THREE GRAIN SHIPS ARRIVE IN PORT MILL MACHINERY ALL DELIVERED; CUTTING EARLY APRIL

Three Ships Arrive Within a Few Hours to Load Grain at the Local Elevator for U.K.-Continent Ports

Fernmoor, Skegness and Mansepool reach port and King James leaves with cargo for Europe with 324,000 bushels

With one grain ship sailing in the early morning with a full cargo for the United Kingdom or Continent, and three more arriving tonight to load for the same destination, Prince Rupert Harbor presented an animated appearance today. It was possibly the busiest scene that has been observed during the present shipping season. The three boats now here make twenty grain ships for the port this season. There will possibly be a race between the three for the first berth at the Alberta Wheat Pool's elevator.

PREMIER MINE SHARE DISPUTE

DECISION OF VALUE DECIDED BY COURT OF APPEAL FOR SUCCESSION DUTY

VANCOUVER, March 7.—The Appeal Court today dismissed the appeal of the estate of Isaac Untermyer of New York against a decision of commissioner A. D. Macfarlane, who fixed the succession duty on 320,000 shares of Premier stock and also dismissed the appeal of the Province claiming $250,000 succession duty.

The contention of the trustees of the estate if allowed would have effected a saving of about $90,000 in duty. It centered around the market value of the shares. The commissioner found the shares worth at the time of death two dollars. Evidence submitted to the commissioner was that the shares would be worth $1.20 if sold on the market at one time according to the contention of the estate, instead of $2.20, which was the province's valuation.

UNITED OTTAWA AND MONTREAL ON MATTER OF PORT DEVELOPMENT—WILL REPORT LATER

Well satisfied with the results that may accrue from his trip, Mayor S. P. McMorris returned to the city by the Prince Rupert this morning after an absence of a month or more during which he visited Ottawa and Montreal to take up with the federal authorities and railway headquarters respectively matters pertaining to the development of this port and district generally. The mayor requested that any specific remarks as to his trip be not published until he makes his report to the city council at its next meeting.

UNION OF ALL STEAMSHIPS

CANADIAN NATIONAL TO OPERATE ALL MARINE SERVICES UNDER ONE NAME

MONTREAL, March 7.—Bringing about closer association with the Canadian National Railway system of which they are an integral part, though operated as separate companies, the Canadian Government Merchant Marine and the Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships and the Canadian National Steamship Company will, effective March 16, be operated under the names of the Canadian National Steamships, R. B. Teakle, general manager of the C.G.M.M., announced today.

Capt. Rich, sailed for the United Kingdom or Continent with a cargo consisting of some 324,000 bushels. The King James, making her second call here this season, had been in port since March 1.

At 6 o'clock last evening, the British steamer Fernmoor, Capt. C. E. Topp, steamed into port from Muroran, Japan, which place she left on February 17. The vessel had a rough though otherwise uneventful voyage. Like the other three boats that are here today, the Fernmoor is lined. She has been tied up at the ocean dock undergoing fumigation and is also booked to bunker 150 tons of coal from Philpott & Eviatt.

At 11 o'clock last night, the British steamer Skegness, Capt. B. R. Thomas, of the Smith line arrived from Hull, England, reporting an uneventful voyage in ballast via the Panama Canal. She was anchored in the stream this morning.

The third ship of the day was the brand-new steamer Mansepool of the Roper Line of London, England, which arrived at 9:45 this morning from West Hartlepool, England, which port she left on January 27. The Mansepool, which is commanded by Capt. Donald McKenzie and has a crew of 34 men, is fresh off the stocks and this is her maiden voyage. An uneventful trip was also reported by this vessel which was lying in the stream this morning.

The Skegness and Mansepool had been diverted from Vancouver, where there is congestion, for Prince Rupert loading.

There are reported to be several other grain boats on the way to Prince Rupert, nothing definite on any of them having been received up to this morning.

The three vessels in today, like all others that have been here so far this season, will load full cargoes for the United Kingdom or Continent.

YUKON MINING LAWS PROPOSED CHANGES

OTTAWA, March 7.—Hon. Charles Stewart proposes to introduce a bill to amend the Quartz Mining Act by providing payment of annual royalty on the profits of mines in Yukon territory exceeding the sum of $10,000 annually in place of the royalty at present imposed on sale of products of the mines.

ATTACKS PARK LEGISLATION

VICTORIA, March 7.—Suggestions that the government proposal to lease Assiniboine Park to the Canadian Pacific Railway was intended to facilitate plans for hydro-electric development of Spray Lakes, Alberta, was denied in the Legislature yesterday by Hon. T. D. Pattullo. He had never heard of Montreal interests reported to be working on a power project, he declared in reply to D. Despard Twigg.

Mr. Twigg declared that the parks legislation was a double-barreled measure with each barrel loaded with dynamite. He said one amendment wiped out Assiniboine Park altogether while another gave the minister power to do what he pleased with the other areas under the Parks Act.

It is planned to reconduct the railway and put it in suitable shape to serve the mines of the Bear River Valley with possibly more extensive developments in the future.

Mr. Lewthwaite is accompanied by a construction superintendent.

ALL-CANADIAN CONGRESS ASKS RECOGNITION

DELEGATION MEETS GOVERNMENT AND LAYS BEFORE THEM THEIR CASE

OPPOSES INTERNATIONALS
OBJECTION TAKEN TO AMERICAN CONTROL OF UNIONS IN THIS COUNTRY

OTTAWA, March 7.—In presenting their case to the government for recognition of the All-Canadian Congress of Labor, the president, A. R. Mosher leading a delegation said:

The labor unions of Canada may be classified into two groups; first, national unions independent of foreign control, and second, so-called "international" unions, which are controlled by their United States membership, have their headquarters in the United States, and are, for the most part, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The American Federation of Labor affiliates maintain, as their Canadian legislative representative, the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. The national group is sub-divided into the national Catholic unions, which operate wholly in the Province of Quebec, and the Canadian unions which with one or two exceptions have affiliated with the All-Canadian Congress of Labor, the larger of the two national federations.

HISTORY OF MOVEMENT
The American Federation of Labor asserts that it is the recognized head of the trade-union movement in North America. It functions as a chartering body of autonomous craft organizations to which it claims the right to give jurisdiction in the United States and Canada. In the United States it also acts as the legislative representative of its affiliates. Since 1886 the latter function has been performed by the organization (continued on page four)

Minister of Justice is Opposed to Glorifying States by Canadians

Complains That Opposition Describes That Country as Place Where Young Canadians Find Gold and Honey

OTTAWA, March 7.—"Why glorify the United States at the expense of Canada," Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, put the query to the House of Commons in the course of a speech on the budget debate. "Why," Mr. Lapointe went on, "should members of the opposition describe the United States as a land where young Canadians could find gold and honey while in Canada they met taxes, unemployment and starvation?"

A large part of the speech of the minister was taken up in comparison of the virulent criticism of Conservatives, Progressives and U.P.A. members of the House.

criticism that on one hand tariff changes would ruin industry and on the other that tariff changes were not enough.

The minister of justice said he did not believe in group government. In his opinion it was organized selfishness.

In carrying on the debate Mr. Barber, Conservative, of Fraser Valley, declared income tax payments should not be expended on public works estimates and embassies abroad. He advocated abolition of the sales tax.

NEW HALIBUT VESSEL HERE
TAKLA, BELONGING TO CHRIS PARK-VOLD AND ASSOCIATES OF VANCOUVER, ON WAY TO BANKS
The brand new halibut boat Takla, said to be one of the finest vessels of the Canadian fleet, arrived in port yesterday afternoon from Vancouver, where she was built during the winter for Capt. Chris Parkvold and associates by A. M. Prantzen in False Creek, to finally outfit before proceeding about the end of the week on her maiden trip to the halibut banks. The vessel is tied up at the wharf of Edward Lipsett (Prince Rupert) and is the subject of much favorable comment.

Measuring sixty-six feet o.a. with beam of sixteen feet and moulded depth of 7'8", the boat is equipped with a 100 h.p. Whorl cylinder Enterprise diesel engine. Speed in getting catches to market actuated the installation of the motor which is rather more powerful than in the usual boat of the Takla's size.

RATTENBURY HAS NO CASE

MUST SECURE FIAT TO ALLOW HIM TO SUE BEFORE CAN PROCEED REGARD TO LANDS

VANCOUVER, March 7.—A fiat must be secured before action can be taken against the land settlement board, is the effect of the ruling of the British Columbia Court of Appeal in allowing yesterday the appeal of Rattenbury versus the Land Settlement Board.

The ruling reverses the judgment of Mr. Justice Morrison which was given in favor of Rattenbury who seeks damages from the board.

The ruling involves extensive acreage in central British Columbia on which to carry out certain improvements or undergo penalties.

INSURANCE RATES

The matter of insurance has been investigated and it is shown that the rates charged in Prince Rupert are much too high. The report which has been submitted to the board of trade and the city council has not yet been made public but it is understood to be startling in its comparisons.

Anyone who has investigated the fire insurance situation must know that the companies have made a pile of money out of Prince Rupert. Exorbitant rates have been charged and the fires have amounted to very little. Climatic conditions have an effect on insurance risks and Prince Rupert has never received any benefit from that.

If the board companies continue to overcharge the people here for their insurance, it will be up to the people to get in touch with some good non-board companies and make a contract with them to handle the local business at a reasonable rate, sufficient to cover the risk but not sufficient to make fortunes for the underwriting companies.

PARKS BOARD DOES GOOD WORK

The parks board did excellent work in connection with making recommendations for beautifying the city. For several years we have urged that Cow Bay be cleaned up yet nothing has been done. Now it is to be hoped that the place will be made decent, at any rate.

If the city shows signs of willingness to co-operate it is to be expected that the provincial government will proceed further with its plans for beautifying the courthouse grounds. On several occasions plans have been made for a bowling lawn there. Possibly it may now become a reality. At any rate if the city is going to get busy on its own properties it can approach the government with greater confidence and doubtless it will do its share.

Now if the citizens will fall in line and each do something, we shall have a place of which we may well be proud. Prince Rupert has great possibilities. It is better laid out than most cities. The slopes and occasional rocks lend themselves to artistic improvement and it has been abundantly shown that most hardy flowers do well here.

PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN

The government of British Columbia is bent on a more extensive publicity campaign to attract settlers and capitalists; one to settle our lands and the other to develop our mines, timber lands, and other natural resources. With Canadian money at par and with many investments in the country having proved themselves to be good ones there is now something to talk about and some argument to attract those who would put their money into B.C. ventures. All this will tend to improve conditions in the province.

OBED ROUTE TO COAST

From the point of view of a railway it is possible that the Obed route to connect up with the coast is the best available, but from the point of view of development it is not worth mentioning. It opens up very little new country and provides the longest route to the coast. It is doubtful if railwaymen should be given a free hand in regard to this. So far as British Columbia is concerned, an outlet by way of Obed would have very little value. It would serve very little of the undeveloped country in this province. All it would do would be to provide a western outlet for the country now served by the short lines running out of Edmonton.

In laying down a railway, the first and most important thing to consider is what effect it will have on future development. Railway men do not worry about that, but the people who have to pay the bill should say where the line is to go and what country is to be opened up.

BADMINTON TOURNAMENT LAST NIGHT

MEMBERS OF I.O.D.E. CLUB, GUESTS OF PRINCE RUPERT BADMINTON CLUB

A friendly mixed badminton tournament took place last night at the Badminton Hall, Third Avenue, when the members of the I.O.D.E. Badminton Club were guests for the evening of the Prince Rupert Badminton Club. There were a large number of visitors present including several from the Cathedral Club and some good games were played. Partners were chosen by lot with results disastrous to some of the best players. Prior to playing the finals, refreshments were served by the ladies of the home team headed by Miss Stork and Miss Tite. Miss Rivett had general charge and Miss Tite scored.

The winners were Frank Russell and Mrs. Mann who in the finals played a very close game with S. Darton and Miss Rivett.

Prizes were presented by George Bryant, president of the club and following the presentation a number of the players remained for friendly games, both courts being kept going all evening.

The results of the games were as follows:

FIRST ROUND

Bradbury and Mrs. Lizney beat Stewart and Miss Kolosoff, 15-9.

SPORT CHAT

Word comes from California that this year the winners of the California Professional Hockey League will challenge for the Stanley Cup and will meet the winners of the National Hockey League in a series of games, which the Coast people hope to get for Los Angeles. Four teams around Los Angeles are playing in this league, and they seem to be drawing good patronage. The calibre of the players there does not compare with the ones in the east, but they feel if they can get a Stanley Cup series it will boost the game a lot in that section of the country.

It will be interesting to see how the trustees of the Stanley Cup act on the challenge when it is filed. Los Angeles promoters of hockey have put on their high-heels since they ran riot against the Pittsburgh Pirates and some N.H.L. All-stars in California last season. Some of the eastern players looked upon a series in Los Angeles as a chance to make some money, but they got a big surprise when it came to hockey. The easterners were outclassed by the Los Angeles teams.

The Los Angeles promoters are now very ambitious in challenging for the Stanley Cup. They are, however, just as much entitled to file a challenge as anyone. The Stanley Cup is supposed to denote the world's championship, but at present it is nothing more nor less than the emblem of supremacy in the National Hockey League. The Stanley Cup was presented in 1893 by Lord Stanley, then Governor-General of Canada, to the Victoria Hockey Club, of Montreal. It was put up for the hockey championship of the world.

In 1910 the Stanley Cup passed into the hands of the National Professional Hockey Association and in 1913 the Patricks launched their movement which brought about the world's series between the Pacific Coast and N.H.L. champions. Up until the Western Hockey League went out of business two years ago the Stanley Cup competition was a world's series affair. Last year, however, Boston and Ottawa, winners of the two sections of the N.H.L. played off for the Stanley Cup, the latter winning.

If the Los Angeles challenge is accepted it is likely that the Canadian Pro. Hockey League and some of the other minor leagues will come through with challenges. Two years ago it was felt in many quarters that the Minneapolis team, with Ching Johnson and Tuffy Abel on the defence, could have given either the Western or Eastern champions all they wanted. The Stanley Cup trustees may recommend that a team from the N.H.L. be sent out to Los Angeles to play, but it is not likely that the Stanley Cup will be at stake.

MY KITCHEN NOTEBOOK

by Mary Blake

Domestic Science Counselor

I've Never Tasted Better Fudge Than This

I don't often boast as proudly as this, but really, fudge made by my recipe has a different body, a finer, creamier texture, a smoothness that you won't find ordinarily. I myself claim no credit for these results. I know that the explanation of these outstanding qualities lies in three things: cooking the fudge just to the soft ball stage and no longer, vigorous beating, and the use of Carnation Milk.

"But why," so many people ask, "should Carnation Milk give results different from those of ordinary milk?"

There's a very definite reason for this notable superiority. Carnation Milk is "homogenized"—that is, its cream content is broken up into tiniest particles and distributed uniformly all through the milk. As Carnation Milk is evaporated to double-richness, this means that every drop of milk has a double share of enriching cream. Not only that, but the greater fineness of the cream particles gives a smoother, finer texture to all cookery in which Carnation Milk is used.

You'll Like Carnation Better for All Cooking

As in making candies, so in all cookery—Carnation gives a richness, a smooth creaminess, a fine, fragile texture that even the best of bottled milk cannot equal. Try this better milk. Evaporated to double creaminess, "homogenized," and sterilized for safe-keeping, it places at your disposal an exceptionally convenient supply of milk, and in the most dependable and economical form.

I have a whole Carnation Cook Book full of recipes, which I'd like to send you; that's why I'm giving you this better way of cooking. Ask for "My Hundred Favorite Recipes." It's free. Address Carnation Milk Products Co., Limited, 134 Abbott Street, Vancouver, B.C.

Carnation Pralines

1 cup brown sugar, 2 cups white sugar, 3 tbs. corn syrup, 1 1/2 cups nuts, 3/4 cup Carnation Milk diluted with 1/4 cup water, 1 tbs. maple sugar or mapieline. Boil together all ingredients (except nuts and flavoring). When soft ball is formed in cold water, remove from fire, add flavoring, place pan in cold water, without shaking, until hand can be held against bottom of pan without discomfort; add nuts; beat with slotted wooden spoon; when stiff drop from spoon on buttered sheet.

Carnation Fudge

2 tbs. butter, 2 squares bitter chocolate, 3 cups sugar, 2 tbs. corn syrup, 1/2 cup Carnation Milk, diluted with 1/4 cup water, 1 tsp. vanilla. Melt butter and shaved chocolate in sauce pan, add sugar, corn syrup and diluted Carnation. Cook until mixture forms a soft ball in cold water or reaches a temperature of 235° F., stirring occasionally to prevent sticking. Remove from fire and add vanilla. When cool beat until creamy and mold on buttered plate.

Smoother Candy

IF you want the richest, smoothest fudge or other candy, use Carnation Milk. All foods made with milk or cream are smoother and richer when Carnation is used—just pure, whole milk evaporated to double richness and sterilized. It keeps. It is always the same. It saves butter and cream.

STORY OF PARROT THAT SPOKE MANY LANGUAGES IS TOLD

Grain Ship King James Carries Away Vagrant Bird of Ill-repute that Scandalized Rooming House

The story of the parrot is often heard around a local boarding-house and it invariably raises a smile, if not laughter from those listening to it.

It seems that when the grain ship King James was here last fall Captain Rich of that vessel promised J. R. McIntyre a parrot whenever he should come this way again. The ship sailed and Mr. McIntyre forgot all about it, doubting if the ship would be back this season and, if it did come, never expecting the captain to remember his promise.

The King James came back last week and after docking and straightening up everything with the customs and immigration officers, the Skipper set out to find Mr. McIntyre, carrying with him a parrot. Mac had gone to bed at his room in the St. Elmo and was sleeping peacefully when he heard unholly noises outside. There was a knock at the door accompanied by squawks and curious sounds and muttered oaths. The visitor was admitted and sure enough he had with him a parrot, an educated parrot, one that knew several languages, according to Mac.

THREE LANGUAGES
After receiving the gift and thanking the captain Mr. McIntyre retired and everything went well until the morning. Very early the fun began. The parrot had a splendid repertoire. As Mac explained, he spoke three languages fluently. There was English, profane and obscene. In order to stop the disgraceful noise in the room, Mac threw his shirt over the cage, but when later he wanted to put on the shirt he found it had been pulled through the bars and was not fit to use.

When Mac went to work he left the parrot with Mrs. Crosby to look after until his return. Mrs. Crosby was properly shocked by the language used by the bird and Mr. Crosby venturing too near the cage in an attempted conversation with the bird got his ear pinched until it bled freely.

This sort of thing would never do. The respectability of the St. Elmo and the reputation of Mac and his friends all depended upon getting rid of that disreputable bird with dispatch. It was returned to the ship and there it is still polishing up its vocabulary in the fo'c'sle of the King James and Mr. McIntyre has given up the idea of keeping a parrot, at any rate until he has a home of his own and can get a young one and teach it to talk respectable English.

SCHOONER CELTIC FIRST VISIT HERE

Boat Has Rough Time on First Voyage and Takes Catch to Seattle

The new American fishing schooner Celtic, Captain O. J. Edwards, arrived this morning with 35,000 pounds of halibut and, finding a poor market here with no sale today, decided to proceed to Seattle.

This was the first trip of the boat to the banks and the skipper reported a rough time owing to bad weather. The boat is a fine one 70 feet in length with a Washington Espee diesel engine. She is modern throughout. The vessel was built at Tacoma during the past winter.

ization now known as the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, for the Canadian membership of American Federation of Labor unions. The Congress is therefore essentially a lobby for the promotion of legislation on behalf of the members of branch unions of United States labor organizations operating in Canada. It is not allowed to accept affiliation or make representations on behalf of any organized body of Canadian workers except those affiliated with or not dual to A.F. of L. organizations in Canada. Following the adoption of a resolution at the 1902 convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, by which the Congress excluded from affiliation all national unions which were dual to international organizations, various national and independent unions thus excluded from the Congress established the Canadian Federation of Labor. Subsequently, other Canadian unions were organized, and these, with the Canadian Federation of Labor, established in March, 1927, the All-Canadian Congress of Labor. This organization has grown steadily since its formation, and it now represents all the independent labor groups in Canada, with the exception of the national Catholic unions and one or two others.

BASIS OF ORGANIZATION

The All-Canadian Congress of Labor is organized on the same basis as the British Trades Union Congress, and other national trades union federations, having jurisdiction over both economic and legislative matters. It not only endeavors to promote legislation in matters of interest to labor, but also to further the organization of Canadian workers in autonomous national unions. In contrast with the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada (by which, in accordance with its constitutional provisions, affiliation is refused to Canadian organizations which are dual to United States unions) the All-Canadian Congress of Labor accepts the affiliation of any independent organized body of Canadian workers. The policy of the Trades and Labor Congress leaves control of the Canadian movement with the American unions; the policy of the All-Canadian Congress of Labor keeps control within our own boundaries, and provides for the representation of every independent body of organized workers in Canada.

Among the organizations which are affiliated with the All-Canadian Congress of Labor are groups of workers in the following industries: railroads, mines, lumbering, building trades, communication, shipping, as well as other classes of trades and occupations. The Congress maintains an office in Ottawa, with a full-time executive officer, and publishes a monthly journal, "The Canadian Unionist."

"During the last few years, there has been a steady development of national sentiment in Canada. The support which the Government has received in its successful endeavors to obtain for Canada a more independent status within the Empire indicates the feeling of the Canadian people in this matter. The formation of the All-Canadian Congress of Labor is a further indication of this desire for independence, and the members of the national unions which compose it feel that the Government, in giving almost exclusive recognition to the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, which depends for its financial support upon unions controlled by membership in the United States, is encouraging the perpetuation of a principle which it has repudiated in the matter of Canada's political relationship with other parts of the Empire."

It may be said that Canada is the only country in the world where the Labor movement is not in undisputed control of its own policy and administration. Since it is rightly felt that Canada is entitled to be politically independent, so far at least as her domestic affairs are concerned, of any other part of the Empire, the subjection of the Canadian labor movement to the will of United States labor officials with the recognition of the Government, is subversive of the self-respect of Canadian workers, and we feel that the Government should therefore recognize the right of the All-Canadian Congress of Labor to, consultation in respect of social and labor legislation, and to representation in all matters in which the workers of Canada are concerned.

TRADES AND LABOR CONGRESS

This delegation does not wish to belittle the work done in the past by United States unions and their legislative lobby, the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. It is felt, however, that some facts should be presented to you with respect to their representation. In introducing the Congress delegation to the government in January last, President Tom Moore stated that "the large majority of those composing it hold membership in international unions, though several thousands of them are organized in national, provincial and local organizations, where it is considered their interest can be better served in that way." Since, however, the Congress reported to the Department of Labor a membership of 103,037 for the year 1926 it is evident that the "several thousands" referred to by Mr. Moore are insignificant in comparison with the membership of the United States unions affiliated with the Congress.

The term "international" is wholly a misnomer in its application to United States unions. It properly applies to federations of independent national groups which unite for common purposes, much as the nations of the world unite in the League of Nations, which is a purely international body. But the membership of United States unions consists only of American and Canadian workers, the former of whom have absolute control of labor policy. The Canadian members pay their dues to the American headquarters of their unions, and the latter maintain the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada by paying into its treasury a per-capita fee for each Canadian member.

CONGRESS CONVENTIONS

The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada claims that its representations to the Government are based upon the decisions made at its annual conventions, and thus are expressions of Canadian opinion. It may be pointed out, however, that the delegates to these conventions comprise a large number who are on the pay of, and under instructions from the headquarters of their respective organizations in the United States. 41 of such delegates being credited to the last convention, while delegates were also sent from district councils and provincial federations thus duplicating the representation of the United States union branches. Out of 1207 local branches of the A.F. of L. unions in Canada for which a per-capita fee is paid to the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada by their respective headquarters, credentials were received

For only one hundred and eighty five delegates, that is, less than 15 per cent. of the Canadian workers whom the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada claims to represent, had delegates at its last convention.

Mr. Moore also stated to the Government that an effort was being made to leave the impression that the members of the United States unions were "less responsible or desirable Canadian citizens" and the Congress, therefore, felt it necessary to depart from its usual procedure and submit a statement in its defence. The All-Canadian Congress of Labor has never used these terms in referring to the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and the only reason why they are imputed to us by Mr. Moore would appear to be a feeling on his part that they are not unjustified. Whether or not a Canadian citizen who supports and is subject to the dictation of a foreign labor union is "less responsible or desirable" on that account is a matter for the citizen himself to decide. There is now no excuse, however, for any Canadian citizen to give his allegiance to a foreign union on the ground that no Canadian union is available, or that his interests cannot be protected by such a union. The Canadian labor movement has now reached a stage of development in which provision is made for the organization of every class of Canadian worker, so that the existence of branches of American unions, and their legislative lobby, the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada is no longer required in this country.

OBJECT OF DELEGATION

It is not our purpose to make any suggestions to the Government at the present time with respect to legislation, as we believe that any representations from the Congress should be taken up, in the first instance, with the minister of the department concerned.

We do, however, request that the recognition now given to the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and, in some measure, to the National Catholic unions, and the American Railway Brotherhoods be extended to the All-Canadian Congress of Labor. We feel that, in view of the facts set forth herein, the almost exclusive recognition of the Trades and Labor Congress as the "mouthpiece" of organized labor in Canada is no longer justified, and that the Government should take into consideration the recent developments in the Canadian labor movement as a result of which the All-Canadian Congress of Labor has been formed, as the representative of a large group of autonomous Canadian unions. In all matters of special concern to Canadian workers, therefore, the Congress wishes to co-operate with the Government and request for its representations such consideration as is justified by its status, its membership, and its character as the only independent federation of national and autonomous unions in Canada.

CO-OPERATION IN INDUSTRIES

Part of Report of Liberal Industrial Inquiry Sets Forth Views
Regarding New Scheme

LONDON, March 7.—Part of the report of the Liberal Industrial Inquiry just published deals with a scheme of co-operation which is set forth as follows:

It is the aim of the Liberal policy to bring about the establishment in every industry of a representative regulating body, including both employers and workers, for the consideration of common interests and endowed with the power of obtaining, under proper safeguards, legal sanction for their agreements.

This involves (a) the improvement of existing negotiating machinery; (b) the provision of adequate knowledge of the financial facts; and (c) the provision of better machinery for central guidance, particularly by the creation of a Ministry of Industry, including the powers of the present Ministry of Labor, and of a representative Council of Industry working in close association with the Ministry.

lation with the Ministry.

NEGOTIATING BODIES
It is desirable that negotiating bodies should include a neutral element, without the power to vote except when legal powers are sought; and also in many cases representative of managerial and technical staffs for consultative purposes on subjects other than wage-negotiations. Any difficulties affecting the demarcation between organized industries should, when necessary, be referred to the Council of Industry.

TRADE BOARDS
We recommend that the Trade Boards system should be extended to all industries insufficiently organized to be able to make and keep general agreements; that such Trade Boards should, as now, be constituted by the Ministry and should have power to fix minimum wage rates enforceable by criminal process; that is the fixation of wage-rates above the minimum and of other conditions, neutral members of Trade Boards should be entitled to speak, but not to vote, unless legal enforcement was sought; that in such cases enforcement should be by way of civil, not criminal, process, and that all regulations for which legal force is sought should be laid before the Council of Industry for review before being endorsed or disallowed by the Ministry.

JOINT INDUSTRIAL COUNCILS
Joint Industrial Councils should be encouraged to include in their membership (a) a neutral element and (b) where appropriate, representatives of technical and managerial staffs; but this should be at their discretion. We recommend that Joint Industrial Councils should be empowered to obtain legal sanction for their agreements subject to the following conditions:—

(a) The proposal for which legal sanction is sought should have been supported by a majority on both sides.
(b) Any sections of the industry not represented on the Council should have been given an opportunity of presenting their views.

(c) Neutral members should have taken part in the discussion and voting.
(d) The Council should be able to show, in making application for the enforcement of wage rates or conditions, that undesirable low wage-rates or bad conditions are prevalent in some sections of the industry, and that the rates or conditions proposed to be enforced are not markedly above or below those ruling for occupations of corresponding skill in other industries.

Boards nor Joint Industrial Councils exist the Ministry and Council of Industry should strive to bring suitable machinery into existence.

(a) In highly organized industries which have already developed satisfactory negotiating machinery no attempt should be made to interfere with this machinery, but these industries should be urged also to establish the machinery of organized discussion on the lines of the Joint Industrial Councils, with power to obtain legal enforceability for their decisions.

(b) In less organized industries the establishment or revival of joint industrial councils should be stimulated; or, where the organization on both sides is weak, Trade Boards should be instituted with the advice of the Council of Industry.

ESSENTIAL PUBLIC SERVICES
With a view to the protection of the public and the smooth working of industry it is necessary that special safeguards should be taken against interruptions in the essential public services, provided that the ultimate right to strike or to lock out should not be impaired.

For this purpose we recommend:—
(a) That the Council of Industry should schedule the essential services, and should request the negotiating bodies in each scheduled industry to submit a scheme providing (1) a satisfactory system of negotiation, and (2) adequate guarantees for its full utilization.

(b) That in these cases the system of negotiation should include a reference for report to an impartial inquiry, no strike or lock-out to be valid unless the report of the inquiry had been published.
(c) That the guarantees might take one or more of the following forms:—
(1) The organization of the workers in the service concerned on an establishment basis; (2) appointments for a term of a month or three months, with penalties for breach of contract; (3) the deposit of forfeitable pledges on either side; (4) a provision that the privilege of the Trades Disputes Act, 1906, should not apply in the case of stoppages declared before the whole machinery of negotiations had been utilized.

(d) That in the event of no scheme, or an unsatisfactory scheme, being submitted by the industry concerned, the Council of Industry should itself draw up a scheme for submission to and enactment by Parliament.
PROVISION OF KNOWLEDGE
We recommend that it should be the duty of the Ministry of Industry, acting in conjunction with the economic general staff, to equip all negotiating bodies with adequate knowledge of the financial facts affecting their industries.

MINISTRY OF INDUSTRY
We recommend that the Ministry of Labor should be reconstructed under the name of the Ministry of Industry, taking over the powers of the Home Office under the Factory Acts and Compensation Acts, the Mines Department of the Board of Trade, and such other functions as may be necessary to bring within the purview of a single Ministry all the relations between the State and the organized bodies of employers and workpeople. We also recommend that the Ministry, thus reconstructed, should undertake the duty of advising and stimulating the various industries towards co-operative action in the pursuit of efficiency.

COUNCIL OF INDUSTRY
We recommend the establishment of a representative Council of Industry, of workable size, in close association with the Ministry of Industry. It should include nine representatives of employers and nine of workers together with six appointed by the Ministry. The members should be appointed for three years, one-third of each category retiring one year, and being eligible for reappointment. The Council should meet at frequent and regular intervals.

The institution of the Council of Industry should not stand in the way of the subsequent establishment of a larger National Industrial Council, when such a step seemed desirable.
