THE HINCHCLIFFE ADDRESS

In a letter to the Daily News yesterday a correspondent shows a decided lack of knowledge of parliamentary affairs in connection with the speech of Reverend Canon Hinchcliffe at the Moose Hall recently.

Those who know the Canon at Victoria know that he is very small fry in politics. So much has this been in evidence that there was a strong move from members of his own party to prevent his getting the nomination and also it is pretty certain he will not be elected on July 18. He is among the doomed.

In political life the tactics of petty members of the opposition is to worry the government with resolutions and questions which they think will prove embarrassing and which they can use as political ammunition later. That is what the worthy Canon has been doing at Victoria. He is one of the snipers of the opposition.

The government has a settled policy and whenever possible men of the Hinchcliffe type try to head this off and make it appear as if they had been the movers in the matter. They rush forward resolutions which have to be voted down in order to clear the way for the real work. So it is seen that Canon Hinchcliffe quoted a number of these resolutions and told of the manner in which Hon. T. D. Pattullo voted.

Mr. Pattullo does not need our defence. He can defend himself. His record of twelve years on all questions such as those mentioned by the correspondent is plain and clear. He does not come whining to the electors telling them how he loves the working men and how he has tried to do things when all the time it is the other party that is doing it. He does not have to go back twenty years to quote cases where the workers have been befriended. People here know what the government of which he is a member has done. Some people claim the government has gone too far in protection of the workers, but Mr. Pattullo has always been ready to defend his actions and will do it again.

PEOPLE FREE AGENTS

In regard to the other suggestion made by our correspondent, the people here are free agents. They can vote as they wish. They have done so in the past and they will do it again. No effort is ever made to force anyone to do anything. They have the same right to vote as they like as we have to say what we like. At the same time there may be a wise course and an unwise course. We suggest that it is wise just now to have the same party in power here that is in power at Ottawa so that negotiations may be carried on in a friendly manner and neither side fear that the other is trying to make political capital. If we want to dispose of the P.G.E. and if we want the railway lands and Peace River block returned, we are most likely to get our wish by putting a Liberal government back in power. That's just plain business sense.

PROSPECT FOR SPORT

In Prince Rupert we suffer from lack of contact with our neighbors. That makes us glad to see visitors. In a couple of weeks from now we shall have the warship Durban here and the officers and crew will spend several days in the city. It will be a great opportunity to pull off some sports. Already preparations are being made with this end in view. We suggest that all enter into this with enthusiasm. While it will be election week it will also be a good time for a little diversion. The members of the ship's company will be very welcome visitors.

HARRY SMITH, MASSETT, OF UNSOUND MIND AND NOT GUILTY OF MURDER OF HIS FATHER WHOM HE KILLED

Witness testified that his brother could read quite well, his favorite form of literature being western stories. He could also write, though not very well. Witness identified specimens of his brother's handwriting presented by Milton Gonzales, defence counsel.

A. M. Johnson, K.C., crown prosecutor, tendered Provincial Police Constable Hugh McGlinchy for cross examination. Mr. Gonzales announced that he did not wish to cross-examine him.

Mr. Gonzales announced that the defence would be brief and simple. He was prepared to admit, on behalf of accused, that he had killed his father. The whole defence would be that the boy was then and now insane. The jury had already heard the evidence of the brother. He proposed to adduce further evidence showing that the boy was at no time balanced and did not understand what he was doing.

DEFENCE EVIDENCE

The evidence of Arthur D. Hallett, first witness for the defence, developed into somewhat of a sermon. Hallett said he had been acquainted with accused since he (Hallett) took up residence in Massett in August 1924. Witness and accused lived, at various times, one half a mile and two or three miles apart. He had noticed that accused was very peculiar. His attitude was very peculiar. He often displayed a vacant stare with a kind of established facial expression, flushes, etc. passing over his countenance. At other times, there was no facial expression whatever. His conversation seemed to be senseless. Many times, witness went on, he had endeavored to explain to accused the mistakes of his attitude and contemplation but to no avail. He had heard accused state that he (accused) was cut out to be a great man and would eventually reach the high altitude of Christ. Before and since the tragedy, witness said, accused had related to him his belief that he would grow wings. He said he believed he would live to be 1000 years old. Gradually, witness declared, he could notice accused becoming more and more demented. On several occasions, witness told the court, he had mentioned to accused's mother his opinion that he would have to be eventually taken into custody. It had been with reluctance that he had told the mother this. Witness identified two letters he had received through the mail from accused.

"When did you mention your opinion to accused's mother?" asked Mr. Johnson in cross-examination.

"Some two or three months before the tragedy occurred," replied Hallett. "Did it ever occur to you to inform the police of his condition?"

"No, I thought that was up to his parents."

In answer to a question by the judge, Hallett said that he was engaged in fur farming.

AN OLD NEIGHBOR

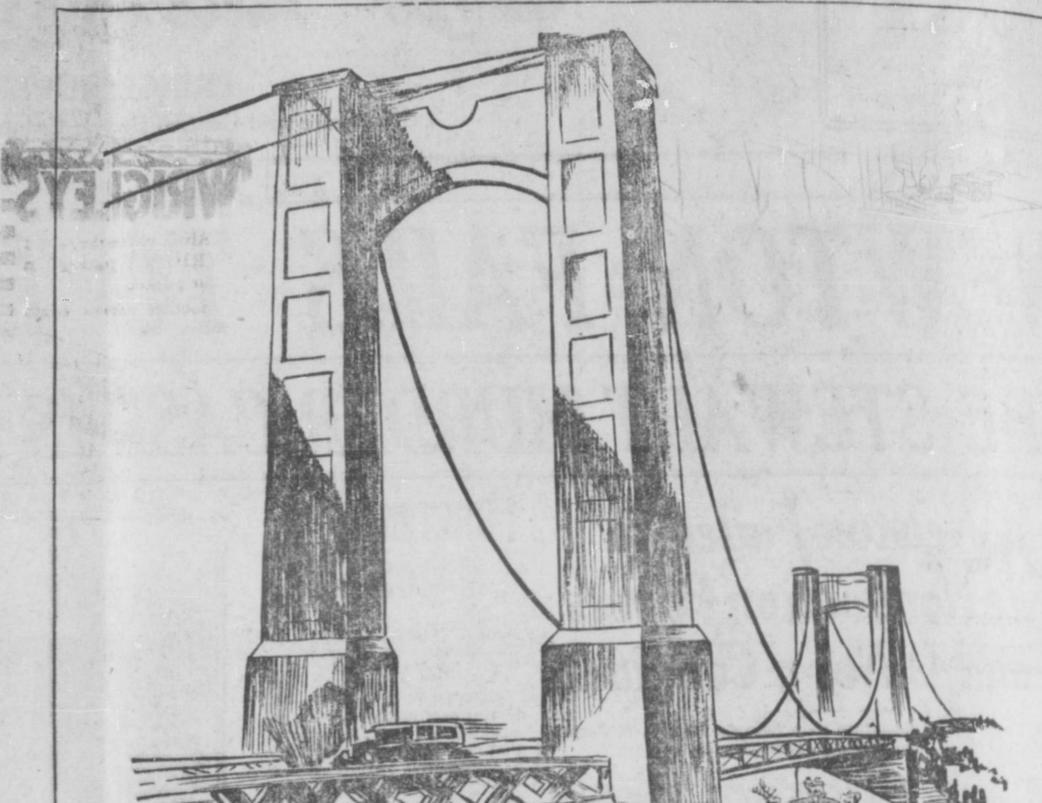

Carl J. Kermies swore that he had known accused since 1914. They were neighbors since 1918. Witness had long noticed that accused was doing and saying peculiar things such as cutting off the hen's tails, setting the dog on fire and breaking up a dozen eggs to make a cake when his mother was absent. Witness stated that he had been friendly with the family. There was no enmity between the father and the son that he knew of. In 1917 witness stated that he had had accused in his employ. He worked hard and with a will while he (witness) was standing over and watching him but, when he did not supervise him, he would do insensible things. Accused's memory was also very bad. When he went to Massett on errands, he would forget what he was sent for. Accused also lost track of the days. He had a kind of a peculiar laugh when there was nothing to laugh at. In June 1927 accused's father's cheap shack caught fire and accused persisted in trying to put the fire out and did not attempt to take the effects out when this could have easily been done. Accused's father, witness swore, had told him how idiotic his son was. Last November accused's father and witness had had a difference and, since that time, witness had stayed away. Witness went on to tell how accused and himself had later worked on the road about the middle of January.

Harry was doing his work in a silly and foolish way and witness had to do much of it over for him. Accused did not appear to know what he was doing and his condition was gradually getting worse. There was a time about a year previous when, witness said, he could control accused but he could not do so later. He (witness) had always looked upon accused as feeble minded. On January 28 accused had passed him without speaking. A few minutes later he mother had come out crying. "How can I find my husband? What can I do?" she had asked. Witness suggested a search party which was formed. That evening he saw Harry in the home sitting in a chair, smoking a cigarette. He was very quiet and there was no conversation. Next night after that day's search, in which accused had not joined, he again saw Harry in his house. Mrs. Smith told witness that Harry had been missing all day. On being asked by his mother where he had been, he laughed in a silly way. He said that he had thrown his coat, containing the money, in the water.

Under cross-examination, witness said that he had never discussed accused's mental condition with his parents. Nor had he told the police because he believed he was harmless.

MOTHER TESTIFIES

The wan and heavily stricken little mother, probably fifty years of age or over, was next on the stand. She could

ROADS and TRAILS	1916 26,220 MILES
1926-7	31,900 MILES

BRIDGES: The present valuation of 63 miles of Bridges is $8,480,000

UPON the arteries of communication depend the settlement and growth of the nation. First the trails... then the rough oxcart ruts... the wagon roads... the automobile highways.

The scattered population of British Columbia has made the construction of roads between centres a matter of vital importance, yet one of almost insurmountable difficulties.

Mountain sides have to be blasted away... clefts and chasms tresselled... rivers bridged!

With the opening of the Cariboo Highway through Fraser Canyon in 1926, the last link of British Columbia's great arterial highway... a highway unexcelled the world over as an engineering feat and one of unmatched scenic beauty... was forged.

Eastern British Columbia greeted its western brothers! Markets and railways were brought closer to the farmer, the miner, the industrialist. New fields for agricultural and trade development were opened up.

For the ten years just past, an aggressive highway programme has been carried out. Thousands of miles of good roads and dozens of sturdy bridges have been built.

Our roads system now totals 31,900 miles... an increase of over 5,000 miles during the last ten years. Of this mileage, 12,000 miles are earth roads; 4,000 gravel roads; and 1,000 macadam, bituminous, concrete and cement concrete. The 5,000 miles which were added to our roads system include: 884 miles of main trunk roads, 602 miles of lateral roads, 281 miles of industrial and mining roads, 1,133 miles of settlement and farm roads, and 2,000 miles of ordinary and mining trails.

During the years just before 1917, a large number of bridges had been constructed in the Province, nearly all of which were temporary timber structures. Since 1917, the problem of maintenance and renewal of these structures has been a serious one, involving a large expenditure, particularly between the years 1920 and 1927.

The policy has been to improve design of and workmanship on temporary bridges and to renew all the large bridges on main highways over the principal rivers with concrete and steel.

Today, the valuation of our 63 miles of bridges is nine million dollars.

This construction activity has distributed wages and salaries over our whole Province and has been a material aid in bringing about the current period of British Columbia's prosperity.

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S PROGRESS

bear up no longer under the weight of grief and, perceiving her son with his low bowed head in the dock sobbed out pitifully: "That is my boy." She gave her testimony between sobs. She had two sisters and two brothers, she said. One of the sisters had been in asylum three times and had finally taken carbolic acid and died.

Asked as to incidents of her son's peculiar behavior, she told of Sunday, January 15, when, as the church bell was ringing, a Mr. Rutan had driven past in his car. "He is going to dig my grave," Harry had said. The next day when she had given him a drink, she mother testified, the boy had accused her of trying to poison him.

"He said," she sobbed, "I just missed death yesterday and now you are trying to poison me." The only trouble Harry had ever had with his father, Mrs. Smith declared, was over the incident with the case of powder. They were always very friendly and witness knew of no reason why the son should wish to kill his father. Harry did not commence to walk until he was two years and seven months old and he was not talking until he was over 3 1/2 years old, the mother told the court. She had never reported her boy's condition to the police, believing that he was not dangerous.

Mr. Johnson mercifully refrained from cross-examination. The sister, Ruby E. Smith, a pretty young girl, was also broken down and crying when she entered the stand. Once, she said, when Frank had gone out shooting and could be seen from the windows of the house fixing his gun, Harry, who was reading, all of a sudden got up and said: "Oh, I think he is going to shoot me." Witness said, that's just imagination. This had seemed to calm him. The brother's condition, she said, she had discussed with her parents. It was obvious that he was getting worse.

Mrs. Smith told the court Harry's explanation on having come in soaking wet on the Sunday afternoon. He had said that Jack Martin's soul had called to him and he wanted to get to the same place where he had been drowned off a steamer to see if he could find him. Harry had come in, the girl said, with the ball of his foot badly cut. Previous witnesses had said that accused had taken off his shoes and socks and walked four miles in his bare feet over a rough shore.

Much Smaller Percentage of Oriental Workers in B.C. Than Ever in History of Province

REDUCTION in the number of Oriental workers in our industries, a rise in the average wage of workers, a decided drop in the number of industrial workers receiving wages in the lower scale, and an increase in the number of apprentices, are points featured in the section of the statistical report of the Provincial Department of Labor, which has been presented to the Hon. A. M. Manson, minister of labor, by J. D. McNiven, deputy minister.

An interesting feature of the figures given under the head of "Nationality of Workers" is the proof they afford of the fact that industries are slowly but surely coming more under the dominance of our own races. Adding together the number of native Canadian, British, natives of the United States and Australia, we find that natives of English-speaking countries aggregate 72.51 per cent of the entire number of our industrial workers, this being the best record in the last five years.

Changes in wage-rates during the year were not very pronounced. In fourteen of the groups there was an average increase in the weekly rates, and in eleven groups an average decrease. Tables in the report which give the number of wage-earners in each industry, tabulated according to the weekly wages received, afford a comparison with similar tables in previous years which is, in one respect at least, remarkable—that is, for the partial exemption of the wage-earners receiving very low rates of wages.

The large cut on the Skeena Highway below Skeena Crossing has been completed and the crew and shovel has moved on a half mile further to another big cut. Miss Bulwer of Vernon has arrived here to enter the nurses' training school at the Hazelton Hospital. Three Indians appeared before Stipendiary Magistrate John D. Charleson charged with shooting a swan north of Fort St. James. Under the Game Act shooting of swans is illegal.

evening was one of the many functions held in honor of Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Young prior to their departure for Vancouver Island at the end of the week.

In The Letter Box

DEMOCRATIC PREMIER

Editor, Daily News. My attention has just been called to the Vancouver Province's write-up of the Premier's visit to Alice Arm on June 11. You will find this comment in the issue of June 12. It is embodied under the general heading of "Politics" and is presumed to be a Province wide resume and condensation of political happenings, actual and unbiased, as an independent newspaper would give its readers. The Province's comment as relates to Alice Arm and the Premier's visit here is so much at variance with the story as carried in the original dispatch which was sent by me to your paper, that duty calls me to raise my voice in protest both upon general principles as well as in the name of that independent journal which the Province newspaper takes unto itself. As you will note from your files, the original despatch stated that Premier Maclean breakfasted at the common lunch counter before 7 o'clock, looked over the Indian reserve, inspected the public works, etc., and took a trip over the Dolly Varden railway, and then addressed a public meeting at 10 o'clock. But listen to the Province newspaper in its independent and unprejudiced write up as based on this despatch. It says: "He breakfasted at the lunch counter at 10 o'clock, addressed a public meeting, he also went a short distance up the Kitault valley on the Dolly Varden line, etc." Now why does the Province make the Premier breakfast at 10 o'clock instead of 7 o'clock and why does it change the phrase "a trip up the railway" and make it read a "short distance"?

Can it be that the Province newspaper does not think it commendable for a Premier of British Columbia to breakfast before 7 o'clock, that he has committed an indiscretion, and if it is changed to read 10 o'clock the Premier will be shielded in the eyes of his friends. And again, if a Premier makes an inspection trip over a railway the impression might get out that he was a slave to details, and if it is made to read a short distance it would put him in a more favorable light before his friends and constituents. In all seriousness, I cannot hold with the Province paper and call it independent and unbiased. Regardless of politics the visit of the Premier here presents itself to me as being highly commendable not as a visit from a Conservative or Liberal premier, but what one would expect the premier of the democratic people of the Province of British Columbia. To restate the case: I met Premier Maclean taking a walk over the public works and grounds of Alice Arm at 7:30 o'clock, accompanied only by the member for the district. Upon going into the restaurant I found that he had already breakfasted. Upon inquiring as to who made up his party I found that his whole retinue consisted only of Premier Maclean—no newspaper men, no valets, no secretaries. The party was Mr. J. D. Maclean, who happened to be the premier of British Columbia, seeing the country and getting first hand impressions and knowledge. I tried to embody this impression in my dispatch to your paper, and cannot but feel that the Province newspaper is not unbiased when it would write this down as not being commendable in a premier of British Columbia.

and formerly identified with Essondale mental hospital, was the final witness. He stated that he had examined accused at Okalla on May 29 and July 1, and subsequently had seen him in the courtroom. He told of the methods that were followed in medical practice to ascertain sanity or lack of such—observation, conversation and general examination. He testified that he had reported to Mr. Johnson that accused was a high grade imbecile with mental age of from 8 to 10 years. Since he had examined him, Dr. MacKay declared, accused had evidently become even more demented and, in a year or so, it was probable that he would be almost totally demented. He presumed that accused's condition on January 18 was much the same as when he had examined him.

Mr. John—Would he understand right from wrong?

Dr. MacKay—He would understand right from wrong as a child, not as an adult. He would understand that a gun would kill and would know that it was wrong to shoot his father.

Degree of imbecility might depend to some extent on environment, said Dr. MacKay. "Do you think one having the mentality of a child only seven or eight years of age would be interested in Western stories as it has been testified

LAND ACT

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO APPLY TO LEASE LAND

In Prince Rupert Land Recording District and situate adjacent to Allford Bay, McCreedy Island, Skidegate Inlet, Queen Charlotte Islands. TAKE NOTICE that Pacific Mills Limited, of Vancouver, B.C., occupation Pulp and Paper Manufacturers, intends to apply for a lease of the following described lands:— Commencing at a post planted on the high water mark of an island; thence following the high water mark around the island to point of commencement and containing 0.25 acre, more or less.

the accused was reading?" inquired Mr. Justice Gregory.

"There is a difference between reading and interpreting," stated Dr. MacKay. "I cannot recall such a case reading such matter."

He would not pay much attention to certain incidents as to accused's conduct, which had been reported, stated Dr. MacKay. He would, however, pay more attention when outsiders considered him simple minded. Smoking between meals was of no significance. "That is a habit of mine, indeed," remarked Dr. MacKay.

"And we are not judging upon your sanity," remarked His Lordship.

Court was adjourned for fifteen minutes before argument of counsel was proceeded with.

MR. GONZALES' PLEA

"As I see this case," Mr. Gonzales stated in his address to the jury, you have but one point to decide—whether or not accused appreciated, when he killed his father, the nature and quality of his act." Mr. Gonzales asked the jury, in judging the boy, to consider the way he had lived, his surroundings and environment. He referred to the fact that his mother's sister had died of insanity. He had been brought into the world, through no fault of his own, with a handicap. He neither talked or walked as soon as normal children. And as he went along, he was dubbed "crazy." The boy, Mr. Gonzales argued, did not know what he was doing then, nor did he know what he was doing now. There was no evidence of a motive for the crime, no suggestion of a row with the father. Was it the natural thing for a son to murder his father and go even further than that and dynamite the body? Would not the normal boy protect his father or his mother, much less commit an act of such inhumanity? Then he was afraid and would not tell what he was doing but had walked along the beach in his bare feet, throw his coat in the water and jump in the cold waters of Massett Inlet in midwinter, saying that he was going to find Jack Martin's, his friend's, soul. Could any one argue that he was anything else but crazy? Then there were the other hallucinations, such as his mother trying to poison him, the man going by to dig his grave, the two foreigners he had stayed behind fearing they were going to kill him, the man in the gray suit vanishing into thin air on the road, his brother going to kill him and the axe moving from the door where he had placed it. How was there any other conclusion than that he did not know what he was doing? Then Mr. Gonzales referred to the evidence of the alienist. The boy was not normal and apparently never had been. Could anyone believe he knew and appreciated what he was doing? Was there any other conclusion? "And, finally, if you still have any doubts about his sanity now or at any time, I would just ask you to look at him in that box," concluded the crown counsel.

A. M. Johnson, K.C., crown prosecutor, remarked that the defence had admitted the killing of the father. There was no doubt that accused had first shot his father and had then used dynamite to dig the grave and ill-treat the dead man. The jury was not, however, concerned with the horror of the crime but had to treat it simply as a homicide. On the question as to whether he was sane or insane, His Lordship would give the necessary instructions. The evidence was that accused was an expert marksman and he must have known that a shot from his firearms was likely to kill. Again in the matter of whether the boy knew right from wrong. His Lordship would instruct the jury. He would leave it to the jury to retire as ordinary men to consider whether accused knew right from wrong and whether or not he appreciated the nature and quality of his act.

CHARGE OF JUDGE

There were four possible verdicts that might be returned in this case, Mr. Justice Gregory explained in his charge—murder, manslaughter, not guilty or not guilty by reason of insanity. The jury in this case was faced with the most serious duty ever befalling upon them. There was no evidence, in the opinion of the judge, of manslaughter. It had been admitted that the accused had killed his father. Because of insanity, the crime could not be reduced from murder to manslaughter. The defence here was that there was excuse because the man did not understand the nature or quality of his act. A man might be an imbecile or less than normal in mental capacity and still be guilty of murder but His Lordship pointed out that there was precedent for the jury looking at such affairs minutely under certain circumstances. It was for the jury to satisfy itself if the man was responsible and conscious of his act, whether or not he knew what he was doing and that it was wrong. If the preponderance of the evidence justified the jury in believing that accused was insane, as the defence contended, it might so find. His Lordship could see no basis for a verdict of manslaughter or not guilty. The jury could, however, return a verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity if it so found. If there was a reasonable doubt of accused's sanity, the judge added at the suggestion of crown counsel.

Addresses of counsel and the charge of the judge had taken less than one hour and the jury retired to consider its verdict at 4:10, returning fifteen minutes later. The accused displayed no more interest in the finding of the jury than he had at any other juncture in the proceedings. At the request of crown counsel, His Lordship directed that accused be kept in strict custody and delivered to Colquhoun Asylum, Vancouver Island, until the pleasure of the Lieutenant-governor in council was known.

Man in the Moon

The days are short when the work goes well.

Jake says he wonders why the members of the Players Club had to be fetched home by the Salvage Princess. I give it up.

Silence is power, sometimes. Silence is sometimes cowardice.

Missionaries go first, then clothes, then filling stations.

The man with the most money may own the fastest boat but usually he does not.

Prosperity is a disease which causes the softening of tissue and ends in premature death.

Prince Rupert may easily become a death trap because the autos are here which prevent walking and golf is not here to encourage it.

"Jack, there's a motorcycle chasing us. Is it a traffic officer?"

"No, worse. It's the guy who collects the instalments on this car."

"And they are keeping their engagement a secret, aren't they?"

"Well, that's what they are telling everybody."

Hon. S. F. Toimie says he will "proceed to investigate" and Jake declares he thinks a period in opposition to allow him time would be a good thing. That's Jake all over. He's always saying what he thinks.

Friend Toimie would investigate. He'd make a survey soon. Perhaps he'd come up here with me. And look out from the moon. Meanwhile MacLean is setting quick. He has affairs in hand. He'll bring us all prosperity. To brighten up the land.

So why should we transfer the work of carrying on affairs. To one who has to survey first? Let's act while he prepares. We know just what MacLean can do. He's just the man for us. So just turn out and vote for him. And not make any fuss.

SPORT CHAT

In connection with the Dominion Day celebration on Monday next much interest will be taken in the Junior Football game at 11 a.m. Two all-star teams will play and spectators are assured of seeing a highclass game.

Blue team—T. Smith, R. Nelson, W. Murray, Colussi, R. Collins, R. Gilker; A. Walters, H. Dickens, T. Bussanich, J. McKay, O. Wingham. Reserve: W. Cross.

Red team—D. Scott, A. Styles (capt.), H. Pyle, B. Teufel, F. Cameron, V. Vocher, R. Wicks, R. Fong, K. Nakamoto, C. Johnston, R. Morrison. Reserve: P. Fisher.

It is still possible that High and Booth may play off for League championship honors and the executive are trying to arrange for the game to take place on Friday evening of this week. Keen disappointment was felt that the High School team was not permitted to play last Saturday evening when their players were available. The players of both teams are anxious to play off to decide the winners for the season and the football public are more than ever desirous of seeing the teams in opposition again. The display of football in their last meeting is still the talk of the followers of the sport.
