BIRMINGHAM, Eng., October 4.—The election program of the Labor party made public at the annual conference of the party yesterday favors public ownership of coal mines, transportation facilities, power, agricultural lands and life insurance.

The program was introduced by Right Hon. J. Ramsay Macdonald in the form of a fifty-page booklet prepared by the executive committee and circulated among the delegates. It also sets forth that the Trades Union Act should be repealed. The banks must consider the interests of the nation as a whole and not the interests of financiers, the booklet said. LIE GIVEN TO POOLEY CHARGE

Minister of National Revenue Files Attorney General For Unwarranted Attack

UNQUALIFIED DENIALS

Department Has Always Endeavored to Co-operate With Provinces, Declares Euler

OTTAWA, Oct. 4.—Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of national revenue, today issued a statement dealing with charges reported to have been made by Hon. R. H. Pooley, attorney general for British Columbia, against the department. Mr. Euler declared that his department had attempted in all sincerity to co-operate with the provinces in the enforcement of their liquor laws and that in not a single instance had licenses for breweries or distilleries been granted when the provinces were opposed to them.

The minister dealt specifically with the shipment of a carload of whiskey from the distillery of Gooderham & Worts, of which, according to news reports, Mr. Pooley made special mention.

"The charge that the Dominion government is deliberately violating its own law for the benefit of the liquor interests is utterly untrue," declared Mr. Euler. "Such a statement shows a poor lack of knowledge of the true situation and a quite apparent disinclination to accept our offer of co-operation. I cannot believe that Mr. Pooley really made such a charge.

"If the British Columbia attorney general had any fault to find with the department of national revenue, it would have been fairer for him to address the complaints to the department rather than to the press."

Hubert C. McDonald has been transferred from the local unit of the R.C.N.V.R. to the Royal Canadian Navy and is now stationed at Esquimalt.

PROMINENT CLERGYMAN HOPES GOD WILL PRESERVE UNITED STATES FROM CANADIAN SYSTEM HANDLING LIQUOR

FARGO, North Dakota, September 4.—A hope "that God may preserve the United States from the Canadian system of handling intoxicating liquor" was expressed at the annual conference of North Dakota ministers and laymen by Rev. R. C. Endicott, of Saskatoon, secretary of the missionary and maintenance fund of the United Church of Canada.

"We have more bootleggers than you have. The situation is all bad and getting worse. Canadian brewers are continually reaching out to break down restrictions. Don't let them fool you," Mr. Endicott said.

Three Perished In Edmonton Fire Last Night When Blaze Swept Through Stanley Block

EDMONTON, October 4.—A fire which swept through the Stanley Block early last night took toll of three lives, wiping out the little family of Steve Gluissch, 28 years of age, a cook who had rooms in the building.

Gluissch was taken from the block terribly burned and died en route to the hospital while the bodies of his wife, Nancy, 24 years of age, and his four-year-old daughter were discovered on the floor of their apartment when the firemen were finally able to penetrate the smoke choked rooms.

It is believed that the dead man was struck down by falling debris and trapped in the hallway while attempting to reach his wife and child.

Three firemen were overcome by smoke in fighting the blaze and are being treated in the hospital.

Two roomers, Ernest Begley and a man named Kosliska, were also slightly injured.

The block is a three storey structure, half of which is of frame. The building is veneered with brick and contained a large number of rooms.

SPORT CHAT

"Bucky" Harris, manager of the Washington Senators, is the latest to fall at the hands of a club owner who is growing irksome under spending a few years out of the big time. Much was expected of the Washington Senators at the first of this year, and the team did not finish anywhere near where it was hoped it might have. So Bucky Harris must take the brunt and lose his job whether or not it was his fault. It is a common occurrence in managerial circles. Few are able to hold on like John McGraw has done at New York and Connie Mack at Philadelphia. Buck Harris' glory at winning the world's series three or four years ago has soon been overshadowed by his failure to subsequently keep in the big money.

"Gentleman Jim" Corbett, heavyweight champion of the world some twenty-five years ago, unlike most of the former boxing champions, is one with whom time has dealt kindly. He has managed to collect and retain much of this world's goods and his name is as green in sporting affairs today as it was at the time of his glory after he lifted the title from John L. Sullivan and before he dropped it to Bob Fitzsimmons in the days when they used to go fifty rounds and were not paid anything like what is received by the heavies today. The secret is that Corbett is just as much a "gentleman" as his nickname denotes—one who has been able to stand prosperity through common sense and ability to keep hold of himself. The $2,500,000 he collects as a result of the subdivision of his Los Angeles ranch is but an addition to an already large fortune. He is otherwise greatly capitalized. Perhaps Gene Tunney of the present day may be another to follow in his footsteps as far as wealth is concerned though Gene will never enjoy the universal popularity that is Jim's.

GET TOGETHER ON "O CANADA"

(Edmonton Journal)

C. D. Bruce, reporting to the Vancouver Kiwanis Club on a recent district conference of Kiwanians held at Aberdeen, Washington, referred to an apparently disastrous attempt made by the Canadians to get together on a common version of "O Canada" when they tried to be vocally patriotic. The Buchan version was in open competition with the Weir version, and the former won out, it seems, either by force of numbers or by sheer lung capacity of its supporters. Meanwhile the Americans were "mystified."

A good many Canadians present at United States gatherings have been mystified also when the American portion of the audience attempted to sing "The Star Spangled Banner." It would seem that between "O say, can you see, and "the land of the brave," the knowledge of most of them is both sketchy and inaccurate. The two factions of Canadians at Aberdeen on the other hand, both knew their version only too well and persisted to the end, which, according to Mr. Bruce, was bitter.

His proposal that, failing an agreement on an English version of "O Canada," Canadians revert simply to the use of "God Save the King" as a national anthem is not quite satisfactory and sounds much like a counsel of despair. The memories of that duel at Aberdeen were still strong within him. But Sir John Marriott, of the empire parliamentary party, speaking on the same day at Fredericton, saw a vision of Canada as one of the great nations of the world. It is natural for a people with such a destiny to want a national song with some reference to their country in it. The usual arrangement prevailing at present whereby a performance is opened orchestrally with "O Canada" and concluded with "God Save the King" is a sound compromise between national and imperial ideals.

But, of course, when it comes to singing, the diverging English forms of "O Canada" are troublesome. In Alberta there is no difficulty, as the Weir version is the school standard, governmentally fixed. The federal parliament could undertake to designate in somewhat the same manner an official version, and it would not be long in becoming the standard for the dominion. It might be well to move quickly in the matter in order to prevent another generation of dissidence growing up.

But perhaps parliament will shy off from such a literary task, like the American congress. That body, for some reason, has never made any official declaration that the "Star Spangled Banner" is the national anthem of the United States, although it has been authorized for use as official in the army and navy music. Perhaps the legislators have always been trying to learn the words, and there has always been consent not to introduce the resolution until all the members of congress certify that they will be able to join in the singing that ought to follow the taking of the unanimous vote.

Mayou Gold-Copper to Operate all Winter—High Values on Silver Cliff Property—Plenty of British Capital Available

Directors of the Mayou Gold Copper Co. Ltd. have decided to undertake extensive development during the coming winter on the property at Stewart and are rushing supplies and building material to the mine where a new permanent camp is under construction for winter operations. It is proposed to drift on the high grade silver-lead during the winter and cross-cut No. 2 vein from the drift. A trial shipment of high grade ore will be made within the next week or so and other shipments may be made during the winter. One million shares of treasury stock in the company has been underwritten and the property was recently examined by S. E. Jones, representing the underwriters, and Robert Jackson, M.E., of the B.C. Silver staff. Arthur Whiteside, prominent Vancouver barrister, was recently added to the directorate of the company.

The management of Stewart Central Mines is so satisfied with the results of recent prospecting that it has increased the crew which is now engaged in stripping and open cutting the main vein which has been traced for 1000 feet and is from four to ten feet wide. There are two other known veins which outcrop at varying distances but insufficient work has been carried out on them to determine their extent. A number of assays have been taken, running to $20 in gold and silver and 2.8c per cent copper. The property is situated on the south side of Bitter Creek, 1 1/2 miles from the Kutt road. The vein has been traced down the hill so the eventual working tunnel may be close to the road.

J. E. Munro, veteran British Columbia prospector, describes the Silver Cliff mining property at the north end of Divide Lake in the upper Salmon River basin as being an attractive prospect. The group of four claims was staked originally by E. H. Bartholf, one half interest having been purchased last winter by B. O. Erickson and Fred Elliott and associates of Victoria while an option was taken on the other half. Eight sacks of ore from a small stringer on the surface of the property were shipped last year and gave smelter returns at the rate of $340 per ton. A shaft on this stringer was started this summer and at eight feet of depth the stringer widened to eight inches of high grade. A road can be easily built from the Big Missouri to Divide Lake which is two miles long. From there on, boats may be used.

"There is plenty of British money seeking investment which British Columbia can get in any quantities for mining investment if Old Country investors can be guaranteed a run for their money," stated Sir John Curtis, London broker, who recently visited the central interior. "All the British investor asks is that his money should go into actual work on a mining property. He knows that mining is always a speculation and he takes his losses with a smile if he knows that his money was properly used. But he does want to be assured of that." Formerly mayor of Cardiff and now prominent in the English financial world, Sir John Curtis has had investments in British Columbia for years, including a large tract of land north of the railway line in the Smithers district, some in close proximity to the noted Topley-Richfield.

Work done this fall by Fitzgerald brothers on their Silver Basin group at Stewart has given encouraging results, a new body of ore having been located on the surface that appears to be 100 feet or more across but of which only a superficial examination has so far been made. The samples brought out showed fine grained galena in a gangue of calcite and quartz and, while assay returns are only $3 in gold and four or five ounces of silver, the size of the vein warrants thorough investigation in the hope of picking up commercial shoots.

Problems of treatment of the ores of the Dunwell mine at Stewart and the La Rose mine at Alice Arm have recently been reported on by the federal department of mines. Tests on Dunwell ores showed that by tabling the flotation tailing an increase of ten to twenty per cent could be made in the gold recovery and that a 40 to 45 per cent zinc concentrate could be made. The test on La Rose ore showed extractions of 73 per cent gold, 92 per cent silver, 96 per cent lead, 84 per cent copper, and 66 per cent zinc. The test of the La Rose ore was made for the Ladysmith Tidewater Smelters Ltd.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

What brings the soldier to a throne,
The beggar to renown,
What drives man on to claim his own,
Be it a sword, a crown?
What is this, strange, resistless force
No power can oppose,
That, sweeping on its changeless course,
Still deeper, greener, grows?
To reach the goals they love so well,
Brave spirits must aspire
Through this most pure and potent spell,
The magic of desire!
Always it gleams along their road
With white, undying fire,
A lure, a lantern and a goad,
The magic of desire!

WESTERN ROUTE DEVELOPMENT

Report on Export and Shipping Deals with Grain Shipments to World Ports.

The advent of the "Western Route" for the movement of Canada's grain crop to overseas markets was an event fraught with considerable economic significance and its expansion is certain to influence the carrying trade of the world and in doing so, to hasten the development of the commerce of the North Pacific as a whole, says the annual report of R. D. Williams of the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange.

The movement of grain from British Columbia is partly in chartered tramp vessels and partly in liners. The proportion varies each season according to the quantity available for movement and the amount of liner space left over for this commodity. Owing to the nature of the grain traffic and the competition of tramp vessels, the rate obtainable is comparatively lower than can be paid by other commodities such as canned goods, fruit and general cargo, and consequently grain is regarded by the liner companies as a "ballast" cargo to fill hold space not required for more remunerative freight. The constant availability on the Pacific Coast of grain to fill the holds has induced a very rapid development of the liner trade to Europe and a greater amount of liner space is thereby available year by year for the grain movement. Nevertheless tramps continue to carry a substantial proportion of the exports, varying in the past few years from 30 per cent to 60 per cent, according to conditions prevailing.

Reason of Development

The reason of the development of this new route are as follows:
1. The greater accessibility of European markets via the Panama Canal.
The shipment of grain in bulk from the Pacific Coast to Europe was entirely impracticable prior to the opening of the Panama Canal.

2. Increase in the production of grain in Alberta and Saskatchewan and the gradual migration westward of grain growing in Canada.

In the past twenty-five years the wheat production of Manitoba has remained stationary; Saskatchewan has grown from practically nil to 200 million bushels or more; Alberta from nil to 150 or 175 bushels each season.
3. The reduction of formerly prohibitive railway freight for the movement of grain for export from the Pacific Coast.

Until recently the cost per mile was greater westward than eastward, which constituted a handicap against the western route. By a series of reductions this differential has now been wiped out, in consequence, it is now economically advantageous to ship grain from all Alberta and the western half of Saskatchewan to the Pacific Coast.

4. The construction of efficient modern grain elevators and loading equipment at Pacific Coast ports.

Until 1924 there was only one elevator on the Pacific Coast, at Vancouver, having a capacity of 1,250,000 bushels. There are now seven elevators at Vancouver with a total capacity of eleven million bushels, and one each at Prince Rupert, New Westminster and Victoria, making a total capacity on the Coast of 14,000,000 bushels.

5. The development of a market in China and Japan for Canadian hard wheat.

In 8 years during which Canadian wheat has been shipped to the Orient the annual volume has grown from nil to an average of 14,000,000 bushels.
Wheat Is Established
Canadian hard wheat is now well established in the Orient, and provided the market price is maintained at competitive rates, shipment to that market should increase year by year. This statement should, however, be qualified with the remark that with comparative price and the extent of native crops so great a factor, we shall probably see a considerable variation in the annual shipments to that market.

Shipments to Europe will be affected by ocean freight rates, but there is little reason to anticipate that freights will be at any time so high relatively as to wipe out the advantage of the westward route so far as Alberta crop is concerned.

Grain export is a trade new to Vancouver during the past few years, but already we are the third grain port on the continent. In the 1927-28 season the Pacific Coast ports of Canada, Vancouver and Prince Rupert, shipped 88 million bushels of Canadian grain, which was 28 per cent of the entire export movement of Canadian grain. The Atlantic Coast ports of Canada shipped 79 million bushels, or 24 per cent, and the Atlantic Coast ports of the U.S.A. 151 million bushels, or 48 per cent.

The new movement via the Pacific ports of Canada is a diversion of traffic in the Canadian-grown grain from United States ports to Canadian ports.

Vancouver now ranks well as a grain port in the matter of charges and despatch and has entirely dissipated the poor record of the earlier years of grain handling.

With the trend of wheat-growing ever westward, we can anticipate a constant improvement in our grain exports for many years to come.

Other representations had been made recently that she should be barred from entering the country because of what was described as her sensational evangelistic methods.

Visitor To City Had Perilous Voyage Coming From Arctic After Going Down Mackenzie

A terrific five-day storm in Behring Sea while coming out on the Hudson Bay trading steamer Baychimo and several encounters with the ice in the Arctic Ocean were the most thrilling experiences of a trip made to the north coast of this continent during the past summer by Dr. R. Agnew, well known central interior dentist, who arrived in the city from Vancouver yesterday and proceeded this morning to Terrace and other interior points to resume his winter work.

Dr. Agnew spent over four months in the Far North during the summer and estimates that he travelled 10,000 miles. He made the trip to give dental service to Hudson Bay Co. employees at the various points in the Far North.

Leaving Edmonton on May 22 for Water Ways, Dr. Agnew went to Lake Athabasca and thence down the Mackenzie River to Akavik near its mouth aboard the river boat Distributor, which formerly plied from Prince Rupert to Hazelton, and which makes the trip once a year and proceeded thence by native schooner to the mouth of the river and into the Arctic Ocean to Herschel Island. Ice and fog was encountered on the trip and there were times when it looked to the tenderfoot that they could not get through. Herschel Island was, however, safely reached.

At Herschel Island, where Dr. Agnew met the Philadelphia bird specimen seeking party headed by Capt. Perfilieff which was here ten days ago, he boarded the steamer Baychimo aboard which he travelled to Perry River, 1500 miles east of Herschel Island on the Arctic coast. Stops were made at the various trading posts which are visiting thus but once a year by the ship which takes in their supplies and carries out the twelve months' collection of furs. On the Baychimo, which encountered much ice in the Arctic Ocean, Dr. Agnew came right out to Vancouver, reaching the southern city on September 21 after having left Herschel Island on August 1.

The whole trip was one of much interest and experience, stated Dr. Agnew, and one which he would not mind at all making again.

Speaking of the teeth of the Arctic Eskimos, Dr. Agnew says they are perfectly good, though never cleaned, as long as the Eskimo remains in his aboriginal state. Coming in contact with civilization, however, there is a tendency to decay and pyhorrea. The teeth of the Eskimo are often worn right down to the gum by reason of the biting of the hide in the making of mukluks, their footwear.

The northern Indians have lived in the vicinity of settlements so long and eat candy and such sweets so generally that their teeth rapidly decay.
