INDIAN STORY WILL BE SEEN

Picture Tells Tale of Custer Massacre, to be Seen Tomorrow and Saturday

Ever since the first white man set foot on American soil his dream of conquest has urged him toward the setting sun. In the early seventies the path blazers of the expanding nation had pushed her outposts into a vast Western wilderness, reclaiming it with plows and defending it with sword and rifle, enduring hardships and dangers, so that others to follow might prosper on its bounty.

An important part in this great movement was the pony express rider, daring and hardy. One of these was Bob Langdon, whose fearless work had won for him the admiration of Gen. Custer, then about to lead his troops, the famous Seventh Cavalry, against the allied Indians under Chief Sitting Bull, who were about to make their last stand against the whites. Through Custer's influence and the aid of Senator Stanwood Langdon receives an appointment to West Point. Shortly after his arrival at the military academy Langdon meets the Senator, his daughter Betty, and his son, Lawrence. The latter, a weak, scuffling youth, is also going to the Point and is to be Langdon's room-mate.

Soon after meeting the Stanwoods, Langdon is instrumental in saving Betty's life and the incident paves the way for romance. In the meantime in Washington, a powerful clique of politicians is busy selling liquor and rifles to the Indians through their agent, one Sam Belden. They are seeking to disgrace Custer and bring pressure to bear on President Grant to recall him. Senator Stanwood is fighting Custer's fight and the clique wishes to humiliate him. With the aid of Lucretia Belden, a vamp, they set their trap. Young Stanwood is inveigled to her room at night. Langdon misses his friend, finding him in Lucretia's room. Belden has just entered as part of the frame-up. There is a fight, Stanwood returns to his quarters and Langdon is arrested. The latter, innocent, keeps silent, shielding Lawrence, for his father's and sister's sake. Because he refuses any explanation Langdon is expelled from the Academy and returns West.

General Custer and the Seventh Cavalry set out to attack the Indians based on the Little Big Horn. Custer has been misinformed by one of Belden's henchmen as to the number of his Indian adversaries. He divides his force with orders to Major Reno to await his signal to rejoin him. Four hundred cavalymen confront 10,000 Indians. Custer attacks and the massacre commences. Custer orders Langdon to ride through the Indians with an order for Reno to come to the rescue. Langdon reaches Reno who refuses to sacrifice his men. Custer and his command are slaughtered.

GOLD FOUND CANAL BOTTOM

Children Get Rich Harvest in England When Money Found

CHESTER, England, June 14.—Discovery of 200 gold coins in the bed of a local canal has caused England's first native gold rush. The prospectors did not stake their claims but rushed to the canal which had been emptied temporarily for repairs.

The discovery was made by a boy, who, while prodding about in the mud bed of the canal, found several gold sovereigns. The boy immediately took the gold home to his mother, who lives in a street near the canal, and she announced the news to her neighbors who proceeded to the canal and carried out a search with knives, forks and other implements.

Some of the searchers obtained as much as twenty pounds. The mystery of the gold is believed to be explained by the death of a woman who lived near by. After her death an old mattress, which was partially burned, was thrown into the canal. Apparently the woman had hidden hoarded gold in the mattress, which rotted away by the action of the water, providing a golden harvest for her neighbors.

FREE HAIR CUTS FOR ALL INDIGENT

ATLANTA, Ga., July 14.—When the Associated Master Barbers of America inaugurated "Look Well Wee!" in this city, the local chapter as a mark of co-operation called at the home for the friendless and trimmed every head of hair in the place.

Sixty-five children were shorn. The barbers then called at the Georgia Children's Home, the Southern Christian Home, the Home for Incurables, and the Hebrew Orphanage.

FUR SKIRTS LATEST PARIS SUGGESTION

PARIS, July 14.—Fur skirts are to be au fait next winter, says Paul Poiret. The proponent of real "trousers" as a feminine mode, undeterred by his lack of success in that direction, brings forward skirts and jackets of popular—and expensive—skins. Under the jackets would be worn soft fabric blouses.

Man in the Moon

THE police have whitewashed the police station. It is to be hoped they will not use the brush on their prisoners although perhaps a little soap and water might be useful on some of them.

The constable took his whitewash brush

And daubed up the station wall. So that none who shared its sacredness might again be tempted to fall. He planted flowers, now a garden fair will soon be surrounding the place a sign of better things for those who turn and right about face.

HOW difficult it is to satisfy some people. A lady went to a local jewelry store and purchased a watch all set with jewels and mounted with platinum and she kicks because it does not keep time.

A LITTLE wash with water.

A little can of paint. Make a dirty building look like what it aint.

THE people who howl because the taxes are too high are the same ones who want big appropriations for their district.

A PRUNE loses its wrinkles when in hot water. Let's see what does that prove?

THE hardest money I ever earned was when I took a dime from my big sister and promised her I'd stay quiet a whole hour.

A SELF-SATISFIED person is usually easily satisfied.

NOBODY would mind saying grace if he now and then had a meal.

MOST of the fat men would like to be thin but they hate to pay the price.

PRIMITIVE LIVES OF RUSSIAN PEASANTS

Have Disappeared From Civilization But Are Glimpsed in Woods

BLAGOVESHENSK, Amur Province, Russia, July 14.—Mystery surrounding the fate of two settlements of Russian peasants, members of a religious sect, who are said to have fled from the horrors of civil war in Siberia during 1918-20 to the wild Kizano forests of Northern Amur, has prompted the newspaper Amur Pravda to dispatch an expedition in search for them.

They are said to have had no contact whatever with the outer world since 1919, living by fishing, hunting and otherwise leading a primitive life. Their existence was first reported by native trappers several months ago who occasionally caught sight of long bearded, haggard figures, who disappeared in the bush the moment they were observed.

"Fruit-a-lives" is such an effective remedy because it is composed of fresh fruit juices, combined with tonics. In a natural way, it rids the system of poisons and purifies the blood. Try it—25c and 50c a box.

ARCHDEACON'S SON ON VISIT INDIAN VILLAGE
J. M. Collison Guest of Haida Chief After Many Years Absence From Islands
SKIDEGATE, July 14.—H. Collison of Prince Rupert is taking over the management of the Imperial Oil Company's station here. R. McCallum, who has been in charge, is leaving on account of illness.
Mr. Collison was accompanied here by his brother, J. M. Collison, this being the first trip of the Collison brothers to the islands in twenty years.
While here, J. M. Collison, who is a son of the late Archdeacon Collison, who was for some years a missionary on the islands; was asked to visit the Skidegate Mission which he did. He was the guest of Chief Russ, who 47 years before paddled over to Metlakatla and asked the late Archdeacon to visit Skidegate and send a missionary there. Mr. Collison was shown the remains of the huge cedar lodge where his father camped and where the first church service was held. Along with a correspondent of the Daily News Mr. Russ entertained the visitor to dinner and interesting stories of the early days were told.
Chief Russ is a brother-in-law of the late Chief Sega, mentioned in Archdeacon Collison's book, "The Wake of the War Canoe."
Chief and Mrs. Russ in bidding adieu to their visitor expressed the pleasure it had given them to entertain the son of the great chief, Archdeacon Collison. The last time they had seen him he was a baby in his mother's arms.

She Began to Thrive when put on EAGLE BRAND

"My baby was born prematurely, by the Caesarian operation. She lost steadily for five weeks, and was nothing but a little skeleton. She cried continually and would not sleep for more than half an hour at a time. I was unable to nurse her, and the food we gave her disagreed altogether with her. At last the doctor said we might try Eagle Brand and we made a very weak solution, feeding her each hour. This was at four o'clock in the afternoon, and after the nine o'clock feeding, she went to sleep and slept peacefully for nine hours. Since then, she has gained rapidly and is so happy and contented that everybody stops to notice her. People who saw her when she was five weeks old, think she's nothing short of a miracle, and indeed we all think so, for her life was just hanging by a thread, and it seemed as if she could not live. She is one of the best testimonials you could possibly have, and after seeing her, any mother would try Eagle Brand. She is nine months old today, has seven teeth and is trying to walk, and since five weeks, has had absolutely nothing but Eagle Brand and Orange Juice."
