"C.D., K.D.F.M., S.O.S., S.O.S., Help, Help," was the mystifying message picked up at 11.32 last night by the Digby Island wireless station, indicating that the steamer Griffco, denoted in code by the letters "K.D.F.M.," was in serious trouble at a point unknown, her position not being given in the distress call. The letters "C.D." is the general call for all stations.

This being all the information received by Digby Island, it was later ascertained that the Griffco had, 48 hours previous, left Port Townsend for Honolulu to go into the service of new owners in which

SCIENCE OF THE MIND

The book of essays written by the late Archbishop DuVernet and recently published is a most interesting volume and one that should be in the hands of all modern thinkers. It deals with modern tendencies in religion and the science of the mind. Dealing with the Psychology of Religion one of the articles says: "The easily demonstrated fact that our mind can penetrate other minds, even at a distance, is additional evidence that the activity of our mind far exceeds the activity of our brain. What is spiritual is in space but it also transcends space. The constant tendency of the spiritual mind is to work itself free from the limitations of the physical brain."

"It is in the twilight zone that we get the most convincing evidence of the soul working itself free from its material wrapping. Here is the case of an aged clergyman, who lingered for several days on the border-line. His mind was clear and bright, while his body gradually became numb and dead, as the process of separation between the spiritual and the physical went quietly on. He seemed to be living far more in the spiritual world than in the material world, as he held fellowship, not only with God but with loved ones gone before. Only when directly spoken to with a clear voice would he seem to become dimly conscious that while he was just beyond the veil he still had one hand touching the curtain, and so was yet in contact with earth. Nothing could be more natural than this slipping away of his soul, his mind energy asserting its mastery and its freedom as the last slender thread was severed."

CONSCIOUS AND SUBCONSCIOUS MIND

Like most psychologists the Archbishop spoke of two minds, the conscious and the subconscious and between these two there was a barrier. Only at times were we directly influenced by the subconscious. "If our conscious mind had no barrier to guard it, such a torrent of ill-assorted memories, unadjusted emotions, and infinite longings would sweep over us that we should be utterly unfitted for our daily work."

And again: "If it were not for the barrier of the brain the thoughts of those both near at hand and far away, who were thinking earnestly and sympathetically about us would break into our consciousness, like the waves upon the sea shore, so incessantly that we should be distracted from our duties. Now and again some of these do submerge the breakwater and run far into the interior, but not too frequently. If it were not for the barrier of the brain the spirits of departed friends would be so constantly calling up and the repeated sounding of the psychic bell would drive us mad."

ACTIVITY OF THE SUBCONSCIOUS

Speaking of the subconscious memory the Archbishop wrote: "Our subconscious mind never ceases its activity day or night. It is like the whirlpool in Niagara River. It is constantly engulfing mental images, but now and again some of them are thrown to the surface of consciousness from the depths below. These fragments of submerged memories are sometimes re-combined voluntarily by our imagination and give rise to invention, art and poetry. At other times they are re-combined involuntarily while we are asleep and give rise to fantastic dreams."

"There will always be something of mystery about our subconscious mind, for it is there that the individual shades off into the universal and the finite touches the infinite; but at the same time we should be wise enough to recognize often the kaleidoscopic bits of memories."

"Whether for good or for evil, subconscious memories with a strong emotional tone have a powerful effect upon health and character. The reason for this is obvious. Such are submerged in the stream of subconscious activity where they act and react incessantly. There is no reason why the subconscious mind should not be flooded with bright, happy, healthy memories rather than with black, depressing and sickly memories."

POWER OF MIND OVER MIND

Just one more quotation from the book to give the pith of the psychological researches of the late archbishop: "We must in our thinking get rid of the conception that space is a barrier between minds. There is a fundamental union of all souls in the realm of the subconscious world. Whenever we like we can cause our mind energy to penetrate the subconscious mind of another, whether he be thousands of miles away from us or not. He may not be conscious that he has received a mental influence from us but this mental energy will, nevertheless, stir within him an auto-suggestion of a similar character."

PEACE POLICY FOR THE YEAR

Review of Conditions Given Showing Situation Regard to Disarmament

GENEVA CONFERENCE

Latest Move to Outlaw War Looked Upon With Favor by Writer of Article

(Manitoba Free Press)

From any survey of world achievements consideration of how the world stands in relation to the cause of permanent peace cannot be excluded. This is a question which underlies all other phases of world betterment, since all advances in civilization and every program for the amelioration of human ills depend for their fruition upon the continuance of world peace. This is being more and more understood by the peoples of the world, however difficult it may be for their political and military leaders to turn aside from the traditional principle of statecraft that war is the ultimate arbiter for which provision must always be made. There are many signs that there is, in all civilized nations, a growing apprehension that war will come again unless the general engagement to preserve peace to which all the nations have subscribed receives some additional measure of popular reinforcement. With this goes a lively appreciation of what another war would mean. It would undoubtedly be the last war in the sense that after it was over there would be nothing left to smash.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

It may, therefore, very properly be asked whether 1927 has made any contribution to the cause of peace and to world stability. If it has not, or if there has been a worsening of international relations, other achievements, however hopeful or beneficial in themselves, cannot save the year from being regarded as a failure.

Fortunately the answer to this challenge is that 1927 may be regarded, notwithstanding certain incidents, as the most encouraging since the war to those who hope and work for the cause of universal and enduring peace.

It was relatively a peaceful year. There were no international armed clashes calling for the good offices or the intervention of the League of Nations. Civil wars, like those which are now distracting China, do not come within the League's scope. Difficulties in Europe which, under pre-League conditions, might and probably would have led to war have been kept within bounds and conditions established which make their final adjustment possible. The state of non-intercourse between Poland and Lithuania which has existed for seven years was brought to an end by the Council of the League at its late meeting; and authority was vested by consent in League officials for the purpose of preventing boundary clashes, which marks an encouraging extension of League power.

GENEVA COLLAPSE

The collapse of the Geneva naval disarmament conference was not without its uses in revealing, especially in Great Britain, divergences in temper between the civilian and the official mind. Though the responsibility for the failure was only partially chargeable to their delegation, the people of Great Britain, in place of backing up their representatives in the time-honored way, developed a highly critical attitude towards the admiralty policies to which the collapse had been in part due. The public was startled by the revelation that the naval experts of the two great English-speaking nations were basing their building programs upon the theoretical possibility of war between the two countries. The deadlock at Geneva is explainable upon no other view; and official declarations to the contrary have had no effect in moderating adverse public opinion. The resulting discussion, which took on a wider range when Lord Cecil resigned from the government, giving reasons, has had an undoubted effect in strengthening the influences which favor more active leadership by Great Britain in the world peace movement. One sign of this is the demand that Great Britain put herself under the compulsory jurisdiction of the World Court in justiciable matters. Formal adhesion to this demand has now been made by the League of Nations Union, the Liberal party and the Labor party.

AMERICA SILENT

In the United States there was no corresponding showing of popular disapproval of the ungracious course which the American delegates pursued at Geneva, though critical voices were not lacking; but the disclaiming by the British government of any intention to enter into competitive building, with the practical confirmation of this by the cancellation of two cruisers, has been so favorably received that there is some possibility that American public opinion will block the big navy program now before Congress. The most favorable development of the year in the United States was the movement, to which Senator Capper is giving leadership in the Senate, to have the United States declare that in the event of war it will have no dealings of any kind with the aggressor nation—that is, the nation which rejects arbitration and goes to war. This policy was strongly recommended by the World Alliance for International Friendship through the churches at its great convention in St. Louis, and has the vigorous support of influential American journals and publicists. Adoption of the Capper resolution by the Senate would, in effect, bring the United States into cooperation with the League for the enforcement of peace by rendering effective the weapon of the economic boycott, which the League will probably never employ until assured of American sympathy.

Canada was represented by Senator Dandurand at the last assembly of the League, which is regarded as the most successful gathering of the kind to date; and he also represented Canada at the recent council meeting where the menace of war between Poland and Lithuania was removed. On his journey home he gave expression in New York to his considered opinion: "As it is constituted today the League of Nations may save the world. It would save the world without a doubt if the United States joined it. Upon the United States people rests that formidable responsibility."

THOMAS HARDY DIED AGED 88

Famous Author Commenced Writing at Age of 27 and Made an Enduring Name

DORCHESTER, England, Jan. 12.—Thomas Hardy, the English novelist, died here today.

"Last of the Victorians," English poet and novelist, Hardy was not only one of the great writers of the Victorian era but also one of the great writers of the first quarter of the 20th century. For a number of years past he has been recognized as the most distinguished living figure in English letters.

Born in June, 1840, Mr. Hardy's exceptionally long and successful life of authorship began at the age of 27 and continued until he was 80, and even then he had not laid aside his pen forever. A couple of years later he wrote a short play which was first produced in his home town by a company of local actors and afterwards found its way to London. In November, 1924, in his 84th year, he took an active interest in the stage production of his dramatic version of his novel "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," written 30 years before, soon after the book was published in 1891, but never printed or acted until 1924.

FORMERLY AN ARCHITECT

A remarkable thing about this Dorchester genius, who was born and lived and died in the same town—one of the towns in his beloved "Wessex"—was that in his early manhood he gave little indication of becoming a writer. He was an architect and seemed destined to remain an architect. Fortunately, however, after having followed his first choice of a profession for about 10 years, he came to the cross-roads where he saw a beckoning sign leading to letters as his life's work. Then he became an author—a poet at first, then a novelist, and later a poet again.

In Thomas Hardy's decision to write instead of design buildings architecture lost a man whose work had already won public recognition, but the gain to the world is beyond estimate. It was a happy choice, and from that day Hardy began to build a finer structure than any comprised of brick or stone—an enduring name in literature.

PREVENT BLINDNESS IN YOUNG CHILDREN

In Pennsylvania it is Compulsory to Treat Eyes of New Born Infants

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 12.—Germs that destroy the sight of new-born children cause a large proportion of infant blindness today in spite of the moral and legal requirements that they be treated with a nitrate of silver preparation which promptly destroys such bacteria, according to Dr. Theodore B. Appel.

"Under a regulation of the Health Department," he said, "all new-born babies must receive a preventive treatment. The regulation reads: 'It shall be the duty of physicians and midwives attending women in confinement to instill in each eye of the new-born child, as soon as practicable after birth, a 1 per cent silver nitrate solution, or other approved agent of like character, for the purpose of preventing the disease known as ophthalmia neonatorum.'"

"Parents owe their children all the safeguards that modern science can afford. When it comes to the eyes of the new-born, this is not only a moral obligation but also a legal one. No one has any right to take any chances by disregarding it. It is a matter of compulsory routine. Because, contrary to popular opinion, there are several types of bacteria which cause discharging eyes and consequent blindness. All babies, therefore, of whatever station or condition must receive this preventive treatment."

ARTIFICIAL EARS MADE

Deaf Students Now Learn to Hear With Finger Tips

WONDERFUL RESULTS

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 12.—The deaf may soon be able to "hear" through their fingers much more easily than they do at present by employing the various mechanical "ears" that are in use, according to Professor Robert H. Gault of Smith College.

Professor Gault is doing research work at the college psychological laboratory which he says he hopes will make it possible for those who have lost their hearing to understand ordinary conversation through vibrations of the voice detected by the finger tips.

He explained "that the skin can detect 2600 vibrations per second which include all the vibrations that are essential to the understanding of human speech." For the last five years he has been working with the deaf developing an instrument through which these people may feel these vibrations.

The instrument is made for Professor Gault by the Bell Telephone Company. It crudely resembles an ear but when used by a person who is deaf it is held between the thumb and finger tips instead of being placed at the side of the head as is customary. The person using this instrument has learned the different vibrations set up by speech and through their interpretation may easily carry on a conversation and "hear" a person who does not raise his voice.

The instrument, Dr. Gault pointed out, has another use also. A deaf person using it learns to control and modulate his own voice. This is taught by letting the pupil first feel the vibrations of the instructor's voice, and then teaching him to cause the same vibrations when he speaks. Combined with lip reading, Dr. Gault said, this instrument enables a deaf person to understand speech almost perfectly and without nervous strain. Normally it takes from 50 to 80 hours of instruction to teach a deaf person to understand conversation.

Dr. Gault's work began at Northwestern University in 1922. In his first experiment a tube was run through a wall between two sound-proof rooms. Dr. Gault spoke into the tube and a subject placed his hand over the end of it to feel the vibrations. The subject noted differences in the vibrations of different sounds in the doctor's speech and in 10 months, with 25 minutes' practice each day, the subject has learned to "feel" 38 words.

FISHERY QUESTION IS STILL AN OPEN ONE

Telegram to Victoria Paper Declares Announcement is Premature

The Victoria Colonist of recent date says: In a widely published despatch from Vancouver, dated December 30, Major Motherwell, chief, inspector of fisheries, was credited with an interview in which he outlined certain changes in fishery regulations as having been agreed to and approved of. In a telegram to the Colonist, the Department of Marine and Fisheries says that any such announcement is premature and unauthorized, and that no announcement of public policy will be made until Mr. Found's report has been received and considered by the Minister and other members of the Government. The telegram says: "Any announcement of the nature alleged to have been made by Inspector Motherwell was entirely premature and wholly unauthorized. A fairly thorough investigation of conditions affecting the fisheries industry in British Columbia was recently made by the director of fisheries, Mr. Found. He only returned from the Pacific Coast a few days ago and has not yet submitted his report. Until this is done and the report fully considered by the Minister and the other members of the Government, no announcement of public policy will be made."

MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD METLAKATLA

METLAKATLA, Jan. 12.—A memorial service was held in the Anglican Church in honored memory of two valued members of the Young Men's Progressive Club, Eric Leighton and C. W. Auckland, who passed away during the year that has just ended. The Young Men's Club took prominent part in the service by playing "Dead March in Saul" and singing a special memorial hymn to the tune "Elders" with orchestral accompaniment under the able direction of Jas. Prevost, the new musical director. "Splendid you passed, the great sur-render made. Into the light that nevermore shall fade. Deep your contentment in that blast abode. Who wait the last clear trumpet-call of God." The late C. W. Auckland took prominent part in everything pertaining to music. He was the band-leader of the village band, and musical director of Young Men's Club. He was greatly missed by the village and his place will be hard to fill.

THANKS GIVEN TO ALL CONTRIBUTORS CHRISTMAS SEALS

The Tranquille Tuberculosis Society announces that the Christmas Seal Sale has met with such a generous response from the citizens of Prince Rupert and district that it would like to acknowledge the contributions individually. ASSISTANT DISTRICT FORESTER IS WEDDED TO NURSE IN SOUTH

The following from the Vancouver Province describes the recent wedding in that city of E. E. Gregg, assistant district forester here, and Miss Belle Gourlay, R.N., a former member of the graduate nursing staff of the Prince Rupert General Hospital:

Baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums and palms in banked array decorated Chalmers Church on Tuesday evening for the wedding of Miss Belle Smille Gourlay and Elwyn Emerson Gregg. The bride, who is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gourlay, 3589 Eighteenth Avenue west, was given in marriage by her brother, James Gourlay. The groom is the youngest son of Mrs. J. J. Gregg, 26 Fourteenth Avenue West. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. McGowan, and bridal music provided by Moncrieff Mawr. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Crawford Gregg sang "At Dawning."

The bride was attired in white taffeta with net hem and yoke, a white shiffon velvet draps appearing at one side. Her embroidered net veil was worn cap fashion with orange blossoms and she carried Ophelia roses, white heather and lily of the valley. Her only ornament was a string of crystal beads, the gift of the groom. Miss Katie Myers of New Westminster, as bridesmaid, wore a frock of primrose taffeta with touches of green, showing an uneven hemline. She carried single mauve chrysanthemums, and wore a large black hat. Dr. E. E. Day was best man and ushers were Bob Gourlay and Kenneth Carlisle.

Mrs. Gourlay, mother of the bride, wore black satin, with black French velvet hat, her corsage bouquet being of violets and roses. Mrs. Gregg, the groom's mother, was attired in brown satin with hat to match, her corsage bouquet being of violets and rosebuds. Yellow chrysanthemums decorated the rooms at the bride's home, where the reception was held. Tall pink tapers and pink tulle surrounding the wedding cake, decorated the tea table, which was presided over by Mrs. L. H. Nicholson and Mrs. Claude Wilders. Ices were cut by Mrs. Crawford Gregg. After a honeymoon on Vancouver Island, Mr. and Mrs. Gregg will make their home at Prince Rupert. The bride travelled in a fawn satin gown with fawn duvetyon coat trimmed with brown fox fur. Her small fawn velvet hat was velvet trimmed.

IN THE LETTER BOX

Editor, Daily News. You seem to be a booster for Canadianism and the British Empire, but you seem to forget the price we have to pay for it. Take just one example that of Fort Cars. Have you noticed the difference in price between the prices here and in United States? Let me give you the figures:

United States Canadian Price Price Roadster $385 $495 Phaeton $395 $510 Coupe $495 $640 Tudor Sedan $495 $640 Fordor Sedan $570 $740 Sport Coupe $550 $710

Taking this as one example of hundreds in this country caused by the high tariff system, can you blame some of us if we encourage our boys to go to the States instead of living in Canada and struggling under the burden of protective monopolies? Yours for cheaper living. DIOGENES.

NATIVE INDIANS TO PLAY BIG HOCKEY IN BOSTON NEXT MONTH

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—The noble red man will be seen in a modern version of his own ancient pastime when two hockey teams made up of full-blooded Indians meet at the Boston Arena in February. In bygone days the northern Indian tribes met in friendly bouts at lacrosse in the rare intervals when peace reigned between their nations. From that primitive game was evolved the present day hockey, which began as a winter substitute for lacrosse.

The warriors of puck and hockey stick represent the Cree and Ojibwa tribes of northern Ontario, once hereditary foes and still earnest rivals. The teams come from Temagami, where there has been plenty of ice for outdoor hockey since October 15. Although the hatchet has been buried for many years the tribesmen evince almost as much delight in beating their neighbors at the ice game as their ancestors did in depriving them of their scalps. Two games will be played here, on February 16 and 17.

CHAMP. WICKETKEEPER RETIRES FROM CRICKET AND BECOMES SCORER

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Herbert Strudwick, the famous Surrey wicket-keeper—popularly known as "Struddy"—has definitely retired from first-class cricket, and has accepted the post of scorer to the Surrey County Club. He will take up these duties next season.

One of the greatest wicketkeepers the game has known, Strudwick, who was born at Mitcham, on January 28, 1880, and is thus in his 48th year, has kept wicket regularly for Surrey since taking the place of Stedman in 1903.

In that season, by securing 91 wickets (71 caught and 20 stumped), he set up a record for wicketkeeping, which was not beaten until 1911, when Fred Hulse, the Kent player, helped in the dismissal of a hundred batsmen.

Altogether Strudwick, in first-class cricket, has caught 1,235 and stumped 258 opponents.

IS LOOKING TO SOUTH AMERICA FOR STUDENTS

McGill University Making Effort to Improve International Relations

MONTREAL, Jan. 10.—Desiring to attract young men likely to carry some weight in their own countries McGill University is circulating South American countries through prominent individuals as to the facilities McGill offers in university training. It is realized that a number of students from South America come to Canada for research work and to study conditions with reference to trade and commerce, and McGill wishes to do its part in improving the relations between the Dominion and South America, commercial and cultural.

McGill University does not expect to attract a large number of South American students, it is stated, and as a matter of fact does not wish to do so, but hopes to secure a few who will give a good account of themselves now contribute to the friendly relations now existing between Canada and South America.

RAISED SENTENCE WHEN APPEALED SO IS GIVEN FIVE

Objected to Three Years Term so is Given Five by Chief Justice

LONDON, Jan. 12.—William George Weale had an unpleasant surprise when he appealed against a sentence of three years' penal servitude for burglary and five years' preventive detention as an habitual criminal passed on him at Merthyr Tydfil Borough Sessions.

The Court of Criminal Appeal, consisting of the Lord Chief Justice, and Justices Avory and Branson, held that the conviction for being an habitual criminal could not stand because certain technicalities were not observed during the trial and it was quashed, but as the prisoner had a bad record and committed the burglary with another convicted thief, the Court raised the sentence of penal servitude for the burglary to five years.

NEW GRAVING DOCK ON TYNE RIVER

LONDON, Jan. 12.—A contract was let recently for a new graving dock for Messrs. Smith's Dock Company, North Shields. The scheme is to cost £150,000, ($750,000) and will be a notable addition to the repairing facilities on the Tyne.

The new dock will be 480 feet long, and the work will entail the removal of 150,000 tons of earth and the laying of 40,000 tons of concrete. Employment will be found for 500 men. The job is to occupy 20 months.

ESCAPING PRISONER STUCK IN THE MUD

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Breaking away from a working party outside Parkhurst Prison, a convict, Francis Eric Deacon, of Birmingham, dashed towards the River Medina closely followed by warders. Coming to a mill pond fed by the river, he jumped in, apparently intending to swim across both, but stuck fast in the mud and was unable to move.

The warders got a boat, pulled out to him, and recaptured him without difficulty.
