SPEECH FROM THRONE IS OPTIMISTIC

FAUX PAS OF U.S. ADMIRAL CAUSES STIR TWO CONTINENTS

Well Organized Plan to Prepare U.S. for Naval Race says Senator Borah

Chairman of Foreign Relations Committee Attacked Recommendation of Admiral as Mischievous to Last Degree

WASHINGTON, January 24.—Proposals before Congress for a greater navy and recent predictions of another war over commerce constitute sheer madness, in the opinion of Senator Borah and duplicate the "insane policy that marked the Anglo-German relations prior to the Great War."

Attacking as "mischievous to the last degree" the recommendation of Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, for a virtually a billion dollar navy and the statement made Saturday by Rear-Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard that war with commercial competitors was inevitable, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said all this was part of a well-organized plan to prepare the public mind for a naval race.

HOTELMEN ASK CHEAPER BEER

Number of Other Privileges Requested From Government at Meeting Yesterday

VICTORIA, Jan. 24.—Representatives of the British Columbia Hotelmen's association asked the cabinet yesterday that permits be allowed to sell bottled beer that hours of sale be increased; that the cost of licenses and the price of beer bought from the government be reduced and that they be allowed to display signs on the premises indicating that beer is sold there.

The Premier said he thought the request for a lower price on beer sold to licensees than on beer sold to the public was reasonable but he said the cabinet would reserve judgment on the proposals.

President Cosgrave Expected to Be Present at Ottawa to Hear Speeches of Leaders Next Week

House convenes on Thursday and continues in session Friday for movers and seconders of address; King and Bennett Monday

OTTAWA, January 24.—Members are gathering for the opening of Parliament which takes place here on Thursday. The government has the sessional program well advanced and is trying to avoid delay in getting down to business. The usual week-end adjournment after the speech from the throne will not be given. The House will adjourn only until the following day when the mover and seconder of the address in reply to the speech from the throne will speak.

Both Premier Mackenzie King and Hon. R. B. Bennett will probably be heard on Monday when President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State will be present.

The report of the Royal Customs Commission will probably be tabled shortly after the opening. It is expected to prove a fruitful source of debate and the St. Lawrence River development scheme will also be much to the fore.

There is plenty of talk about Hon. Charles Maclellan's resolution calling for severance of Canada's relations with Mexico, requesting the recall of the Mexican Consul General and criticizing Sir Henry Thornton for his visit. It is expected the main estimates will be brought down early but the budget speech will probably not be made for some weeks.

Indiscretion of U.S. Admiral Amazes London Press but Only Labor Organ Comments On It

LONDON, January 24.—The London Press regards as "amazing indiscretion" the speech of Rear-Admiral Plunkett of the United States navy in New York when that officer is reported to have forecast a war between U.S. and Great Britain. All the newspapers except the Laborite Herald, however, refrain from editorial comment.

The Herald asserts that undoubtedly the "spirit of antagonism is growing between the ruling classes of United States and Great Britain, while there is a conflict of interest of American and British capital."

Speech From Throne Delivered Today is Optimistic in Tone and Touches on Many Questions

VICTORIA, January 24.—"There is reason to hope that there will be an adjustment of the outstanding difficulties between the Dominion and the Provinces that will be of general material benefit," said the speech from the throne read by the Lieutenant-Governor at the opening of the Legislature this afternoon, in connection with the recent inter-provincial conference.

"His unselfish public services and high personal character will long be an inspiration to the people of this province," the speech said, in reference to the loss to the province through the death of Premier Oliver.

The diamond jubilee visits of the Prince of Wales, Prince George, the Governor-General, Premier Baldwin and Colonel Amery were referred to and continued improvement in business conditions as indicated by greater production in the basic industries, increased bank clearings and continued activity in the building trades were noted.

"I am also pleased to note the credit of the province continues to stand high in the money markets of the world," said His Honor. "The Old Age Pensions Act has been brought into operation with beneficent results."

The speech also mentioned that the Martin commission report and the report of the irrigation commission will be shortly presented.

After the reading of the speech the House adjourned until tomorrow.

AMERY AND THE BRITISH EMPIRE

When Right Hon. Colonel Amery, Secretary for the Dominions in the British Government was passing through Canada, many heard him speak and were pleased with his eloquence. A Winnipeg journalist heard him and gave to the readers of the Free Press in that city an even more eloquent story of the speech than was the original. The journalist signs himself T.B.R., and here is what he said:

When Mr. Amery begins his speech you might readily compare him to a very amiable cherub in one of his happiest moods. Mr. Amery is a little blocky man, with a beaming face, a ruddy complexion, a charming English voice, and eyes full of twinkles; you can see at once that Mr. Amery is very wise indeed. He beamed and twinkled as he broke into his speech; he had been in Winnipeg before; he had broken his leg in Winnipeg; he had been able to go home to England and tell his constituents that he had at least one leg to stand on—while his opponent had none. (Laughter). (Twinkles). The audience liked it and played up splendidly.

It was, indeed, splendid; our great city; in the centre of Canada; in the centre of Canada's greatest industry; our great country, with its imperial dimensions and potentialities; the new place we (Canada) have won in that inner family of the British Commonwealth; the collegiality, helpfulness, etc., which the parliaments of this great family of nations owe to each other—suddenly you realize that Mr. Amery is no longer looking like a cherub; life is real, life is earnest, and we're not quite sure what Mr. Amery's goal is; but he is neither beaming nor twinkling; his face has taken on the true pro-consular set; behind him lies the great imperium and before him spreads, in the smoke-dimmed air of the dining-room, some eight or nine hundred expectant listening Canadian males; it is a serious moment; the cherubic twinklings are put away, and Augustus addresses the throne.

THEORY OF EMPIRE

Mr. Amery presents a theory of Empire. Empire, we may now take note, has become not only a complex thing, but an abstract, intangible speculation. There are numerous subtle things to discuss, subtleties that accommodate themselves impressively in phrases which have ringing sounds: "the fellowship of spirit which runs right through the Empire"; "Empire means an enhancement, an enrichment, a widening of the scope of Canada's national life"; "the Dominions are not negative accepters of Imperial Unity but participants in imperial policy"; "Britain's Empire, in a high moral sense, is truly Canada's Empire too"—in a high moral sense. And so on. As you listen you realize that it is not very simple; or very explicit.

What is Mr. Amery doing? He is philosophizing. Since 1926 it has become necessary to restate the Imperial Doctrine. In 1926, it is true, says Mr. Amery, no new constitution was insinuated into imperial relations; "the Imperial Conference only professed to lay down clearly the existing position between us." Yet even that was something of significance, and had a meaning. What was its meaning, or rather, what IS its meaning? because it is always the future upon which the weight of our speculations must bear.

CONSTITUTIONAL STATUS

So Mr. Amery is explaining how the "new constitutional status" should be regarded; and it is not a simple matter either to explain or apprehend. It is philosophy; it is even worse, it is metaphysics; a whole system of metaphysics in which everything is accounted for and given its place; but the problem of metaphysics has always been to give real existence to its postulates; and in a short speech of three-quarters of an hour Mr. Amery has not time to go so far as that with his system.

Thus as a philosophical exposition on imperial politics his speech was pleasing and ingenious; it remained for the audience to carry away with them the delicate nuances of thought presented by Mr. Amery and in the quietude of their own homes endeavor to work his pure ideas down to the realities of practical political relationships. Because it is in practice that Mr. Amery's theory of empire must, like all other theories, prove whether it be truly a reality and a fact, or only a verbalism.

CHARMING VOICE

For three-quarters of an hour the charming voice spoke on. Whatever its merits, one thing is clear. Mr. Amery is convinced of the soundness, of the reasonableness, of the splendor, of his imperial theory. He is fired by the traditions of the great heritage of Empire which the heroes and worthies of England since the time of Elizabeth's sea dogs have won for England; its flavor lies like wine upon his tongue and whets its eloquence and mellows his speech. He is the Secretary for the Colonies, and for the Dominions—and THEY are not theories, but glorious widths of earth, and millions of brown, yellow and white men, and mountains, and rivers, and surrounding and joining them all "the stormy deep," the royal highway of the seas. All this Mr. Amery is voicing as he stands under the pendant Union Jack in the dining-room of the Royal Alexandra.

In order that the work of the hospital auxiliary may be successful in the coming year the new officers, elected at the annual meeting yesterday, issue an invitation to women of Prince Rupert to join the auxiliary and aid in making the hospital more comfortable for patients. The new officers are as follows:
Hon. President—Mrs. Thos. McClymont.
President—Mrs. Fred Pyle.
Vice-President—Mrs. R. C. Parsons.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. T. Anderson.
Secretary—Mrs. Ben Self.
Treasurer—Mrs. Fred Stork.
Hospital Board Representative—Mrs. H. F. Glassy.

In the annual report it was shown that among the activities of the year were in April a tea and sale of home cooking and raffles in the St. Andrew's rooms; in May a bridge party in the nurses' home; in September, raffles during the fair, and in November, the usual Halloween ball and raffles. A series of small bridge parties were held during the winter.

During the year the auxiliary ward had been changed and the new ward and furniture completely renovated. Three easy chairs, socks, reading matter and Christmas cheer for the patients in the public ward were furnished.

Mrs. R. C. Parsons had been sent as delegate to the hospital convention.

A resolution was passed that the energies of the auxiliary this year would be directed to making the women's public ward more comfortable.

VALUE OF READING SUBJECT OF PAPER

United Church Young People's Society Hears Interesting Discourse by Mrs. E. P. Jenner

At the regular weekly meeting last evening of the Young People's Society of First United Church Mrs. E. P. Jenner gave an interesting and instructive paper on the subject of "What to Read." The motive of reading, the speaker said, was to obtain pleasure and recreation, also to acquire information as to the great discoveries of the age, and to learn of the lives of people of other ages and races as in the study of history.

The speaker recommended the reading of good literature as an aid to self-expression in the art of conversation. The need of this was often shown today in slipshod expressions. A deplorable tendency was the habit of reading without thinking.

The "best sellers," the speaker asserted, were not always the best works of fiction. Modern novelists of repute as well as classical masters were recommended to the audience. The minds of those present were also directed to the riches of biography and to the heavier reading such as the essays of Emerson, Bacon, etc. Last but not least, in the category of the best reading matter, came the English Bible.

Following the reading, there was an interesting discussion in which many of those present participated. Various books were recommended and the relative values of newspaper reading, etc. were discussed.

The Society decided to change its hour of meeting on Monday evenings from 7:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. sharp in future.

The meeting was presided over by George H. Stocks, vice-president, in the absence of the president, W. Vandewater.

NEW BOOK BY DOCTOR BARNES

Bishop of Birmingham Places His Views Before World in Permanent Form

POWER TO REDEEM

White Story of Fall of Man is Legend, Facts of Sin None the Less Real

The British religious journals just come to hand pay large attention to the new book of Dr. Barnes, the Bishop of Birmingham. It is a collection of thirty-one utterances of this much-discussed prelate which he has delivered during the past seven years and bears the title, "Should Such a Faith Offend?" Dr. Barnes feels himself to be a victim of misrepresentation, according to a review of the book in The Christian World, by the publication of only such passages from his utterances as excite attention, and contends that, as he wrote in his famous letter to the Archbishop of Canterbury last October: "Most of my teaching is positive and unrepented." The book may be therefore looked upon as an apologetic, his defence of his own faith. The reading of even some of its paragraphs will convince many that it is also the confession of a genuine Christian faith.

TEACHING ON IMMORTALITY

His convictions on personal immortality are definite and strong. In the opening sermon preached before the British Association in 1920, he makes this affirmation concerning eternal life in communion with God:

"I remain sure that God, who is Love, made and rules the world. I am certain that man was created that he might enjoy eternal life in communion with God in the world to come. Do you doubt? Reflect for a few minutes. Surely the universe had a beginning and therefore a Creator. And surely the finest products of evolution have not been made for nothing, and yet, in the distant future, when all life vanishes from the earth, as it certainly must, heroes and saints will in vain have gained knowledge of God, in vain have spent their strength, unless they continue to live eternally in the spiritual world."

In another part of the volume he returns to the subject in the following statement:

"I need a God, who is our Father, who rules the world and loves men with a father's love. For me the universe is a sorry jest if I shall never 'know even as also I am known.' . . . If at the end I go hence to be no more, then have I spent my strength in vain. God, freedom and immortality—such are my instinctive religious convictions, rooted and grounded in the teachings of Christ."

DR. BARNES ON THE BIBLE
"My faith," he avers, "is rooted and grounded in the Bible. In the Bible I find God's witness of Himself; all that I can know of His revelation in Jesus Christ to mankind. The Bible gives me all that I need. I find there supreme inspiration. I hold that the Christian faith must be built upon the teaching of the Bible, that its development can be rightly fostered only by a fuller and truer understanding of Holy Scripture." As to the Bible as affected by modern criticism, Dr. Barnes goes on to say: "The Bible that really matters to us is the Bible discovered by modern scholars. In a very real sense it is the old loved Book, for accurate investigation has merely confirmed true religious instinct."

THE FACT OF INCARNATION
"What is its meaning?" asks Dr. Barnes of the doctrine of Incarnation. In answering this question he says: "Simply this, that God revealed Himself in human form in Jesus of Nazareth." He contends that it is the teaching of the Gospels that Jesus had a human mind with, consequently human limitations. The Incarnation means that in Jesus the Divine life was lived under human conditions."

Treating of sin, Dr. Barnes affirms that while the modern critical view of the Old Testament stories compels him to think of the story of the Fall as a legend, the fact of sin is none the less undoubted. Sin alienates man from God. "Sin is, as Paul taught, rebellion against God. We feel the need of aid to make us one with God. We can get that aid from Christ. He is the living Power to redeem us. This is the primary fact of Christian experience."

DR. BARNES ON THE ATONEMENT
Passing to the doctrine of the Atonement, the Bishop connects it with the truth of the Incarnation.

"The Word made flesh in Christ Jesus was not a personality separate from God. He did not give His life to ransom men from the devil as crude mediaeval theology taught; nor was it necessary that He should offer Himself to placate a justly angry Father as more recent theories taught. . . . But while the Incarnation is the central fact of Christianity, the doctrine of the Cross is its most distinctive contribution to the human religion. In the Incarnation we see God's self-sacrificing love winning men by evoking love, and this is the true doctrine of the Atonement."

In another part of the book Dr. Barnes, after quoting Isaac Watt's familiar lines, beginning, "When I survey the wondrous Cross," goes on to say, "If those lines do not ring true in our ears, if their beauty seems faded or their sentiment exaggerated, we have forgotten the rock on which Christ's Church was built."

CHRIST'S RESURRECTION
"Did Jesus show himself as the risen Lord after His death and burial?" This question he answered by saying "We cannot understand the history of the early Church unless this fact be admitted." As to the subjects of evolution and the sacraments, concerning which Dr. Barnes' views have created much discussion, a few sentences may be selected. "Evolution," he writes, "was and still is, not an observed fact, but a theory so probable that no alternative can be entertained. . . . Can we accept evolution and yet believe that God, a loving Father, made the world? I answer emphatically that we can. I remain sure that God, who is love, made and rules the world." Viewing the whole evolutionary process as leading up to man's civilized progress as its culmination, the Bishop maintains that "we are forced to the conclusion that . . . it is the result of God's continuous action. His purpose and creative power have ever been present."

THE SACRAMENTS
More than evolution, his attitude toward the sacraments as one of the nerve centres of the Christian faith has evoked both violent dissent and hearty agreement. His conception is set forth in three propositions:

(a) The real presence of Christ can be with His followers in public worship. He is present wherever two or three gather in His Name.

(b) A special solemnity attaches to the celebration of the Lord's Supper, inasmuch as for most Christians the sense of Christ's presence is then strengthened. For each it is a sacrament, the "fellowship," the communion "with each other and the Lord."

(c) There is no objective real presence of Christ attached to the bread and wine used in Holy Communion.

The Bishop is hopeful as to the outlook for religion provided the churches "present Christ's teaching in its essential purity, free from sacerdotalism and obscurantism, which it is too often combined." He is concerned that the religious teachers should preach to the younger generation "in the light of the new knowledge. We cannot," he says, "close our minds, or our sermons to the new ideas. The closed mind will lead, sooner or later, to the closed church."

These excerpts from a book which is likely to be widely read may be fittingly closed with these two sentences. "The very urgency of our need of the spirit of Christ will cause its power to break forth anew. . . . Man cannot do without Christ."

Effective January 23, Union gasoline will be reduced to 29c per gallon. Kalen Garage. 20

SYMBOLIC RUG IS SHOWN AT MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.—At a lecture on "The Oriental Rug and its Symbolism," Bernard Thomas exhibited one Caucasian piece which had arrows incorporated in its design. When a hostess wanted her callers to realize that she was not "at home," she merely placed the rug across the threshold, with the arrows pointing out, as a hint to guests to follow their direction.

GREAT HOAXER GETS A YEAR

Hunter Charles Rogers Made Profession of Fooling Collectors and Others

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Hunter Charles Rogers, claiming himself to be the world's greatest hoaxer, was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment for fraud. Toronto was one of the many centres he selected for his operations. At one time he announced he was presenting a collection of old masters to Toronto and more recently he appeared there with a treasury of relics for sale, representing himself as descendant of Samuel Rogers, poet, and Lady Hamilton, friend of Nelson.

All who have followed Hunter Rogers, career have been waiting for the time when he would deliver himself into the hands of the law. He has been amazingly clever at keeping himself technically free from charges of fraud.

STARTED AS FARM HAND. His first spectacular appearance was when, as a destitute farm laborer, he discovered in an old cottage such wonderful artistic treasures that he was able to repay the board of guardians relief money that had been granted to his starving family. This was only the beginning of the miracles. He soon afterwards began digging in the ground in another part of England, and unearthed Shakespearean relics, surpassing everything in Stratford-on-Avon. He has had phenomenal fortune whenever he went into any Old Curiosity shop, he was always came away with historical treasure or artistic masterpieces. He was able to fool professional antique dealers, who paid fancy prices for his finds. He liked to keep up the pose of being an uneducated villager, though it was obvious from his manners and conversation that he was a man of wide experience and reading.

Rogers himself loved to talk to reporters and he used to show his neighbors an album of newspaper cuttings about himself. He subscribed to a newspaper cutting agency, so that he missed nothing. According to Judge Sir John Sankey, who sentenced him, vanity and love of notoriety were his downfall. Rogers had pleaded guilty to fraud and his own counsel said he was mentally unstable and his position for notoriety, not greed for money, had tempted him to fraud.

Rogers was the son of well-to-do and respectable parents, and he inherited a thousand pounds from his father. He had a good education, was born in 1880, and he visited New Zealand in 1902 and the United States and Canada in 1903. In 1922, he was paid twelve hundred pounds for pictures which were afterwards sold for three pounds.

WHY DID POOLEY ANNOUNCE POLICY OF CONSERVATIVES?

(Victoria Times) How is it that the first announcement of the Conservative Party's policy in respect of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway comes from Mr. Pooley and not from Dr. Tolmie? During the by-election in New Westminster Dr. Tolmie said he would "take a run" over the line and then announce his policy. Has he been over it?

There is nothing new in Mr. Pooley's declaration of policy, but it will strike the public as strange that he, and not the leader of the party, should have announced it. Who is leading the Conservative Party of British Columbia, anyway?

Throwing a Lot of Light on a Dark Continent

RHODES MEMORIAL AT RONDEBOSCH

AFRICAN OSTRICH FARM

NATIVE DANCERS, JOHANNESBURG

the developments on the Rand, Africa, which no visitor to Africa will miss, but the diamond rush to the Kimberley mines in 1870 is unique. The first discovery was made by a trader, who picked up a bright-colored stone a child had been playing with. The assay proved this a spectacular diamond and now at the mere mention of Kimberley the whole world visions "diamonds" in glittering heaps. In barely forty years these mines have yielded $1,000,000,000 worth of these gems. Think of the joy of seeing rough diamonds come out of the earth and being able to buy them. This is a pleasure in store for next winter's adventurers to Ostrich feather farms are one of the oddities of Africa destined to thrill the heart of every Canadian visitor and, wonderful to relate, Paris fashions are sent out by parcel post to Johannesburg and reach there before they come to Canada. However, there are still plenty of natives in their national garb, and talking drums and Zulu war dances to be seen and heard. In fact, the war dances are a Sunday morning institution in the kraals at the mines and are encouraged by the owners as an antidote to labor troubles.

BROTHER ANDRE AND HIS WORK

Famous "Miracle Man of Montreal" Directed Building of Famous Oratory

PEOPLE TOUCHED BY GARMENTS

Stories of Healing Made People Flock to Shrine Where Extraordinary Scenes Enacted

MONTREAL, Jan. 24. — (Canadian Press).—Wracked by chronic dyspepsia, which prevented his going to school, illiterate until almost middle age, a porter in a school, and a simple retelling man, Brother Andre was yet able to inspire and guide practically to completion the construction of the $4,000,000 basilica in Montreal known as Saint Joseph's Oratory. Millions who have formed part of the great pilgrimages of people sick in body or mind who have prayed at the oratory and received the little brother's blessing and promise of intercession of their behalf to St. Joseph, knew him as "The Miracle Man of Montreal." Because of cures reported to have taken place after visits to the shrine it has become almost as well known to Canadian and American Catholics as the Lourdes in France and St. Anne de Beaupre at Quebec, while Brother Andre's career holds no recent parallel in the annals of the church on this continent. Application to Rome for his canonization will most certainly be made. It is believed by his followers.

SAD CHILDHOOD

It is difficult to conceive of a sadder childhood than that of Alfred Bessette. He was one of 11 children born to Isaac and Clothilde Folsy Bessette of Saint Gregoire d'Iberville, Quebec. Bessette was a wheelwright, but could not earn a living at his trade so became a day laborer. Alfred was born in August, 1845, and from a baby suffered from dyspepsia. When he was five years old his father died and as is the custom among French-Canadians where a large family of orphans are left with no support, the children were divided up among relatives. Alfred went to an uncle, Timothee Nadeau, of St. Casaire de Rouville. His health continued bad and it was found impossible to send him to school. He worked in the fields when able to do so, which was not often.

His mother died when he was ten years old. Afterwards he tried to learn the trade of a shoemaker, but could not stand the inside work. He won the friendship of the local cure, who was the first to come under the spell of the curious boy. He took him in the rectory where he did odd jobs. While he could not learn to read and write the lad gained a certain amount of culture from the old priest. He saved some money and decided to emigrate to the United States. He went to Plainfield, Conn. where he obtained employment in a cotton mill. His health broke down and he went back to St. Casaire. However, while in New England, Bessette learned to love the beautiful hills and rural scenes and towards the end of his life twice a year—Spring and Fall—he would visit them to wander alone among the places he knew as a boy.

In 1927 his presence in New England was discovered by people who knew him as The Miracle Man and extraordinary scenes were enacted wherever he went. Thousands brought sick relatives to be touched and blessed by him. After one of these pilgrimages the brother collapsed from exhaustion.

RELIGIOUS CAREER

As he reached manhood Bessette began to develop a passion for a religious career. His cure patrons encouraged him, though despairing of being able to gratify his desire because of the young man's illiterateness. However, a chance did present itself in the establishment by the Congregation of the Holy Cross of a commercial college in his neighborhood. Bessette's first application for permission to enter the order was gently refused, but he persisted, and was finally accepted in 1870. He was sent to the Saint Laurent College at Montreal and after taking his preliminary vows was given the name of Brother Andre. He was assigned to such work as scrubbing floors and mending the clothes of the students. Afterwards he became college porter and barber. It was the joy displayed by the little brother in his menial tasks that first attracted attention. Though still suffering from dyspepsia he radiated contentment and had a quiet, encouraging word for every body. Parents and boys grew to admire him and to talk about him outside the college. He lived on bread and water and his piety and small charities impressed all, and gradually people began to consult him on their problems.

The Least Excitement Made Her Heart Palpitate and Flutter

Mrs. Ambrose Orser, Eglonburg, Ont., writes:—"I suffered for some time with a bad heart which seemed to be controlled by my nerves. The least little excitement would cause it to flutter and palpitate, and at times I would have real bad spells. I suffered in this way for some time when, one day, I saw advertised, so decided to try them. I had only taken a few boxes when I noticed that I felt better, so I continued taking them and in a short time my heart felt entirely different.

gest a novena to Saint Joseph, his patron saint, and he himself promised to intercede to the saint on their behalf. The sick and afflicted began to journey to the college to speak with Brother Andre and steadily growing groups of people walking up to the porter's lodge became daily sights. People began to tell their friends of the assistance in curing their ills they received from the brother. Then remarkable cures were announced by pilgrims and Brother Andre's reputation spread from Montreal to the rest of Canada and later to the United States.

NATURAL SOLUTION

Brother Andre's pilgrims soon presented a serious problem for his college superiors and antagonism sprang up in some quarters. A number of influential people in Montreal argued to the college authorities that the church was being brought into ridicule. On the other hand the brother's friends rallied to his support and a fierce controversy ensued. Brother Andre himself took no part in it. The opposition grew and finally an organized protest was lodged with Manager Bruchesi, then Archbishop of Montreal. His Grace listened to the complaints but took no action. Protests were next made to the board of health that the health of the students was endangered by the visits of sick to the brother. The board ignored the protest.

A natural solution of the problem presented itself. Brother Andre was allowed to erect a small shrine to Saint Joseph some distance from the college. Small sums of money left by grateful pilgrims accumulated and the brother was given permission to construct a small chapel around the shrine. This was the beginning of the great church which dominates the north west slopes of Mount Royal. Brother Andre built most of the original chapel himself in his spare time with the aid of volunteer carpenters.

QUARRYMAN CURED

One of his cures occurred during the erection of the building. He required help and it so happened a skilled quarry hand, Calixte Richard, was visiting at the college at the time. Brother Andre asked him to help him but Richard declined because he was a chronic invalid from dyspepsia. "If Saint Joseph would cure you would you help him?" asked Brother Andre, recalling how he had fought dyspepsia himself. The quarry man said: "Yes."

GREAT CHURCH

Not till 1909 would Brother Andre allow the college governors to relieve him of his work as porter. In 1915 it was decided by the church authorities in Montreal to sanction the erection of a great church around the little chapel. This work was held up by the war, but continued when the conflict was over. The pilgrimages grew so rapidly that Brother Andre soon needed a staff of secretaries to answer letters resulting from them. In 1917 it was said he received 50,000 letters from people living in various parts of the continent.

Daily throughout the year people visit the oratory. In the summer time they number thousands each day and during the great pilgrimages a solid mile of communicants numbering half a million people have knelt on the hillside leading to the church to receive a blessing. In these impressive ceremonies Brother Andre, not being a priest, could play no official part. He knelt like the humblest of the pilgrims, dressed in his simple black porters gown before the statue of Saint Joseph.

QUEBEC PRESSING MOVEMENT AGAINST SUNDAY AMUSEMENT

QUEBEC, Jan. 24. — The Provincial Legislature at its next session will be faced with a large mass of requests against both the ordinary theatres and the moving picture houses being opened on Sunday. There is a group of members of the House who intend to press strenuously for the entire abolition of Sunday amusements and these will have the communication of the bishops of the province in the matter to support their contentions.

PRESBYTERIANS ELECT OFFICERS

Reports on Year's Work Indicate Congregation in Flourishing Condition

(By W. W. C. O'Neill, Secretary) The annual congregational meeting of First Presbyterian Church, Prince Rupert, was held in the church yesterday evening at eight o'clock. There was a good attendance of members and adherents. Rev. J. R. Frizell, B.A., LL.B., minister and moderator of session, presided.

Very encouraging reports were presented from the Ladies' Aid, the Sunday School, the Choir, the Canadian Girls in Training, the Boy Scouts, the Board of Managers and the Session.

The treasurer's report showed that the church collections for 1927 had been the highest for the past ten years with the exception of one year. The Sunday school report showed an enrolment of 188 scholars and that on last Sunday there had been a record attendance of 177 scholars. The ladies' aid had very loyally supported the board of managers in their work of financing the church and had also done good work in connection with the cradle roll department of the Sunday school.

The various reports showed the church to be in a very flourishing condition and that a total sum of $5,783.35 had been received for all purposes.

The success of a church depends very largely upon the minister and in looking back over the first year's work of Rev. J. R. Frizell we have every reason to congratulate ourselves on our choice of a minister. Mr. Frizell has faithfully done his duty in connection with pastoral calls, having visited every family in the congregation during the months between his induction and the summer. Hospital visits and calls upon the sick have received his constant care. His sermons are clothed in beauty of imagery and show the concentrated utterance of deep thinking. All these things help to build up a congregation and special thanks are accorded to him for his faithful work.

Before the meeting closed H. C. Fraser moved that a hearty vote of thanks be given to the session, ladies' aid, Sunday school superintendent and teachers, members of the choir and chor-master, board of managers, leader of the Boy Scouts, the Canadian Girls in Training, the treasurer, and the congregational secretary.

OFFICERS FOR 1928

Officers for 1928 were chosen as follows: Board of Managers—T. McClymont, J. L. Christie, F. Stork, J. Clarke, L. Arral, E. Smith, W. W. C. O'Neill, and two ladies to be appointed by the ladies' aid. Treasurer—John L. Christie. Congregational secretary—W. W. C. O'Neill. Session—Rev. J. R. Frizell (moderator), F. Garton, J. L. Christie, J. W. McKinley.

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

JANUARY 24, 1918. The Vancouver Sun has published an interesting article describing the fisheries at Prince Rupert with special reference to the plant of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co., "the greatest producers of fresh halibut in America."

J. G. Steen and J. H. Thompson have been elected to the board of managers of First Presbyterian Church. The annual congregational dinner was held last night with Rev. Dr. H. R. Grant, the pastor, in the chair. A. M. Manson is secretary of the congregation.

As a war measure, it is reported that the food controller may commandeer Prince Rupert fishing vessels to furnish fish in the time of need.

Man in the Moon

DONALD Mackay, one of the Scottish Land Court, was telling some of his experiences at one of the County Association dinners in London recently. One anecdote showing how Highland mentality often comes in conflict with the more frigid mentality of officialdom will bear repeating.

A crofter in Lewis recently arranged for a loan from the Government to build a house. A document, was sent him to sign containing twenty-two conditions to fulfill. The crofter replied somewhat in the following terms:

"Sirs—I am sending you back your paper. What is more, you can keep it. What is more, I will not sign it. Do you think I am going to keep twenty-two rules for a house on earth, when for keeping the Ten Commandments God will give me a mansion in the skies?"

I THINK it was an Englishman who refused to buy a washing machine because he said the one he married was still in good working condition.

IT has been suggested that the world's greatest hoaxer should have been elected to parliament instead of being sent to jail.

WHEN you say a person is "gone to the dogs" it may just mean that he is attending a kennel club show.

DIRECTOR OF NURSING VISITS IN TORONTO

Famous Red Cross Health Service Director Investigating Canadian Conditions

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—Miss Elizabeth G. Fox, National Nursing Director of the American Red Cross Public Health Service in America, is an interesting visitor in Toronto today, coming especially from New York to address District 5 of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, in the Civic Building, University of Toronto. As the supervisor of over 900 Red Cross Public Health Nurses, Miss Fox is one of the best known nursing figures in the United States and in addition to her American activities, is naturally keenly interested in learning something of the part-time activities of Red Cross in Canada. She visited National headquarters of the Canadian Red Cross Society in Toronto this morning. An authority on nursing matters, Miss Fox has written many articles on public health topics and is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin receiving her nursing education later at John Hopkins' Training School, Baltimore.

Miss Fox is president of the National Organization for Public Health Nursing and a member of the Nursing Advisory Board of the League of Red Cross Societies.

Murdock McIntyre, old timer of the Slocan, Boundary and Similkameen districts and for the past few years a resident of Vancouver, has arrived in Stewart and intends locating here, moving his family next spring. He is keenly interested in mining.

Rumors here are to the effect that an Eastern capitalist is to buy control of the Independence Gold Mining Co. and put the property again in operation. It is presumed that an examination of the mine will be made in the early spring.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Mustard of Premier returned last week from a trip outside.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Moa of the Mountain View mine returned to Stewart last week from a trip south.

The local branch of the Canadian Legion has nominated the following as office-bearers for 1928: president, J. O. Lyon, H. C. Bennett and James Morrice; for vice-president, H. C. Bennett, S. G. Lawrence, James Morrice and H. W. Wilkinson; for executive committee, H. Cochrane and R. W. Kennedy; for secretary-treasurer, Rev. Walter Allen; for chaplain, Rev. Walter Allen; for trustees, J. Scott, H. C. Bennett and James Morrice. The elections will be held early in February.

Percy Dietrich and Alex McDonald, drivers for the Crawford Transfer Co., had a narrow escape last week on the road to the Big Missouri mine when a slide came over a cliff and buried their team. After strenuous digging for nearly two hours, the horses and sleigh were finally extricated from the mass of snow.

The regular monthly meeting of the Stewart Board of Trade was held last Tuesday night with the president, H. P. Gibson, in the chair. There was much routine business including a mass of correspondence requesting information about the district.

Alex Dodd, J. E. Munro and A. N. McDonald, left last week for a trip to Vancouver.

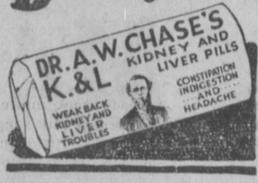

Having been successful in organizing a syndicate of prominent business and professional men to take over the future financing of the Marmot Metals Ltd., H. D. Rochford, local broker, returned to the parent, should have an examination, by a competent optometrist, every six months. It is hard to get parents to realize that in a child of nine years or age normal sight is abnormal. Sight does not become normal until the child reaches the age of 12 to 14 years. If the child is a studious type, determined and anxious to get along in school, he will compensate for the defect in his eyes by using bodily energy to put him where he would be. For this reason, it is very important that parents observe carefully 'how the children see.' The child who uses his bodily energy to augment defective sight is the child that, later on, has a nervous breakdown.

"Ninety-nine people out of 100 in Edmonton don't mean what they say," he declared. He had a glittering eye, a loud and positive voice, and he was holding down the forum at the Canadian Legion cañteen.

"Do you believe that?" he asked, and fixed his glittering eye on the timid members of the group.

"I guess I'll hold my tongue," said the timid one.

"There!" shouted the positive voiced one. "Whaddi tell yer. Does 'e mean 17 Will 'e 'old his tongue. No, 'e won't. Not with 'is 'ands, 'e won't, so ain't 'e lying? And 'ere's more. A bloke says 'e's 'ard pressed for money 'is 'e pressed? Somebody says 'Night draws on.' Draws on wot, I'd like to know. Then a girl'll say she made a monkey out of me. Did she? No, w'y, Darwin even couldn't do that, an' 'e's been trying for years. Pick up a book and read something like this: 'Er cheeks flamed. 'Er blood boiled. 'Er eyes swam with tears. She dropped 'er eyes. 'E tripped up the stairs. She swept 'im off 'is feet.' None of 'em true. Nice pickle she'd be in if she dropped 'er eyes, or 'er blood boiled, really. An' then you'll 'ear some 'father sayin' 'is baby caught a cold, and the nipper ain't a month old yet and can't even sit up. 'Ow could 'e 'atch anything; really catch it I mean? So that's wot I claim. Ninety-nine out of 'undred in Edmonton don't mean wot they say."

CORRECTION OF POOR SIGHT

Parents Said to be Greatest Obstacles in Way of Improved Seeing TORONTO, Jan. 24.—The greatest obstacle that optometrists have to contend with in correcting defective sight is "parents." Dr. R. M. Peckham, before the Ontario Association of Optometrists, declared that there are few defects in sight which cannot be either wholly eliminated or greatly reduced. Near-sightedness in children, if taken early enough, can be dispelled altogether and in adults the defect can be reduced to a minimum.

"When a child goes to school," he asserted, "his sight should be constantly watched. The child between the ages of five or six years and 12 to 14 years, no matter how good his sight may seem
