Damage Actions Settled Here Out of Court

Three damage actions were settled here this week following arrival of Mr. Justice J. V. Clynne for a special sitting of the Supreme Court.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lloy of Prince Rupert sought return of a $2,000 deposit on sale of property in Soan, B.C., from James Stark of Victoria. The claim was settled out of court.

J. T. Harvey appeared on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Lloy and John McConnell of Victoria for Mr. Stark.

Western Uranium Mines, represented by Gordon S. Wismer, QC, former provincial attorney-general, and Don Williamson of Victoria, agreed to pay Little & Jackson, Terrace contracting firm, $1,000.

The contractors sought damages for alleged breach of contract regarding use of a bulldozer.

Thomas W. Brown, QC, appeared on behalf of the Terrace firm. Mr. Brown also appeared on behalf of Mrs. Jean McCook of Prince Rupert, who was awarded $1,350 damages for head injuries suffered when the taxi in which she was riding was in collision with a construction firm truck here last January 10.

Doug Hogarth appeared on behalf of Wood & McClay, and Hugo Ray, Vancouver lawyer, acted for Ivan McGahn and 99 Taxi.

Sid Anderson, Radio Pioneer Dies in South

One of the first persons to operate an amateur radio station in the province—and Canada—and a pioneer in Prince Rupert radio development died yesterday in a Vancouver hospital.

He was 46-year-old Sidney John Anderson who came to the city with his parents while still a baby. He was born in Anacortes, Washington.

Mr. Anderson was one of the original founders of the first radio station here with F. E. Batt, N. B. Kinslore, A. G. Bartlett and Clarence Insulander, who set up CFRP in 1938.

He was the radio station engineer continuously until last April when he became ill. For the last 10 years the radio station has been operated by CBC.

Following reorganization of the Elks Lodge here last year, Mr. Anderson became its secretary.

Besides his wife Viola, he is survived by two children, Jean and Linda; his mother, Mrs. P. W. Anderson of the city, and a brother, Wallace, in Vancouver. His father predeceased him several years ago.

After taking ill in April, Mr. Anderson was transferred to Pearson Memorial Sanatorium in Vancouver in June. His mother and wife flew to Vancouver today to look after funeral arrangements. He will be buried in Vancouver, date of funeral to be announced.

Chambers of Commerce Hold Annual Convention
 Special to The Daily News

VANCOUVER — A prominent Prince Rupert lawyer, J. T. Harvey, today was elected second vice-president of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce.

A director during the past year, Mr. Harvey was unable to attend sessions of the first annual meeting here yesterday and today, because of pressure of business.

Art Nickerson of Prince Rupert, president of the Associated Boards of Trade of Central B.C., and Frank Dockrill of Telkwa, also directors of the B.C. Chamber, represented northern B.C. at the convention.

Names of other officers elected for the ensuing year were not available at press time.

In an address to delegates, Dr. C. H. Wright of Trail said British Columbia's economy is heading into a critical period of transition.

"The situation is fraught with dangers from the basic and secondary industries," he told the 90 delegates from 29 cities throughout the province.

DIFFICULT YEAR
 Dr. Wright said that 1952 had been a difficult year for basic industry, especially coal, lumber and fishing and, despite reductions in production of the basic industry, retail sales this year are up about eight per cent.

The Highway Committee said reports of the provincial public works department do not at present show the exact picture of highway expenditures but claimed that government expenditures going toward highway construction "is steadily increasing."

A new education film telling how Canada's business system operates was viewed by delegates. The film illustrated roles played by labor, management, capital, profits and the consumer in the operation of the business system.

The Chamber plans to make the film available for showing in schools across Canada, and to Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce.

Meeting in Hotel Georgia, delegates also determined policy for the year ahead regarding such subjects as the single alternative vote, the motor vehicle responsibility act, decentralization of hospitals and rent control.

Tonight also will see the opening of the 1952-53 basketball season at the Civic Centre. Mayor Harold Whalen will participate in the ceremony.

Tories Name Candidates For Next Election

VANCOUVER (CP)—Progressive Conservative candidates for the next Federal election were nominated here in the Liberal-held Vancouver South and Coast Capilano ridings.

Nominated in Vancouver South was Lorraine Johnston, 32-year-old barrister active in women's community associations here. She is the daughter of the late Adam Smith Johnston.

The Progressive Conservative standard bearer in Coast Capilano will be Arthur H. (Slim) Turner, 32-year-old electrical inspector who was a candidate in the June 12 British Columbia election.

The Vancouver South seat is held by Arthur Laing and Coast Capilano by James Sinclair.

George Drew, Federal Progressive Conservative leader, spoke at both conventions. He had said the P.C. party was the only party capable of forming an alternative government to the Liberals.

Ship Collision Kills Soldiers

NORFOLK, Va. (CP)—The sharp bow of a 10,000-ton tanker sliced the skin-thin side of a 1,800-ton navy transport Friday and killed five soldiers asleep in their bunks.

Six other soldiers were injured, three critically, when the fast attack transport Ruchamkin and the Texas Company tanker Washington collided in the Atlantic 60 miles east of Cape Henry.

Season's Basketball Opener Launched at Centre Tonight

Tonight is basketball opening night in Prince Rupert as the 1952-53 season gets away with a bang at the Civic Centre.

A feature attraction of the evening will be presentation of an electric time clock and score board to the basketball association after which there will be a parade of players.

Main event will be the senior league opener played by revamped Gordon & Anderson and Mansons, last year's league winners.

Manson's this year are coached by Don Hartwig, University of Washington graduate and Booth Memorial High School teacher, while Alex Bill, well-known hoop warden in this area is sparking Gordon & Anderson.

While the lineups of both teams have changed slightly with introduction of new basketball talent, the front-liners are much the same as last year.

For Gordon & Anderson the following will be front liners: Joe Davis, Rupe Holkestad, Jim Flaten, Butch Currie and Roy Webber.

Manson's will produce such favorites as Art Olson, Ray Spring, Mickey Wegster, Danny Bill and playing coach Don Hartwig.

Game time is 8:30, but will be preceded by the presentation, a Job's Daughters drill review, the Civic Band and an intermediate league preliminary at 7:30 p.m.

Man Injured, Truck Damaged in Garbage Dump Accident

One man was burned, his truck was seriously damaged by fire and a second man escaped injury in an accident at the city dump last night.

Ingver (Swede) Morse suffered burns to his hands, feet and back when he jumped clear of his truck after it started backing up while he and Mickey Mellon, were unloading garbage.

The two men recently opened the Galley Cafe on Third Avenue.

Mellon said he believed the brake slipped after they alighted. It struck him in the chest, knocking him down but Morse jumped clear and tumbled 100 feet through the burning rubbish before he was able to stop himself.

The half-ton truck stopped just as the front wheels reached the edge of the ramp.

FLAMES HIT TRUCK
 Flames from burning rubbish started the fire on the truck. Mellon said he believed the engine may be salvaged.

Morse was taken to Prince Rupert General Hospital and the truck was towed into a garage after the fire department extinguished the blaze.

Mellon called the fire department after he picked himself up from the ground and discovered that his partner was injured. The ambulance raced to the scene and took Morse to hospital where he is resting.

Fire Destroys Cold Storage, Packing Plant

KEREMEOS (CP)—Blackened ruins marked the site of a $600,000 cold storage plant and warehouse destroyed by fire here Friday.

The buildings, owned by the Co-Operative Fruit Growers' Association, housed thousands of boxes of apples ready for shipment from this Similkameen valley fruit centre, 170 miles east of Vancouver.

Only one man injured, suffering minor cuts, but many workers had narrow escapes as flames whipped through the big warehouse and spread to the storage plant and packing sheds.

Some office workers were forced to jump from windows to escape the fast-moving flames.

Firemen, reinforced by firefighters from Penticton and Princeton, halted the flames after a four-hour battle. Many homes were threatened as a high wind carried flaming embers throughout the town, but the fire confined to the Co-Op buildings.

A Shared Experience

TODAY is the beginning of Young Canada's Book Week. This is a week in which special efforts will be made throughout the country to impress on children the value and enjoyment of good reading.

While the occasion is supported actively by schools and libraries, its significance is not always understood by the community as a whole.

To encourage more reading of more worthwhile books by more children at home, at school and at the library.

To remind adults of the importance of a child's contact with the best books.

To make parents aware of the books available and of the pleasure that comes from books shared with their children.

To stress the need for more books for children in every community.

"With good books children enjoy a true sense of values, a mastery of words, an understanding of people, and experience which anticipate those of real life," the Library Association observes.

"Best of all is the rich warmth of heart and spirit that comes with sharing a book's sheer fun and enjoyment."

During the past few days Prince Rupert school children finished writing their book reviews for the competition which is held in connection with Young Canada's Book Week.

In both the reading and the writing there was bound to be a stimulus which many will wish to experience again.

A Form of Health Insurance

BEGINNING Monday, Prince Rupert householders will receive in the mails envelopes containing brightly colored stickers, or seals, designed in a Christmas motif.

The message is carried by the insignia which appears on all the seals—the cross. It is a symbol of a great crusade against an insidious and stubborn enemy that still claims the lives of more than 3,000 persons in Canada annually.

The seals are a reminder to us all that we must take a part in this crusade against tuberculosis, so when the seals come to our home let's put that donation in the self-addressed return envelope and mail it immediately.

Money raised in this way makes possible purchase of special case finding equipment, equipping clinics and health units, public and professional educational projects, rehabilitation and many more activities from which we all stand to benefit.

Every purchase of Christmas seals spells additional prevention from tuberculosis for each of us and the community at large — it is anything but charity to give to this cause; it is a form of health insurance that benefits us all.

Calling All Quilts

SORRY I won't be home in time to hear the speech by Vancouver's famous native born author, Oliver Philpot.

Expect to be soaking in the famous hot pool at Radium when my namesake addresses the Vancouver Institute at UBC Saturday night Nov. 15.

As Oliver Philpot came to Vancouver as my guest, I tried to get one of his famous books STOLEN JOURNEY to have autographed.

DR. LOTTA HITSCHMANOVA, the red-headed one woman army, blew through town the other day. Readers of this column helped Dr. Lotta collect tons of thousands of babies' diapers for Greece.

Quilts should be sent to any following address: Unitarian Service Committee, Central United Church Calgary, or Alexandra School, Moose Jaw, or 3415 Simpson St. Montreal.

EVEN MORE urgent than the quilts for homeless people of Korea is the need for milk.

I asked her "why aren't our governments doing it?" She says that the UN relief commission (of which our own Rev. Don Paris is a member) is already feeding two million Korean civilians a ration of 1500 calories per day.

One item on the corporation's agenda may be appointment of a temporary chairman to replace Sir William Stephenson, British millionaire industrialist who resigned two weeks ago.

5 I TALKED to Dr. Lotta like a Dutch Uncle and told her she should give herself a rest—even two weeks. She has just made 52 speeches across Canada in four weeks.

BUSINESS SPOTLIGHT

British May Help to Develop Newfoundland Rich Resources

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., (CP)—Two meetings on opposite sides of the Atlantic this week may have a big bearing on the future direction of Newfoundland's economic development program.

A group of British companies, including the world banking house of Rothschilds, has opened talks in London where earlier this year it showed interest in Premier Joseph R. Smallwood's plans for exploiting the untapped natural riches of Newfoundland and Labrador.

In this capital, directors of the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation gather Friday for their annual meeting to review progress in attracting outside interest in the province's resources.

It may be some time before the connection, if any, between the two meetings becomes clear. But a Rothschilds representative will sit in on the corporation discussions for the first time.

Some sources here believe this indicates increasing interest by United Kingdom concerns in a long-range prospect advanced by Mr. Smallwood during a tour of Europe. The premier visualized a "modern Hudson's Bay Company" as one of the greatest imperial ventures of the century.

But much of the discussion is expected to centre around mining ventures, which have formed a major part of the corporation's activities since it was formed as the government's "economic arm" and given exploratory rights over 22,000 square miles of territory.

Five mining companies have been probing for minerals this year and four of them—Reynolds Metals, Natural Lead, Newmont Mines and Selection Trust—started work after their interest was aroused by Stephenson.

Remaining shares were subscribed by private groups whose hope of profit lies in financing the corporation's brain-children. The government hopes to benefit through royalties and the general economic upswing which will follow if its projects succeed.

Black Watch Plays Review For Marines

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA (AP)—The pipe band of the Scots Black Watch marched calmly in review for the United States Marines 177th birthday while Chinese flak chased allied planes buzzing overhead.

At the end, the Marines cheered by the numbers, hip-hip hooray. Then they broke into applause American fashion, complete with foot stomping, handclapping and whistles.

Drummer George Dodds of Edinburgh danced a couple of Highland flings to the pipes of Cpl. Joel McNeie of Selkirk.

Since it resembled no species of waltz, fox trot or jitterbug the Marines were a little puzzled. So were a whole flock of Koreans who watched in amazement.

The parade ground was bulldozed from the side of a hill within easy shooting range of the Chinese.

The Scots came over at the invitation of the 1st Battalion, Seventh Marine Regiment. The pipers wore the Royal Stuart tartan while the drummers paraded in the watch's traditional dark-green tartans, the same they've worn since they were formed to patrol the highlands in 1715.

After the parade, the Scots and Marines had a spot of beer together.

Student Sales Group to Cover City in House-to-House Canvass

Youthful salesmen and salesladies totalling more than 500 will "cover" the city beginning Monday in a novel fund-raising program for the Booth Memorial High School students' council.

"Salesmanship Week" as the campaign is termed is carried out by the Council in co-operation with Maclean-Hunter Publishing Company. Students take new or renewed subscriptions for magazines distributed by the company and in return get 30 to 50 per cent of the subscription fee.

"I think it is quite a painless way of getting money for some worthy school projects," said A. M. Hurst, high school principal. "If the general public patronizes this campaign, we can raise a fairly good sum."

Through the plan which the student sales group will explain to their "customer" in a house-to-house canvass next week, any person now subscribing to a magazine distributed by the sponsoring publishing house may renew his subscription with the student.

Or prospective customers may take out new subscriptions. Either way, the students' council gets a 30 to 50 per cent share of the subscription fee, depending on type of publication.

This plan has proven successful in schools throughout Canada, says Mr. Hurst, but this year is the first time it is being tried here.

Last year students sold Christmas cards, but the project was not successful.

Main project for which the money raised will be designated is financing trips for the Bo-Me-Hi basketball team, which hopes to compete in the B.C. finals for the high school basketball championship.

Mr. Abel Flubs Six Spades, Could Have Made Seven

"Down one at six and you could have made seven," said Mr. Champion disgustedly, after Mr. Abel had flubbed his six spade contract. Do you think Mr. Champion was exaggerating in saying that seven-odd was possible?

This is how the play developed. Mrs. Keen led the six of clubs and dummy's king won. Mr. Abel saw that he had a possible loser in each of the red suits. If Mr. Masters had the queen of hearts, finessing the jack would insure the taking of twelve tricks.

If Mr. Masters held the queen of hearts with exactly two others, the suit would break and on the fourth lead of hearts dummy's small diamond could be discarded. In this case Mr. Abel would win all the tricks.

With these thoughts in mind, Mr. Abel took three rounds of trumps. Then he laid down the ace of hearts, in case Mrs. Keen had the lone queen. Next he entered dummy with the ace of diamonds, returned a heart and finessed the jack. When this lost to the lone queen, the contract was doomed as there was no way to avoid the loss of a diamond trick.

Mr. Champion hit the ceiling. "Didn't you ever hear of a safety play, man?" he belted.

"I tried to play it safe," Mr. Abel replied. "I cashed the ace of hearts first in case someone had a lone queen."

"That's not enough," snapped Mr. Champion. "Why be half safe. Lay down the king, too, and you drop the queen."

"But what if Masters had three or four to the queen?" argued Mr. Abel.

"So what?" Mr. Champion retorted. "After cashing your ace and king, go to dummy and lead a heart toward your jack. Your jack will win either the third or fourth round of the suit."

"If you had played your two top hearts you'd have made seven. You cash your ace of clubs next, then lead your last spade. Win in dummy and lead dummy's last spade. Masters would have been squeezed. He couldn't hold two hearts to prevent you from winning with both the jack and trey, and also hold three diamonds. If he threw a diamond on the last spade, all three of dummy's diamonds would have been good."

Campbell's Kingdom is a story of Western Canada as it is today, a story of the great oil boom and of the grim, wind-torn wastes of the Rocky Mountains. Here is the hectic atmosphere of a young people still intent on tearing the wealth out of virgin country; here are the ghost towns of the old gold-rush days and the construction camps and oil rigs of today. Campbell was one of the old-timers, a great character who labored all his life to prove what he believed: that there was oil in the Rocky Mountains. His "kingdom" was a stretch of country 7000 feet up in the Rockies. In the valley below lay Come Lucky, a ghost town of the old Cariboo days peopled by men soured to the point of hate by greed and disappointment.

They drove Campbell to spend the last years of his life alone in the Kingdom, and at his death the old-timer wrote to his grandson, Bruce Wetheral, in England:

"I pray God you will accept the mantle of my beliefs and wear it to the damnation of my enemies . . ."

Wetheral, driven by the compelling urgency of a personal disaster, accepts the challenge and emigrates to Canada. But in the Rockies, he finds himself faced with something bigger than the greed and hatred of a few old men: a big mining company is moving up the valley and threatening to spread its tentacles over the Kingdom. This book is Wetheral's account of his struggle to prove that Campbell was right—a struggle against powerful interests and ill health in a hard, unyielding country.

This is Hammond Innes at his best, a born story-teller fully extended, with a subject more exciting and more topical than any he has yet chosen.

THE REDCROSS KNIGHT

by Sister Mary Christina
(Available at Wm. Earl Sargent Memorial Library)

The story of the beautiful Oina and her Redcross Knight—the first book of Spenser's Fascinating Quests, is charmingly re-told for children.

Boys and girls alike will be fascinated by battles with dragons and evil knights, escapes from the wiles of wicked Archimago and false Duesse, visits to the House of Pride and the House of Holiness, and the many other adventures through which knight and lady win their way to a joyful wedding.

The author has managed to capture in simple words, not only the plot, but much of the flavor of Spenser's beautiful allegory, so that children may come to know and love one of the great classics of English literature, and look forward to reading the original when they are ready for it.

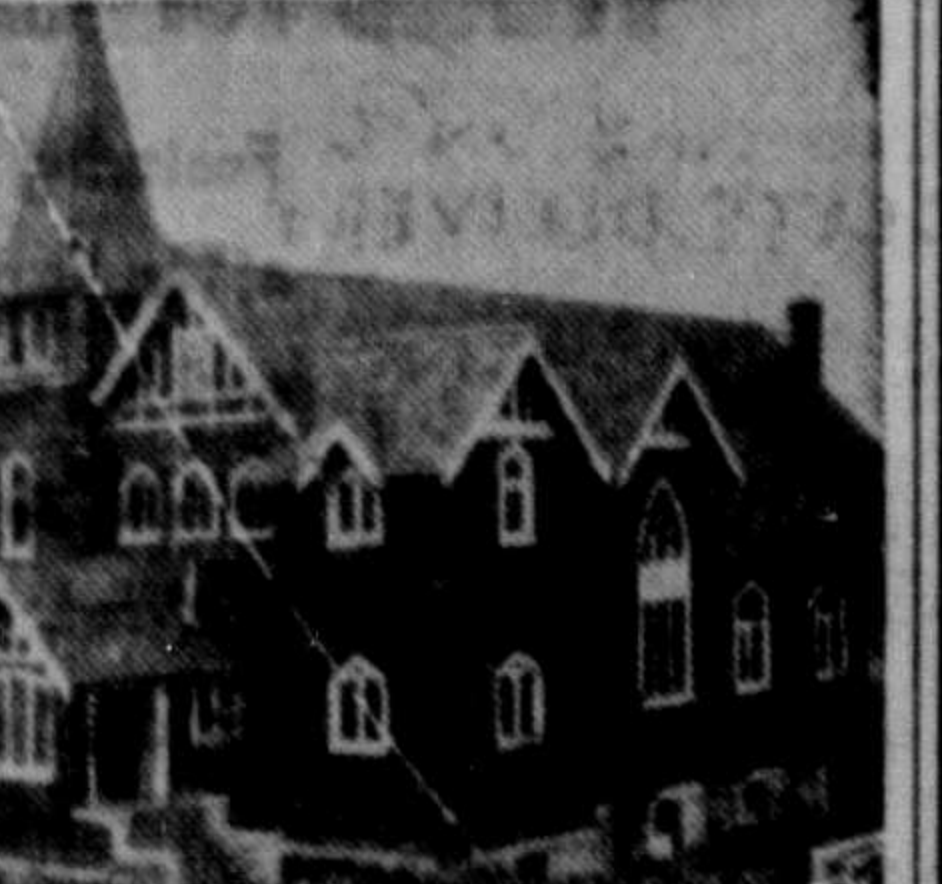

The forty odd illustrations in full color have the true fairy tale quality and add immensely to the charm of the text.

About the Author—Sister Mary Christina was born in New York, has been teaching senior high school in San Francisco for the last five years, but her previous experience of teaching grade school gave her a knowledge of the 10- and 11-year-old to write this book.

Book Review Contest Entries Show Originality

Prize winners were announced today of Young Canada's Book Week review contest sponsored here by the Public Library Association.

Number of entries "was disappointing" said an association spokesman, "but the quality of those received was very good, original and fresh."

Entries were submitted by Grades 8, 7, 6, 5 and 4.

Judges were Mrs. J. A. Ruthford, Mrs. D. R. Barclay and Mrs. R. Hill. Here are the winners:

Sue Kergin, grade 8, for her review of "House in Hiding;" Barbara Allanson, Grade 7, "Little Women;" Joanne Procter, Grade 6, "The Gells on Finland Street;" David Allen, Grade 5, "Huron of the Horn."

Grade 4 winners were tied and prizes were awarded to Gall Davidson for her review of "One Kitten Too Many," and to Leslie McLaren for "Henry—Fisher-man."

Prizes, which will be the winners' selection of a book, will be awarded soon.

Next week, beginning Tuesday, the Daily News will publish one of the winning reviews daily.

Nova Scotia Novel Intrigues Literary Critics of New York

NEW YORK (CP)—Nova Scotian Ernest Buckler's first novel, "The Mountain and the Valley," evoked a mixed response from literary critics writing in New York newspapers.

Published in the United States by Henry Holt, Buckler's novel is about a sensitive boy growing to manhood on a farm in Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley. Buckler, prize-winning short story writer, could have done with a "sterner editorial pencil," says Stuart Keate in a review in the New York Times Sunday literary magazine.

Keate, publisher of the Victoria Times, says, however, that Buckler "imparts (to the novel) a haunting eloquence, an almost aching sensuality . . . his ear for native dialect is unerring."

"At times the narrative seems uneven and formless, the language a little overripe," Writing in the Herald Tribune Sunday literary magazine, Florence Haxton Bullock describes the novel as "rich in the things of the earth."

"(It) offers . . . a rare study of the effect of loneliness upon the human personality, and the blessed response when the hunger for companionship is satisfied . . . an excellent if somewhat difficult novel."

Orville Prescott, reviewing the book in the Daily Times, calls it a "morose and gloomy tale." However, he finds "its locale is a fresh one and its manner of writing individual and unusual."

Prescott thinks the characters are "neither likeable nor interesting," but "completely believable."

Foot Lights

By LILLIAN MILLER
Little Theatre members have been stung on edge with the performance date of "Ask Me No Questions" looming just ahead and it was startling news when Keith Faught, leading man, was confined to hospital.

However, Keith feels he will be back on the job soon and to prove his belief he is busy studying his lines while in bed.

Work crews have almost completed the stage set—a pleasant thought.

After temporary interruptions by first, Halloween, then Armistice, rehearsals are back to normal.

OUTDOORS WITH MARTY

So You're Going to Get Him Some Sporting Equipment For Christmas—Here's a Tip

So far as your columnist is concerned, the sidewalk prescription is completely in order; but the difficulty may lie in getting hold of him in the short time remaining before Christmas.

There are many lovely ladies very anxious to make an outdoor-minded husband the correct gift, and there will probably be a lot of money expended on items of sport equipment which will not fill the bill.

We stand prepared to advise on this problem, and suggest that you send in your question right away.

Bear in mind that fishing tackle nowadays is highly specialized, and one must beware of purchasing several good and costly pieces that do not integrate. The trolling reel is not for the fly-rod, nor is the bait-casting reel able to work with the best fly line ever made. When the amount of cash for gifts is limited, better to probe the male mind as to just which type of fishing he prefers, then get him one or two of the necessary components for Xmas and buy the rest for his birthday.

Answering a correspondent's query: The Penn No. 149 is outstandingly the best for Monel or wire line ocean or lake trolling, should cost around $20.00 and well worth it. There is a No. 249 at a higher price, its only difference is a lever which instantly engages the star drag, but so far I have seen no need for this appliance on the fish available locally. The ordinary star drag on the No. 149 does all that is required, and the free spool is a considerable help in getting the line out quickly.

Another asks what kind of line to use with a telescopic rod. This sets a problem, for these rods are quickly outgrown by those beginners who start with them. Actually, one should have both fly-rod reel and bait-casting reel for these sticks, each reel to have its own correct line. Use Nylon lines, they do not rot in salt water as do silk. If directly asked, I would never suggest a telescopic rod as a gift; they are neither fish, flesh, nor fowl.

On occasion they may be handy when walking a brushy creek, for they may be shortened as conditions require; but other than that, they have few friends.

Perhaps somebody is getting a rifle for Christmas, lucky man! Lady-wife will NOT be wrong if she purchases one of the telescope-sighted rifles conspicuously displayed on Third Avenue. Here is a good buy of a fire-arm which is ample for any game on this continent, and my thought right now is on Kodiak bear. This is a military rifle very ne telescope-sighted rifles converted, built up with the excellent Weaver 2.5 power scope, and chambered for the 30-06 cartridge which can be had almost anywhere the hunter is likely to travel.

An added advantage is the fact that a greater variety of loadings and bullets is available for this musket on the ordinary market. It is possible to obtain commercial loads with greater velocity, flatter trajectory, and greater remaining energy than the much discussed 270. (Wonder why a certain manufacturer has come out with the new 308, is it really needed, or are we retrogressing to the chaos we once had on shotgun loads?)

Just in case the 'scope equipped rifle is over the budget, then the open sighted models are also as good as can be had. One may safely purchase either type. If more cash is to be spent, there are several splendid factory sporter jobs in the store, and the man behind the counter will give you good service and assistance.

Fred Johnson brought in a seal the other day, and after performing a rhinotomy left the carcass on exhibition at the Yacht Club. Experiment shows that seal blubber cuts into perfect strips of attractive white bait, that has a wiggle all its own. The continuous exudation of fishy oil from the blubber seems to bring fish from a distance, and one would suppose that it could not be bettered for crab-trap bait. So all you have to do is get a seal!
