Currie Debate Persists

St. Laurent, Drew Exchange Letters

OTTAWA (CP) — The heated debate over the Currie report on army services continued in the exchange of letters between George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, and Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The exchange—two letters by Drew and one by Mr. St. Laurent—picked up where the previous one left off Wednesday when it adjourned until 12. All letters were issued by the press.

In a 1,200-word letter, Mr. St. Laurent reiterated his request for a general investigation into the "unbelievable inefficiency" in the Defence Department which he said was disclosed in a report by George S. Currie, a wartime deputy minister of national defence.

Mr. St. Laurent said the report was "neither necessary nor desirable" for the report to be sent with the Commons Expenditures Committee.

Power Question Is Major Issue Before '53 Council

A major issue facing the incoming city council is the controversial electric power question: who will be the supplier to Prince Rupert after the Northern B.C. Power Company's 20-year franchise expires in March, 1954?

Will the present supplier be granted a new franchise, or will the B.C. Power Commission be asked to take over?

The answer is needed soon if there is to be no interruption in the city's supply of power.

While aldermen are waiting for "further clarification" from the Power Commission, they are studying answers to some 20 questions asked of the Commission last week by city delegates Aldermen George Hills and Mike Krueger.

The further clarification was asked when it was found in going over the questions at a council meeting that some answers appeared to contradict certain sections of the Electric Power Act of B.C. which governs the administration of the company.

Other answers are: While the Commission would not commit itself on any of the direct questions, certain answers are highlighted below:

Q. If the commission acquired the assets of the company would the amount paid for such assets be a factor in determining rates, or would the Commission be prepared to accept the rate base recently approved by the Public Utilities Commission?

A. The amount paid by the Commission for the company's assets would represent capital investment, carrying fixed charges, and would certainly be a factor in the cost of service, and, consequently would influence rates. The PUC rate base would have no effect upon rates charged by the Commission.

Q. If the Commission acquired the electrical utility in the Prince Rupert area, what program of plant expansion would be carried out?

A. Such expansion as required to provide for the power demands as they are foreseen. The actual program would depend upon engineering studies of the various alternatives.

Q. Does the Commission agree, that there is no interconnection with another energy producer, some type of auxiliary plant is required to guarantee continuity of service?

A. An "auxiliary" plant would not guarantee continuity of service; it could only provide emergency partial service. A duplicate plant would be required to guarantee complete service. A production plant, properly constructed, maintained and operated, does not require duplication.

Q. If the commission acquired the assets of the company would the amount paid for such assets be a factor in determining rates, or would the Commission be prepared to accept the rate base recently approved by the Public Utilities Commission?

B. C. Government Abolishes 5-Man Labor Relations Board

Unions, CMA Plan Protest New Move

VICTORIA (CP)—British Columbia is to have a part-time Labor Relations Board.

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks announced Thursday the full-time five-man board will be abolished in January and replaced by a part-time board on a per diem rate.

Chairman D'Arcy Baldwin will continue in his $8,000 a year post on a full-time basis.

"We believe a part-time setup will save money and be more efficient," said Mr. Wicks.

Four members of the present board will retire Jan. 12. They received $6,500 year salary plus travelling expenses.

Both management and labor have been represented on the board and they will be asked to nominate members for the new board.

Members of the part-time board, Mr. Wicks said, will be paid $15 day plus "reasonable" travelling expenses.

Labor and management are prepared to protest.

Spokesmen for major labor groups said last night they plan to ask the government to "reconsider" its plan.

A spokesman for the Canadian Manufacturers Association said his organization favors the full-time board operation rather than the new setup.

Navigator Holds Reins Santa Heads For Arctic Stations

Special to The Daily News
OTTAWA — This week the Royal Canadian Air Force is again playing Santa Claus to the lonely weather detachments in Canada's Arctic, by dropping 3,000 pounds of parcels and mail to the Department of Transport's isolated weathermen.

Christmas air drops this year will be made at such widely scattered spots as Nottingham Island, Resolution Island, Isaachsen, Arctic Bay, Cape Hopes Advance, Mould Bay, Eureka and Alert, all located in Santa's backyard.

The most northerly station, Alert, is just under 600 miles from Santa's workshop at the North Pole.

Taking over from Saint Nick this year are two RCAF squadrons, 426 transport squadron based at Dorval, and 412 transport squadron based at Rickcliffe, Ontario. While 426 North Star aircraft visit the stations farthest from the mainland in the western and far northern Arctic, 412 Dakota's will make the drops in the eastern Arctic.

Preparations for the Christmas drops started last October when the Department of Transport notified each family concerned that a Christmas delivery would be made by the RCAF. They were also advised to have any parcels and mail in the hands of the RCAF by mid-November for parcelling in the special heavy canvas containers used for dropping purposes.

While some supplies are parachuted to the detachments, the majority are "free-dropped" and are therefore subject to damage if not wrapped securely.

PARCELS READY
Earlier this month heavily-bundled gifts were assembled at Fort Churchill, Man., and Goose Bay, Labrador.

Weather is the chief factor in Arctic flying and the aircraft must be ready to take-off at a moment's notice.

Oddly, weather reports that the aircrew use to plan their flights are assembled from the weather detail sent out by the very people who will receive the Christmas parcels.

Dropping supplies is always an exciting time for the weathermen. For months the only sign of civilization has been the summer supply ship which made its yearly visit to unload heavy equipment and rations in August. With the help of the Eskimos who live near the weather shacks in their igloos, large oil drums are carried to a clear area away from the buildings, to mark the dropping zone. Roaring fires are lit in the drums as a guide to aircraft.

FIRES NECESSARY
Due to the small amount of daylight at this time of year—roughly two hours of twilight in December—fires are a necessity if the aircraft is to find the dropping area.

The landscape below the aircraft is one of unending whiteness, broken only here and there by a few rounded hills. Only the navigator huddled over his charts can successfully guide the plane to its destination.

Dropping the bundles is an exacting job. To make a successful drop the aircraft must fly no more than 50 feet from the ground.

The pilot first makes a preliminary run over the oil barrels to survey the dropping area and check the wind speed and direction. When he has made his decision on the best approach angle, he throttles back the engines to make the run over the area at the lowest possible speed.

As the last of the bundles fall the whole detachment rushes forward to retrieve them, the Eskimo children and huskies running in front, while the Department of Transport men can be seen waving to the aircraft as it thunders overhead.

'All is Forgiven' Twelve-Minute Battle Ends Feud

HOLYHEAD, Wales (CP)—It took 12 minutes of unorthodox battling for a 40-year-old town councillor and a former wrestler, eight years his junior, to settle a grudge they had been nursing 18 months.

The principals, councillor William Pierce, one-time Scotland Yard official and John Griffiths, known to the wrestling fraternity as the "Black Panther," decided to settle the issue of honor in a boxing ring set up in Holyhead town hall.

The grudge had been smouldering ever since the two men quarrelled when Griffiths sought admission to a social club operated by Pierce. William emerged from that clash with a black eye and a challenge to fight it out in the ring followed.

Seconds were named and arrangements finally made for a bout of six two-minute rounds. Word of the duel flashed around the community and the 500 seats in the hall were sold out overnight. More than 100 people crowded into the standing space that was left. Hundreds more were turned away.

The crowd greeted both men with resounding cheers. Then for six uproarious rounds the two tore into each other, one boxing, the other wrestling.

Neither was seriously hurt and when the referee finally gave the decision on points to Pierce, the gladiators walked out of the ring smiling broadly, arms around each other's shoulder.

After dressing they retired to a nearby pub and drank a toast to "their lasting friendship."

Said the Panther: "Most of the mischief was caused by gossiping. All now is forgotten and forgiven."

A Fascinating Subject

THEY were back again yesterday—those strange things in the sky which are rapidly becoming the great mystery of this generation.

Sitting in a newspaper office listening to the reports come in, one becomes convinced that the phantoms are not the product of a single wild imagination which has started everyone else talking. Yesterday the reports came within seconds of each other from widely scattered points in the city. For the most part they agreed in detail, which is not a common characteristic of eye-witness accounts. In other words, no one appeared to be trying to dress up the incident.

Flying saucers are generally classed as the lighter side of the news, but the big question remains—what are they? It is fatuous to claim any longer there really is no such thing. Too many sightings have been made in perfectly clear conditions, and yesterday's case was one of them. It is possible to make a liar out of one man who has been seeing things late at night, but it is hard to do the same thing to dozens of clear-headed citizens on a cool, bright morning.

The answer, if and when it ever comes, could easily overshadow any scientific development the world has ever known. To judge by the behavior of the objects, they have an unknown form of mastery over the forces of gravity and centrifuge and possess a speed far beyond anything recorded, at least for general knowledge, by man's inventions. Moreover, they are frequently reported to have a translucent quality, which adds further strangeness to their identity in this age of metals.

But perhaps the deepest mystery lies in their apparently intelligent control. They are often observed flying in formation, as was the case yesterday, and have been seen hovering along the course of rocket missiles above the testing-grounds at White Sands, New Mexico. Pilots in combat have soberly reported "goof balls," described as glowing orange spheres, accompanying them as wing-men on their missions.

Although it is difficult to believe we are being visited by objects from another planet, it is still more inconceivable that any country on earth is able to frequent the skies everywhere with such weird craft. Yet one or the other must be true, as the things are there and nothing so far has explained them away. The future of flying saucers should prove a fascinating subject.

"The little hills shall rejoice on every side."—Psalm 65:13

VICTORIA REPORT

... by J. K. Nesbitt

VICTORIA—Gen. Eisenhower says he's going to do away with some of the frills when he takes over the White House.

He's going to cut out the presidential yacht and the presidential hide-away Shangri-La. New governments, of course, always say they'll cut out frills. Sometimes they do, but mostly the old frills are followed by new ones.

We have a lot of frills in British Columbia. Government House is one of them. Some provinces have abolished Government House. Even the Tory government of Ontario didn't bother to re-open Government House after the Liberals closed it.

There is a B.C. government yacht, the sleek and luxurious Cyrene, and nobody is ever quite sure what she's used for.

There's an almost hush-hush government chalet atop Mount Seymour, a lush place of wood carvings and stone fireplaces. Nobody's quite sure what this is for; government dignitaries occasionally go there to rest and relax. This chalet should be leased out by the government to a private operator and run as a hotel.

The Conservatives haven't much to talk about, when it's necessary for the new leader, Deane Finlayson, to get up and cry because the government has banned Christmas parties in government offices, and is trying to cut down on the wholesale, and often illegal use of government automobiles.

One of my favorite places is the Archives; I like to go there and flip back into history. I like reading old documents and letters. The other day I came across letters James Douglas wrote to his son James, in school in Europe. "You must apply with more vigor to your studies—the labor is, I admit, irksome and severe, but you must not mind that; there is no royal road to learning. It is impossible for anyone to get on and make his mark in the world without plenty of hard work."

"Who is the little boy you are so fond of licking? My son must cultivate a kind and generous disposition and scorn to bully little boys."

"Tyanny is hateful in every form; the strong should never oppress the weak."

We are all poor, frail creatures when left to ourselves; our sufficiency is the Lord. We must look to Him for strength and guidance in the hour of trial. His power is sufficient for us. His strength delights in our weakness."

NATO Reveals Defence Costs

PARIS (C)—North Atlantic treaty countries agreed today to spend $239,000,000 in 1953 for airports and other solid defences against possible Soviet aggression.

This is just a shade more than half the $428,000,000 which Gen. Matthew Ridgway, Supreme Commander in Europe, had outlined as a "minimum" to provide security.

A Child's Life of Jesus

"Jesus did not seem worried. He took the five loaves and the two fat fishes and He thanked God in Heaven for them."

A Child's Life of Jesus is one of the last books written by the late Fulton Oursler, noted author of such volumes as The Greatest Story Ever Told. The Greatest Book Ever Written, etc. This presentation of Mr. Oursler's book has been specially illustrated for newspaper publication by the well-known artist, Neil O'Keefe.

Chapter VIII

Soon Jesus added new friends to His band; one of the two men named James, and his brothers, Jude and Simon; another named Thomas, and Judas the twelfth and last. He was the weakest of them all.

So now there were the twelve men who lived and travelled with Jesus and heard and saw all the miracles. There was a new miracle almost every day.

Once when Jesus was preaching to five thousand people. He learned that they were all hungry. Many of them had come from far away just to hear Him. But they had brought no food along.

Andrew said: "There is a boy here with five loaves of bread and two small fishes. That is all we have, dear Master."

Jesus did not seem worried. He told everybody to sit down on the hillside. And He took the five fresh loaves of good-tasting bread and two fat shiny fishes and He thanked God in Heaven for them. And He began to break the bread into pieces and told His helpers to pass them around. And somehow—no one knew except Jesus—there was enough bread and fish for all five thousand. Everybody had enough to eat. All they wanted.

When they were fed, and no one was hungry any more, Jesus told His friends to gather up the crumbs. God will give us plenty but we must never, never waste anything.

So they picked up the crumbs and the left-overs from those five loaves of bread and there were twelve baskets full.

Even more wonderful was the time Jesus walked on the water. Some friends of His were riding in a boat on the lake. A black cloud came across the sky and a cold wind began to blow. The ship began to shake and to fill with water. It looked as if the ship was going to sink down to the bottom of the lake, and everybody on board would be drowned.

Jesus was walking on the shore. He saw His friends in danger. So He started to walk out to them. He walked right out on the water. He stood on the stormy lake as if it were the land. The people in the boat saw someone coming but could not see who he was.

"It is I," said Jesus. "Be not afraid."

At His word, the storm went away and all were saved.

He even let Peter get out of the boat and come to Him. As long as Peter had faith he could walk on the water, too. But he got scared, so of course, he began to sink down. But Jesus took his hand and kept him safe.

Because Jesus walked on the water and kept on healing the sick, and told the people such kind and wonderful things the whole country was talking about him. Nearly everybody loved Him. But a few did not. They were cowards, like Herod. They were afraid that if they stopped doing wrong things as He asked them to do they could not be happy.

Everywhere He went, Jesus told people how to be good and happy. It is not enough just to be sorry for mistakes. We must try to make wrong things right. A boy who steals his friend's marbles must give them back. If he loses the marbles, he must buy his friend some new ones. If you hurt yourself, maybe by eating too much, you must not eat so much for a while.

Anyone entirely new to Prince Rupert finds it no easier to find his way about town as the city develops. Should you doubt it, take a good glance at somebody's look of bewilderment, after having it explained how to go there.

A press bulletin says two men were caught recently in Ontario with a stolen safe in their car. Now who can possibly imagine who would take the trouble of driving all the way from Prince Rupert, B.C., to St. Thomas, Ont.?

We are now being told that men need girdles if they are to make a better showing in the race with politics, industry and medicine—that is, where the women are concerned. Personally, we've managed to get along fairly well, without a single girdle. That is to say, not since childhood.

All Names or None

SOMEBODY once asked

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin what he would most like to achieve in life. He replied:

"To abolish inverted commas"—that is, quotation marks.

I have some pet dreams along that line. I think it would be wonderful if newspapers would abolish turnovers—and print the whole story all on one page. How often do we come to the exciting part of some report only to read "Turn to Page Umpteen"? But like as not some other member of the family has the particular part of the paper in which page umpteen happens to be. So often we never do get around to read the end of the big page one story.

BUT I HAVE another, deeper peeve when it comes to newspaper practice. That is when they print the names of some girls taken in some none-too-respectable house, but do not print the names of the men who were in the same place when the house was raided.

We had a case in our town not long ago where the name of the girl in the case won a spot in the paper, but the name of the man taken with her was left blank.

I am not kicking about leaving out the name of the man. But I do think it is a matter of principle that it should be both or none—all or none.

JUST AS IT SEEMS to me we are adopting some very dangerous precedents when we now agree that prisoners-of-war can stay in their captor's country, if they choose—so this business of weeding out "suspected subversives" in UN is a two-edged sword.

Trygve Lie says he is adopting the principle of dismissing all those who might be held to be "disloyal" to the governments of the countries from which they come.

That principle is easy to apply in the case of the U.S.A. But how about the numerous employees of UN who are refugees from countries now behind the Iron Curtain?

If the U.S.A. can demand the firing of Americans suspected of disloyalty to U.S.A., then can Russia demand the dismissal of Russian-born refugees who are hostile to the Soviet regime? The same principle must apply in the case of all members, or the UN becomes a farce. Sauce for goose, sauce for gander.

THE UNITED STATES clearly has the right to demand that the UN not be made a sort of new Wooden Horse of Troy to get into U.S.A. spies who could not get in, except through their UN connection.

That was one of the many reasons why far-sighted persons saw that UN should never have been located anywhere in U.S.A. Sumner Wells was one such. Our own Lester Pearson was another.

OTTAWA DIARY

By NORMAN M. MacLEOD

It all depends on which side of the political fence you sit, as shown in these extracts from Hansard in the days when MPs were trying to wind up the Throne Speech debate to get home for Christmas: Fisheries Minister Hon. James Sinclair, former parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister D. C. Abbott: "We are today collecting on behalf of the provinces $300,000,000 in round figures from income taxes, corporation taxes, and succession duties which we pay back to them. We do not spend it. We do not spend it on materials and labor. It is again a straight transfer of cash back to the provinces. The provinces are very heartily in accord with it and why should they not be? The federal government gets all the criticism for high taxes, and passes on the money. They get the money, but no criticism."

LONG SPEECH Opposition Leader George Drew, coming near the end of a lengthy oration: "... The government is impatient even with the discussion of provincial rights under the constitution which should guide the combined governmental activities of the country."

Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Acting Prime Minister, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and Minister of Defense Production: "We have accepted the first two hours. The third hour is more difficult."

Mr. Drew: "If anyone were to pay attention to the amount of time that the minister who has just interjected spends in announcing government policies outside the house, then no speech made here could possibly be regarded as a long speech. The fact is that the minister in question does not even believe in parliament, let alone the constitution. He believes in announcing government policy in New York, in Detroit, in any place except here in parliament."

TIT FOR TAT John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge), replying to cynics about Social Credit policy: "People who do not know 'shucks' about it are ready to tell all about it. People who do not understand these great fundamental problems are quick to say that Social Credit will not work. That

FASHION FOOTWEAR

This is the time of year when people prepare for Christmas but there's always a few who explain with great glee that they bought their presents the year and don't have any about shopping now.

As Art Murray says, the ones who dash into the store on Christmas Eve to get a gift for someone they forgot.

John Jones did a repeat job of last year's effort when he wrapped 300 Club members' gifts to wrap candy last night.

It's because he's wrapped bags of candy for his children said Bill Bond, there was a prize he'd be to win for getting the most.

Bill, who is club chair, has an excuse, though, get so many 'kids' to keep he couldn't set his mind to wrapping.

John Laurie, Blaiski and Bill are in charge of arrangements for the "children's party" at the club on Monday afternoon.

Practically every club member is out in full force on the night of decorating the huge hall.

Rae Johnson is on duty for his many trips to the store but hopes to get back to hang some mistletoe.

An unexpected prize of $10 was won by Hugo Kraupner, a novelty idea of his which he submitted to the "Trade" department of the Cleaning and Laundry World magazine published in New York.

The novelty was a little capsule "dope" containing a steamer on which are listed the attractions of Prince Rupert.

Hugo has 10,000 copies which he plans to distribute to mayors in Canada and the U.S.A.

His father puts it together.

Shearwater boys — Al and Harry — are pretty good on Civic Election Day when they knew the results of the German vote, they asked Smith to drop into their home.

On his arrival they presented him with a book — something they knew he would like.

Somehow they were sure Bill's wife was going to be and said he would need a little about the culture.

Narrington is believed to be the first person in Terrace to put a Coronation tie. The tie, piece, embroidered with a crown and tiny emblems on a maroon ground, was a gift from a member in England.

Christmas tree erected by the Jaycees at the Post Office is a big attraction for children but has competition with a brightly-lighted tree atop the Canadian Legion.

One could say how long it took to put the tree on the roof because the man who did it, Doug Guyatt, spent time quietly accomplishing that.

Reich would have been to help — or even watch — but it is said he couldn't get enough sweaters to keep in the chilly weather.

Getting the tree well and Doug went about the stringing of the lights on his efforts are drawing from everyone.

The Gyo Club's Kiddies' Christmas party set for tonight at the Civic Centre, Joe Scott and Emil Blain have been busy lining up the number of children, with names and ages, for their list of gifts.

Joe Scott asked brand new member, John Magor, how many youngsters he had, Magor announced there were four. Showing signs of shock, Scott wondered why one club couldn't hold off on some of the new members until after Christmas.

Other new members are Jim Taylor, with a boy and girl eligible for the party, and Ken Robertson, whose son is over the age limit.

Speaker at the club's weekly luncheon was Dr. G. K. Large, who explained the workings and plans of the Medical Services Association. In answer to one question about how a patient might expect fair treatment under the plan, he said you depended on the honesty of a doctor in the same way you counted on the honesty of a car serviceman. It was a good jest because the member who asked was Jack Lindsay of Rupert Motors.

George Cook is collecting at his store the not-more-than-$1 prizes for the Gyo Men's Xmas Party on Dec. 31. There is a conspiracy afoot to persuade his salesgirl, Martha Skinner, to switch the gifts for some of Cook's finer watches and more costly trinkets.

The printers got together at Bill Priest's home after their annual meeting last night and heard from oldtimer Donald McCorkindale how newspapers were published in the early days.

Retiring secretary Doug Standing said there would be no business discussed at the gathering with Mr. and Mrs. Priest. There wasn't, but hicoughs ruined a speech Doug had hoped to make.

MRS. W. D. (KAY) SMITH, third woman in the history of Prince Rupert to be elected to city council, was among spectators at this week's special meeting of the city fathers. She will officially take her seat in the New Year.

Mel Scott Heads Printers' Union

Mel Scott, veteran linotype operator who came here from New Westminster three years ago, is the new president of the Prince Rupert International Typographical Union, Local 413.

He was elected at the regular monthly meeting, held at the Civic Centre last night, to succeed Bill Priest, who retired due to pressure of other business.

M. D. (Mike) Montesano, plant superintendent at the Daily News, was elected vice-president and Clifford Jenkins was named secretary-treasurer to succeed Doug Standing.

Vince Daly was re-elected as sergeant-at-arms.

After the meeting members adjourned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Priest, 115 First Street, for a social get together.

70 Oldtimers Enjoy '70 and Over' Feast

Exactly 70 of the city's old-timers gathered yesterday afternoon in the gayly decorated First United Church Hall for the 10th "70 and Over" Christmas dinner and party sponsored by the Women's Coordinating Council of Prince Rupert.

An event which is looked forward to by many old-timers here as the highlight of the year, festivities began with a program of entertainment which included music, singing and contests.

This was followed by a turkey dinner, with all the trimmings. Meantime, 1953 officers of the Prince Rupert Pioneers' Association were declared for the coming year. They are Mrs. Maude Viereck, president; H. F. Glassey, vice-president, and Mrs. P. W. Anderson, secretary.

Prize winners of old-timers' contests were as follows: First lady in Prince Rupert, Mrs. P. W. Anderson; first gentleman here, H. B. Eastman; oldest lady present, Mrs. A. Halverson; oldest gentleman, Alex McIntyre; youngest lady, Mrs. John Bremner; youngest gentleman, H. F. Glassey; largest family of grandchildren, Mrs. E. A. (Ma) Dickens; Miss Jane Faure and A. V. Gudmudsen won the guessing contest.

In other entertainment, W. D. Bell, Gillis Couture and Keith DeWitt sang solos and a "barbershop" quartette sang several selections.

President of the pioneers, Mrs. Viereck addressed the gathering following a special address of welcome by Mrs. T. Norton Youngs, president of the Women's Coordinating Council.

Those aiding with catering and serving were: Mrs. Thor Sollien and Mrs. A. M. Dolron, in charge of the kitchen, assisted by Mrs. T. J. Boulter, Mrs. M. Waksdale, and Mrs. G. R. Brett.

Mrs. Andy Thompson assisted by Mrs. W. D. Skinner, Mrs. Lionel Holtby, Mrs. A. J. Dominato and Miss Vivian Wrathall were in charge of the decorations.

Servers were Mrs. W. Spark, Mrs. Dominato, Mrs. Boulter, Mrs. Harold Heiland, Mrs. W. W. Bowes.

Mrs. J. S. Black and Mrs. A. L. Haines were in charge of the entertainment program.

Of special service to the ladies were T. J. Boulter and George Trapp who took over carving of the turkeys.

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter.

Sugar Ray Definitely Quits Ring

NEW YORK (AP)—Middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson has positively retired from the ring to devote his time to his business and dancing career.

He made the announcement Thursday through Abe Greene, commissioner of the National Boxing Association, in a back-handed punch at the New York State Athletic Commission.

As New York stripped Robinson of his title Dec. 4 for not defending it within six months, the 32-year-old Harlem dandy made his formal retirement through Greene.

Sugar Ray, one of boxing's all-time greats with only three defeats in a brilliant career of 137 pro fights, said he picked the NBA because it represented the major boxing commission of the world and because it had been extremely helpful to him.

End of Steel Ban to Aid 1953 Building Expansion

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal ban on the use of steel for pool halls, skating arenas and other amusement and recreational centres ends Dec. 31.

The government announced it is lifting controls on steels for non-essential construction that day, paving the way for a big building expansion in 1953.

Limitations on the amount of steel stockpiled by civilian industry also will be removed, but the government will still maintain the right to channel steel from the mills if it desires.

As a result, Canada's multi-million-dollar building industry will start the new year free of government control for the first time since the Korean war.

Builders no longer will have to apply to the federal steel controller for an allotment of steel to build banks, office buildings and civilian factories.

Steel controller Kenneth Harris had been allowing some steel for these types of buildings in recent months, but he still maintained tight control over use of steel for bowling alleys, dance halls, theatres, liquor stores and the like.

Builders will be able to bid against each other freely for the steel—if it is available. There still may be difficulty getting sufficient structural and plate steel, but production is expanding steadily.

But the government will retain one order giving it power to tell a mill to ship steel to any point the government sees fit. This power, however, probably will be used sparingly, unless a great scarcity develops again and Canada's three-year $5,000,000,000 defence program suffers.

The steel controls were the last remaining government restrictions on the construction industry, partly to give defence projects priority on available supplies and partly to discourage non-essential construction and curb inflation that followed Korea.

Lifting of the steel controls was announced in the Commons by John Dickey, parliamentary assistant to Production Minister Howe, as he reviewed Canada's arms production program.

Canada's steel production before Korea was about 3,000,000 ingot tons a year. Another 1,000,000 tons—especially of types not produced in Canada—were obtained annually from the U.S.

Canada's production currently is about 3,000,000 tons a year and still climbing.

Matches Dangerous

On any average day in 1953 an outbreak of fire will occur in the United States every two seconds around the clock, the New York Journal of Commerce says.

Every day, 34 people will be burned to death, another 100 will be injured and disfigured, and 1,000 homes will suffer damage. In all, more than $2 million worth of property damage will be caused.

CHRISTMAS CAMPAIGNING

Charges of plundering from the armed forces, alleged by the Progressive Conservatives, reach a stirring height as Christmas dawns. The investigation leading up to it and finally the explosive climax lasted seven months. Yule's message in Ottawa, this seems to be something else again.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Second Lead Gives Clue To Opponents' Strength

Here is another illustration of the fact that the most important play by a defender is not the opening lead, but the first lead he makes after the opening lead.

Mr. Masters found the killing defence in today's hand. But, as good as he is, it would have been impossible for him to find it with his opening lead. He figured it out logically at his second lead—after he had seen the dummy and reconsidered the bidding.

The opening was the king of hearts—purely routine. Miss Brash played the discouraging deuce and this, coupled with the fact that she had raised hearts, made it practically certain that Mr. Champion had started with a singleton in the suit.

So, no more tricks for the defenders in hearts. It was extremely unlikely that Miss Brash had a trick in the trump suit, but if she did it would have to be the ace or the king—jack—in other words, a trick which she would always get.

It seemed more likely that she held one of the minor suit aces. After all, even she has to have something to raise her partner's overall.

If she had the ace of diamonds, then Mr. Champion undoubtedly had the ace of clubs. That would not be good for the defence as they would probably win only two tricks—a heart and a diamond. But if the minor suit aces were reversed, there was a chance to beat the contract. And with the solid diamond suit on the board, that chance had to be taken immediately.

With these thoughts in mind, Mr. Masters decided the club suit offered the only hope. And he had to choose exactly the right club.

He did. He led the jack and at that point the contract was doomed. If the queen was not put up in dummy, the jack would win and the cashing of the ace and king would do the trick.

Actually, Mr. Champion covered with the queen. Miss Brash won with the ace and returned a club. Mr. Masters then held the king-nine over the 10-seven to guarantee the set.

Unexploited Hunting Ground Abounds With Many Big Fish

By PETER MURRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FORT ST. JAMES, B.C. (CP)—In the past the hunter or fisherman who made his way to this north-central British Columbia village in search of game has been one of two kinds.

He was either a well-heeled American, able to charter an airplane, or a British Columbian keen enough to disregard a long drive over washboard roads.

This year the wealthy Americans didn't show up. They were discouraged by their government's embargo on livestock imports from Canada which included game meat and trophies.

MATTER OF TIME

But it's only a matter of time, residents say, before word-of-mouth within the province, coupled with completion of a new road-building program, will popularize the district.

Fort St. James is the gateway to an as yet unexploited area where some of the finest hunting and fishing in the province are to be found. In Stuart Lake there are fighting rainbow trout running up to 25 pounds and char, or lake trout, as big as 40 pounds.

This lake is 50 miles long and seven miles across at its widest point. The big rainbows are found lurking in the narrow, mountain-rimmed western end.

As is usual when big fish are at stake, everyone around here has his own idea on the lure "that can't miss." Most popular this season were bright flatfish, although a variety of spoons and fancier doo-dads still brought in their share of the catch.

If all the accepted lures fail to produce, a baited hook can be used on about three inches of leader behind a flasher.

GOOD FOR TROLLING

Top-notch trolling is also found on Trembleur lake, 15 miles up the navigable Tachie river from Stuart lake. Guides tell you that rainbow in Trembleur, though smaller on the average than in Stuart, are a superior fish. Colder water makes them firmer and gives them more fight.

For the fly-fisherman the area abounds with streams considered sure-fire to provide the daily quota. Probably the best fly-fishing is found in Pinchie creek, flowing south from Pinchie lake into Stuart.

The big game hunter won't be disappointed either. Moose, caribou, deer and grizzlies are plentiful. Farther north, where the terrain becomes more rugged, mountain goats are also found.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I learned a lot during my illness. I learned that the important thing is not how much money you've got or how much people love you. The important thing is your health."

This was Ann Southern talking. Not the flip, wise-cracking Maisie of film fame. She was a new person, tempered by two years of illness that brought her near death.

"It started three years ago," she said. "I had just finished 'Nancy Goes to Rio' and I was very tired. But they wanted me to go to London to appear at the command performance. I thought the excitement would pep me up."

"We had five or six wonderful weeks in London. I was enjoying myself, but I couldn't understand why I was so tired. As we were taking the train to Cherbourg for the boat trip back, Roz Russell kept staring at me. She asked me if I felt well, and I admitted that I was tired. Later, she told me she noticed I had the yellowest eyes she had ever seen."

Ann had a spree in New York and went to Sun Valley for skiing. Then she was stricken. The trouble was diagnosed as a virus infection of the liver. Recovery was slow.

"For a whole year I could do nothing," she remarked.

Ann emerged from her illness early this year. She found she had to carve a new career for herself.

Her Broadway show was not a roaring success, but it taught her how to work again. Ann also took on some TV dramas in New York. Then she returned to Hollywood. She is now acting in a movie, "The Blue Gardenia," her first in three years. She will soon start on a new career in TV.

Transfer 'Suggestion' Ridiculous

OTTAWA (CP)—Production Minister Howe says it is "ridiculous" to suggest the Canadian National Railways would transfer an hotel manager simply because a government party was kept waiting more than an hour for rooms.

Mr. Howe made the statement in the Commons after J. M. McDonnell (PC-Toronto Green) reiterated either the government or someone speaking for the government was responsible for the "demotion" of Robert Pitt, former manager of the Port Garry Hotel in Winnipeg.
