he proves beyond all doubt that he is good.

While this is clearly unreasonable, it is nevertheless an attitude that entertainers on a major circuit must accept as an unalterable part of the business.

It is no wonder, therefore, that musicians of established ability will often put aside a busy schedule to join those on the Alaska Music Trail. In front of northern audiences they can, as they have admitted, relax. They have a welcome up here which no one is in the least ashamed to show, and the result is that without any question they give a better performance. Besides polished professional talent, their concerts have spontaneous warmth, and if there is a more essential ingredient to good music, it is yet to be found.

The reception given last night to Greta Menzel and her accompanist Thomas Mayer, may be listed as another reason why Prince Rupert will continue to have the best in musical entertainment.

PNTA Sets Example

ALTHOUGH a considerable amount of lip service is paid to the "great northwest," it is probable that many of those offering their verbal tribute have only a vague idea of what they are talking about.

The reason is that this part of the continent is only now emerging from an economic wilderness. Once a country known to the world mainly for its spectacular gold strikes, it has become in the past decade a favorite subject of those who try to map the course of industrial development.

Of all those interested in its progress, perhaps no group has been more loyal and enthusiastic than the Pacific Northwest Trade Association, the formation of which coincided almost exactly with the region's entry into continental prominence.

In 1942, John Hart, then B.C. premier, invited a group of Vancouver and Seattle businessmen to join him on a trip to the northern end of the provincial highway system. His purpose was to win support for a highway project that would push northwest across the mountains and link up with the Alaska Highway, then under construction.

Although the opening of the Alcan route to Alaska would answer a need that had been felt for years, there was strong opinion in B.C. and Washington that a shorter route to Alaska was also feasible. Surveys showed that access to the Alcan road via central B.C. would save 570 miles compared with the route through Alberta.

Despite the fact that the proposed highway, subsequently named after Mr. Hart and formally dedicated last July, did not materialize at the time, the men from the south were impressed by what they saw and later the same year founded the PNTA.

As an international organization which has successfully matured, the PNTA provides a lesson in the folly of trying to stand alone. At a recent meeting one Canadian manufacturer complained it was impossible to sell anything but raw and semi-finished products to the U.S. The outcome was a resolution, backed to the hilt by U.S. members, opposing higher tariffs.

At this moment there are problems in sight affecting both northern B.C. and southeastern Alaska. Before any hasty decisions are made, it is to be hoped that the example set by the PNTA will be considered. The likelihood is that there are solutions which will benefit both parties a great deal, instead of one slightly.

I ASKED my night school class to give their one sentence explanations of the overwhelming Eisenhower victory in the U.S. elections. In a minute people called out these:

It was "time for a change." Ike got the women's vote, people were sick of Korea, too much corruption in government, too high taxes, and so on.

But one woman said "too many speeches by President Truman which lost votes for Stevenson." I think there was a good deal of truth in that one. It is always easy to be wise after the event. But it does seem to me that Stevenson would have had a slightly better chance had Mr. Truman kept completely out of the picture, and left the spotlight on the two men who were actually running.

MY OWN explanation is oversimplified, perhaps. It seems to me that Ike was personally the most likeable candidate of this century. Over half the people of the U.S. loved Roosevelt, but another fraction hated him, and hated his whole family. Nobody hates Ike, as yet. All the world knew that the Democrats really had only one thing against Ike—that is that he was not running on the Democratic ticket.

Apart from Eisenhower's immense personal popularity it is now clear that Stevenson was made to carry a load which was just too heavy for any candidate to bear. To understand the nature of the load you have to go way back to Roosevelt's first victory.

That smiling adventurer was not only a political experimenter and a true liberal—willing to try anything which might work—but he was also a machine politician. He took over a coalition of southern Reactionaries and northern bosses. He grafted on to the older Democratic party two new wings. He brought in organized labor, in a way it had never been brought in before. But he enlisted a whole army of New Dealers—all sorts and varieties of what Canadians call progressives or even leftists, but whom the Americans call "liberals."

You might say that Roosevelt, who was a giant in political stature, had feet of clay. Maybe he was realistic enough to know that he had to have feet of clay, to stand at all, in the actual world. Anyway his feet of clay were the old party machine bosses, and the party heelers generally. Roosevelt knew human nature well enough to accept the fact that most people are in politics for what they get out of it. Some get prestige, power, office. But contractors get contracts and millions of people get jobs.

Roosevelt turned a blind eye—deliberately as Nelson did at the famous naval battle—to this uglier side of politics. Indeed he was not above slick tricks himself in politics, for all the grandeur and nobility of most of his major efforts. Take for instance his attempt to "pack" the Supreme Court.

TRUMAN was not only half a machine politician, like Roosevelt. He was pretty well a 100 per cent machine made and machine minded politician himself. I think he will go down in history as a brave president, with an amazing courage to make snap decisions which turned out to be right. One was when he accepted the Communist challenge in Korea. Another was when he fired MacArthur.

Higher Production in Canada Forecast as Bright Future

By The Canadian Press

Canada's record national production is exceeding all estimates this year, but trade forecasters predict even bigger and better things next year.

The 1953 gross national product—sum total of all goods and services produced—is expected to exceed this year's output, now estimated at a peak $22,750,000,000. The original government forecast for 1952, made early this year, was $22,500,000,000.

Capital investment—at a peak $5,200,000,000 in 1952—is expected to go even higher in 1953.

Consumer spending, strong now after sagging in the first half of 1952, is likely to make new gains.

And 1953 exports to the United States, Canada's top customer, are expected to be buoyant, offsetting a less reassuring outlook for sales to other parts of the world.

Summing it all up, says Dr. O. J. Firestone, the trade department's economic adviser, "prospects for 1953 are for a continuation of a high level of economic activity and a gross national product exceeding that of 1952."

Dr. Firestone did some crystal-gazing when he spoke before the Montreal Institute of Investment Analysts recently. He mixed optimism with caution and with a touch of unpleasant realism—somewhere along the line, Canada's spectacular postwar expansion may lose momentum.

THE first sign, he says, will be on contractors' drawing boards. And some of those drawing boards are not so busy as they once were.

"... New large-scale resources development and industrial projects are not being planned on the same scale that we have become accustomed to in recent years," he notes.

"True, there are some major projects in the offing, such as the St. Lawrence seaway and the Bersimis River hydro project in eastern Quebec announced recently.

"Then, there will be new developments that we do not know about today. The point I want to make is that we cannot assume a continuous expansion of our economy at the rapid rate of the postwar years—at some future date the expansion may slow down.

"An advance indication of this slowing down—even ahead of anticipated capital expenditures which includes large outlays for projects already under way—might be a falling off in project planning."

Meanwhile, the more im-

ray ... Reflects and Reminisces

Truman promised Eisenhower he'd do his best to elect him. Instead, he did his best not to. And the unpleasant part of it is that the outgoing and incoming presidents must meet and shake hands—heartily and with smiles, of course.

The program director, at the Fourth Estate Frolic in Vancouver last week, asked the general question: "Can we laugh at ourselves? Millions find it impossible. But the fellow who can is singularly fortunate."

CULTURED TASTE We only discovered the other day that mice like to eat flowers, although that cannot be new to the seasoned householder. Local folk revel in floral riches both within and without. Blooms are made for beauty, not breakfast.

An Ontario paper takes a crack at what it calls "the growing tendency to regard pedestrians as trespassers on pavements." The day is coming when someone who goes on legs instead of wheels will make a test case. With the increasing rules and regulations, forbidding and permitting, allowing and denying, where do the fellows on foot come in? Rights? Where are they and what are they?

THAT CRAVING British grocers clamor for more cheese. Overseas the ration is an once a week. That's no ration. It's barely a temptation! And somehow, Britain has always seemed to regard Canada as the "cheesiest" land left on earth.

Enthusiastic Audience of 400 Acclaims Concert Series Artists

An attractive singer and an amusing accompanist, both of whom can add a great musical gift to their other attributes, last night took an audience of 400 around another pleasant turn of the Alaska Music Trail.

As soon as soprano Greta Menzel's appearance on the stage drew admiring exclamations, and pianist Thomas Mayer's wit drew laughs, it was obvious that the concert at the Civic Centre was going to be a success. But that initial reaction was only half of it.

From the first clear, ringing notes, it was apparent that Miss Menzel has the "silvery voice" which critics have acclaimed. Without subjecting it to any extraordinary tests for the sake of proving its versatility at the expense of the music, she went charmingly through a program of well-liked selections in Italian, German, French, Spanish and English.

Interspersed with these were entertaining remarks by Mr. Mayer, a gifted pianist in his own right, who described the background and meaning of the music about to be sung. As an introduction to "Vienna, City of my Dreams" by Stoltz, and "Tales from the Vienna Woods" by Johann Strauss, he explained:

"In Vienna everyone lives in coffee houses. You do not invite a person to dinner. You invite him to the coffee house. There you have coffee, two glasses of water, and more coffee."

But Miss Menzel, who is from Vienna, proved that the city is distinguished for other reasons. From the movingly sad strains of "Lasciate Mi Morire," a 17th century composition by Monteverdi, to the gay Spanish folk songs, she showed herself in complete understanding of the mood.

The quality of her singing was, however, the most striking feature. Her voice has a sweet bell-like tone which last night she varied with such skill that even the softest notes could be heard at the far end of the hall. Her rendition of "At Dawn" by Charles Wakefield Cadman was an instance of this.

At the close of the enjoyable evening a reception for the artists was held by members of the Civic Centre Concert Auxiliary.

Wounded Crane Dies After Medical Help

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—A wounded whooping crane, flown here from Canada in an effort to save its life, died of lung congestion here.

The big, rare bird had been shot, a wing and leg broken, when Ralph Steuk found it near Regina about the time the whoopers were starting their winter migration to south Texas.

The crane was flown to the San Antonio zoo by the Canadian Natural Wildlife Resources Bureau and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Dr. R. L. Shea, zoo veterinarian, amputated part of the broken wing and put a plastic cast on the broken leg. But he said the whooper had complications, including lung congestion.

Until lately, the crane was eating well on a diet of fish and boiled eggs. James L. Chism, curator of birds, said the wounds were healing well. But treatments failed to clear up the whooper's lungs.

Howard Dodgen, secretary of the Texas Game and Fish Commission, said at Austin that others of the vanishing species had arrived at the Arkansas wildlife refuge on the gulf coast and were doing well.

Increase Bus Fares

we can always notify the PUC which will act quickly."

Ald. Casey said he was in favor of the proposal when it was discussed in committee last week but "I think the company should offer something in return for our backing."

"As Ald. Gomez says, we are looking after the citizens' interests and I think we should have something concrete from the bus line."

It was stressed that council can not grant the increase, but will be asked only to agree to the proposal.

In the brief submitted to the PUC by city auditor Scott McLaren, he said the company should have a 10 per cent increase to operate city lines without loss.

Said Ald. Gomez: "I agree the company is entitled to a raise. I wouldn't want to see the bus service stopped, but I firmly believe we should have some agreement."

Alderman Ray McLean said he was in "complete disagreement" with increasing children's fare.

New Sewing Skills For Beginners

For beginners in home sewing, the first sewing lessons can often make a world of difference between future success or failure.

Most women first start to sew with their mothers on the family sewing machine. But, not until she gets her own machine, does the average woman take her sewing seriously.
After years of experience with the problems of beginners in home sewing, some sewing centres have evolved a new beginners' course called "Sewing Skills." It is planned to teach beginners what they want to learn most, right from the start—the skill to sew in a way that does not look homemade. The course of six lessons is given free to purchasers of a new sewing machine. It can be taken any time within a year after purchase.

One of the most important steps in sewing with professional finish is learning how to handle the machine. This is the first lesson in the course. Though many beginners can run a machine, few realize how much the well-made effect depends upon whether the machine is used properly in relation to the needs of the fabric, and the kind of seam or finish they are trying to achieve. Pointers here include correct needle, and thread size for different purposes, right stitch length, and proper tension.

Stitching methods to obtain perfect fit, dealt with in lesson two, are the next step to avoid the homemade look. How to make darts, tucks and gathers to follow the exact figure contour is stressed. Fashion details like shirring, corded trimming and scalloping are also part of this lesson. This kind of trim must be well done to give a dress a finely finished air.

ATTACHMENTS
Use of sewing machine attachments is covered in lesson three. If time is taken to learn how to insert and operate a buttonholer, the various kinds of hemmers, ruffler or edge-stitcher, sewing can become an enjoyable art instead of a chore. Fashion stitching, that is machine embroidery, without the use of any attachments, is the subject of lesson four. Skill in this art can make a dress truly original and individual. The rewarding aspect of this lesson is the discovery that so many of the delicate touches of hand embroidery can be done expertly on the machine with half the expenditure of time and effort.

Lesson five deals with methods of closing the skirt, bodice, neck or sleeve openings. Here is where careful workmanship counts for a great deal. The neatly set, invisible zipper is the sign of an expertly finished dress.
And what a contribution to appearance is made by the carefully turned hem! Lesson six deals with a variety of hem finishes. It also teaches the use of that boon to dressmakers, the blind hemmer. This attachment gives the same invisible result as laborious and expert hand hemming.

After mastering the use of the sewing machine in the basic sewing skills, the beginner is ready to begin her first course in home dressmaking with greater confidence. There is a good chance that her first dress will be a success. After that, she is launched on her lifetime home sewing career.

Damage Claim Dismissed by County Court

Attempt by a city woman to obtain damage from a tenant was dismissed with costs by Judge W. O. Fulton in County Court Monday, ending a hearing which occupied two days.
Mrs. Assemia Pavlikis sought $932.55 from Robert K. Murdock for alleged damage to her home and furnishings at 1142 Park Avenue.

A. Bruce Brown, who appeared on behalf of Mr. Murdock, called nearly a dozen witnesses during the hearing.
Mr. Murdock lived in the home from January, 1951, to March of this year.

Victory Was Guaranteed But Muzzy Muffed It
Here is another illustration of the case where the responder makes his decision through judgment rather than "book-learning."

Mr. Masters had three possible bids after his partner opened the bidding with one club. These were "three clubs," "two no-trump" and "one spade."
Mr. Masters considered "three clubs" as the worst of the lot, because it is vague, because it shuts out several rounds of bidding and it reduces the chance of getting into a four spade contract.

He decided against two no-trump because, while he had the necessary strength (about the equal of an opening bid), he lacked good intermediate cards. "One spade" was the final (and best) choice—a waiting bid, which left the way open for any final contract, depending on the nature of partner's rebid.

Against the final contract of three no-trump, Mr. Champion led the jack of hearts which was won by the king in dummy. After looking the hand over briefly, Mr. Muzzy pulled a club from the board and finessed the ten, losing to the lone queen. Since he needed at least two club tricks, he now had no chance for his contract.

Mr. Muzzy's first round club finesse was not just bad luck. It was an error. He had a play available which would guarantee him two club tricks no matter how the adverse clubs were divided. And since he had ample protection in the other three suits, it was by no means necessary for him to win the first two clubs. He could win ANY two club tricks.

His play was to lead a club and go up with the ace. This would protect against any club break including all five in either opponent's hand. Take the worst possible break, for example—all five in Mr. Abel's hand. The ace would win the first trick. A small club to the jack would knock out the queen. The next club would come from the board, toward Mr. Muzzy's 10, and Mr. Abel could win with his king or not. There would be no way for him to prevent the 10 from winning ultimately.

Handicapped Sportsmen Show Courage

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON—Two young British sportsmen have proved that adversity and crushing odds can be overcome by courage and determination.

The lads are 20-year-old John Shepherd, a product of London's playing fields stricken with infantile paralysis 18 months ago, and a New Zealander, 23-year-old Stuart Craig, totally blind.

Shepherd, whose one aim was to become a "big time" soccer player, was put out of action by polio six months after he had been signed as an amateur by the Millwall Club of the English League, third division.

Medical specialists shattered his hopes with the bad news he would walk with a permanent limp and that his active playing days were ended.

But Shepherd refused to accept the verdict. After a period of convalescence he went into secret training. He was up early every morning for special settling-up exercises, following them with light road work and then a session of ball dribbling and shooting.

Four months later he reported back to Millwall and surprised manager Charles Hewitt, by passing all the preliminary tests. He celebrated his return to active competition by scoring three goals for Millwall reserves against Portsmouth.

After further training, he was assigned to the regular centre-forward spot with the first team. This time he scored all of his club's goals in a 4-1 victory over Leyton Orient. What's more, three of the goals were scored with his left foot, which for a spell was paralyzed.

At the end of the game manager Hewitt ran on to the field and walked off with an arm around the excited player's shoulder as the crowd roared its acclaim.

BLINDED IN KOREA

Stuart, blinded on Easter Saturday last year while serving with the Commonwealth Division in Korea, won his fame at St. Dunstan's, training centre for the blind near Brighton. He is the first Korean casualty to train there.

Between courses in learning Braille and accustoming himself to his new mode of life, Craig spent his spare time trying to readjust himself to his favorite sports.

Then came the training centre's annual field day and Craig entered several events.

Stuart won the 70-yard event for the totally blind, returning a time of 8.2 seconds. In the standing long jump he took first prize with a leap of 8½ feet and also scored point in the five-mile walk.

The New Zealander wound up far ahead of the other competitors and was awarded the accolade of "St. Dunstan's Sportsman of the Year."

NET VICTORY—Umpire Cliff Roseborough signals a Winnipeg Blue Bombers touchdown a second before the ball slips from the hands of Lorne Benson (99) in the Western Interprovincial Union playoff game at Winnipeg. Edmonton Eskimos roared back from a first half defeat to down Winnipeg 18-12. Eskies won the third game in the best-of-three series today for the right to represent the west in the Grey Cup final. THE ALLEYS Hazel McLeod, Lois Keays Split Honors

Lois Keays set a blistering pace in the ladies' five-pin bowling games this week when she won two of three games, together games of 231, 262 and 244 for a total of 737.

Peggy Thompson tried desperately to knock over Hazel's second-game 312-count when she finished with a 302-count in her third game for a three-game total of 681.

Toilers, with 920, had high game and McKay's scored high three of 2,503.

SPORTS ROUND-UP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (CP)—The time is approaching when Baseball Commissioner Ford C. Frick will have to make a decision on the running fight between Fred Saigh, aged president of the Cardinals, and Bill Veeck, man who thinks every night is hallowe'en.

of promoting such players to the Browns, but just claims them for the h... of it.

That is only one of the petty annoyances to which Saigh feels he has been subjected since Veeck gained control of the Browns and became the Cardinals' landlord at Sportsman's Park.

Unless Frick does take a firm hand, the Cardinals could in time be forced out of St. Louis and the entire structure of the major leagues be jeopardized.

Wally Blasts Goals for Ranger Win

NEW YORK (CP)—Wally Hergeheimer blasted home four goals last night to lead the Brooklyn New York Rangers to a 5-1 victory over Chicago Blackhawks in a bruising National Hockey League game.

TORONTO (CP)—A goldeye fish of some magnitude has been caught at Sandy Lake in western Ontario near the Manitoba boundary, the Ontario Fish and Forests Department announced. The famed "Winnipeg" now are caught in several lakes.

Reindeer Herds Planned for Northern Newfoundland Coast

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A big-antlered, hardy animal which easterners know only as a picture on a Christmas card may soon be roaming the wind-swept barrens of Labrador.

A local group planning to introduce reindeer to Newfoundland's northern dependency visualize herds running into the thousands as raw material for a profitable industry in hides and meat.

An earlier attempt to get the species started in Newfoundland ran afoul of poachers. Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, medical pioneer on the ice-jammed north coast, brought a herd of 250 domesticated reindeer from Lapland in 1908.

The herd found the terrain and food supplies to its liking and multiplied to 1,200 in four years. But indiscriminate slaughter during the First World War decimated their numbers and the remainder was turned over to the Canadian government.

The area planned for the new attempt is north of Lake Melville and might extend to the extreme limits of population along the coast. Reindeer like sub-arctic climate and vegetation and can survive without any kind of shelter.

TO BE TAMED

Unlike moose, reindeer will not be treated as game. They'll be a domesticated animal providing meat and hides and the plan is to introduce privately-owned herds which will be expected to support themselves on the near-limitless stretches of summer foliage and reindeer moss on the northern barrens.

The proposal also includes plans for training Labrador Eskimos as herdsman and giving them a chance to establish herds of their own.

The scheme's backers say well-established markets for reindeer meat already exist in Canada and Great Britain and they look also to the United States market when the foot-and-mouth ban is removed.

Hobby Yields Collector 47 Scrapbooks

TRURO, N.S. — They call Syd Parker a master clipper and there aren't many who will dispute the claim.

Mr. Parker makes scrapbooks his hobby and every minute of his spare time is spent collecting, tabulating the pasting in the clips.

At the moment he has 47 books—some of them tip the scales at 35 pounds—and five more are in preparation.

They cover all subjects, from people to places and events. He has special books on the Second World War, the Canadian visit of the Queen, then Princess Elizabeth, and newspaper cartoons.

A native of Nine Mile River, N.S., Mr. Parker is an author and poet. He has broadcast his own verse on maritime radio stations and is especially known for his dramatic narrative verse on loggers and logging camps.

Coarse Fish Palatable; Good for Food

TORONTO — Millions of pounds of fish in Ontario waters are being allowed to die of old age, the department of lands and forests said recently in a bulletin.

Much of this poundage is made up of what are commonly called coarse fish—suckers, alewives, sea lampreys, carp and a small deep-water herring. But the flesh of these fish, the department says, is acutely palatable and can be put to good use as food.

Smelts, a border-line fish, have been marketed successfully during past years. In 1951, the research division of the department found some success selling mullet (sucker) fillets.

Farmer Resumes Search for Missing Sister on West Coast

CALGARY — District farmer Don L. Cavanaugh, 44, plans to make a fourth trip to the west coast this fall in an effort to clear up the mystery surrounding the disappearance of his sister.

The woman, Mrs. Olive Josephine Law, 42, took the midnight boat from Victoria to Vancouver June 13, 1951, and was never reported seen again.

Her brother believes she may be a victim of amnesia or foul play. She was carrying about $2,000 worth of jewelry when she vanished.

Mr. Cavanaugh already has spent eight weeks at the west coast, supplementing police investigation with his own private probe. He has talked to about 50 friends of his sister—none of whom he ever met before.

As soon as he had harvested his 1952 crop, he started making preparations again to resume his search. He is convinced that his sister is still alive. This time he plans to search for a month.

One ray of hope he will investigate is the report that a Vancouver bus driver believes Mrs. Law used to be a regular passenger on his bus.

Mrs. Law is 5 feet 3 inches tall, slight of build and weighs about 120 pounds. She has steel-gray hair, blue eyes, a burn scar on her right shoulder and a fair complexion.

Newsman Tops in Aviation Win Awards In Writing

OTTAWA—Three newspapermen and a Toronto magazine editor have been named top winners in the first annual Aviation Writers Contest for Canadian writers.

The contest is sponsored by the Canadian Branch of the Aviation Writers Association and the Air Industries and Transport Association of Canada. Prizes totalling $1,200 are given to encourage more complete and accurate aviation reporting in this country.

In addition to cash awards each winner receives a plaque with a duplicate going to the publication in which winning articles appeared. Awards will be made at a special luncheon at the Seignior Club, Montebello, Quebec, on Nov. 11 during the annual convention of AITA.

Alan Kent of the Toronto Telegram received highest marks in the daily newspaper section for a series of articles on jet fighter developments at A. V. Roe Canada Limited, Toronto.

James Hornick came second for his "accurate and complete" coverage of many aviation events in the Toronto Globe and Mail. Sir William Hildred of the International Air Transport Association and A/V/M Alan Fetter of the International Civil Aviation Organization were judges of this section.

These judges reported "Mrs. Dorothy Rungeling of Welland and the Welland and Port Colborne Evening Tribune deserve special mention for effective continuous and beneficial promotion of flying in that territory."

WEST COAST WRITER

Robert Francis, Vancouver writer, was a winner in the Sunday supplement and weekly newspaper section. His winning article "Heyday for Helicopters" appeared in Toronto Saturday Night and described the part these machines are playing in the development of Canada's northland.

Joek Carroll, Toronto Bureau Chief of Weekend Picture Magazine, was second for a Korea-dated story on the RCAF's Omar Levesque, first Commonwealth fighter pilot to shoot down a Russian-built Mig-15 fighter.

G. W.G. McConachie, president of Air Industries and Transport Association, was judge for this section.

Ronald A. Keith, editor of Canadian Aviation Magazine, Toronto, won top honors in the technical and trade publications field. The judge, R. J. Churchill, executive editor of the London Free Press and the president of the Managing Editors' Association, made special mention of Mr. Keith's unbiased editorials on fighter plane production at A. V. Roe, when that company was receiving national criticism for lack of defence output.

Ross Willmot, public relations officer for A. V. Roe, was second for articles written in the company publication, "Jet Age."

Andre Saint-Pierre, aviation writer of the Montreal La Presse was winner in the French language section, which was judged by Herve Major, president of Canadian Press.

Insurance Delinquents to Get Letters From Health Minister

VICTORIA (CP)—Health and Welfare Minister Eric Martin is sending letters to all hospital insurance delinquents explaining several aspects of the plan and advising them to obtain coverage.

Described as a personal message from the minister, the letter reads:

"Are you aware that payment of the enclosed hospital insurance billing gives you unlimited, complete, and all-inclusive public ward accommodation in any public hospital in British Columbia, should you or your family require hospitalization?"

"Do you realize that this means you get protection against high hospital bills (some of which have amounted to over $7,000) for less than 11 cents a day?"

NEW PLAN

The minister then goes on to explain the Social Credit government's recent changes in hospital insurance.

"These changes are part of a new plan designed in your interests. Your enclosed billing is more than a bill which should be paid. It is your peace of mind in the event that you may have to go to hospital."

"It is your protection against

Canada's First Atom Spy to Go Free

By Philip Clarke
LONDON (AP)—The western world's first atom spy is due for release from jail in a few weeks. Britain doesn't know what to do about him.

When Dr. Alan Nunn May, an admitted Communist, gets out he'll be freer to move around than an ordinary tourist in Britain. Foreigners here must keep police posted on their whereabouts.

The shy little 41-year-old scientist has never publicly repented for passing vital atomic secrets to Russia. A former scientific worker in Canada, he was arrested as a result of Canada's 1946 spy probe.

Under British judicial custom—for spy or petty thief—May is entitled to time off for good behavior. This means his 10-year sentence will be cut to 6½ years—setting him free in December.

The Home Office says only that May "probably will be released in December." What embarrasses most Britons is that May got off with a lighter sentence than is sometimes handed out for armed robbery.

The specific charge against May was communicating official secrets to an unknown person which "might be useful to an enemy."

It was under the same charge that the world's most notorious atom spy, Dr. Klaus Fuchs, was given a 14-year sentence four years later.

British officials explain that under British law there was no way to charge either May or Fuchs with high treason, punishable by death.

May, a brilliant physicist, joined Britain's super-secret atomic program in April, 1942.

In January, 1943, he went to Canada to work in the Canadian-British-U.S. atomic program. He made four trips to the Chicago atomic laboratory in 1944 and learned some of the steps that led to construction of the first atom bomb.

May had returned to England in September, 1945, to take a teaching job at King's College in London when a young Soviet embassy clerk at the Russian embassy in Ottawa, Igor Gouzenko, went over to the west, carrying with him many secret Soviet documents. The documents proved May's complicity in an amazing Russian plot to steal the atomic secrets.

The Soviet records showed that May got at least $700 and two bottles of whisky for his services.

London's conservative Sunday Dispatch, in a recent editorial pointed up Britain's dilemma over the May case. The newspaper asked:

"Can we afford, in the interests of this country which he betrayed, to release this Communist atom scientist?"

"It is not impossible for men to get out of this country secretly and to cross the Iron Curtain. So why give him the opportunity?"

"Ten years is little enough for the grievous injury that he did to the Democratic cause. Let him serve it in full. And in the next three and a half years the world situation may change greatly."

City Council to Seek New Agreement Electric Power Supply

City Council has been authorized to start negotiations with the B.C. Power Commission and the B.C. Power Company regarding signing a new agreement to supply power to this city.

The council unanimously endorsed a motion at a meeting last night that council be authorized to contact both companies immediately.

Churchill's Tories Win Confidence

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill's Conservatives Tuesday night easily defeated a Labor motion of non-confidence in his government.

It was the first test of strength in the new session of parliament.

The division was 313 to 279. Conservatives have a normal margin of only 16 seats in the 625-member House of Commons.

In presenting the challenge Monday, former foreign secretary Herbert Morrison had charged the government lacked a strong enough economic policy to withstand the shock of a possible "world slump."

Statehood Likely Says Alaska Head

PORTLAND, Ore. (CP)—Gov. Ernest Gruening of Alaska said here today he believes statehood for his territory finally will materialize in the 83rd Congress.

Gruening told reporters he doubts whether the change of administrations will change the statehood situation much. Leaders of both parties have approved the statehood program, he said.

Gruening also said the next Congress probably will approve legislation to enable the Aluminum Company of America to acquire enough land to build its proposed aluminum plant near Skagway.

Special Fares for Students, Teachers Announced by CPR

VANCOUVER—Special steamship and rail fares for students and teachers only, who will be travelling in the Christmas and New Year holiday periods, will be made available by the Canadian Pacific Railway, it has been announced by H. C. James, general passenger agent here.

Special, reduced round-trip fares will prevail in the company's British Columbia Coast Steamship service between Vancouver and Vancouver Island Gulf Island ports, Seattle, Wash., and Westview, and between rail points in Canada.

Holiday fares for properly-accredited students and teachers will be in effect from Monday, Dec. 1, to 12:00 noon, Thursday, Jan. 1, 1953, inclusive, for "going" portion of a trip, while the return trip limit is set at 12:00 midnight, Sunday, Jan. 25.

To take advantage of special fares, students and teachers will be required to present to ticket agents certificates of eligibility which can be obtained from provincial school board officials and the principals of local schools.

Similar Christmas and New Year holiday fares for students and teachers only are available on Canadian Pacific rail lines between points in Canada, and the same time limits and conditions prevail.

In Home Furnishing

Knowledge of Design Essential

Understanding of the principles of design—of form, function, balance, proportion and harmony—is essential for the proper selection of furniture, patterns, textures and colors for the home.

Eileen Cross, Director of Home Economics for the Department of Extension, University of British Columbia, makes that clear in her lectures and talks on the principles of decoration.

Miss Cross has had a wide experience in such matters and her courses at the department of extension have helped many British Columbians to make their homes better places in which to live.

One of the major points Miss Cross emphasizes when advising on decoration is the proper use of line.

Straight lines in general suggest order, strength and a degree of masculinity. Used vertically, straight lines suggest height and formality. Horizontal straight lines are less severe than vertical lines and will often give a feeling of relaxation. They can be used effectively to decrease the feeling of height.

Combined vertical and horizontal lines are powerful, often energetic. Plaid designs express strength but probably should be used in moderation to avoid confusion.

Slanting lines lead the eye in the direction of the slant and may be used successfully to emphasize points of interest in a room.

Zigzag lines, often formed by indiscriminate use of scatter rugs, create confusion.

Curved lines are flowing lines and introduce a feeling of gracefulness and femininity. They suggest freedom, relaxation, and carefree gaiety. They must be used with discretion to avoid monotony.

Turkey Not Only For Special Occasions—Have It Any Time

Roast turkey, brown as a nut and glistening in its own rich juice, is no longer a delicacy exclusive for Thanksgiving or Christmas. Plump, mature turkeys are now on the market in heavy supply, so make your next Sunday dinner festive with roast turkey—the rest of the "clan" will probably want to join you, too.

When estimating the amount of turkey to buy, allow three quarters to one pound, undrawn weight, that is, for each serving. Here are some suggestions from the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture on how to prepare the bird:

Clean it thoroughly and wipe inside and out with a clean cloth, or wash in running water; do not allow it to soak. If the bird is frozen, thaw completely before cooking. It can be defrosted at room temperature, allowing about two hours per pound, or in the refrigerator, allowing about six hours per pound. Once poultry is thawed, it is very perishable, so cook it as soon as possible.

Rub the inside of the bird with salt, then fill loosely with a favorite dressing. Close the opening and truss, that is, tie the wings and legs close to the body to make the bird more compact.

The bird may be roasted breast down on a rack or crossed skewers in an uncovered pan, turning on its back the last hour of cooking for even browning. However, if the turkey is large and difficult to turn, you can roast it breast side up. Place a piece of cheesecloth dipped in melted fat on top of the bird during roasting to keep it moist, or the bird may be roasted in metal foil, parchment or brown paper. No water should be added.

Roast turkey in a 300 degree Fahrenheit oven allowing twenty to twenty-five minutes per pound, undrawn weight. To test for doneness, run a metal skewer or a long fork into the thick part of the breast or thigh. When it is done, the meat is tender and the juice does not show a reddish tinge.

GIBLET GRAVY—If you have trouble making smooth, colorful gravy, follow these instructions. They say that you are sure to win complimentary praises. To make the gravy, allow two tablespoons of turkey fat for each cup of gravy desired. If you cannot judge the amount pour the drippings from the roasting pan, measure the required amount of fat, and pour back into the roasting pan.

Add an equal amount of flour, that is, for two tablespoons of fat add two tablespoons of flour and blend well. Cook until the flour becomes browned but not burned. Remove from the heat and add one cup of cool or lukewarm liquid—the water that the giblets were simmered in may be used for this, or you may prefer to add milk or water. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Continue cooking for about five minutes, then season with salt and pepper to taste and add cooked, chopped giblets. If the gravy is too thick it may be thinned with additional hot liquid. Be sure to serve it piping hot.

Beer Judges Offered Finest British Ales

LONDON (CP)—For 28 special guests at this month's (November) Brewers' and Allied Traders' Exhibition in London there will be beer galore to generate several lost week-ends.

They will be offered more than 60,000 pints of Britain's best beer and some 16,000 bottles of the country's finest ale. But there's a catch in it.

They will smell it, look at it and taste it, but that's all.

The 28 men will be engaged on a special task. They are Britain's foremost judges of beer and their job will be to decide on championship brews in several beer competitions.

During the three-days' exhibition the judges will examine thousands of gallons of beer but by a technique they have developed their sensitive palates will be as fresh at the close of the tests as when they began.

Lower Food Prices Help Living Cost

OTTAWA (CP)—A slight decline in Canadian living costs in September was helped mainly by lower food prices.

The new consumer price index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, dropped one-tenth of a point to 116.0 from 116.1, cancelling out a similar-sized increase in August.

The old cost-of-living index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, declined by 1.5 points to 185.0 from 186.5 for its third successive monthly decline.

The peak in living costs was reached last December, measured as 118.2 on the new index and 191.5 on the old.

The decreases in food prices were mainly in beef, lamb and potatoes. Coupled with lower prices for canned tomatoes, onions and cooked meats they offset increases for grapefruit and oranges; lettuce and fresh tomatoes and fresh pork.

Other price decreases in September: Men's wool underwear, women's coats, children's wear, textiles, soap and floor coverings. Higher prices were paid for coal, fuel oil and ice, street-car fares, house repairs and mortgage interest rates.

The Statistics Bureau plans to publish both the old and the new indexes simultaneously for the next six months before the old index is discarded.

On the wholesale scene, the bureau found prices for industrial items declining, but not as rapidly as in previous months. Farm prices reversed their previous downward trend for a slight increase. Indexes for both of these are based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

The index for 30 industrial materials declined by 1.6 points to 238.1 on Oct. 31 from 239.7 on Sept. 26. The farm products index climbed 2.9 points to 222.8 from 219.9.

Ruth Parsons
Baby Counsellor
Heinz Home Institute

Dear Miss Parsons: I would like to thank Heinz for the guidance I have received in raising my baby. Our son Robert is just 4 1/2 months old but my doctor says his development is more like a six months child. He was started on Heinz Cereals and now has graduated to Heinz Strained Foods. We have you to thank for a great deal of his rapid progress. Like many other new mothers I had the vaguest idea about raising and feeding a new infant but your informative literature has made meal time a happy occasion in our house. Happy healthy babies are a blessing to the home and a constant joy to their parents.

When Canadian women downright pleased with product they have a great custom of saying "Thank you to the maker." That is why it receives so many hundreds of letters from mothers across the country like the one shown here. It's sincere, unstinted praise for Heinz Baby Foods. Feed your baby digestible, non-flavour Heinz Pre-Cooked Cereals, available in both 4-oz. and 8-oz. tins. Later Heinz Strained Baby Food and Junior Foods will help the pile up.

SPECIAL OFFER—New Baby Tumbler, an one-piece spillproof cup specially designed for the Regular 4 1/2 oz. value for only 25c and an 8-oz. Heinz Baby Food or 3 Heinz Cereal tins. Ask for Pink or Blue. Write H. J. Heinz Company at Ltd., Dept. S.F., Leamington, Ontario, State colour.

Office Building Towers Over Ancient Grave of Pioneer

TORONTO (AP)—There is a piece of ground in the heart of the city un-der the giant commercial buildings that surround it. It is 12 by 14 feet, is do-veloped by the Bank of Com-merce, and is the tallest building in the city. It is the site of the grave of a girl, Stella, daughter of one of the city's pioneers, John Van-zant, who came from New York in 1773.

was observed. A protective shed was built over the grave and construction went on around the shed. Mrs. Gerald Johnson of Toron-to, a descendant of John Van-zant, knows something of the family legend. The pioneer was of Dutch extraction and his family helped found New Am-sterdam on the Hudson River. He arrived when Toronto was a fur-trading post. Later he es-tablished a tannery at the cor-ner of the present Adelaide and Yonge Streets some 10 years be-fore the future town plot of York was surveyed. Actual settlement of the area was delayed until 1793 so John Vanzant was one of the first to live there. York later became part of Toronto. The Vanzants left Toronto and returned to the United States when the Mackenzie rebellion broke out in 1837. Mrs. Johnson believes the tannery and Van-zant's residence a block away may have passed into the hands of Jesse Ketchum, philanthro-pist and reformer. The family returned to Canada about 1850 and some of its members settled in the Markham district.

Fighting Girls Wear Airmen's Wings, Range Foreign Guns

For the first time in its long history Britain is giving the coveted wings of the Royal Air Force to women pilots and sending girl gunners overseas to "man" front line defenses.

TOP: Pilot Officer Jean L. Bird of the Women's Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, first woman to be given the flyers' wings, proudly wears them on her chest at the presentation. Jean has more than 3,000 flying hours, accumulated in 90 different types of aircraft, to her credit.

LEFT (from left to right): Lance-Corporal Grieg and Privates Bull and Taylor of the Women's Royal Army Corps and the 46th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regiment, the only regular "mixed" regiment in the British Army. The "46th Heavy" is being sent to Gibraltar where its girl gunners will—as shown in picture and as women so gallantly did in Britain in the last war—operate predictors and supply ranges to the guns which will be fired by men.

Judgment Reserved

VANCOUVER (AP)—Judgment was reserved here by Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson in an application to strike out certain paragraphs from the defence in the pre-lection libel suit of Gordon S. Wismer.

Mr. Wismer was attorney-general of British Columbia in the Coalition government defeated there. He alleges he was libelled as attorney-general.

He is suing Maclean-Hunter Publications Co. Ltd., Toronto, and Blair Fraser, Ottawa journal-ist, for unstated damages for libel alleged to have been con-tained in the Feb. 15 issue of the magazine. The article was headed "Back Stage at Ottawa," and sub-titled "B.C. Coalition Commits Suicide." It was published following a break-up of Coalition in late January.

Application to have the para-graphs struck out was made by T. G. Norris, counsel for Mr. Wismer. He said that Mr. Wismer should not have to go to court to justify his whole life.

The pleadings should be re-stricted to the exact charges made by Mr. Wismer and the defence "so that a man's whole life is not gone into."

Mr. Norris said another para-graph in the defence would re-quire Mr. Wismer to prove malice against the defendants whereas the law imposed no obligation on the defendant to disprove malice.

Counsel also objected to a de-fence set up by Mr. Fraser that he was employed by the defend-ant company and had written and submitted the article to his employer.

MONTREAL, November 13th—Who ever said that women can't agree on anything? I've talked it over with dozens of my friends, and we've all come to the same conclusion. There's nothing quite like SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR to make wonderful, tender, cakes. No mix, no other flour, can give such superb cake results. It's quite logical too. Swans Down is especially made for better cake baking. It is milled from the finest of soft winter wheat, then sifted again and again until 37 times as fine as ordinary flour. Try Swans Down the next time you bake a cake... and see if you don't agree with all the rest of us, who have discovered what an excellent Swans Down makes in cake baking.

Get Them Both... convenience and extra protection... when you use DELUXE BONNET DE LUXE MARGARINE.

It comes in golden-yellow quarter pounds, each wrapped individually in pure aluminum foil with a soft parchment lining that seals in Blue Bonnet's creamy-soft "flavor"—seals out ice box odors. And Blue Bonnet's "De Luxe" quarter pounds are convenient. No scooping—no slicing or re-slicing. Just unwrap what you need and serve. Be sure, you can forget your measuring cup when you're cooking with De Luxe Blue Bonnet. The chart on the package shows exactly where to cut for recipes.

Year Baby's Different in many endearing ways.

But I'm sure that in one way, he'll be just like other babies. He'll love HEINZ BABY FOODS. And that's a tendency you can encourage, mother, because Heinz Strained Baby Foods are good for babies. They're pre-cooked in Heinz stainless steel kitchens, so all you have to do is take them from the tin, warm them up and serve. They're wholesome and appetizing... meat food products, soups, vegetables and desserts—all expertly blended to give baby extra nourishment. And when baby is a little older, he'll need HEINZ JUNIOR FOODS to help build strong bones and a sturdy little body. So next time you're shopping—ask your dealer for Heinz Baby and Junior Foods.

Divorcees' Club Great Success in Sweden

By EINAR PRAVITZ STOCKHOLM (AP)—About a year ago a Stockholm merchant got an idea—why not start a club for divorced persons? Himself divorced, he had much experience of the loneliness that results after severance of marital ties and most of the contacts any couple holds in common. There were many persons, both men and women, in the same predicament who rallied to help him with his project.

'Millionaire Cruises Today Only Use for Zeppelin Ships

By HANS NEUERBOURG FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany (AP) Dr. Hugo Eckener, who built most of the zeppelins, thinks the only future left for new ones is as novelty airships for "millionaire cruises."

"Zeppelin flight is a wonderful experience which cannot be matched by other craft," said the 84-year-old former commander of the Graf Zeppelin. "Because of this, a world dirigible tour might have a future."

"It would be wonderful, but expensive, a round-the-world ticket would cost about $30,000. But I believe this is the only zeppelin project which could be realized. Otherwise, the day of the zeppelin is definitely past."

Eckener was the first zeppelin pilot to cross the Atlantic in a non-stop flight from east to west. He commanded Germany's ZR III in 1924 when it was flown to America as war reparations. It later became known as the "Los Angeles."

Thirteen years later Germany stopped building zeppelins after the May 6, 1937, tragedy at Lakehurst, N.J., when the Hindenburg was destroyed by fire and explosion which killed 36 of its 97 passengers.

Recently two German experts were reported to have drawn plans for the construction of new zeppelins to be used in a future German airline. The two are former zeppelin captain Max Pruess and Rudolf Sauter, a dirigible engineer.

"Sauter visited me several times and showed me his plans," Eckener said.

"I told him he had my blessing but that I do not want to have anything to do with it. Today, a zeppelin would not have a chance against an airplane."

"Imagine the expense: the Hindenburg cost 10,000,000 reichsmarks. Today, a zeppelin would cost 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 marks ($5,950,000 to $7,140,000) because of higher construction costs. It would have to be filled with helium which is not cheap either. Then a dock would have to be built because the old one here was destroyed in allied air raids during the last war. Such a dock would cost at least 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 marks ($3,570,000 to $4,760,000)."

Dr. Eckener said he had read about Italian plans to build a jet-propelled dirigible.

"That's impossible," he said. "I just can't believe it. The surface resistance is too great. The maximum speed of a dirigible is 100 miles per hour even with the most powerful engines. Besides it would have to carry so much fuel that there would be no room left for passengers."

England Uses Sleeping Pills

LONDON (CP)—A team of doctors investigating increased consumption of barbiturate drugs in Britain reports that of 17,000 national health prescriptions recently analyzed, nine per cent were for barbiturates.

Consumption of barbiturate drugs—there are about 1,000, 40 of which are used medically—has soared since 1939. In 1949, 280 deaths were attributed to their use. About half of the deaths were due to deliberate overdosing.

It is reckoned that 78,000 pounds of barbiturate drugs were produced in 1949, sufficient for 526,500,000 prescriptions at the usual rate of one

Duke of Windsor Bosses Workers at Country Home

By GODFREY ANDERSON

GIF-SUR-YVETTE, France (AP)—The Duke of Windsor, in shirtsleeves and wearing a pair of business-like ski boots, is working with blue-overalled French workmen from this village in preparing the new country home he will occupy next spring.

From time to time he steps in to give orders in French to the masons and the gardeners. When help is needed, he is ready to lend a hand himself. Two dogs keep close to his heels. The Duke has rented the old watermill and the pink-tiled house which stands beside it from French painter Adrien Drian. He is having extensive alterations made to its half-dozen rooms. Changes are being made in the studio-windowed salon and library. Modern bathrooms are being installed. Central heating will add warmth to log fires in the outside chimney places.

Outside, flowers are being planted in freshly-dug beds where a huge weeping willow overhangs a tiny bubbling stream.

A mile away in the village of Gif, women launder their clothes in the stream, as they have done for centuries.

The local mayor has already been to call and a government engineer was sent to see that the Windsor week-end home—the Moulin Aubert—would not suffer if the river burst its banks in winter.

Gif, which now has a little more than 2,000 inhabitants, has other new residents coming besides the Windsors. Several huge blocks of mauve-colored apartments are nearing completion at the other end of the village. They will soon be occupied by workers at the new French atomic research station of Saclay, whose atomic pile is only a mile or two beyond the top of the steep wooded slope which backs the Windsor property. Every fine day he drives out 25 miles from Paris in his Buick station wagon to work on the 200-year-old millhouse he is converting into a week-end hide-out for himself and the Duchess when in France. The Duchess seldom comes with him but she is known to be taking a keen interest in the plans for furnishing the house when that stage is reached.

When the hands point up... the excitement starts!
