Cabinet

House Adjourns
After Battle

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa Evening Citizen newspaper story says Prime Minister St. Laurent is expected to make a spectacular cabinet shuffle as the first move "to regroup some of the loss of public prestige" from the Currie report.

The report predicts transfer of Defence Minister Claxton to another department and his replacement by either Production Minister Howe or Hon. C. G. Power, former air minister. Other shifts which would follow the change may also include a change in the defence deputy minister.

The deputy now is C. M. Power, wartime army brigadier. The Commons last night ended in a final blaze of acrimony and counter-accusations and then abruptly in government of the embattled Commons until Jan. 12.

But there's no doubt the fight will be revived after the Christmas recess, both in the House and in the Defence Expenditures Committee that will get up to study the report described a general breakdown in one branch of the army and a general haste-before-cost attitude in the defence department.

It will probably go on through the recess itself, over the radio and on public platforms.

POLITICAL ISSUE
Both the government and the opposition consider this a potentially major issue for possible action in 1953.

The first round ended with three parties in the opposition demanding a cabinet reshuffle for Mr. Claxton for "serious and disgraceful" conditions in the army.

The government's stand is that the opposition has tried to "petty pilfering" into a major issue for political advantage and that there is no reasonable confidence either in Mr. Claxton or the head of the department.

The battle largely dominated the general Throne speech debate from the time the report was tabled Monday, but the majority of members found time Wednesday to express confidence in the government, rejecting two opposition motions to demand confidence.

No Commitment Likely on Power

OTTAWA — The Canadian government is unlikely to give any commitment to the United States for the diversion of the headwaters of the Yukon River for a power development in Alaska, Resources Minister Winters said Wednesday in the Commons. "No commitment has been given. And it is unlikely there will be any," Mr. Winters told members.

Hospital Scheme at Stake

BEHIND the provincial government's drastic resolve to keep financial assistance for hospitals down to last year's level it is possible to discern only one thing—the impending collapse of the entire B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

At this moment Health Minister Eric Martin must feel like the Dutch boy with his finger in the hole in the dyke. He cannot move, yet there is no future in staying where he is.

Presumably if his new set of premiums and relaxing of the compulsory clause had worked the way they were supposed to, there would have been no need to take this alarming action.

The reverse has apparently occurred. Those making their regular payments now are said to be considerably less than the 70 per cent who contributed to the compulsory plan, and it is expected that during 1953 the service will fall in arrears at the rate of at least $1 million a month.

If the government had a chance of enforcing its hold-the-line edict, its outlook would be a trifle less grim. But already the impossibility of doing so has become evident.

The Revelstoke hospital board has announced it is through with attempting miracles and it is ready to hand responsibility for the hospital over to the government.

Any inclination to ignore this pressing situation, which is undoubtedly shared by other institutions, cannot be tolerated. If our hospitals were forced to survive without more help, they would have to curtail their services and attempt to deny their staffs any approximation of the benefits enjoyed in other vocations.

The alternative is not the abandonment of hospital insurance. Its value is too apparent for that, and investigation shows that 95 per cent of British Columbians want it to stay.

Ray REFLECTS and REMINISCES

The painting of Prince Rupert, hung in the city council chamber some months ago, may possibly bear a resemblance, for how much, three centuries ago, did a camera amount to? A work of art looks out from its rich framing and the rugged, smooth-shaven face has the ghost of a slightly haughty expression.

1952 Olympic Lesson

POWELL RIVER: You can learn a lot in a quiet week-end in this paper-making town. For instance:

Alcoholics Anonymous is doing a fine missionary job. Four clean-cut, visibly sincere speakers convincingly tell their Sunday night story that alcoholism is a disease that must be treated like any other disease; and that it has been successfully treated in thousands of cases.

At St. John's United Church they have a new kind of Bible class. They are discussing selected passages comparing the new Standard version with the old King James edition.

For instance, in the wonderful story in Saint Luke about the birth of the baby Jesus. The old version says that the family went to Bethlehem because Caesar had decreed that all the world should be "taxed."

BUT I LEARNED more about the 1952 Olympic games at Powell River than I ever did from the cabled newspaper reports from Finland—which I found as colorless as those from the Korean war front.

The main point made by Mr. Lundie in the Powell River News is that while our contenders are doing about as well as Canadians of earlier decades did, the top athletes of other countries are doing much better than their predecessors.

The then-peerless Percy Williams in 1928 won the 100 metres in 10.8 and the 200 metres in 21.8. The Canadian sprinters who were eliminated in the first round in 1952 equalled these times before leaving Canada.

Mr. Lundie shows that in some key events several of the contenders broke previous world records—yet failed to win first place.

BUT I FOUND Jock Lundie's analysis of Negro victories even more intriguing. He shows that in 1932 a Negro sprinter, for the first time, won the 100 and 200 metre events.

that he split blood, had a dash of royalty in him, knew something about Germany, didn't care for Cromwell, roamed across pirate-haunted oceans, and all in all was a regular fellow, or in other words a broth of a boy.

Keep your eyes open before marriage — half closed afterward!

And so, today, there is now no further question about democracy in the army.

A Child's Life of Jesus

"One day Jesus taught everybody to talk to our Father in Heaven. He gave us a prayer to say."

A Child's Life of Jesus is one of the last books written by the late Fulton Oursler, noted author of such volumes as The Greatest Story Ever Told. The Greatest Book Ever Written, etc.

Chapter VII One day Jesus taught everybody how to talk to our Father in Heaven. He gave us a prayer to say:

"Our Father . . . God is not just my Father, or just your Father. He is ours—the Father of everybody.

"Our Father Who are in Heaven. . . Heaven is our home, where our Father is and we can only get there by loving Him.

"Our Father, Who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name. . . God's name is holy and we should say it lovingly.

"Our Father, Who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy kingdom come. . . When we all love Him, His kingdom will be everywhere. Then there will be nobody doing anything wrong, but only goodness and spiritual joy.

"Our Father, Who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy kingdom come. . . We all should do what God wants us to do here in this world just as the saints and angels do in Heaven.

"Our Father, Who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy kingdom come. . . We ask our Father for whatever we need. Just as you ask dad, who is your earthly father, Jesus told us that God is a good Father and will never forget us.

"Our Father, Who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy kingdom come. . . Tomorrow, Jesus and the loaves and the fishes.

OTTAWA DIARY By NORMAN M. MacLEOD

Series carried in Canadian newspapers on proceedings in the House of Commons do not always do justice to one group of parliamentarians: those who wage vigorous battles, often alone, for their pet ideas. They are fighters for legislation which they believe should be introduced to improve the lot of Canadians.

Some of them are prominent members of the house—like John Diefenbaker, the lanky, good-natured Conservative MP for Lake Centre in Saskatchewan, and David Croll, government member for Toronto-Spadina.

However, there are others who speak with equal enthusiasm and never make copy. Their subjects and their speeches usually make dull reading, and newspapers cannot afford to be dull in these tense days.

SELDOM REPORTED

One of these is Robert Fair, Social Credit MP for Battle River, Alta. Fair has been battling ever since his election in 1935 for the government to grant clear titles to all veterans of World War I who established farms under the Soldier Settlement Board.

Another member who has fought for years to put his ideas across is John Blackmore, SC member for Lethbridge. Blackmore never misses an opportunity to explain Social Credit monetary theories to members. He never wavers from his task despite ridicule to which he is subjected by Liberals, Conservatives and CCFers.

During the Throne Speech debate, Blackmore was again on his feet telling the government it should accept his party's monetary policies. And once again he had to parry with speakers from other parties who tumbled him a "funny money man."

Said Tom Goode (L—Burnaby-Richmond): "I do not think a senior member of the type now speaking should call anybody stupid. . . We think the same thing of him as he has just now indicated he thinks of us."

Premier Urges Propaganda Campaign

PARIS (CP)—Premier Alcide de Gasperi of Italy Tuesday asked top ministers of the 14-country Atlantic alliance to stage a united propaganda campaign against communism.

The council chairman, Foreign Minister Ole Bjorn Kraft of Denmark, told ministers: "We now are approaching the stage at which we feel safe from outward aggression."

He warned, however, that "the picture may change very suddenly" and the NATO goal of "balance with the Soviet bloc has not yet been created."

HERE
By LARRY STANWOOD

Ship launchings can take the form of all manners of ceremonies—from high-brow, official functions with many bigwigs in attendance to the unheralded one-man affair where a home-made rowboat hits the water for the first time.

Wednesday afternoon's launching here in Cow Bay was neither. It was an affair about half-way between when two brothers saw the first fruits of their work gently roll down the grid and float in the high tide.

The Wick brothers, Ralph and John, had completed their first job after taking over the family boat works.

Very interested onlooker as Tommy Boulter, assistant superintendent of Prince Rupert drydock, cracked the bottle on the prow was John Jenkins, owner of the 36-foot new hull that will soon be fitted with its super-structure and be one of the most modern trollers afloat.

Mr. Boulter said: "I christen thee 'Pandora' and may the owner be showered with success."

Jenkins, a fisherman here for 21 years, looked fondly at the graceful lines and thought, perhaps, how he might retire the old "Active" which had served him for so many years.

With careful scrutiny and an experienced eye, Larry Halcrow, also of drydock personnel, had a personal reason for watching the launching. He designed the Pandora, working closely with Jenkins to determine the future owner's needs.

A departure from the norm among trollers, the Pandora has a "transom" stern, flat and sloping in towards the keel. This design differs from the "compromise" stern, generally featured among trollers, which comes to a rounded point.

"That is the way I wanted it," said Jenkins. "It will give me more room to look after the lines, and I think the ship will ride better this way."

The Pandora is equipped with a 104-horse engine, of the semi-heavy-duty type, expected to give a maximum speed of nine knots.

At Oswald got a cheery greeting from the small group which gathered in the Cow Bay boat shed for the launching.

Oswald, who has been fishing here since 1912, hesitated slightly before calling himself an "old-timer," then considered he might fit into that class.

A halibut fisherman for many years, he joined the ranks of the "gentlemen fishermen"—trollers—five years ago and operates the Westco.

"I guess I wouldn't leave it now until I drop," he said. "Trolling gets into your blood, especially when you're going for the springs. I get a thrill every time one of those tallas strikes—40 and 50-pounders can give quite a battle."

Oswald said fishing last season was "no great shakes, but we'll get by the winter, alright."

Another man, not a fisherman but the friend of many, stood there to take in the launching. He was Bud Barrie, well-known down-town merchant. He had just attended the funeral and burial of a friend of many years, Jack Mulhern, or "Gasoline Jack" as he was known to many on the waterfront.

Besides Bud were the three ladies: Mrs. Wick, the mother of Ralph and John, the boat-builders; Mrs. Ralph Wick, the former "Buddie" Barrie and Bud's daughter; and Mrs. Barrie. As the Pandora rolled silently down the sloping grid, George Rorvick mentioned something about a new industry being born and Ralph Wick answered: "At least, it's the only launching in Prince Rupert this year."

LIGHT-UP CAMPAIGN

Editor,
The Daily News:
It is commendable to see the civic spirit of so many people of our city. We say this especially in regard to the light-up campaign sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. No doubt the beautifying of the store windows will lend a festive atmosphere to the Christmas season and inspire the citizens with that "at home" friendly feeling.

It is only too true, however, that the tendency of a great many people today is to make Christmas a time of mere celebration—a celebration far removed from the sublimity which should be characteristic of the feast of Christ, the Redeemer of mankind. Yes, Christmas is Christ's feast, but to celebrate it in a manner which is not alone unchristian but even pagan, is a contradiction of the very notion. In many a home is not Christmas synonymous with a time of drunken revelry?

We are striving for a better world. Good-willed men are seeking to bring peace back to troubled nations. Until the "Prince of Peace" is given His proper place, that can never be realized. Let us, therefore, Bring Christ Back To Christmas.

It is understood that a prize will be given for the most "original" window decoration. The original idea of Christmas is the humble, though all the more astounding, birth of the Saviour.

As a step towards bringing Christ back to Christmas then, might we suggest that the prize-winning window be the one most "original"—the one most beautifully depicting that first Christmas scene—the birth of Jesus at Bethlehem, and it's awe-inspiring circumstances.

THINK THINGS OUT

Editor,
The Daily News:
Mr. Casey thinks we should be allowed to think and express our opinions. I also believe in thinking things out, but I like to think further than the end of my nose and not to accept in blind, good faith all the claims and statements of glib-tongued Communists, some of whom we don't have to go very far to find.

I am in complete agreement with Mr. Steigler about the publication, "The Fisherman." For some reason or other this paper is sent to us, and I used to read it until I became disgusted with its utter blithering. Now that the elections are over, let us hope the new council will prove themselves capable of running our city.

HUMAN RIGHTS

Editor,
The Daily News:
I was listening to the radio the other night on the subject of Declaration of Human Rights, the right to work and earn a living. Well, that doesn't seem to apply to Hunts Inlet.

The Department of Public Works started a repair job on the approach to the floats. Now one would have thought that they would do the job as quickly as possible. They started out as if that was their intention. But after a week's work they laid off five men. That left two men and a foreman, so the use of the float was delayed so much longer, which meant that you had to load your freight in a rowboat and carry it over the rocks to the road.

As to the laying-off of the men, the foreman said it was the policy of the department to favor married men with children and returned men. There were two returned men, but they were both laid off, and so were two married men.

I don't know where single men come in, but there might be some hope for them as the foreman is single and an old-age pensioner.

By the way, the work started October 16 and ended December 12.

ELECTION OPINION

Editor,
The Daily News:
May I be permitted a short space in your paper to give my opinion of Thursday's election?

In the first place, the election of the aldermen as suggested by Mayor Whalen was not a "vote of confidence" in him; rather it was just a case of everybody thinking for themselves. I, too, voted for several of his so-called choices, but let Mayor Whalen be assured that I certainly will not vote for him again next year, and many others feel the same way as it certainly was not up to him to select candidates. We are still living in a free country (I hope) and if the Mayor was not trying to dictate to us the day before the election, I wonder what it would be called.

Let us not forget our husbands and sons fought on foreign soil against just such dictators.

Now that the elections are over, let us hope the new council will prove themselves capable of running our city.

SIDEWALK NEEDED

Editor,
The Daily News:
I have written several times regarding the sidewalk fronting our places, namely Mr. Scaddon's, Astoria's, Black & White's, which I occupy, and also Central Cafe's. Twice during six weeks, people have tripped and fell when coming into my place. Fortunately they landed on their knees and hands.

You can see the planks in places through the black top, it is also very difficult to keep the snow off in the winter. When it is raining, the walk is nothing but puddles of water. I myself pay $35 per year licence and therefore, I think that I am entitled to a little consideration, especially in this very important matter.

I have been after the city for five years to do something about this deplorable sidewalk. The city should take some action before someone is hurt seriously.

APPEAL FOR SOCKS

Editor,
The Daily News:
The Central City Mission, 233 Abbott Street, Vancouver, B.C., has appealed to the public for 1,000 pairs of men's socks. They need not be new but they must be clean and in good repair.

Some years ago one of the local organizations collected clothing for the Central City Mission and paid the postage for delivery of same, so I wondered if the people here would send even one pair of socks to this very worthy Mission.

Last week thirty men turned up at this refuge for the destitute wearing no socks, so the appeal has gone out for more socks to meet the heavy demand.

According to a Vancouver paper I read yesterday only 150 pairs have so far been donated so I thought the people of Prince Rupert might help out as these poor unfortunates are from all over Canada and not Vancouver alone. Remember, just one pair will be most welcome and send them to the Vancouver address.

Powderpuff Better Weapon Than Loaded Revolver

HALIFAX © — Halifax's only policewoman says a powderpuff is far more deadly than a revolver. In other words, treat prisoners with courtesy, not force, and you'll have no trouble.

Mrs. Lillian Rafuse has been a member of the morality squad since 1940.

"When other girls hoped to grow up to be teachers and nurses, I always dreamed of becoming a policewoman," she says. "I think it is the most wonderful job in the world because I meet all kinds and types of people."

Mrs. Rafuse looks after women who have been jailed for drunkenness, brawling, shoplifting and other indictable offences. She also escorts women taken to other cities for trial.

"I have never had to use force to bring them in," she says. "I treat them as if they were guests in my own living room, and they always respond to this method. After all, violators of the law are not animals but human beings just as anyone else."

If the need ever arose, however, Mrs. Rafuse would have little trouble. A tall, strong woman in her 40s, she has a revolver marksmanship average of 94 out of 100. She averages 87 with her left hand.

While on a business trip to Savannah, Ga., she asked a state patrolman why he was loaded down with so much ammunition.

"He then asked me if I could shoot. I told him my average and that I had been instructed by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police."

"The patrolman whistled and said 'Mam, if you-all were taught to shoot by the RCMP then you-all shore can shoot.'"

"To make escort work less obvious I always tell the girl to take my arm," said Mrs. Rafuse. "In that way if they should let go to run away, I would know it before they had gone a step."

Kinsmen Complete Details For Kiddies Xmas Parties

About 46 Kinsmen, their wives and friends gathered at the Commodore Cafe last night for the annual Kinsman Ladies' Night. The turnout was one of the largest in the history of the Kinsman Club here.

Three new members were welcomed into the club by President Harry Sheardown and one member returned to the club, bringing the active membership to 27.

The three new members were Vern Scherk of Van's Bakery, George Levas of Prince Rupert Upholstery, and Ed Lipsin of Acme Clothing Store. Curly Barber of Northwest Construction was welcomed back into the club.

Arrangements for the Christmas parties to be held at Miller Bay Hospital and in town for the kiddies were completed. Mickey Fudger reported that the Christmas party for the youngsters in town would be held at the Capitol Theatre on Tuesday, Dec. 23, at 2 p.m. Santa Claus will be present and distribute candy and oranges after the movies.

In the evening, Santa Claus and the Kinsmen will move out to Miller Bay Hospital where Santa will distribute candy, oranges and presents to all the hospitalized children under 14 years of age.

It was decided to bag the more than 800 bags of candy needed for these parties tonight.

After the turkey supper last night, "goofy" gifts were handed around to all present by guest Hugo Kraupner. Two short films were shown.

As well as a goofy gift, Dave Chow, manager of the Commodore Cafe, was presented with

Maxim Drops Title Uncrowned Champion

ST. LOUIS (CP)—Grim-faced, determined Moore made up for years of bitter frustration by battering light-heavyweight champion Joey Maxim into a bleeding hulk to win the 175-pound title by a unanimous decision.

Ignored by one champion after another for over two years, the "Uncrowned Champion" made it Wednesday night by blasting the steel-chinned 30-year-old Clevelander with a blistering barrage of punches from beginning to end.

A roaring crowd of 12,610 in St. Louis arena and millions on a country-wide television beam, watched the powerful, 36-year-old Negro score his one-sided

Margaret Ann Norris Becomes First Woman Executive in NHL

DETROIT (AP)—Marguerite Ann Norris, who has never seen the Detroit Red Wings play in Olympia Stadium here, has become president of both the Wings and Olympia.

The 23-year-old Miss Norris succeeds her late father, James D. Norris, as head of the Detroit National Hockey League empire. The youngest of four Norris children, she was chosen at a meeting of the heirs in Chicago.

Two brothers, James and Bruce, are executives of the Chicago Black Hawks, also of the NHL, and James also is president of the International Boxing Club.

General manager Jack Adams of the Wings made the announcement of Miss Norris' selection. He said Saturday: "Marguerite Ann was selected to follow the prescribed wishes of her father."

Adams said Miss Norris often had seen the Wings in action in New York and Chicago, but never had seen them play in Olympia. Miss Norris intends to make her permanent home in Detroit and will make her public debut as president of the Stanley Cup champions Monday.

After graduation from college, she worked with Dun and Bradstreet in New York and with West Farm Management in Chicago. Adams himself was voted a new title by the Norris heirs. He was made Detroit representative on the NHL board of governors.

Norris, who died in Chicago Dec. 4, had held the title of Red Wing and Olympia president and that of an NHL governor since he founded the professional club here 20 years ago with Adams.

Adams said no other changes are contemplated in the Wing management.

Miss Norris is the first woman executive in the NHL.

All-Out Effort To Prevent Ring Deaths Urged by AMA

CHICAGO (AP)—The journal of the American Medical Association has called for an all-out effort, including a redesigned boxing glove, to cut "the high incidence of deaths and injuries" in the ring.

It urges research to protect professional fighters in their careers.

In a swing at the National Boxing Association and most state boxing commissions, the journal Thursday said professional boxing deserves to be labelled "the nation's most dangerous trade."

"Boxing can be and must be made a safer sport," the journal said in an editorial that the NBA should "immediately establish" an accident and fatality committee.

The journal added, would record the annual boxing death rate, conduct precise analytical studies of the causes of death in the ring and institute remedies to improve the protective equipment.

Similar steps taken years ago by football authorities, the journal said, have reduced fatalities in that sport by 50 per cent.

In Washington, Colonel Harvey Miller, executive secretary of the NBA, said the NBA has always stood ready to fully cooperate in any move toward greater ring safety.

Miller said the NBA had cooperated in the development of

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Usual Reasoning Doesn't Govern Miss Brash's Play

It wasn't the opening lead but the second lead made by Miss Brash which guaranteed the downfall of this contract.

The opening was the six of hearts and Mr. Masters put up the queen. Mrs. Keen let this hold on the chance that Miss Brash had started with six cards in the suit. Mr. Masters returned a heart and the jack lost to Miss Brash's ace.

At this point it was clear to Miss Brash that another heart lead would set up the balance of her suit. But what purpose would that serve? The closest thing she had to an entry was the jack of diamonds.

She decided that if the contract could be set at all, it would have to be Mr. Masters' cards that would do the job. What to lead, then, at the third trick?

From the looks of dummy's clubs it appeared that a club lead would only help Mrs. Keen. As to diamonds, Mrs. Keen had bid that suit and there was a supporting honor on the board.

That left only the spade suit. If Mrs. Keen had two of the top spades honors it was unlikely that the contract could be defeated. In any case a spade looked like the best shot.

So out came the 10 of spades. The jack went on from dummy. Mr. Masters played the queen and was permitted to win. He returned a low spade and again Mrs. Keen ducked. She won the spade continuation and now spade stopper.

everything depended on the club suit.

Apparently there was an excellent chance that the king of clubs was in Miss Brash's hand as she had overcalled with no high honors in spades and diamonds and only the ace in hearts. But such reasoning doesn't apply to Miss Brash. She doesn't need much to overcall.

Mrs. Keen took the club finesse and Mr. Masters won with the king and cashed another spade trick for down two.

Note that if Miss Brash had wootenly returned a heart at trick three, Mrs. Keen would have had plenty of time to set her clubs while she still had a spade stopper.

Reign of Terror

Kure 'Caters' To Servicemen

The Japanese press has reported a "reign of terror" by Commonwealth troops in Kure. Bill MacKenzie, Canadian press staff writer with the Canadian forces in Kure, was sent to Japan to investigate conditions in the city and the temptations in the way of servicemen there.

By BILL BOSS

KURE, Japan (CP)—Col. Willis Mack of Ottawa, colonel in charge of administration for the Canadian Brigade, says the "caters to the soldier's instincts." The only part Kure the soldier sees does, is the "caters to the soldier's instincts."

There is no indication of the atmosphere in this city of sin is a Canadian army order telling what to do if they are arrested by Japanese prostitutes. It explains soliciting for prostitution is illegal in Japan, the police can't lay a charge on the accosted person committing the offence.

Service personnel who have been accosted and wish to make complaint should go to the nearest police box, or to any military police patrol or civilian policeman," says the colonel.

WILD OFF FEET

Two nights before it was published, I saw two Canada-bound soldiers—members of the 1st Canadian Princess Patricia's Light Infantry—literally hauled off their feet by the girls keen on detaining them.

Canadian military and civilian forces in Kure have fallen victim to an August peak of 18 a day to six a day in October. Another eight offences weekly by Canadians against Japanese soldiers settled by Canadian army officers before they reach the civil police.

Even at the peak, the "reign of terror" reported by the Japanese press, was created by the Japanese themselves. Of more than 3,000 serious crimes in Kure from April 28 to Nov. 1, only 239 were committed by Commonwealth troops including British Canadians.

Kure, which has headquarters and base installations of British Commonwealth Forces in Korea, has a population of 193,000 including its satellite city of Yamaguchi.

HEAVILY BOMBED

Kure was heavily bombed during the war. Since then its huge naval and naval base have been outlawed. New industries all come in until factory buildings, used for Korean war purposes by the Australians, are raised.

Some 10,000 to 12,000 Kure men and women are employed by the Commonwealth forces. As many more probably are employed by firms supplying the forces.

Most of the rest of the city is off the spending of troops stationed here, and those in transit to and from Korea.

Many of the troops are relaxing after front-line tension. They are interested in amusement and souvenirs. Kure abounds in trinket shops supporting entire families, their cousins and their aunts.

And the shopping districts of Kure and Hiromachi—a 20-minute drive from downtown Kure—are full of pin-ball dives, cabarets, beer halls and "tea shops" staffed by hostesses who are available for other purposes than serving tea.

There also is an extensive red-light district. There are almost 3,000 recognized—although not licensed—prostitutes. There are 115 licensed prostitute brokers. Registered with the public health department are 54 beer halls and cabarets employing 284 waitresses; 119 hotels with 357 room maids; 640 "tea shops" licensed to serve beer and spirits. There are 24 high-class geisha houses. Other meeting places include six licensed dance halls and five "dance-training schools."

"These people will do anything for food—and I mean anything," said one Canadian officer. These are the only Japanese the visiting soldier meets.

SQDN. LDR. A. R. (ANDY) MacKENZIE, 32, of Montreal, an RCAF fighter pilot with the United States Army Air Force in Korea, has been reported missing.

Plenty of Cars
If you are planning to buy a new car next year, you have plenty of company. A story in the New York Journal of Commerce predicts that manufacturers will produce and sell 5.5 million autos in 1953, a gain of 1.3 million units over this year.

California Shaky
California doesn't look quite as steady as it did last year, at least in the view of Lloyd's of London. The insurance firm has ordered a 100 per cent increase in first loss earthquake premiums, according to the New York Journal of Commerce, which should be enough to cause a slight tremor among policy-holders.

WOMEN HOLD ONE-THIRD OF JOBS IN U.S. TODAY

One out of every three jobholders in the United States today is a woman, the New York Journal of Commerce reports. The number of feminine workers is growing daily, as labor shortages move into the semi-skilled and unskilled categories. Also helping the influx of women is the practice of breaking down skilled jobs so that several semi-skilled women can be trained to do what one skilled man handled.

SATURDAY NIGHT IS HEINZ NIGHT

Grandmothers are not as old-fashioned as they used to be, but many of them still have those old-fashioned bean suppers. They simply empty a can or two of Heinz Beans in a casserole, flip a switch, and in no time the family has that regular old Saturday night treat. The oven-baking has been done for them by the Heinz chefs.

Military Casualties in Korea Total More Than 2,000,000

By A. I. GOLDBERG

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Korean war has cost more than 2,000,000 military casualties to both sides, according to the best information available here. The figure is based on official announcements of losses by the UN forces and estimates by the UN command of losses suffered by the Communists.

Of the 2,129,310 military casualties, 364,370 have been suffered by UN forces and the remaining 1,764,940 are estimated to have been borne by the Communists, mostly Chinese. The figures do not include civilians, estimated in the tens of thousands. They do not cover all the fighting, especially over the last 60 days of bitter war for the peaks of central Korea, primarily between Chinese and South Korean troops.

MOSTLY CHINESE

Estimates available to non-Communist sources say the Chinese have suffered 795,119 killed and wounded, North Korean killed and wounded were estimated at 497,768, making a total of 1,292,887 for the Communists in those categories. This sum is increased by counting another 349,000 non-battle casualties—including Communist troops wiped out by plagues and illness the Communists have been unable to combat.

In addition, North Korean prisoners are announced at 102,033 and Chinese prisoners at 21,000.

CANADIAN FIGURES

The UN total of killed and wounded is 283,579, of which the South Korean total is 158,678 and the U.S. total is 114,631. The other 15 countries with fighting forces have sustained a total of 10,240 killed and wounded. Canadian forces have 235 killed, 998 wounded and 29 missing or prisoners. The Canadian figures are up to date.

UN prisoners and missing lists total 80,791, of which the South Koreans number 66,102, the U.S. 12,997, and the other UN members 1,692.

Britain's casualties are 505 dead, 1,771 wounded, 1,107 missing and prisoners, total 3,383.

Canada Should Seek Wider World Markets

TORONTO (CP)—Canada should seek wider markets in which to sell her goods, James Stewart, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, said at the bank's annual meeting.

Perhaps initially this might be "at some cost to ourselves," he added, but the longer-run advantages "are obvious."

He saw possible future problems in the growing proportion of Canadian goods being sold in the United States, and the decreased proportion being sold in the United Kingdom.

A strong and widely-acceptable sterling currency, he stated, seems essential.

"It seems equally necessary that Britain clarify the sterling position, for it is from that source that trade revival can most effectively spring."

Business, said Mr. Stewart, is entering a period of increasing risk.

"Nevertheless, there is no need for pessimism, providing the utmost efficiency is exercised in the conduct of our affairs in this fast-changing world."

He noted an abatement of inflationary pressures and urged review of anti-inflation measures "which, under present-day conditions, have lost their usefulness," and particularly urged review in the fields of direct and indirect taxation.

"Onerous taxes can dampen incentive, deter production and restrict consumption," he said.

Mr. Stewart said Canada's national gross production this year is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $23,000,000,000, an increase of seven per cent over last year, partly due to expanded production, price increases and heavy agricultural harvests.

The general business picture, he said, continues favorable, but "certain industries are operating below capacity because of lack of sales, and other industries are absorbing inventory losses due to falling sales."

EASTBOURN, England (CP)—A four-ton cannon has been contributed toward the local drive for scrap metal. The cannon was part of the defences set up on the Sussex coast to meet the expected Napoleonic invasion about 150 years ago.

SCREEN FLASHES

"The Mountain Movers," another in the series of Canadian shorts, now showing at the Capitol Theatre, is a skillfully filmed report on the swift and adventurous invasion of British Columbia's wilderness by the Aluminum Company of Canada.

The camera sweeps over the ridges, rivers, forests, transportation links and new mineral wealth of B.C. Shown is the Kenney Dam in the Nechako Canyon and the shifting of some of the 6,000,000 tons of rock being used to block the Nechako River.

Beginnings of the future city at Kitimat also are pictured.

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello finished their 17th year as a comedy team and their 30th film together when they completed Universal-International's "Lost in Alaska," opening tomorrow at the Totem Theatre.

Mitzi Green and Tom Ewell are co-starred in the zany comedy of the Far North and Bruce Cabot heads the large supporting cast.

Twelve years ago straight man Abbott and roly-poly Costello knocked on Hollywood's gates and were hired by Universal Studios for comedy roles in "One Night in the Tropics." Public reaction was terrific and the studio immediately signed them to long-term contracts to start what was to become one of the longest records of a comedy team's success in film history.

Last Rites Held For Former Rupert Druggist
