ORIENTAL QUESTION BROUGHT BEFORE B.C. LEGISLATURE

EDITORIAL
BEAUTIFY THE CITY

Spring will be here very soon and it is suggested that an effort should be made this year to beautify the city by means of window boxes and flower gardens. Window boxes are no longer experiments. They have been used for years in Prince Rupert and have proved very successful. Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Benson have been among the leaders in this just as Mr. and Mrs. Eggert have been among the leaders in beautiful gardens. What they have done, others can do, if they use the same amount of industry and intelligence. Of late years many have fallen in line and added beauty spots here and there all over the city. The railway company has done its bit with excellent results. The suggestion is that everyone in the city be persuaded to do something this spring to make the city more beautiful and the same more attractive. If some of the myriads of organizations in the city would take up this matter and possibly offer prizes and by a personal canvass induce the people to act, it would help. Window boxes may be made at home at small cost and for those who cannot afford to buy plants a few cents worth of nasturtium seeds will often produce plants that make a good showing. Some of the nasturtium boxes have been most artistic. Let us aim to show that the climate of Prince Rupert is not as bad as it has been painted in the south. If everyone will do something, the city may be transformed in one season.

Member of Alberta Legislature Speaks Against Proposed Scheme for Dual Ownership

EDMONTON, Feb. 15.—In the Alberta Legislature Lucien Boudreau, Liberal member for St. Albert came out flat-footed against the plan for joint purchase of the E.D. & B.C. Railway by the C.P.R. and C.N.R. He said while acknowledging the good work done in the country by the C.P.R. this was a case where it would be better for the Canadian National Railway to own the line. He claimed that the Government was in the hands of the Bank of Montreal.

Oriental Question Again Precipitated Into Arena of Political Maelstrom

Resolution to Ask Dominion Government to Allow no More Asiatics to Enter Canada is Introduced to Legislature

VICTORIA, February 15.—W. F. Kennedy, Conservative member for North Okanagan, has filed a resolution asking the House to request the Federal government to allow no more Orientals to enter the Dominion. The motion is an amendment to that of C. F. Davie, Conservative member for Newcastle calling for the abrogation of the British-Japanese treaty of 1911 insofar as it restricts the power of British Columbia to control the activities of Japanese. The purpose is to bring a vote on the straight question of exclusion of Asiatics from Canada.

A bill drafted by T. R. E. MacInnes of Vancouver, which would give municipalities power to control the issuance of store licenses to Orientals, is being urged upon the government by supporters of the measure.

EPIDEMIC IN NORTH COUNTRY

Traders and Natives Dead and Little Fur Expected to Come South

EDMONTON, Feb. 15.—Two traders and four children, with an unknown number of traders, are dead in the north-land as a result of an epidemic which is sweeping the country around Great Bear Lake, according to reliable advices reaching the city with the last mail from the north.

The epidemic, combined with the severity of the winter, will result in little fur reaching the "outside" from this region in the spring, according to northmen. In addition to those who have fallen victims to the unknown disease, there are many others who have been stricken and little trapping is being done.

"Never in the memory of the oldest inhabitant," says one of the letters, "have things been so bad as they are up here this winter."

One of the traders who died is Francois Gallien, manager of an outpost for the Hudson's Bay company; the other was a free trader. His name, and the names of the children, are not known.

Earl of Oxford and Asquith Died Seven O'clock This Morning at Home in England Aged 75 Years

SUTTON COURTENAY, England, February 15.—The Earl of Oxford and Asquith, better known to most people as plain Mr. Asquith, former Liberal Premier and later leader of the opposition at Westminster, died here this morning at seven o'clock following an attack of pharyngitis and bronchitis. The end had been expected for the past few days and all members of the family were present, including the widow "Margot," well known as a writer and social leader.

The Right Honorable Herbert H. Asquith, Earl of Oxford and Asquith, K.C., K.G. was born in 1852 at Morley in Yorkshire. He sat in the House of Commons for the seat of East. He was elected in 1886 and was Prime Minister and First Lord of the Treasury from 1908 to December 1916.

Educated at the City of London School and Balliol College, Oxford, Asquith was called to the bar at an early age and at the age of thirty-four had actively taken up political life when he first entered Parliament in 1886. In 1892 he was appointed Home Secretary, being promoted to the Chancellorship of the Exchequer in 1905. He succeeded the late Rt. Hon. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman as Prime Minister on the latter's death in April 1908.

The premiership of the late Earl of Oxford and Asquith was marked by a strong forward policy of which the Parliament bill abolishing the veto of the Lords, the Home Rule Bill and the Welsh Church bill were prominent examples. He assumed, in addition to the premiership, the post of War Minister

RAILWAY MOVES IN THE NORTH

Among the railway moves in the northern section of the province it is noted that the survey of the Peace River pass route survey has been completed and is in the hands of the government. Sir Henry Thornton has investigated the possibility of taking over the P.G.E. by the Canadian National and it is expected an offer will be forthcoming very soon. A company is seeking a charter to penetrate the Peace River from the East and with one or more western outlets. There is a proposal afoot to connect Chicago with Alaska by a railway through the Peace River country. A joint offer has been made by the C.P.R. and C.N.R. for the Alberta government railway through the Alberta section of Peace River, but the Alberta government does not think it good enough. There is a rumor that running rights are being sought over the C.N.R. to Prince Rupert from a railway seeking entry into the Peace River country.

Out of all these proposals something should come that will benefit Prince Rupert and the district that surrounds us.

HITTING ON ALL SIX

Sir Henry uses a modern but very expressive classic when he says "we should hit on all six cylinders and do it all the time." That is true of Prince Rupert. We have been touching three or four of the cylinders occasionally causing a somewhat jerky motion. What we now need is to hit on all six. Possibly we may do it pretty soon. If we do not it should not be our own fault. We should be prepared to go the limit at any time to the end that we may have real prosperity here. Let us watch for our opportunity and when it comes set the old bus in motion and hit on all six right from the word go.

MARCEL MOTION DROPPED

The motion of Hon. Charles Marcell in regard to our relations with Mexico which might have precipitated a religious controversy has been dropped. While all people must deplore any religious persecution in any country, this matter was scarcely one in which Canada could interfere. Mexico has had many troubles during the past quarter of a century. Rebellion has followed rebellion and only recently one was quelled there and all the leaders executed.

Mexico is a country where ruthless methods are the vogue. Life seems to be of little value there. The present administration seems to be the only one that has been able to really rule the land for many a day. Injustices are done to many, but the Catholic Church has been marked as the special victim. However, reaction always follows the use of extreme measures. The country will in time settle down. Order will emerge from chaos and the Church will probably benefit from her period of persecution.

A BACKWARD COUNTRY

Many people look on the United States as a backward country. When such a leader as the late Mr. Bryan was a bold reactionary leader and when whole states openly avowed their disbelief in and ignorance of the scientific movements of the last generation it does look as if they were falling behind in the race of progress. However, we must remember that the Negro influence to the south is probably a reactionary influence just as we have in Canada somewhat similar influences in the Doukhobors and others. What is puzzling is that while some states are strictly to the front in modern civilization, other sections should be holding back and be in fact far behind the older English-speaking countries.

A VOYAGE OF DISCOVERY (Victoria Colonist)

The successor of the late John A. Dowie, founder of Zion City, U.S.A., Wilbur Glenn Voliva, has just set out on a world tour, but not, however, in another Argo, to find some modern successor of the Golden Fleece. The successor of the "Prophet" has set out to prove that the world is flat. If he can do that he will succeed also in fostering the special tents of his flock in the city which appears to be the sole community in the world free of the sins of bobbed hair, smoking, drinking and profanity. Mr. Voliva is quite certain that he can walk to the edge of the circular plate which we have all mistakenly called the globe. Mr. Voliva is a practical man—the success of his colony at Zion City proves this—and what has there been in the course of his experience, or in the experience of most people, to disprove the commonsense conception that the world must be flat or we should be continually falling off?

The mediaeval geographers based their conception of the earth upon the same authority which Mr. Voliva invokes, and drew beautiful maps of a spherical but flat world, of which Jerusalem was the hub. It was bounded by almost limitless seas upon the east and the west, by barriers of ice to the north, and by a torrid zone of unbearable heat (such as Edgar Allen Poe has depicted in one of his masterpieces) to the south. It was not until ships passed beyond these barriers and came safely back to port that the idea of a round world could make any headway. Indeed, as a matter of common knowledge, the idea that the world was a globe was for more than a century very bitterly traversed by those who believed that the acceptance of the new idea would deal an irrecoverable blow to orthodox religion.

BRADY SPEAKS ON ADDRESS

Expresses Hope for Improvement as Result of Proposed Action of Government

OBJECTS TO COMMISSIONS Pulled up by Forty Minute Ruling but Urged Better Transportation Facilities

The Hansard report of J. C. Brady's speech in the debate on the address had arrived and is complete as follows:

Mr. J. C. Brady (Skeena): The speech from the throne by His Excellency the Governor General at the opening of the session outlined certain legislation which the government proposes to ask parliament to adopt during the present session. I wish briefly to mention one or two matters, Mr. Speaker, that seem to me to be of outstanding importance, and then come to certain phases of the situation in Canada today which are calling for redress and advanced legislation.

First of all, I notice that the government proposes to send ministers plenipotentiary to France and Japan. That proposal has already been discussed from both sides of the House, and I believe the feeling through Canada is that in taking such a step we are advancing into dangerous ground, and we should be very careful because of the consequences that may ensue if this policy is carried out to its logical conclusion.

The government also intends to take steps this session to return to Alberta its natural resources, and to British Columbia the lands of the railway belt and the Peace River block.

The two pieces of legislation I have mentioned, which the government intends enacting this session, are but the corollary to implementing the Duncan report. Both have been advocated for many years, and not merely on this side of the House. They were advocated as far back as 1901 by Premier Dunsmuir of British Columbia, later by Premier McBride, and during the last session of parliament by the hon. member for Victoria (Mr. Tolmie). I trust that as a result of this legislation which is forecast, in the speech from the throne there will be considerable development in both these provinces, a development which has been considerably retarded in the past.

PRASED THE SPEECH

The speech from the throne has been praised to a very considerable extent, and so far as any legislation that will be of benefit to the people of Canada is concerned, that praise is not confined to the members on the government side of the House. The members on this side of the House likewise accord praise to the government for any legislation that will be productive of good for the people of Canada. The government has been repeatedly congratulated upon its splendid record, and that brings me, Mr. Speaker, to the very question that confronts the people of Canada today. It is the most vital question that we can discuss in this assembly. What the people of this country are demanding today is, which of the great political parties is presenting the facts as they exist at this present stage of our development. I notice that there has been a disposition on the part of many government supporters to argue during this debate from the particular to the general, to try to take a universal application from some few isolated facts. I do not for one moment deny, Mr. Speaker, that prosperity is moving over the face of Canada. We see evidence of that on all sides, and indeed it would be a strange thing after the way Canada has been blessed by abundant crops, blessed in the courage and strength and virility of her people, if there were not at this period, sixty years after confederation, at least some evidences that we were prosperous. The Prime Minister said that we should not say anything in this House which would indicate to the outside world that things are not like a garden of Eden in Canada, or words to that effect. Sir, this government had its very origin in democratic party government, and the opposition has a bounden duty to perform. Its duty is to give honest criticism, and I shall not be prevented from doing so by the mild rebuke which was given to some members of the opposition by the Prime Minister.

We all rejoice to know that Canada is entering upon an era of prosperity, but so far as I can judge, this government has not been giving to the people of Canada that legislation and that help which a young country such as this, with its great wealth, is entitled to receive especially at this important stage in its history. It is not true, Mr. Speaker, that much of the work of this parliament last session was turned over to all kinds of commissions? We had the Duncan report from a commission that was appointed to inquire into the grievances of the maritime provinces. That commission was appointed to try and find means of alleviating the conditions that prevailed in the maritime provinces. We also had a commission appointed to investigate the administration of the customs department. For what purpose?—in order that we might prevent the flow of goods entering from foreign countries without paying customs and excise duties. We now have a commission investigating the fisheries. For what purpose?—in order that we may try to save the great industry possessed by Canada, because credible testimony causes us to fear it is in danger of being wiped out. I say that no government in a great country like this should have to spend its time, its capabilities and the money which is supposed to go into the coffers of the treasury, for the development of the country in investigations and commissions such as these. TAKING STOCK The opening of parliament is a period of stock taking, or is considered such by the people of Canada. They want to know the stage of progress reached and the hope for future expansion. Since 1867 the questions of greatest interest to the people of Canada have been those belonging to the sphere of commerce, industrial and agricultural development and the development of our railways and our ports. These are the main things in the estimation of the people of Canada. We have passed through that eventful stage of experimentation in legislation; those experiments have now become firmly embodied in the laws of our country, and the hour has come when the statesmen who control the destinies of our Dominion should solve these problems which will fit in with the growing needs of this great nation. We have heard a great deal about immigration, but I say that in spite of what we have heard in this House, that we are making progress, no man dares deny that the greatest tragedy which could occur within any nation in the world is taking place every hour and every minute in Canada. We are losing the cream of our intellect; the youth of both sexes are leaving us, as usually as the waters pass over the face of the earth, and they are leaving us not to return. I ask you, sir, how this government is attempting to solve that vital problem, upon which the future greatness of this country depends. There has not been one month since last May that I have not written out letters of recommendation for young Canadians passing into the United States. Is it right that today we should talk about plenipotentiaries, to foreign states when the very life blood of our nation is ebbing hourly and the government has not the ability or the machinery with which to check it?

Let me present to the House a few facts. I cannot draw a great dramatic picture, but by a simple comparison the smallest child may understand the situation. British Columbia is a country larger than Italy, Germany and France combined and today it has a population of about 560,000 people. New Zealand, a little country of 102,000 square miles, has a white population of 1,500,000 people and still, sir, the history of British Columbia antedates the political history of New Zealand. Let me show it in another way. The constituency of Skeena, which I represent, has a larger area than New Zealand. It is even larger than Great Britain and Ireland and yet today, with its fertile valleys, its millions of acres of land, its rivers, its seas, its mighty wealth of forest and mine, there are only 40,000 people to be found therein. Is there something wrong, or is it possible that I stand here this afternoon telling this House things that are not existent? That is what is wrong with Canada. We are losing our own sons and daughters and bringing in immigrants from other countries. The object, of course, is to make them colonists, and finally citizens, but we are not even doing that.

FORTY MINUTE LIMIT The forty minute limit confines one to a few salient points, but I would like to emphasize one point particularly to the government. That point is, that the great need of western Canada has not been touched upon and has not been solved as it should have been in the speech from the throne. We should have our transportation facilities increased, both by land and water; we should have federal aid for our highways, which are the very veins of traffic development. I think, sir, that we are paying too much attention to externals and not enough to internals. It is within Canada that the future success of any government must lie; it is there, sir, that we must concentrate our efforts. We must step down and come among our people and examine their wants and their needs, and then the solution will be obtainable. I appeal to this government to accept what I know to be true, that the brightest gem which could be placed in the crown of any government is waiting, once the great Peace River country west of the Rockies is opened up, and British Columbia receives more equitable treatment and a fairer share of the revenues which she has given in the past and will continue to give in the future to this Dominion of Canada.

Every-day Magic

Chairs that flop into beds... bags that suck up dirt... tiny ticking things that count all day long for you. Daylight any night just by pushing a button. A stream that never stops till you turn off a faucet. Any voice you want, talking to you from a cage on your desk or wall. Actions of yesterday, of people miles away, going on on a curtain before you. Stilled throats singing to you from discs; distant throats singing to you from nothing!

Uncanny, daily magic—this, due to national advertising. Advertisements have given you flashlights, telephones, typewriters, automobiles, cold creams, motion pictures. They have given you new eyes, new ears, new hands, new feet, new faces, new emotions. They have urged such wide use, so lowered prices, that almost wishes are autos, almost beggars can ride. Through advertisements you've laid down the shovel and the hoe. You can buy a whole harvest ready-to-eat in cans. You've hung up the fiddle and the bow, for a radio. There's little old-time work left in this age of amazing short-cuts.

READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS They keep you to the fore of modern life.

"SLAUGHTER OF TONSILS"

Editor, Daily News.
Permit me to register a protest against the unwarranted slaughter of tonsils and adenoids that is being encouraged by our school authorities.

While it is not in my thought to question either the skill or the sincerity of those who are responsible for this type of hyper-active surgical enthusiasm, I can but characterize the present prevailing practice as little less than modern methods of "scientific" mutilation, which demands wholesale condemnation.

Notwithstanding the fact that many of our foremost authorities have declared that the tonsils and adenoids are not present without a purpose, and should not be removed without good cause, there seems to be a widespread furor upon the part of many of the profession to remove these organs upon the slightest pretext.

Now that nature's processes are becoming better known, we find that the throats of our school children are not necessarily the scene of an anatomical bungle in causing such enlargements, but such activity is for the definite purpose of removing toxins from the system, which interfered with by the removal of the tonsils, may produce serious results in later life.

A careful selection of the child's food and the establishment of proper elimination are usually sufficient not only to dispel the tonsil-adenoid bogey but also to dismiss the surgeon. The late Sir William Osler, Canada's greatest physician, said: "Surgery only marks the physician's failure." In my department is the truth of this saying more apparent than among our school children. Operative measures, save in chronic septic tonsil, is rarely necessary, and in adenoids almost wholly unnecessary.

We Eat No Meals; Ride No Cars

WHEN you hire us to do the family washing, you are not put to the expense or bother of feeding us. We eat nothing! Neither do we ask you to pay our carfare. Instead we call for and deliver your washing. We buy our own soap, starch and bluing. Heat our own softened water. Use our own electricity, too. There's no "picking-up" after us. We take all the messy work out of your home, giving you an extra day to do the things you like to do! Yet you'll find our charges most reasonable—considerably less than it would cost you to do the same work at home. Try us, and see!

ENGLAND REFUSED TO HELP SAVE CZAR

Was Asked by Kerensky but Reply was That it was Impossible Until After the War.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—Mr. Kerensky, the former Russian prime minister, in an interview, was questioned as to the truth of a statement attributed to him by a Paris newspaper that "England could have saved the Tsar if she had wished."

Mr. Kerensky explained that at the beginning of the revolution he was present at the big reunion of the Moscow Soviet, when the question of the fate of the Tsar was raised. "I said I myself would convey the Emperor to Murnansk and see him safely out of the country. The mobs of Petrograd, however, wanted to take the Emperor from Tsarsko Selo and imprison him in St. Peter and Paul. Orders were issued that if the Emperor were removed a general strike of the railways etc., was to be proclaimed.

"When the Government had become stronger in the midsummer of 1918, I was president of the Provisional Government and Foreign Minister, and myself approached the British Ambassador, Sir George Buchanan, and requested him to ask his government to save the Tsar. He telegraphed to London, and from London came a reply—a very clear and precise reply—that it was impossible to do anything for the Tsar before the end of the war.

"England," pursued Mr. Kerensky, "did not want to irritate the sentiments of the workers. It was impossible for us to send the Emperor abroad, and so I prepared to send him to the little town of Tobolsk, a place away from the railways, and where the population were in peaceful mood. The trip was prepared with the greatest secrecy. I do not accuse England for not saving the Tsar. Sir George Buchanan was first approached in the month of March, and offered to arrange for the safety of the Emperor, but at that time, owing to passions running high in Russia, it was impossible to do anything."

J. C. Langley of the International Shippers Ltd., who has been on a trip to Ketchikan arranging for delivery of logs which will form part of a sample shipment to be sent through here to the Orient shortly, returned to the city from the north on the Princess Mary this afternoon.
