No Loyalty Among Thieves

JAMES DUNCAN, president of the Massey-J Harris company, recently heard about a Ukrainian employed in his firm who had written a little book to get a few things off his chest and, perhaps, out of his mind.

The employee was Nicholas Prychodko, a former university professor, who some years before had been imprisoned by the NKVD political police in Russia and had later escaped from a forced labor camp in Siberia. The little book he wrote carried this dedication:

"To the memory of my father and those illfated Ukrainians who lie in countless obscure graves in Siberia."

Learning of Prychodko's harrowing story, Mr. Duncan arranged to give the book wider distribution. It was a wise move, for if any Canadian has an idea that Communism is the great cure for the ills of this world, he should first take a look at the publication.

To quote Prychodko, the following is an example of how the cure is effected:

"In damp cellars of about forty square yards in area, two hundred and fifty prisoners were incarcerated, with standing room only, in the stench of their own sweating bodies, and with hardly any water to eat or drink.

"Near these cells the torture chambers worked day and night, and the cries of tortured victims kept on incessantly. Their feet were seared with hot irons, air was pumped into their stomachs with motorcycle pumps, needles were forced under their fingernails, and they were beaten over the most delicate parts of their body with an oak ruler.

"This in the Twentieth Century, in the 'most happy country in the world'! Several corpses were carried from the cells every day, and in the dead of night many more were taken away to the Darnitsky forest to eternal peace . . ."

These sentences reveal as clearly as anything else the surgical treatment applied by Stalin and his crew to remedy all ills. Stalin should know the technique well, for it was over the bodies of adversaries so operated upon that he climbed to power.

Those who are willing to betray their country for the Communist cause might, if the U.S.S.R. took over the government of free countries, be spared some of these discomforts. But they should not count on it. Even the best Communists have a way of disappearing from time to time.

There is, after all, no loyalty among thieves.

A Small Concession

THE city has approved, through its representatives, the council, an increase in fares for the local transit system. Every other transit system in the country likely has been granted increases in fares long before this. It is only natural that this should be in view of the cost increase in the last few years.

At present, the transit system comes under a good deal of criticism from various quarters, including city council. While criticism is easily offered and is tendered often to the most efficient type of service, in this case it may well be warranted at times.

In any type of service, the public usually expects a great deal more than it will get or perhaps deserves. Yet, while the bus lines here stand a good chance of getting its increase approved by the Public Utilities Commission and thereby finalized, it might be good public relations and policy to make some move to show the public an improved service.

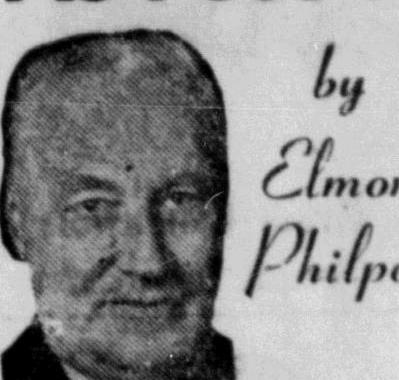

This may often be done at little added cost, and good will of the public means a lot in favor of any operating service.

Perhaps, one gesture which could be made, is running a scheduled service to the new housing sites once tenants move in. At least two of these sites are removed further from city centre than can be conveniently covered on foot, especially in adverse weather conditions. Without transit service, these residents will be more or less isolated; with it they will benefit from a concession.

FIELD, B.C.—One of the biggest political smiles of this century is shaping up here in these Rocky Mountains.

The temporary Social Credit government of B.C. has realized could well turn out to be a disastrous booby trap. The plain truth is that the imported So cial Credit candidate from Vancouver is in real danger of being beaten by an unassuming able, Liberal food merchant who has long lived in Golden. The SOS call has gone out for Social Credit reinforcements. So man cabinet ministers are rushing to these parts that somebody joked it is the capital of B.C.—till next

THE THREAT to Social Credit is obvious. They expected a walk-over and so have everything to lose and nothing to gain even if the people do choose the young ex-Tory lawyer from Vancouver.

A victory for Social Credit would strengthen them only for the few remaining months be-fore Premier Bennett brings on Irish Cathedral the election which he has promised. But a Social Credit defeat would end with a single shattering blow the whole Social Credit scheme to sweep B.C. and to carry the momentum of that provincial victory over into the federal election of next year.

Rockies Called Unfriendly by British Author

British author George Woodcock, entitled "Ravens and Prophets." describes a visit to British Columbia, Alberta and south ern Alaska in unflattering terms.

Woodcock writes disparagingly of the food he had to eat in Calgary, of the alleged dearth of well-read men in Canada outside of university circles and says the Rocky Mountains were "less triendly than I expected." In a review of the book (published by Alan Wingate) a critic in the Sunday Observer says Woodcock's approach savors of "disappointment and frustration," reminding one of some uprooted intellectual from the
