Long Distance Phone Rates Newfoundland Slashed

OTTAWA—Substantial reductions in long distance telephone rates between Newfoundland and the rest of the country will become effective Dec. 1 according to an announcement made in the House of Commons by Hon. Lionel Chevrier, minister of transport.

For three-minute calls between Newfoundland and the Maritime Provinces rates are slashed from $7.20 to $6.00 instead of $7.20. As of the new rate between St. John's and Halifax will be $2.65; between St. John's and Charlottetown, $3.20; between St. John's and Sydney, $1.20. The rate for calls between St. John's and Quebec and New Brunswick will be reduced to $7.20; from Ontario, $7.20; from Manitoba, $7.30; from Saskatchewan, $9.00; from British Columbia, $12.00 instead of $12.00. The rate will be $6.00 instead of $7.30; from Alberta, $9.00; from Saskatchewan, $7.30; from British Columbia, $12.00 instead of $12.00.

Camera, Guitar, Bikes Wait At Police Station for Owners

A camera, a guitar, two boys' bicycles and a tricycle are waiting at the city police station to be claimed by their owners. The camera and guitar were found recently and turned into police headquarters but no one has made any claims so far, an RCMP spokesman said today. The bicycles have been there for a longer period. If the goods are not claimed by their owners within a year, they may be sold, following which, the money may land in the government treasury.

Customers Pay As They Like Cafe Owner's Business Booms With New System

Victoria restaurant owner Paul Arsens' cash register is beating a lively record today, but his customers are waiting in line. "We took on extra help and extra food," he said. "The atmosphere of both restaurants is grand, and people are getting a kick out of operating the cash registers. All we do is give them help if they need it." Most baffling part of the whole plan, announced last week, and reported by newspapers all over the continent, is the way customers have paid more than they would ordinarily. "In nearly every case people left more than they should," Mr. Arsens said. "One party of six had $1.50 worth of breakfast and paid $3. They can see on the menu what the usual price is—I can't understand it." Two Seattle men, who asked for their check and were told there would be none, said: "Gosh! Are we in that place?" "They paid $2 for breakfasts we charge $1.25 for," the proprietor said. Letters have come from all over the continent, Mr. Arsens said, from private individuals and other restaurant operators who want to know what the plan is all about. "Off-hand I can think of letters from Texas, Chicago, and Kansas City. Many of them are addressed to 'Paul Arsens, restaurant operator, Victoria, B.C.', but they are reaching me all right," he said. Waitresses are all in favor of the scheme. Well before noon they had collected as much in tips as is usual for a full day's work. Pleasurably puzzled, Mr. Arsens said the only explanation he could give for the popularity of the pay-what-you-wish plan is that "people seem to appreciate being appreciated."

QCA Granted Authority For New Service

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board Tuesday authorized Queen Charlotte Airlines to operate between Prince Rupert, and Ketchikan, Alaska. The two cities now are served by one Alaskan carrier, Ellis Air Lines. In Prince Rupert, QCA officials said no details of the proposed service could be announced as yet. However, it is known that earlier plans called for a co-operative type of service between this city and Ketchikan by the two airlines. (Ellis Airlines inaugurated its two-weekly flight during last summer, the first time a regular scheduled flight has served the two points.

UBC 'Birds' Seek New Conference

VANCOUVER (CP)—The University of British Columbia Thunderbirds' football team wants to pull out of the U.S. Evergreen Conference—if a hoped-for Western Canada Intercollegiate Conference materializes. Team members voted unanimously Monday night to withdraw, but only if they have a Canadian league to welcome them. Thunderbirds likely will report their decision at an Evergreen Conference meeting set for the week-end in Spokane. The UBC team has a miserable record. Last year—it's best in four—it won two games. This year Thunderbirds lost seven in a row. Prairie universities are reported to be heartily in favor of reviving the Collegiate Conference that folded in 1946.

Fulton Won't Vie for PC Leadership

KAMLOOPS (CP)—E. Davie Fulton, member of parliament for Kamloops, announced Wednesday he was not a candidate to take over from Herbert Anscomb as leader of the British Columbia Progressive Conservatives. In a 300-word statement, Mr. Fulton said he had "decided he could serve his party best by remaining in the federal field." His announcement leaves a way clear for Les Bewley, Vancouver lawyer, who announced recently he would let his name stand if Mr. Fulton does not run. Dean Finlayson of Nanaimo, B.C., is also a candidate for leadership. A leader will be chosen at the convention in Vancouver Saturday.

READERS MISS FUNNIES BUT MISS OUT ON KOREAN NEWS

VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP)—The Vancouver Sun wanted to find out whether anyone is reading stories on the Korean war. So it ran the same dispatch three days in a row. What happened? Nothing. In a newspaper story the Sun says not one of its 50,000 readers phoned to check the "error." The editors pointed out that whenever a comic strip or feature column is dropped or repeated the switchboard is deluged with calls from irate readers. "Deafening silence" was the only reaction to the repetition of the Korean story, the Sun said. The story was printed on the front page each day.

HELD IN SLAYING — Elmer Corman, 52-year-old London, Ont., farmhand, has been charged with the murder of Sheldon Hyland, 56-year-old Stoney Creek, Ont., contractor. Hyland was shot to death and two sons, Osborne, 30, and Glen, 28, wounded while they were at dinner. Police said they believe Corman had been brooding over distribution of an estate. Mrs. Hyland was reported to have been made administrator of the $47,427 estate of Corman's father in 1950. (CP Photo)

Flames Trap Patients in Mental Wards

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (CP)—Roaring flames and sputtering smoke killed 14 women and children in an old three-story building at Huntington State hospital, a mental institution. Ten others—seven patients and three firemen—were taken to hospital. Flames sprang from the basement of the 56-year-old building and spread rapidly through the first and second floors.

16-Cent Raise Recommended For Rail Union

OTTAWA (CP)—Majority report of the Federal Conciliation Board today recommended an average wage increase of 16 cents an hour for non-operating railway workers engaged in a four-month dispute with companies. Unions representing 125,000 non-operating employees—those who do not actually run trains—have been asking an across-the-board increase of 45 cents an hour.

Nine Public Offices Open For Election

When Prince Rupert taxpayers go to the polls Dec. 11 for the civic elections—and there are enough candidates—they will be asked to elect four aldermen, three school trustees and two park commissioners. Electors also will vote on a $42,500 school bylaw and a referendum asking the people's authority to impose an order that all milk for distribution here must be pasteurized. The money bylaw is for construction of an elementary school at Port Edward, on which the district areas also vote. Their share is $48,500, or $6,000 greater than that of the city. Retiring aldermen are George Hills, J. W. Prusky, Darrow Gomez and Ray McLean. Three of them say they will run for another term. Mr. Hills, who is MLA for Prince Rupert, says he will not run again. School trustees whose terms end are Dr. R. G. Large, chairman; Mrs. E. W. Becker and A. Bruce Brown. Retiring park commissioners are Art Murray and Chairman Pat Forman. Neither trustees or park commissioners have indicated if they will run.

Pipeline Work Stops For Winter

VANCOUVER (CP)—Work on the $83,000,000 trans-mountain oil pipeline from Edmonton to Vancouver will stop Dec. 1 for the winter. Canadian Bechtel Ltd., agents for the owners, announced Wednesday that 325 miles of the 711-mile pipeline will have been completed by that date and the rest would be completed by August, 1953. Work on the pipeline is stopped during winter months because welding cannot be carried out efficiently, announcement said. Inside work will continue on pumping stations.

Speed Driver Builds Car For 450-mph

LOS ANGELES (CP)—A jet-propelled automobile rocketing over a straightaway course at 450 miles an hour is the goal of Ab Jenkins, race driver and former mayor of Salt Lake City. Jenkins says the auto is being built at a cost of $50,000. Its jet engine will develop 3,000-horsepower at 375 miles an hour and eliminate the need for a clutch, flywheel, gear box and differential. Jenkins says he expects to drive it in 1954, when it is completed. He will be 71 then. The late John Cobb of Britain set the world speed record of 403.135 miles an hour Sept. 16, 1947, on Utah's Bonneville flats. Cobb was killed last Oct. 29 during a test run in England of his jet speedboat.

Purge Dooms 11; 3 Given Life

All Plead Guilty as Charged In Dramatic Court-Room Scene

VIENNA, Austria — The Czech Communist regime today ordered the hangman's noose for 11 one-time party chiefs doomed in the greatest purge trial yet staged by the Iron Curtain state. The remaining three of 14 on trial were jailed for life.

The WEATHERMAN Says

The remnants of an old Pacific storm lies over the north coast. There were a few very light showers as it approached this area but no further activity is expected as the disturbance continues to weaken. For the most part, skies are cloudy throughout the province and there is occasional very light snow in the interior. Fog continues to blanket the lower mainland area while the lower Fraser valley from Abbotsford to Hope is clear. Another weak storm will approach the north coast with some showers expected in that region tomorrow. Elsewhere little change is expected for another 48 hours.

Forecast: Cloudy today and Friday. Rain showers Friday. Not much change in temperature. Light winds today. Wind south 15 to 20 mph tonight and Friday. Low tonight and high Friday at Port Hardy, 35 and 42; Sandspit, 40 and 45; Prince Rupert, 35 and 40.

POLAR FLIGHT—Scandinavian Airlines giant DC-6B airliner stopped at Edmonton on its trail-blazing flight across the polar icecap from Los Angeles to Copenhagen. Other stop on the flight was Thule, Greenland. The new route cuts off about four hours flying time from the 27 1/2 hours taken by commercial flights from California to Scandinavia. Among the 24 passengers on the trial run were the Danish and Norwegian ambassadors to the United States and Col. Bernt Balchen, pioneer polar flier, and Mrs. Balchen, the only woman aboard. She was presented with a bouquet of red roses by Jeanette Hawrelak, (left) daughter of Edmonton's mayor. A Mountie is in the background. (CP PHOTO)

Give Half-Hour Limit a Fair Chance Mayor Appeals to City Motorists on Parking

An appeal to all motorists was made today by Mayor Harold Whalen to help the city give its new half-hour parking resolution a chance. "All we want is a chance to see if it works. I am asking everyone to give it a fair trial for one month—then if it doesn't work at all, we'll have to give it up. But I am convinced it will work," he added. Parking on Third Avenue, the city's main street, was reduced from one hour to half hour by resolution at a city council meeting. It is now in effect. The half-hour parking, passed by a one-vote margin in council, was upheld by aldermen and the mayor for these main reasons: To keep traffic moving in order to give all motorists a chance to park in the vicinity of their shopping areas. To eliminate the necessity of loading zones—which was also resolved by council—and thus adding more parking space to the street. Under the hour parking regulation, the mayor said, it had been found that unscrupulous persons would leave their car for an hour, go out and move it a little ways and leave it for another hour and so do nothing to relieve the congestion. Under the half-hour parking regulation, "such a practice will become a nuisance to these people and will tend to have them park on side streets or on Second Avenue. What we are trying to accomplish is this: to have Third Avenue open to parking to as many shoppers and people who do half hour business or less as is possible. "That is the whole problem. A person who only wants to make a small purchase may have to park blocks away from the store, while another man's car may be taking up unnecessary space for hours." Police co-operation to enforce the new bylaw was forthcoming, said Mayor Whalen. "We have the assurance that our bylaws will be enforced indiscriminately and effectively." During the council meeting when the new resolution was passed, main objection by aldermen opposing the move were in regards to loading zones. Ald. George Hills said half-hour parking would be unfair to business firms where unloading of commodities would take more than half an hour. If loading zones are granted to such businesses, many feet of parking space is tied up permanently.

Greeting the Future

AS A SHIP goes through year after year of faithful and efficient service, it develops an individuality which becomes one of the pleasures of being on board.

So it has been with the Canadian National's Prince Rupert. No one familiar with this loyal old vessel will fail to experience some nostalgia over the announcement that its days in west coast service are numbered.

It is heartening to note that, in making this decision, Donald Gordon and his advisers have taken into account the industrial development, actual and potential, centering upon B.C. Since the Prince Rupert serves northern ports, one can read in these lines a recognition of the possibilities in this part of the country which has long been lacking from other sources.

It was remarked in this column a few days ago that one of the favorable effects Kitimat will have on Prince Rupert will be the encouragement of coastal traffic. To Kitimat can be added the expanding industrial points in Alaska, and this city in its own right must be considered an increasingly important port of call.

With account taken of these factors it is not rash to predict that the CNR's new ship will enjoy a business that its predecessor never had. While cost of building a vessel runs into millions of dollars, the investment is in every way a sound one. It will be good for the CNR and it will be good for us.

Sad though the departure of the good ship Prince Rupert will be, we will welcome its successor and look forward to joining it on a trip into the bright future.

Prestige in the Air

ALTHOUGH the loss of eight men aboard the RCAF bomber which crashed near Comox is a tragedy which no words can soften, it serves perhaps more effectively than anything else to drive home to us on the west coast this important point: the RCAF is climbing back into the air again, in strength.

Far from the main centres of activity, we have not fully understood the extent of this development. It is a fact, however, that within the past year the air force has undergone extraordinary expansion. In that time four new squadrons have been formed, raising the total to 16, and two more are immediately planned.

While these factors all point to surprising growth, the most spectacular evidence was provided by departure of the RCAF's No. 2 Fighter Wing for France—an event which was hardly noticed throughout the country.

Stationing of No. 2 Wing on continental Europe provides western European air defences with their most powerful single component. No other NATO country with forces in Europe or the United Kingdom can put such numbers of modern fighter planes into the air.

Since British squadrons there are equipped with Meteors and Vampires, and the USAF units rely mainly on Thunderjets, the Sabres of No. 2 Wing at present form the elite corps of western Europe's air defences.

The manner in which Canada is maintaining its prestige in the air gained during the last war is a proud accomplishment.

As I See It

Uncle Sam Drags Feet

IT IS an astonishing, ominous picture we now see at the UN.

After months of painstaking behind-the-scenes conversations with China, India has developed a plan for breaking the deadlock over the exchange of prisoners of war. This plan has been accepted by the majority of the UN committee which is trying for peace in Korea.

One would have thought that both parties in the United States would have jumped with joy at the Indian formula, which has all along had the whole-hearted support of Canada.

Why does Uncle Sam hang back? Why once again raise the point that there must be no forced repatriation of prisoners, when the plan itself makes it crystal clear that there could be no such thing, because of the physical facts.

THE INDIAN peace formula meets the principles that our own Prime Minister and Mr. Pearson have publicly laid down to break the deadlock.

In B.C. it's just as bad, per capita. B.C. cabinet ministers and civil servants spend about $1,000,000 a year running around the country.

There's no reason why people travelling on the taxpayers' money should stay at the best hotels, in expensive suites, and eat fancy meals in fancy restaurants.

And one wonders, too, if it's necessary that so much travelling be done, anyway. It's not necessary that B.C. be represented at every conference from here to Florida and back.

This reporter likes to get about the country and attend small meetings. They're always refreshing in the country, a hearty friendliness about the people that you don't always find in the city.

What is probably behind Uncle Sam's strange sloth is probably the influence of John Foster Dulles, who is determined to keep the U.S.A. in the driver's seat, not only with regard to the Soviet bloc opponents, but also with regard to close friends and allies, such as Canada and Britain.

IT IS TIME for the partners of U.S.A. to stand up and talk out to Uncle Sam. For well over a year now all the U.S.A. has had so much as a look in, let alone any "say" in the long staled truce talks.

Now when India, with the help and support of Canada and many others, has worked out a fair peace plan Uncle Sam should be plainly told to "grab it while we can."

This is our great chance to get peace in Korea at last. If we do not grab the chance, when we have it, we may as well prepare ourselves for a dark period indeed. For we will not only be threatened by extra pressures and challenges from without—but with far more dangerous rifts and strains within the western partnership.

Mr. Sommers is fairly young and experienced, and he was bluffing his way through. Ottawa should tell him provincial cabinet ministers shouldn't go dabbling in international affairs.

Court Dismisses Drunken Driving Charge—Doctor Had Drink Too

STRATFORD, England (AP)—A man charged with driving while drunk was acquitted in court after protesting that the police doctor who examined him was under the influence of liquor.

The defence presented another doctor as a witness. He testified that when he shook hands with the police surgeon, the latter smelled strongly of alcohol. The police doctor denied it.

The court held the defendant did not get as full an examination as he was entitled to for such an offence as drunken driving.

VICTORIA REPORT

By J. K. Nesbitt

VICTORIA—There was a note in the papers the other day that in about 16 months recently Ottawa cabinet ministers and civil servants spent $675,000 for air travel with Trans-Canada Airlines.

What they spent with other air lines, on trains, ships, in restaurants and hotels wasn't disclosed. It would probably run up to $1,000,000; governments don't like such facts known, and so they hide them, if they can.

There's no reason why people travelling on the taxpayers' money should stay at the best hotels, in expensive suites, and eat fancy meals in fancy restaurants.

And one wonders, too, if it's necessary that so much travelling be done, anyway. It's not necessary that B.C. be represented at every conference from here to Florida and back.

OTTAWA DIARY

By Norman M. MacLeod

Paradox is a sufficient common element in the great and unpredictable world of Parliament to occasion no more than passing comment when it suddenly reappears.

As a result, the fact that the Speech from the Throne now under debate is the gabbiest document of its kind in many years, but with the least legislative content of any such document since the end of World War II, isn't receiving too much attention.

The combination of verbosity with emptiness is the sort of paradox to which Parliamentary circles are well accustomed, quite regardless of which political party happens to be in power.

What is intriguing MP's on all sides of the House about the present Throne Speech is just one thing, which isn't either its length or its legislative generalities. It's its failure to mention national health insurance.

ST. LAURENT-ABBOTT VICTORY

It's well known in Capital circles that for approximately a fortnight before the House reopened a warm and close battle over the health insurance issue divided the Cabinet. Badly shaken by the fate of the Democratic administration in the United States, some of the more politically-minded ministers argued that the Stevenson debacle should be accepted as a warning of the fate awaiting a government that went empty-handed before the voters.

They contended that a pre-election session shouldn't end without the Health Insurance scheme at least being initiated. As a compromise they were prepared to be satisfied with the appointment of a House committee to survey the preliminaries of the legislation, with the understanding that the legislation itself would be passed in the first session after the election.

On the other side, Prime Minister St. Laurent, Finance Minister Douglas Abbott, and powerful Trade and Commerce Minister C. D. Howe opposed both the idea of a Health Insurance bill or a committee compromise. They held that existing revenues wouldn't finance the scheme, the cost of which is estimated at around $400,000,000 annually. They rejected the idea that taxes could or should be increased to cover it.

As was to be expected, the St. Laurent-Abbott-Howe combination won the day. Health insurance was dropped from the session's legislative program. And the Speech from the Throne was lengthened to cover the omission. That's just standard political procedure. The less you have to offer, the more you talk about what you have.

But perhaps the last word on health insurance hasn't yet been heard. The Liberal Caucus holds its first meeting of the session today. The Cabinet Ministers have still to convince the rank-and-file Liberal MP's that they made the right decision.

N.B. Farmers Vacate Land Under Protest

SAINT JOHN, N.B. — Assurance from federal officials has followed protest meetings by residents of the areas in Queens and Sunbury counties in southern New Brunswick where Canada's largest army camp is to be established.

Many of the farm families smart from not wanting to leave their homes, feel they haven't been given enough information about expropriation plans and what they will be paid for their properties.

Federal officials repeated that payment would be fair and just—sufficient for the owners to establish themselves comparably elsewhere. They also said that most families would be notified a year ahead of the time their property would be needed. In some cases moving would be unnecessary for two or three years.

Rural families aggregating about 5000 persons live in the 70-by-70-mile area chosen for the full camp site.

Ravmond Scott, 45, a farmer at Summer Hill is one of those opposed to the project.

"We all know that if we have to leave this area for the good of the country as a whole, we have to. But we don't think it is being handled properly," he said in an interview.

the retreat from 'leftism' continues. In Australia and New Zealand, in Britain and most Western European countries, and now in the United States voters have turned from leftist experimentation to governments that believe in returning power to the people themselves. In other words, throughout the free world so-called planned economy by governments is yielding place to planning by those who take the risks of enterprise and have the capacity for leadership. If British Columbia can prove to the world it is in harmony with this world-wide trend, it may well hope to continue attracting the investment money vital to its progress. LAW OF INCREASING RETURNS from reduced cigarette taxation in last April's federal budget is illustrated in the chart above. It shows the drastic decline in sales following the imposition of the added 3 cent tax in April, 1951, and the spectacular 40.5 per cent increase in the first six months after it was removed in April of this year. Against the loss in revenue suffered in the first six months since the tax was cut, tobacco growers say that a further reduction in the 1953 budget will continue the current trend and still further increase government revenue. They are asking for a 30-cent package of 20 cigarettes.

LIPSTICK BRUSH is an absolute "must" for the women who wish to achieve a smooth, clean outline with lipstick. I have been using one for years and must confess I never actually realized how important this small item had become to me until I had my purse stolen last week, thus losing my lipstick brush. I was all thumbs trying to use my lipstick from the case. Granted it takes a little while to become accustomed to using a brush, but the results are so much better. Not only that, but your lipstick will stay on much longer. Incidentally, such brushes would make very acceptable Christmas gifts for some of the women on your list.

Roller Skates Available Now In All Sizes at Civic Centre

Roller skates in all sizes are now available at the Civic Centre. Arrival of the skates has been eagerly awaited, and those interested are asked to make enquiries at the main desk. Rollerskating is proving an increasingly popular recreation at the Centre, with juniors, teen-agers and adults each taking part at least once a week in growing numbers. The Centre invites skaters to make up parties and enjoy an evening of fun and exercise. The large supply of skates for loan will make this possible for everyone. In other Civic Centre activities, the Teen Club has decided to buy new records with funds on hand for its next dance on Dec. 6. The dance last Saturday was well-attended and, with a fresh supply of nit-parade music available, the next one is expected to be still better. At a meeting of the Tiny Tot leaders yesterday, need of more toys for the growing classes was found to be urgent. Toddlers from the age of one to three years are an increasingly large group and toys are needed to keep them occupied. Families with toys in their homes which either have been discarded or are no longer needed are asked to phone the Civic Centre which will arrange to pick them up, if necessary. The Centre also puts out these reminders: "Don't forget, girls. If you are keen on gym classes and are from 6 to 8 years of age, you meet on Thursdays at 3:30 p.m. If you are 9 to 12 years old, please come to your class on Mondays at 3:30 p.m. This is important so remember to come on the right days."

WOTM Meet at Member's Home

The regular monthly meeting of the membership committee of the Women of the Moose was held this week at the home of Mrs. C. Wilkinson. Eight members and the Senior Regent Mrs. F. De Blass were present. Following a short business discussion, cards were enjoyed. Prize winners were Miss Sylvia Johnson and Mrs. A. Hamilton. Refreshments were served by the hostess. Those present also included Mrs. H. Beaton, Mrs. T. Glenn, Mrs. M. Montgomery, Mrs. H. Harrison, and Mrs. H. Tweed.

ABOUT TOWN

Friends of Mrs. Grace Legg, wife of Roland E. Legg, well-known mining engineer in B.C., will regret to learn that she recently underwent a serious operation in Vancouver. She is now, however, making steady progress towards recovery. Mrs. Legg was a resident of Prince Rupert in the early '30's when her husband was in charge of mining operations of the Surf Point Gold Mine on Porcher Island for the N. A. Timmins Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Judge have returned to town from Los Angeles where they were visiting Mrs. Judge's father, Fred Shaw, who was recently discharged from hospital after an operation. Mr. Shaw was one of the pioneer citizens of Prince Rupert. Mr. and Mrs. Judge were away for about two months.

After a six-week holiday trip to Europe during which he visited Germany, Sweden and Denmark, Olie Varfeldt, Port Edward, returned yesterday aboard the CNSS Prince Rupert. He arrived in Vancouver by plane from New York.

Credit Group To Hear David Robins

Speaker at the Retail Credit Grantors Association dinner meeting on Friday will be David Robins, credit and collection manager of Frizzell's Motor Products Ltd. He will talk on the fundamental principles of credit granting. The dinner will be held in the Civic Centre dining-room at 6:30 p.m. Afterwards members will adjourn to the ladies' lounge for a business meeting.

In a bulletin to members, the executive committee adds: "As Association meetings will be held every other month, we urge all members to attend these meetings. Your program committee's aim is to provide meetings which will be of direct educational interest to you. We would remind members that the meetings are being planned so that you will be free after 9 p.m. Your executive will keep the meetings short and snappy."

FRASER & PAYNE

THE NEW CENTRAL BUILDING at Jasper Park Lodge is rapidly taking shape and will be ready for the opening of the 1953 season in June. It will be one-third bigger than the old central building and will be completely fire-proof. Of stone and log construction it will harmonize with the alpine character of the rest of the buildings. These artist's drawings show the exterior of the main lodge, looking past the ballroom towards the main entrance, and a section of the interior of the lounge. The old Jasper Park Lodge was destroyed by fire last July.

TO BE COMPLETED IN MAY

New Jasper Park Lodge Under Construction

Special to The Daily News

JASPER—A larger and more beautiful main building, featuring an artistic blending of variegated sandstone and log trim over its concrete and steel frame and harmonizing with the rustic appearance of the surrounding log bungalows, is now being constructed at Jasper Park Lodge.

The new building, designed by G. F. Drummond, chief architect for the C.N.R., will blend with the general topography as well as the existing bungalows. When it is completed next May, it will be an irregular-shaped, single-storey structure fronting Lac Beauvert, with a wing, housing the administration offices, extending from the east side. While classified as a single storey structure, the lodge will have a lower storey running the full length and breadth of the building.

The variegated sandstone is being used as a base for the building, as well as for the enclosing walls of the kitchen and for some gable walls. Laid in random-rubble fashion, the sandstone will add to the rustic character of the famous lodge. Log veneer is being used on sections of the walls near the lake and front entrances, and also around the windows.

The roadway, which encircles an artificial pond and a flagpole, provides easy access to the canopied front entrance on the north side and which opens into the 72 by 30 foot lobby. Here are located the porters' and bell captain's quarters, the bell boys' station and a stairway leading to the lower level.

Off the east side of the lobby is the administration wing, which in its 120 foot length and 75 foot width houses lodge offices, telegraph and ticket offices, telephones, reservations desk, transportation desk, newsstand and shops. From here also a stairway leads to the lower level whose windows take advantage of the lawn which slopes down to the lakefront.

To the west of the lobby is the main lounge, 116 feet long and 90 feet wide, which is nearly divided in two by a huge stone double fireplace. Here, as in all other public rooms, the ceiling is peaked, sloping gently from the centre to the walls on either side. In the lounge itself, the centre section of the roof is in the form of a skylight which runs the full length of the room.

The lounge, as does the dining room, features large "picture" windows which command a spectacular view of Lac Beauvert and the mountain ranges beyond. The lakefront entrance on the south side leads into the lounge from a large verandah, 12 feet wide and 120 feet long, from which steps lead down to a lawn. Directly off the lounge is a ladies' rest room and a check room.

From the lounge, access is provided directly to the adjoining dining room, to the ballroom and to the open air courtyard with its patio and artificial pond. The courtyard, irregular in shape and measuring 82 feet in length and 60 feet in width at its widest point, is located approximately in the centre of the huge structure and is completely enclosed by the walls of the ballroom, dining room, snack bar and kitchen.

The dining room can seat 600 guests at one sitting in its 175 foot by 62 foot area. Massive stone pillars from floor to ceiling add a further touch to the rustic appearance of the new lodge. The orchestra will provide dinner music from a stand along the inner wall of the dining room.

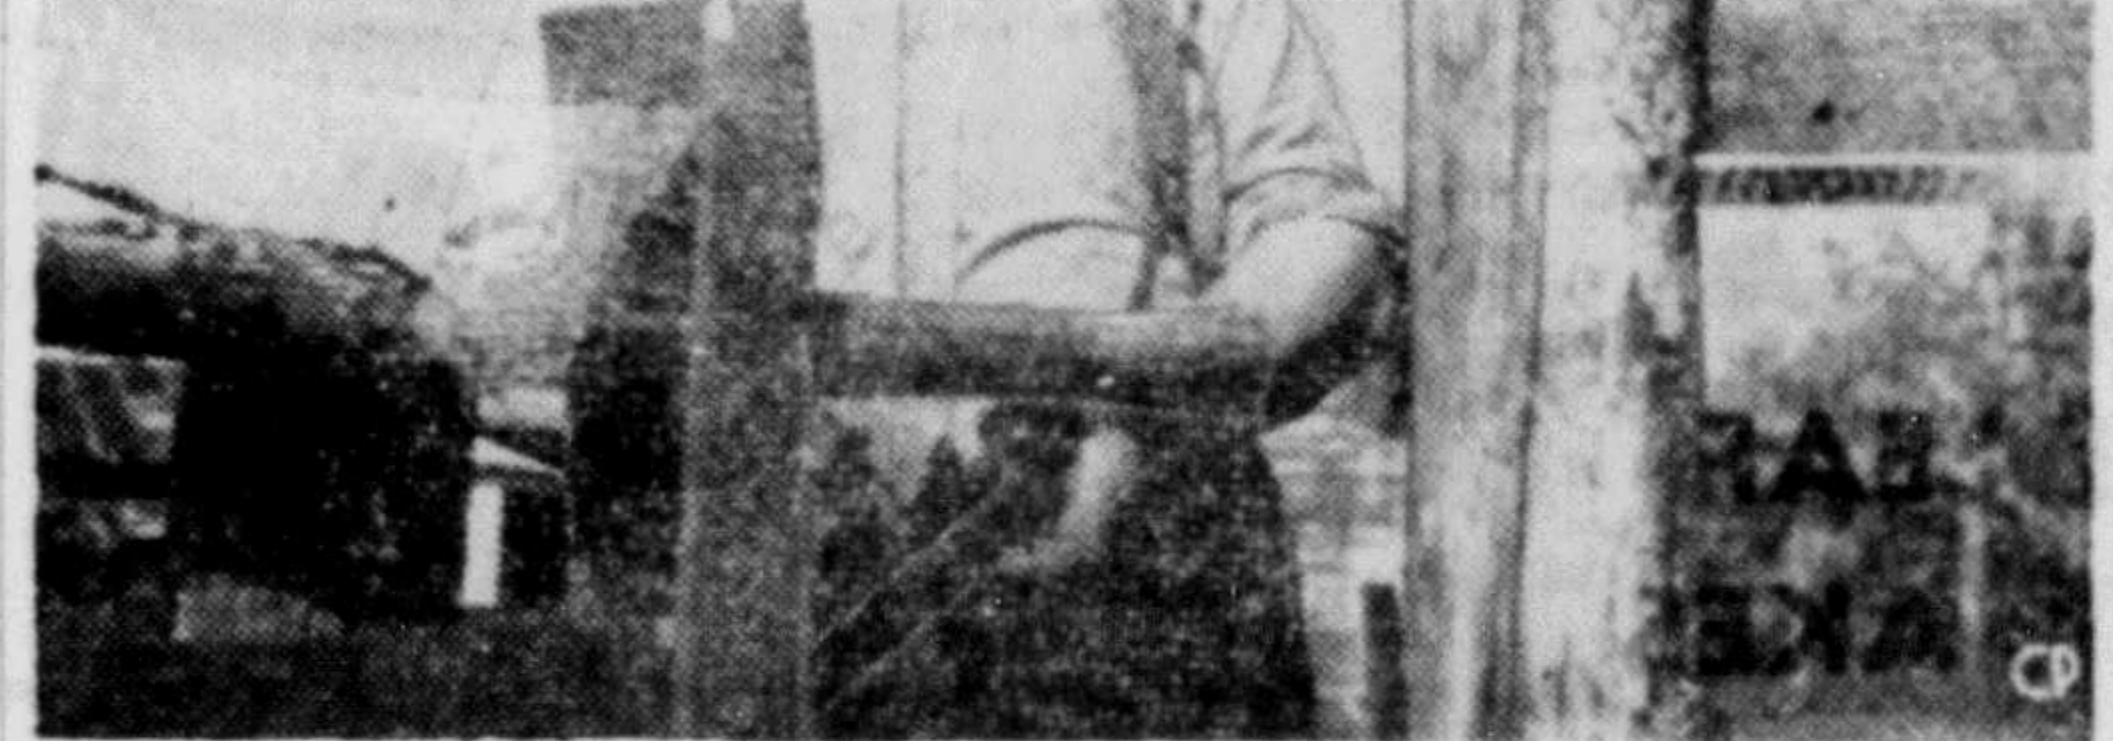

Meals will be prepared in a gleaming kitchen 132 feet by 90 feet which adjoins the dining room. Beyond the kitchen is the officers' dining room, refrigerators and food storage area.

Across the courtyard from the dining room and connected directly with the lounge is the ballroom and ballroom extension measuring 132 feet in length and 41 feet in width. Easy access is provided from the kitchen to the ballroom extension which will also be used for banquets and similar events. The lower level will house a 72-foot by 35-foot recreation room, barber shop, post office, bank, beauty parlor, various offices and the kitchen stores. Direct access to this level from the outside is provided by an entrance fronting Lac Beauvert.

CONTINUES FARMING—It was on Hilton Cook's farm that Imperial Oil drilled the well which "discovered" Canada's biggest oil field to date, Redwater, northeast of Edmonton. Yet Mr. Cook continues his chores, a typically busy farmer, checking his fence posts.

Hiss Denied Parole

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. parole board has turned down the application of Alger Hiss, former state department official now serving a five-year term for perjury.

The board gave no reasons. Hiss was convicted on perjury—lying when under oath—for denying he gave secret government documents to Communist agents. He became eligible for parole last Friday after serving one-third of his sentence.

Hiss, now 48, has persistently denied he was guilty.

Canada Likely to Benefit From U.S. Demand

MONTREAL—In the light of its wealth of resources and "timely capital expansion program," Canada "may reasonably hope to benefit richly over the short and middle term from the colossal appetite for materials of our neighbor to the south," the Bank of Montreal's latest Business Review comments.

The report adds that "if the trend is toward an age of scarcity that can only be averted by major technological developments, we too may be well advised to do some serious stock-taking for the longer range in the midst of our apparent plenty."

This month's statement appraises the recent "Resources for Freedom" report to the U.S. President, by the Materials Policy Commission. This, the bank finds, is "a well-documented and searching analysis of the possibilities for the free world in the period 1970-1980." While primarily concerned with the future of the United States, the Policy Report, as it is known, recognizes that the U.S. outlook is inextricably tied up with the fortunes of the free nations as a whole. "Consequently, it is of no little significance to other countries and to Canada in particular."

In relation to the world outside the Iron Curtain, the United States, has only 9.5 per cent of the population and eight per cent of the land area, yet produces and consumes about half the free world output. It currently uses approximately 2.7 billion tons of materials annually, about 18 tons per person.

Against this backdrop, and assuming that the gross national product in real terms will continue to increase by three per cent per annum, that the population—now 157 millions—will reach a level of 193 millions by 1975, that the work week will be about 15 per cent shorter than in 1950, and that the production per man-hour will rise annually by two and a half per cent, the commission has made a series of projections of possible demand for various industrial materials in the 1970-1980 period.

It expects such an expansion program to involve an increase of not more than 50 to 60 per cent in the total use of materials. But the use of minerals might rise by 90 per cent, and here, particularly, the risk of shortages must be faced. How such enormously expanded needs are to be provided without undue increases in real cost is the major concern of the commission.

"Insofar as the solutions can be provided within the United States' borders, the Commission suggests that the keys are energy sources and technology; that the steering force is, or should be, the 'least cost principle'; and that the instruments include intelligent conservation rather than hoarding, avoidance of economic waste, integrated planning by private enterprise and government, intensive exploration, and topographical and geological mapping."

SCREEN FLASHES
 A tense and true-to-life story of three British airmen's escape from a German prisoner-of-war camp was the exciting fare for those who attended last night's "Curtain at 8:30" presentation at the Totem Theatre.
 In "The Wooden Horse," Eric Williams re-told in fictionalized form his account of an escape in which he himself took part and which he first narrated in a book that became a best-seller. The almost unbelievable adventure started when one of the trio conceived a "classic" way out of Stalag Luft III, inspired by the Trojan Horse of Homeric fame. Under the noses of their captors and in broad daylight the airmen burrowed a tunnel beneath the camp grounds, with the entrance concealed by a vaulting horse. The difficulties and suspense caused when the tunnel opening had to be covered every night and the diggers carried back to barracks inside the "horse" provided a toe-curling thriller.
 An effective feature of the picture was its unpretentious approach. The prison life was convincing, and the cast appeared as genuinely exhausted as the audience felt when it was over.

Skillful Use of Color In Decorating

One of the prime means of achieving beauty in the home is through the intelligent and skillful use of color.

Color is a powerful tool in home decoration; wisely used it can create mood and atmosphere, give your home grace and charm. Misuse of color has been the downfall of more than one well-meaning effort to achieve good decoration.

Miss Eileen Cross, Director of the Home Economics Service of the University of British Columbia Department of Extension, emphasizes that home decorators must keep a few basic facts in mind when dealing with color.

"Knowing the names of the colors is not enough," Miss Cross declares. "You must understand the 'why' of the names."

Pastel tints give a feeling of fragility, airiness and space while the darker shades give a feeling of masculinity, strength and dignity.

Both tints and shades are widely used in home decoration and through their proper use unity, contrast, emphasis and variety are achieved. The greater the contrast the greater will be the gayety, liveliness and movement in a room.

Too many contrasts will bring confusion. Background colors should be of nearly the same value and contrast should be added by accessories and people.

Objects will differ in size because of their color value. Light values will give the impression of greater size while dark values will decrease the feeling of size. This applies to walls, furniture and upholstery materials.

By graying hues it is possible to produce other variations of color. Graying reduces the brightness or intensity of color and can be used in large areas. Full strong colors should be used in moderate amounts and as accents. In large amounts they are tiring and produce the effects of loudness and vulgarity.

Today the soft muted colors such as sandalwood, mint-green, coral, rosewood and French blue have become very popular and give a room quietness and good taste.

Double-Strength Brew in Store For Britons

LONDON (Reuters)—Television is changing Britain's beer-drinking habits and the new double strength coronation brew announced Monday may encourage the shift from the local "pub" to the living room.

In Britain TV is almost strictly a home affair. Few sets are mounted in the old-style taverns. With video's growing popularity, the trend is to take home a dozen bottles of beer instead of sticking around the pub for the nightly pint.

The special beer to be brewed in honor of the coronation is to be put in souvenir bottles. Few drinkers will be tempted to go home from their local bar with pockets full of empty souvenirs. They will be much more likely to lay in a stock for home consumption—with or without TV.

British pubs are full of "atmosphere"—and ranging from stained glass windows and brown-and-white Tudor architecture to plain paneled rooms stacked with huge wooden casks.

But most of it is lost on the average Briton. He goes there because there is a fire. Many now are staying in their radiator-less homes with a small gas heater and the TV set.

Draft beer sells for the equivalent of 20 cents a pint glass. The coronation ale, twice as strong, will go for about 35 cents—in a decorated "nip" bottle holding about six ounces.

Double-strength ale is nothing new. As the "gravity" of British beer has declined in late years excuses for strong brew have been welcome. Last excuse was the "festival ale" brewed for the 1951 Festival of Britain.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD
 Unlike Muzzy, Champion Knows How To 'Gamble'

Mr. Muzzy often makes what he calls "gambling" bids. Usually these are not gambles at all. They are sure things. That is, the opponents are sure to get all the points. These bids consist of blind slams at game or slam contracts, completely unjustified by the cards actually held.

When Mr. Muzzy incurs the ire of his partner after one of these "gambling" bids has been doubled and set eight hundred, his standard remark is, "Well, you've got to take a gamble now and then in this game." The implication is that if you don't go along with his bidding insanity you are lacking in sporting blood. If you played with Mr. Muzzy as a partner all the time, then, you would have only two choices. You could be a coward—or you could be a pauper.

One of the comforting things about playing with a fine partner is that you don't have to push the bidding for fear of missing your maximum contract. In today's deal Mr. Champion described his own hand accurately as possible, knowing that the final decision between a small or a grand slam would be made correctly by his partner, Mr. Masters.

Mr. Masters' bidding was as strong as it could be, short of bidding the grand slam himself. After his first bid, the jump take-out in hearts, he bid both spades and clubs with the intention of indicating first round controls in those two suits. Then he jumped to six diamonds.

Throughout the course of bidding, Mr. Masters had clearly indicated that he had a minimum opening bid. When the auction reached the six diamond stage he still had a minimum hand. Yet he went on to seven. He correctly reasoned that the only thing worrying Mr. Champion was the trump suit itself. For example, he would have had a sound opening bid with S-Q J 9, H-4, D-A J 8 7 4, C-K Q J 9. And, with that holding, the grand slam would have been hopeless.

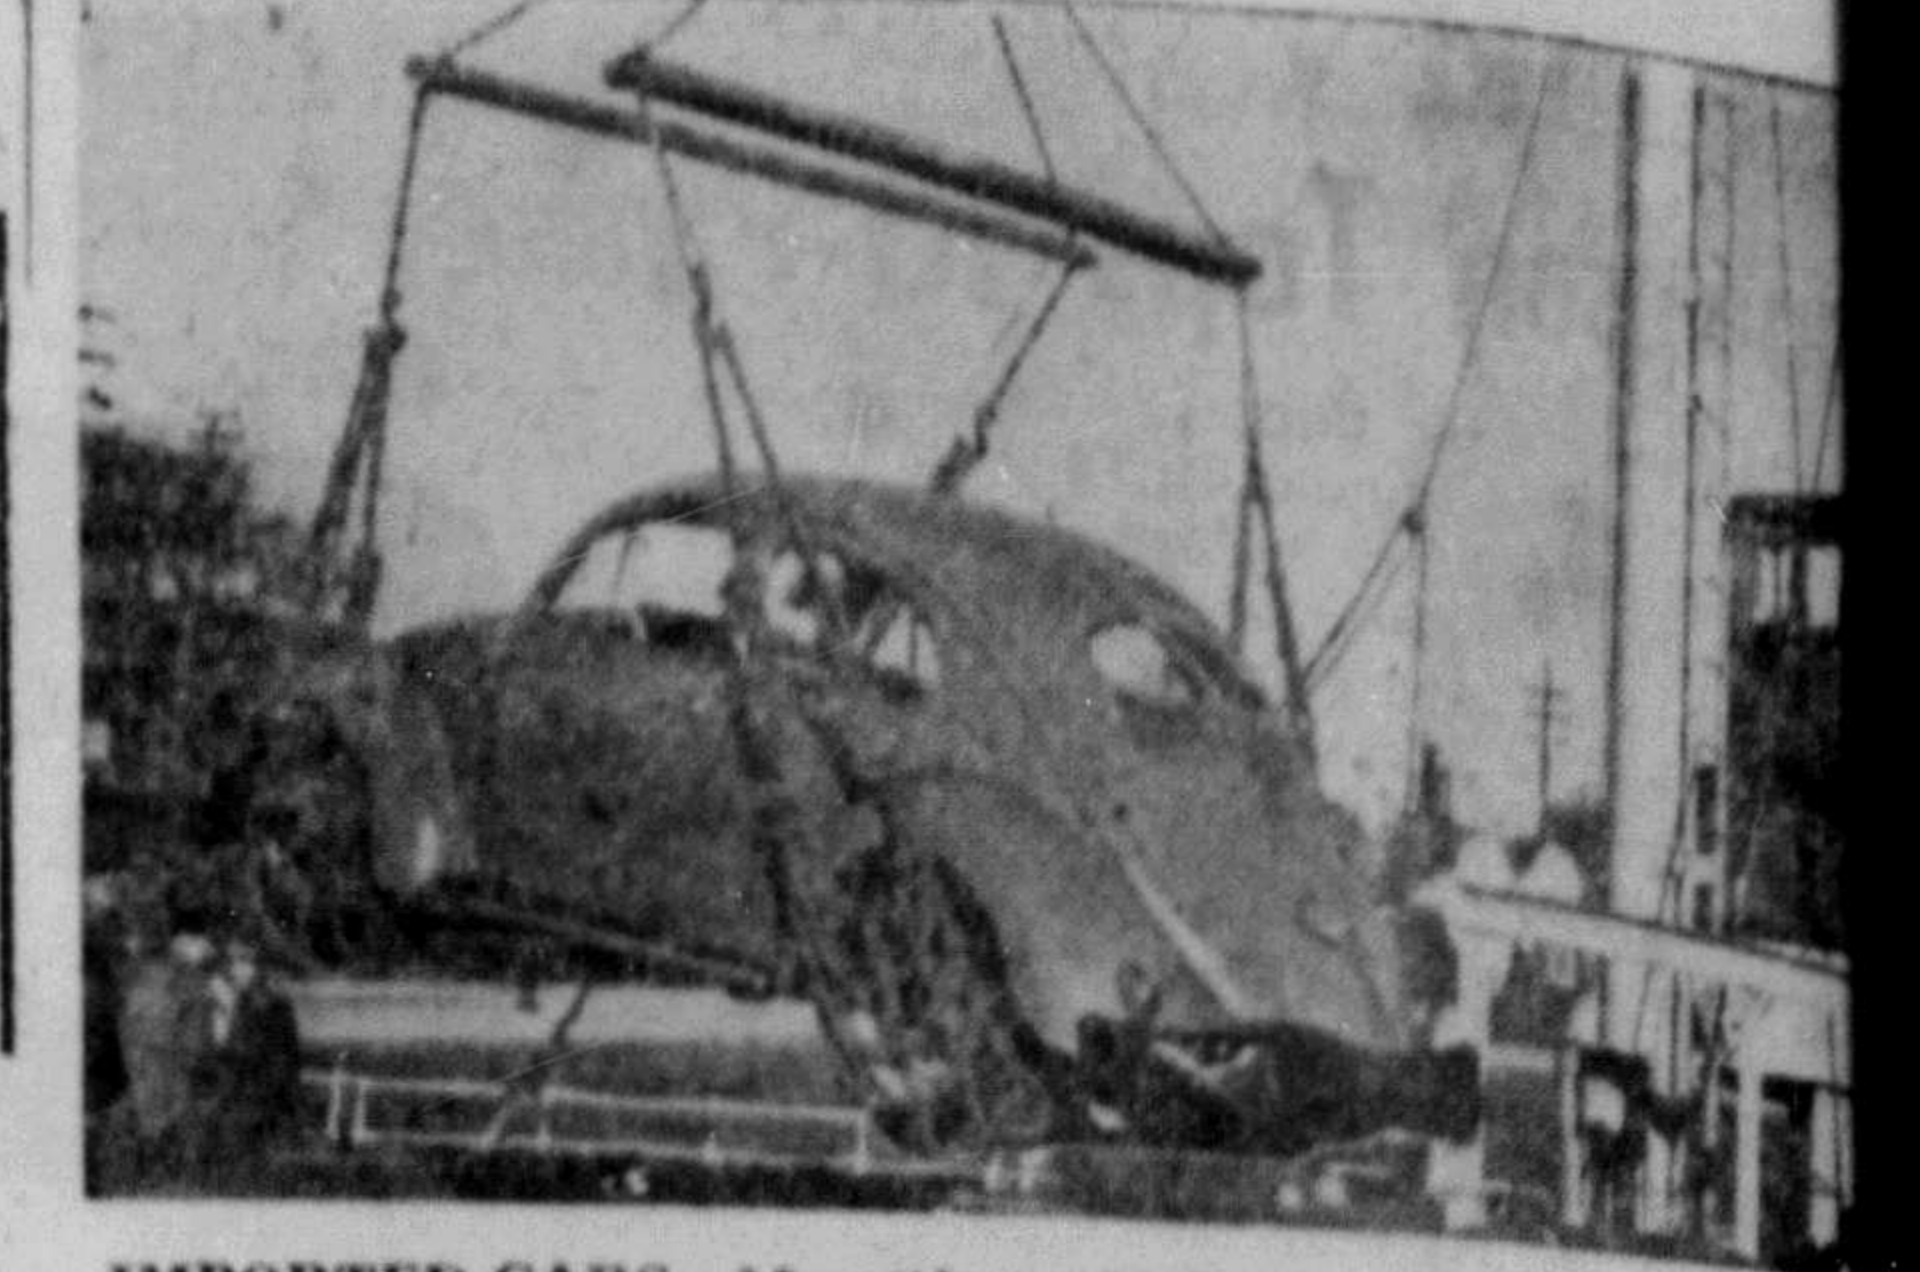

But holding a five-card suit headed by three of the top four honors he felt that the odds were 2 to 1 or better that the combined hands would win thirteen tricks.

The wood of the Eastern Cedar, noted for its durability, has always been a favorite for canoes.

TRAIN DERAILED—A Diesel locomotive plunged over a 40-foot embankment near the Canadian Pacific Railway yards near Oshawa, Ont., when it crashed into the rear of a freight. Two railwaymen who clung to the locomotive were uninjured but a brakeman who jumped clear before the crash was taken to hospital suffering from bruises. Seven cars were derailed and 100 yards of track torn up. Circled is the caboose that was struck. (CP PHOTO)

Charles Scores Easy Victory

CHICAGO (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles scored a first round knockdown then plodded to a unanimous 10-round decision over Jimmy Bivins in a dull Chicago Stadium bout last night. Charles, of Cincinnati, gunning for a shot at the heavyweight crown, weighed 185. Bivins, Cleveland veteran who had met Charles four times previously, scaled 183. COURT SENDS BOY, GOAT, GREEN PILL UP THE HILL

CHATHAM, England (Reuters)—A boy, a goat and a green pill rode to a probation home yesterday under a juvenile court agreement. The boy, in need of care and protection, refused to go without his pet goat. Court attendants on judge's orders removed the back seat of an official car and shoved the goat in for a two-year stay in the home with his master. The green pill? That was to keep the goat from getting carsick.

Rookies Aid Rangers to Win First Game Against Toronto

Michigan No. 1 Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Michigan State was voted the No. 1 college football team in the United States for the seventh straight week. The Spartans closed out their season Saturday by walloping Marquette 62-13.

Maryland dropped out of the top 10 after losing to Alabama 27-7.

Southern California was second, Georgia Tech third, Oklahoma fourth, University of California at Los Angeles fifth.

NEW YORK (AP)—Rookies Dean Justice and Kelly Burnett scored the first goals in their National Hockey League career and Don Raleigh his first of the season to steer the New York Rangers to a 4-2 victory over Toronto's Maple Leafs Wednesday night.

Rangers built up a 3-0 lead and almost blew it during the late stages of the second period but rallied and held the Leafs at bay the rest of the way to pick up their third victory of the season and their first in four attempts against the Leafs.

On hand for the game were 12,813 fans.

Argos, Eskies Meet Saturday in Grey Cup

TORONTO (AP)—Toronto Argonauts won the Eastern Canada football championship by swamping Sarnia Imperials 34-15 under a six-touchdown scoring bombardment.

Wednesday's victory gave the Argonauts a chance to make a bid for their second Grey Cup in three years when they meet Frank Fliechok's Edmonton Eskimos in the east-west final here Saturday.

Argonauts won the Grey Cup in 1950 when they beat Winnipeg Blue Bombers 13-0.

The Argonauts had no trouble with the Imperials and the only thing in doubt after striking for two quick touchdowns in first quarter was how large the margin would be over the plucky team from the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

SPORTS ROUND-UP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the pleasures for a visitor to Australia is the chance to come to grips with a real, live bookmaker, a species said to be extinct at United States and Canadian tracks.

For some reason we haven't yet figured out, there is a great deal more pleasure in hitting another human being for a bundle of bank notes than there is in being paid off by a track employee at the cashier's window. It's more personal money, you might say.

The Australians believe in giving a man his choice, bookmaker or pari-mutuel, right on the premises and there seems to be no conflict between the two methods of betting. They seem, rather, to complement one another.

It is possible to stand in one spot and see both the prices offered by the long line of bookies and the probable odds flashed upon the tote board, which, incidentally, was invented by an Australian. This lends itself to a little extra excitement, because the patron, having decided upon a horse, then has to choose between man and machine.

The bookies, by some obscure signal system, keep in pretty close agreement on the principal entries. Say they are offering 5 to 1 against the animal you fancy while the tote indicates a payoff slightly longer. You take your choice, and we invariably took the bookie.

BETS WITH BOOKIES

Our reasoning was that a late rush of money into the machines might send the price tumbling down to 2 to 1 or even short in the iron men, whereas we had our man hooked for 5 to 1 no matter what happened. The fact that it never turned out that way has not lessened our faith in the system.

The big money betters, we noted, also appeared to favor the men under the umbrellas. The bookies and their assistants stand with their backs to the men-only, clubhouse enclosure, accepting the modest offerings of the general public outside the fence.

The clubhouse toff strolls nonchalantly past and, without breaking stride, murmurs "two thousand on number three." The bookie takes a fleeting glance over his shoulder, scribbles a note on his pad, and goes right on hawking his odds.

The man thus has got down a hefty bet of $4,500 without sending it through the machines and affecting the price. He has made both himself and the bookie happy. The arrangement, we were told, is that payment of all such bets is due on the following Monday, and that the percentage of payment is 100 per cent period.

We are not trying to sell anything. Perhaps such an arrangement wouldn't work here but it sure works in Australia, where racing ranks right along with tennis and swimming in public affection.

HISTORIC EVENTS—Canada's top political leaders were asked by The Canadian Press to pick the most historic event during the 21st Parliament elected June 27, 1949. Prime Minister St. Laurent said the presence of Newfoundland's first representative in Parliament was tops. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, picked Parliament's 1950 decision to back United Nations action in Korea. M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, and Solon Low, Social Credit leader, listed legislation providing pensions of $40 a month to all Canadians 70 and over. U.S. Actors To Invade British Stage

LONDON (Reuters) — Two United States actor-producers are planning a major American invasion of the British stage and screen world for Coronation year.

Between them if all goes well, Sam Wanamaker and Joe Ferrer, hope to have six plays, a musical comedy and a movie in production here by Coronation time next June 2.

The 33-year-old Wanamaker is setting the wheels in motion for three plays and a movie version of one of them.

Here to play in his own production of Clifford Odets' "Winter Journey" known also as "The Country Girl," Wanamaker found himself with lots of time to plan when the show closed unexpectedly a couple of weeks ago.

First on his list is Sean O'Casey's anglophobic "Purple Dust," which has never been seen in London since the Irish playwright wrote it seven years ago. Plans on this adventure are still uncertain; producer and author still are negotiating.

Then there's Maxwell Anderson's "Anne of the Thousand Days," in which Rex Harrison made a big hit in New York a few years back. Wanamaker hopes to get British actors Trevor Howard and Joan Greenwood for the lead roles and to make a movie version with the same cast.

Last on the Wanamaker list is Tennessee Williams' "The Rose Tattoo," in which he will play a sensual Sicilian truck driver.

GOLDEN TOUCH

Ferrer, the 40-year-old Puerto Rican with the golden touch, has three plays and a musical on the books. He is working hard after finishing the movie "Moulin Rouge," in which he plays the mis-shapen artist, Toulouse Lautrec.

His plays are "The Shrike," "Stalag 17" and "The Silver Whistle." The last gave Ferrer a choice part as a philosophic tramp who turns an old folks' home upside down.

The musical is "Cabin in the Sky," which he hopes will go down well here following the outstanding success of the other Negro musical, Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

OPENS PARLIAMENT—Governor-General Vincent Massey is greeted by Prime Minister St. Laurent on his arrival at the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa at the opening of the seventh session of Canada's 21st Parliament. News Agency Gets Conviction For Selling 'Obscene' Books

OTTAWA (CP)—County judge A. G. McDougall today convicted the National News Agency of 11 charges of distributing obscene literature to Ottawa news-stands.

The company, brought into court several weeks ago after authorities ordered a seizure of a quantity of books on news-stands, was fined $100 and costs on each charge.

J. M. McLean, counsel for the company, announced an appeal would be made.

The convictions followed a long trial that ended Oct. 17. At the hearings, expert witnesses gave conflicting testimony as to the literature qualities and the question of obscenity involved in the books.

Dealing today with one of them Erskine Caldwell's "Tragic Ground"—Judge McDougall said it deals from beginning to end with the subject of sex.

"The language is lewd and filthy, and the actions and habits of the characters in the book are in the same category," he said.

"In my opinion, the tendency of the book would be to deprave and corrupt many of those into whose hands it would fall."

Other books involved in the charges were Caldwell's "Journeyman," "Women's Barracks," by Torka Torres and "Diamond Lil" by Mae West.

The remainder of the indictments were based on these picture magazines: Paris Models, Peep Show, Gala, Eye-ful, Titter, Wink and Beauty Parade.

Cheap Gold' Spells Ruin For Industry

HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A world-wide "cheap gold" policy is threatening to snap the tough pioneer spirit of Canada's north.

Years of Canadian gold mining have closed, thousands of miners have left homes in search of new jobs and unsteady has settled on some two thriving northern communities.

Inspectors once lured to the search of the precious metal are now turning to uranium. But not with the same success.

There is no substitute for gold mining on a "rush" to the vast untapped bushland. Gold, in the north, has been the main force to break Canada's northern frontier.

Now the pioneers have gold unproductive and the north has withered.

At the roots of this threat to the pioneering and expansion of Canada's North is the policy of the official world market of gold. It has been held at a fine ounce in United States funds for two decades.

Production costs have more than doubled.

And this rigidity in the price has the world crisis and finance. The threat to Canada's northland may grow that crisis is overcome.

Unbalanced world trade, with the United States' big industrial might, has the U.S. the world's greatest producer of gold.

The U.S.—with some $25,000,000 in gold reserves and the world's greatest creditor—is the most powerful force in deciding the official price of gold. And she has decided that the price will not change.

Officially, the official price of gold is set by the International Monetary Fund.

President Stewart Alsbury of the International Woodworkers of America CIO suggested in a broadcast speech here the time had arrived for "reconsideration of our wage rates."

Under the arbitration settlement of the 45-day summer strike, Chief Justice Gordon Sloan said either party to the contract could "re-open negotiations for either an increase or decrease in the basic wage upon the then known prevailing market and other relevant factors."

Alsbury said: "Nothing disastrous has happened since June 15 which would prevent another objective examination of the wage rates in relation to the surplus earnings of the industry."

The Sloan settlement provided for re-opening negotiations on the master contract between Dec. 1 and Jan. 1.

"All the factors give good grounds for much greater optimism regarding future market prospects," Alsbury said.

He noted the lessened demand from the United Kingdom, but said it was not the deciding factor in production statistics to meet Canadian and United States home-building programs.

John Billings, spokesman for the operators, said there has been no discussion on the possibility of re-opening the contract.

Monetary Fund, the world agency for stabilizing national currencies. But since the U.S. is practically the only country with sufficient dollars to buy all gold offered, and already holds two-thirds of the total $36,000,000,000 held by the countries in the free world, she is in the driver's seat.

Russia is a great gold producer, but no one is quite sure how much she holds. Russia has kept out of the fund and so far has kept out of the world gold-price issue.

Canada, South Africa and other gold-producing countries have repeatedly asked the U.S. to boost the official price to, perhaps, $50 an ounce. The Americans hold this move would be inflationary. And it would not help those countries which do not produce the precious metal.

As an alternative, gold-producing countries have sought higher prices on the so-called "free" or industrial markets, which mostly cater to private hoarders.

At one time the "free" price hovered between $50 and $60 an ounce. But once gold from South Africa and then from Canada moved into the market the price fell and now hovers between $37 and $38.

The free market still offers a good market for low-cost producers. Those who sell on the free market must debase the gold with an alloy so that its difference from pure monetary gold can be easily detected.

And those who sell on the free market lost their chance to obtain the government cost-aid subsidy, established in 1948 to aid the high-cost mines.

If it were not for that subsidy—which currently averages about $2.80 a fine ounce—Canada's gold production would have fallen sharply. But the industry now finds that even that is not enough. It has appealed for an increase and the government has promised sympathetic consideration.

But whether even this possible increase will curb shrinkage in the $200,000,000 industry is still uncertain. It's the high-cost little mines and not the low-cost big ones that are feeling the pinch.

There is little doubt about the impact of low selling prices on the search for gold. For two years now, 1951 and 1952, there have been no new mines opening. And industry spokesmen say this trend is having its impact on base metal discoveries too. Many of Canada's biggest base metal mines have been discovered by prospectors searching for the yellow metal.

Big Company Lawyer Cites Defence Against Government Anti-Trust Suit

CHICAGO (AP)—A lawyer defending the multi-million dollar du Pont interests in federal court today asserted "bigness is not yet an offence under the anti-trust laws."

John Harlan made the opening statement for the defence in the government's civil anti-trust suit against three huge corporations, 117 members of the du Pont family and three du Pont holding companies.

"The government seems to feel that the du Pont company is just too big," Harlan said. The du Pont family runs the vast E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company. The government claims the family, through stock holdings, also controls two other defendant corporations, General Motors Corporation and the U.S. Rubber Company.

The government seeks to force the du Ponts to sell their stock in General Motors and U.S. Rubber. It has charged that the defendants violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Act by restraining trade and discouraging competition.

'Pain Lines' Killed in New Surgery to Ease Discomfort

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ST. LOUIS (AP)—New discoveries about how nerves telegraph pain have led to a surer operation to kill incessant pain from cancer or other causes.

The operation cuts into the spinal cord at a point just below the brain. This surgery, chordotomy, is not new. But the new findings show how to do it more efficiently, how far to cut into the spinal cord, safely, to end pain originating in the arms, legs, trunk, or face.

The operation is done under local anesthetic. The patient remains conscious. The patient tells the surgeon whether he can feel pin-pricks when a pin is jabbed lightly into the skin of his body. When the patient no longer can feel the pricks applied to one area, it also means that he will no longer feel pain from cancer in that area.

The nerve studies were made by Dr. Henry G. Schwartz, professor of neurosurgery, and Dr. James L. O'Leary, professor of neurology, of Washington University school of medicine.

TWO PAINS

There are two main kinds of pain. One is prickling pain, which is telegraphed along the nerves at a speed of 30 yards a second. The other is slow-moving, burning pain, telegraphed at only two yards a second. Cancer causes the slow-moving type.

The nerve telegraph lines for both kinds of pain coincide in the spinal cord, Schwartz and O'Leary found, at a point just below the thalamus in the base of the fore-brain. The thalamus is the last important relay point for all feelings of sensation that register in the brain.

The surgery cuts into the cord to sever the pain lines, but without cutting the cord completely. That would be fatal.

The pin-prick tests tell the surgeon how deeply to nick the spinal cord. The pain pathways for different parts of the body lie at different depths within the spinal cord.

The nerves for the area at the base of the trunk lie nearest the outside of the cord. Those for the leg lie a bit deeper, those for the trunk still deeper, those for the arms and the face are closest of all pain lines to the centre of the cord.

Only the pain message lines are cut. The patient still can move and control the leg or other part of his body.

Currency Conversion Under Study

By FRASER WIGHTON
LONDON (Reuters)—One of the free world's top financial headaches, how to bring dollars and sterling into balance, comes before a Commonwealth conference here today.

Top Commonwealth ministers will discuss how to staunch the dollar-draining wounds to the sterling area's economy. It will be the Commonwealth's most momentous economic conference since the Ottawa meeting 30 years ago.

All nine Commonwealth countries agree that the aim should be free convertibility of the frozen pound into dollars. The question is: how can it be done?

The experts recognize that whatever action they take represents only one side of the picture since they speak for only one of the two major currencies in the free world. Therefore, the discussions of about two weeks will be followed by Commonwealth discussions with the United States.

FEAR REPUBLICANS

There is apprehension that the new Republican administration might revert to the party's traditional high-tariff policy. This would blow up one of the chief planks in the Commonwealth program, increased exports to the U.S. to fortify the Commonwealth's dollar balances.

Canada, only Commonwealth country not included in the sterling bloc, will plump for convertibility to re-open British markets for Canadian foodstuffs and manufactured goods.

Britain, banker for the sterling area, slashed her imports in the last year to stem the dollar blow and right the nation's economy. At the forthcoming conference, Britain will seek means for liberalizing her trade, especially with Europe, so as not to encourage reciprocal import slashes by foreign countries.

The target set last year for bringing the sterling area in current payments balance with the non-sterling world has been achieved six months ahead of schedule. It is expected there will be a small surplus in the balance of payments by the end of this year.

But until there is an understanding reached between dollar and sterling, British observers see no hope of establishing full convertibility and an end to restrictive trade policies.

U.S. Cannery Request More Japanese Tuna

WASHINGTON (AP) Six West Coast cannery have asked Japan to ship more tuna to the United States this year, a spokesman for the Japanese Council on Tuna exports told the U.S. Tariff commission here.

California cannery have been accused of inconsistency in seeking a limit on imports of tuna to the U.S. and then buying additional quantities.

The spokesman, Emil N. Baar of New York, gave an account of tuna trade relations in a statement prepared for delivery to the commission.

He recalled that the Japanese government had put a quota of 12,000 tons on exports of the fish. Most of this was quickly sold, he said.

"Despite the good harvest of albacore tuna in our waters," he went on, "American cannery, through our State Department, requested the Japanese government to raise the quota by 6,000 tons."

Maori Queen Buys Wardrobe, Plans to Attend Coronation

AUCKLAND — (Reuters) — Queen Salote of Tongas, six-foot-three, 280-pound monarch of the idyllic "Islands of Love" arrived here recently to choose a new wardrobe for the Coronation of Elizabeth in London next June 2.

The only Commonwealth queen outside Britain, Salote will attend the Coronation as a state guest. She is expected to spend about three months here preparing for the trip.

The 52-year-old handsome ruler has always followed the fashion styles of Britain's Queen Mary, and will probably choose long stately dresses and robes for her first western visit in 21 years.

She will bring to Elizabeth the greetings of one of the world's happiest and friendliest peoples, who have adhered to the Commonwealth in peace and loyalty for the last 51 years.

NO TAXES

The Tongas, a group of about 150 islands 600 miles east of Australia in the southwest Pacific, fight no wars, pay no taxes, have no national debt, no housing shortage, and no economic worries.

They were first named the Friendly Islands after the reception Capt. Cook received when he landed there 180 years ago.

A giant tortoise, presented by Cook to the islands' chief, still strolls benignly about the palace gardens, the symbol of Tongas' Tugi, is Crown Prince.

friendship with Britain.

In 1901, Salote's grandfather sought protection from native wars and asked for incorporation as a self-governing member of the Commonwealth. Tongas has been run by a Parliament on the British system ever since.

Salote was educated in New Zealand and speaks perfect English. Before the war she played a powerful game of golf, but is less active today. Her name is a localized version of "Charlotte."

Her reputation as one of the world's best hostesses grows yearly. A wedding feast for the double marriage of her two sons three years ago took 10 days.

She carries her 280 pounds with grace and dignity, and her copper skin and grey hair add to her regal appearance. She is a pure Maori—the tribe which originally peopled New Zealand—and can trace her regal ancestry back 900 years.

Her husband, Prince Tuni, whom she married in 1917, died in 1942. They had two sons, the older of whom, also called Prince Tugi, is Crown Prince.

Athabaska Sands Hold Huge Oil Supply

(Canada may some day be the world's greatest producer of oil—and the oil may be mined instead of taken out of wells. This story, one of a series, describes the rich Athabaska oil sands in northern Alberta, and the hunt for a cheap method of getting out its vast riches.—Editor)

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Northern Alberta has as much known oil as all the rest of the world put together.

This oil doesn't have to be looked for. It is in sight for anyone to see, or would be with little digging. It has been known since the fur traders first followed the Indian canoe routes.

It is the oil in the Athabaska sands. It is heavy and dark, but it is oil and can be refined into as much gasoline, say, as the lighter crudes ordinarily used.

The sands are the only such large body known, and are not to be confused with oil shales in which oil is chemically part of other matter.

In northern Alberta the oil is mixed with sand, but it is not part of the sand. Taking it out is not so much a matter of extraction as of separation. It can be washed out. If the sand is left long enough exposed on the ground, ordinary surface water action will separate the oil.

Dr. Karl A. Clark, with whom I visited the sands recently, said:

"They have been a taunt to North America for generations. They wear a smirk which seems to say: 'When are you going to do something?'"

Something has been done. Federal and Alberta governments and private interests have made examinations and tests for years.

Finally, Alberta built a pilot plant at Bitumont on the Athabaska River, 300 miles north of Edmonton, and demonstrated in 1949 that separation is practicable with a process using hot water and steam.

Then Alberta appointed Dr. S. M. Blair of Toronto to see if the oil could be produced and marketed economically.

Dr. Blair's conclusion was that it can be laid down at the head of the lakes at a profit of 40 cents a barrel.

This would be as a distillate comprising about 80 per cent of the original oil, with sulphur removed; and the profit quoted would be on what it would bring as No. 2 fuel oil.

No. 2 fuel, in addition to its own uses, is a raw material for making gasoline.

Dr. Clark is professor of mineralogy at the University of Alberta and supervisor for the Alberta research council of oil-sand studies. He says of Dr. Blair's report:

"It landed oil-sand development into present-day possibilities. The marginal amount of profit is not what matters; the significant thing is that there was a profit at all. Previously, we didn't know."

Dr. John L. Robinson, Alberta minister of industries, thinks commercial production will be under way in about 10 years.

"The sands," he said, "are a big factor in future world oil supply. Reports indicate that in 25 years the United States will be short of oil for its own requirements, so there should be no question of a market."

Oil in the sands is estimated at from 100,000,000,000 to 250,000,000,000 barrels—enough to last Canada, at present rate of consumption, for 500 years and up.

Extent of the sands is not known. Some 1,500 square miles is in sight, and estimates run up to 30,000 square miles. They have been encountered at 2,000-foot depth as far away as Lesser Slave Lake, 200 miles northeast of the main deposits.

A good sample has between 12 and 17 per cent of oil by weight and 30 per cent by volume—but samples are not of uniform richness.

The body of immediate interest runs for 75 miles along the Athabaska River and its tributaries, as it flows north from Fort McMurray and near-by Waterways, northern terminal of the Northern Alberta Railway.

Oil and sand as ordinarily found form a fairly solid mass, but when they are pried loose they can be broken up in one's hands and become just black oily sand. After separation, the sand is light-colored and looks like a good material for a bathing beach.

A number of oil companies have taken out exploration leases, including Socony-Vacuum and Sun Oil, two United States concerns. In addition, Swedish interests experienced in extracting oil from Swedish shales are conducting experiments.

Two broad approaches to the separation problem are being considered. One method, for the rich sands, is to mine them by open-pit methods and treat them in a separation plant.

The other is to leave the sand where it is and apply heat to cause separation. This system, under which electric heaters are placed in drill holes, has been used in Swedish shales.

The sands can be plainly seen along the Athabaska River banks. They are about 200 feet deep and away from the river are covered by an overburden of earth and boulders from a few feet to 200 feet deep.

Origin of the oil is not known. Some say it escaped from Devonian limestone upon which the sands sit, and some that it originates in the later cretaceous formations of which the sands form part.

Devonian limestone is the chief source of oil discoveries in the Edmonton area. There it is at a depth of about a half-mile in the Redwater field and a mile in the Leduc field.

In the sands area, however, the Devonian is almost at the surface and shows above the water-line of the Athabaska River.

TV Changes Home Life, Charges Survey Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Television influences more than children, the Canadian Film Institute reports in a study just completed of television's effect on Ontario community.

The Institute, formerly the National Film Society of Canada, is an organization promoting the educational and cultural value of films. The television survey was made during a period longer than a year in a southern Ontario community of about 100,000 population. This town had TV reception from the United States for more than two years, over three or more months.

The survey therefore does not show possible changes in viewing habits since Canadian television went on the air this year in Toronto and Montreal.

The writer of the report, Mary Lee of Toronto, says that in the area under survey television programmes were mainly adult pastimes as bridge and ping-pong were losing patronage. Teenagers were said to prefer active in the company of their own age. Among the young set as a whole children of public school age were said to be most interested.

The survey said television has a decided effect on family life. The entire living-room furniture discarded as unsuitable to the new form of entertainment," it says.

British Plan Research To Stop 'Flu

LONDON (AP)—The ministry of health in co-operation with the British Medical Research Council will launch a large-scale experiment in December in an attempt to stop influenza epidemics that periodically sweep the country.

Some 15,000 volunteers, enlisted from industry, universities and hospital staffs, will participate in the tests to be made in selected areas of the United Kingdom.

The volunteers will be segregated. One group will receive inoculations with a recently developed vaccine, reported to have produced encouraging results. The remainder will be given a type of vaccine available for years. Detailed records will be kept of their reactions.

Stock Market Wizard Awes Japanese With His Success

By FRED SAITO
TOKYO (AP)—The wizard of the booming Japanese stock market is a 37-year-old South Korean who started without a penny of his own in 1945 and now speculates with some $10,000,000 entrusted to him by millions of clients.

His personal fortune is a secret, but Matsutomi Ito is a wide contrast to more than 600,000 other Koreans in Japan, most of them poverty-stricken day laborers, looked upon as second class citizens.

Ito now heads a private stock investment fund with 180 branches throughout the country. The powerful Hong-anji Buddhist sect with 10,000,000 followers is one of his best customers.

Japanese brokers look with awe upon this slight young man who adopted a Japanese name and is now a naturalized citizen.

Ito came to Japan in 1928 to live with his brother, a factory worker now missing in Korea. Now he lives in a palace-sized house and travels in a chauffeur-driven limousine.

After the Second World War Ito borrowed money and headed for the countryside to buy food and bring it to starving Tokyo.

"It was a strenuous business but rewarded with 100 per cent profit in the chaotic days when many faced starvation," Ito told an interviewer.

Ito turned away from his fellow Koreans. "I have no friends in the Korean community and don't seek them," he said.

With funds gained from his food dealings, Ito started a stock brokerage business in Tokyo's east-end slum district in 1948.

He proved a genius at figuring the twistings and turnings of Japan's bouncing market. He borrowed money from investors and speculated on his own, dividing the profits later.

The average of 225 stocks issued on the market recently advanced from 167 yen, early in January, to 329 yen on Nov. 19. One Japanese camera firm's stock shot up from 165 yen to 415 yen in two weeks.

Ito learned to call the turn and he's still at it.

'Jet-Stream' Winds Push Strato-Liner

HONOLULU (AP)—A Pan American Airways strato-cruiser rode "jet stream" winds for 3,950 non-stop miles across the Pacific from Tokyo to Honolulu in 11½ hours.

Because of the winds, non-stop flights—nearly seven hours shorter than those which stop at Wake Island in the central Pacific—will become routine in early December.

Sidney M. Serebreny, meteorologist, spent three years in research on the jet stream air currents. He was aboard on the pace-making flight.

The high-speed currents flow west-to-east across the Pacific at certain altitudes about six months a year. The strato-cruiser, flying at altitudes of 18,000 to 27,000 feet, was pushed along by tail winds which averaged 60 miles an hour and hit a peak of 126 miles an hour.

Serebreny said the non-stop service will be possible only from Nov. 15 to April 15, the jet stream season.
