The resolution dealing with the recognition of Soviet Russia had been shelved at the early stages of the convention but was revived on a motion to reconsider by G. Johnson of Calgary. At the close of a lengthy debate the resolution was approved by a substantial majority.

COCKTAILS GROW ON TREES IN INDIA SAYS A LONDON DESPATCH

Either someone is letting a fortune slip through his fingers, or else the Bhopal correspondent of the Indian News Service is an optimist, says a London writer in The New York Herald Tribune. "From October, 1921," the correspondent writes, "the State of Bhopal has lost over 300,000 rupees every year in its efforts to enforce prohibition, and at last has had to put a stop to this costly experiment. It was found that the Mohwa trees, which abound in the state, are tapped by those who desire alcoholic drink."

If this Mohwa tree is all that is claimed for it, and if it will function properly in the American climate, the "plant a tree" movement ought to boom exceedingly. But London horticulturists haven't any Mohwa trees in stock, and seem doubtful of their ability to get any.

MONTREAL, January 21.—Armand Robillard, manager of the St. Denis Street branch of the Banque Canadienne National, which was robbed of $10,000 Thursday, was driving with the police when he pointed to two men on the sidewalk and shouted "There are the men." Constable Yoldu, thinking he was pulling a gun, shot at him, stating he intended to shoot at his feet but the bullet entered the groin and the man was killed. The companion of the dead man was released, the authorities being satisfied that he had no connection with the crime.

IRISH PREMIER WILL BE WELCOME

Premier Cosgrave of the Irish Free State is on this continent and soon will visit Canada. If he would visit Prince Rupert we'd give him a hearty welcome.

There are Irish people everywhere in Canada. Some of them are of the pure stock and others are half breeds. They are mixed up with English or Scottish or some other blood.

THAT JOINT OFFER

Canada's national railway and Canada's first great railway have joined hands to offer to buy from the Alberta government the Edmonton, Dunvegan and B.C. Railway.

We are rather proud of our railway that we hire Sir Henry to operate for us. We also are proud of the railway that led the way to the West, even if it was the southwest.

ANTI-ORIENTALISM RESEMBLES NEW PROVINCE

At election times or for sensation purposes a great many people become anti-Oriental in their attitude just as they get excited about the formation of a new province.

It will probably astonish most Canadian business men to learn that nearly one-third of Vancouver's tailors are Orientals; that one-quarter of the grocers, jewellers and tobacconists and one-fifth of the hardware dealers are Orientals.

In the adjoining municipalities of South Vancouver and Burnaby over one-third of all trade licences are held by Chinese, and in the near-by district municipality of Richmond nearly two-thirds of all trade licences—eighty-seven out of a total of one hundred and twenty-two—are held by Japanese.

In the City of Victoria, Orientals hold 364 trade licences, and the total for the province is 3,231, of which 2,122 are held by Chinese, 1,034 by Japanese and seventy-five by Hindus.

So much for the Oriental penetration to the heart of the trade of British Columbia. Here are some other pertinent facts:

There are over 13,300 Orientals employed in industries in British Columbia and over thirty per cent of the employees in saw and planing mills and approximately half the employees in shingle mills are Asiatics.

Oriental own land and improved property in British Columbia to an aggregate value of well over $10,000,000, and hold on lease property valued at over a million dollars.

Of the British Columbia acreage in small fruits over thirty per cent is held by Orientals (nearly all Japanese), while the Chinese have practically secured control of truck gardening and are the biggest producers of potatoes, beans, tomatoes and other field vegetables, beside being fairly well established in mixed farming.

The Oriental is gradually increasing his hold on production under glass, and two years ago, when the last survey was made, he constituted thirteen per cent of the growers and operated thirty-seven per cent of the glass area.

It is estimated that Asiatic residents in Canada now number approximately 65,000, of these, 46,500 being in British Columbia.

WHY CHINESE BECAME RED

Missionary in Address to Women's Canadian Club Tells of Conditions in Orient

Christian Natives Remain Steadfast Even During Unsettled Condition of Country

Some interesting sidelights on the origin and growth of Communism in China were given by Miss Catherine H. Robbins, Anglican missionary, who addressed the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon in the Commodore dining room, the president, Mrs. George Woodland, in the chair, and fifty members and guests present.

Gradually the insidious propaganda spread enmeshing even the Christian general Feng to whom the missionaries had looked for the deliverance of the country. He made a visit to Russia and on his return was changed to such an extent that he turned against his former friends and was now opposed to both Great Britain and Japan.

The turning point came with the raiding of the Russian embassy at Shanghai. Tons of documents were seized and an attempt to burn them prevented. Some of these documents were extremely incriminating, but when published in the Chinese press the people would not believe them.

When a lot of people voted for Mc-Mordie they did not know they were voting for a lower tax rate. They can't know everything.

Indian Agent C. C. Perry will take up with the Dominion government the matter of firms who have been supplying liquor to native dealers at Port Simpson. It is expected that prosecutions will follow.

Two boys, charged with breaking and entering the Hub Pool Room, owing to their tender age, were dismissed in city police court this morning by Magistrate Cars, one of them being required, however, to leave town.

FORMER LOCAL MAN AT OTTAWA

Percy Godenrath Opens Art Studio in National Capital Aided by His Wife

Prince Rupert people will be interested in the following from an Ottawa newspaper:

A pleasing addition to the cultured life of the Capital came with the opening today of a new art studio by Captain Percy F. Godenrath, well known in Canadian art circles. Captain Godenrath has opened an art studio at 102 Wellington Street which, backed by Captain Godenrath's reputation in the fine art trade throughout the Dominion gained through many print exhibitions during the past seven years, promises to be an outstanding shop of its kind in the Dominion.

Previous to the war, he was secretary of the Prince Rupert Board of Trade and had been a mining journalist and publisher for many years in the Pacific Coast province. He served in France in the 16th Battalion "Canadian Scottish" and following the Armistice was sent to New York and Canada as officer in charge of the famous collection of Canadian War Memorials paintings.

It was his connection with this work that decided him to start in the old profession of printseller, and he has the unique distinction of being the only member of the trade in Canada exclusively engaged in this line.

Associated with him in his new enterprise is his wife, who also is well known in connection with her work in the print room of the Art Gallery at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto. For some years past both have annually visited England and the continent for the purpose of studying in the galleries of the principal art centres. The new studio contains a commodious print gallery and will be opened on Saturday to the public with an exhibition of etchings in color by Hans Figura of Vienna, which has been sent direct from London for its first showing in Canada.

Man in the Moon

GOOD Afternoon folks! What is the latest railway news?

I OPEN the paper And look about. It's full of news. There is no doubt, But there is No Peace River stuff, I think the rest Is nothing but guff.

WHEN a lot of people voted for Mc-Mordie they did not know they were voting for a lower tax rate. They can't know everything.

THIS newspaper was very serious yesterday. There was not a single murder robbery or assault case reported. Oh, well, I suppose it can't be interesting every day.

A MAN walks briskly into a shop And tersely remarks, "A hat, old top." Mentioning colors, perhaps, and sizes. And takes, as a rule, what the clerk advises.

A woman goes in and takes a chair In front of a mirror and pats her hair And tries on many and many and many. Going out, as a rule, without buying any.

BOBBED HAIR CAMILLE SEEN

Shades of Sarah Bernhardt and Duse!

A bobbed-hair "Camille!" Yet, if the famous stage actresses were alive today they would sanction the radical step, in the opinion of representative motion picture fans who have attended the current showing of Norma Talmadge's latest picture, a modernized version of "Camille," seen here last night and to be repeated to-night.

In "Camille," which was directed by Fred Niblo, whose name in connection with a new picture is in itself a promise of worthwhile entertainment, there are many points of interest. Miss Talmadge's characterization of the "Lady of the Camellias" as an ultra modern, Parisian heart-breaker is, in the first place, perhaps the most colorful, emotional role she has ever attempted and one that promises to remain an indelible impression in the memory.

The picture also serves to introduce a new screen lover—Gilbert Roland, a young Spaniard unknown a few months ago, but in whom Joseph M. Schenck's organization has such faith that it gave him as his first role one of the season's choicest opportunities.

DISLIKES DELAY. Editor, Daily News.

Judging from your report in yesterday's paper, I should say the new council is stalling on that theatre site sale. Last year's council investigated and found everything in order and as far as they possibly could, carried out the wishes of the people of Prince Rupert. It is to be hoped that the new council will do the same. It was very disappointing to those of us who wanted to see the work go ahead to have it delayed by the council. People here want the work and the city needs the theatre.

I hope there is nothing sinister in the action of some of the aldermen in asking for delay, but you must admit it looks like trying to hinder building operations. No one had any real objection to the deal. "Trusting you'll find space for this little missive, I am WATSHMAN.

H. G. Perry, M.L.A. addressed the local branch of the Women's Institute on Monday, his subject being "Parliamentary Procedure."

A special meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Legion was held Thursday night for the purpose of considering amendments to the bylaws.

E. H. Burden of this city has been elected a director of the British Columbia Land Surveyors' Association.

H. G. Perry, M.L.A. leaves Prince George this week-end for Victoria where he will attend the session of the legislature which opens next week.

Shortage of snow following recent rains is working a hardship on the ski jumps being established at Burns Lake. Recently, V. Mr. Berg negotiated the leap several times to the interest and excitement of assembled spectators.

A recent curling match at Prince George between rinks skipped by W. L. Hornsby and F. D. Taylor has caused a lot of talk in the interior town on the breaks of the game. Taylor and Judge Robertson had been putting up a sterling game and good judgment had built up a house for the side which looked good for at least two counters and the match. However, Hornsby's stone came slithering down the ice with everything on it that it shouldn't have except the wrong turn. It scraped past the guard, drove the shot rock through and lay on the button to win the match. That is why it was agreed that anything could happen.

Play in the curling competition at Smithers between rinks representing President R. C. Bamford and Vice-President H. C. Olsen are causing keen excitement, the president at the present time being ahead 3 to 1. The ice is in good shape and a successful winter's sport is anticipated. Following are the skips of the various rinks:

President's—George Findley, A. G. Bowje, Charles Reid, J. A. Macdonald, J. M. Graham, H. Schwartz and R. Elliott.

Vice-President's—E. M. Sales, D. D. Munro, F. H. Johnston, Roy Taylor, S. H. Hoskins, A. Simpson and J. A. Finlerty.

JOINED CHOIR IN "MESSIAH"

Singing of Hallelujah Chorus by Audience Pleases Leader, Sir Herbert Brewer

LONDON, Jan. 21.—"This is the first time it has ever been done in this country. I thank you very much," said Sir Herbert Brewer, organist, and Master of Choristers, Gloucester Cathedral, greatly moved by what had just occurred to an audience of over 3,000 at Colston Hall, Bristol, one night recently.

Sir Herbert had announced previously that at the annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" by the Bristol Choral Society, of which he is conductor, he could ask the audience to rise and join in singing the famous Hallelujah Chorus. As a result of this the greater portion of the audience brought with them copies of the "Messiah." Sir Herbert asked those who knew the chorus and intended singing to do so with the reverence due to so great a work. With the society's chorus of 400, a full orchestra and the Colston Hall organ—one of the finest in the country—the audience sang in perfect harmony. Sopranos, contraltos, tenors and basses, in all parts of the hall, sang their respective parts. Perfect time was kept, and so impressive was the rendering that many were in tears.

The climax came before the final Hallelujah. There was silence while Sir Herbert held his baton aloft for a second or two; then the four final choruses crashed out with wonderful effect. Sir Herbert Brewer's daring experiment had been more than justified.

During the year 1928 the Prince George Hospital had a surplus of receipts over expenditures of $1,941.79 considering the size of the place, it is believed that this showing is unrivalled.

Quality BEER

THE QUALITY OF BEER depends, of course, almost entirely upon the MATERIAL that is used in its composition.

The main constituents are MALT, which gives it BODY and CONSISTENCY, and HOPS, which FLAVOR and PRESERVE it.

We are using only the finest CANADIAN MALT and the finest BRITISH COLUMBIA HOPS, blended with the best IMPORTED BOHEMIAN HOPS, thus our BEERS are fine, pure and palatable.

Our storage capacity is very large, which enables us to create in our Beer the qualities of RIPENESS and MATURITY.

We brew and bottle the famous OLD MILWAUKEE LAGER BEER, try it. For sale at Government Liquor Stores and Beer Parlors. Free delivery to any part of the City.

Preparations for Reopening of Halibut Season Now General—No Sign of Herring yet—Reveille Back From Seattle

Preparations for the opening of the 1928 halibut fishing season on February 15 are now fully under way at Prince Rupert. On all hands the rap of the hammer is to be heard and the rattle of the machine shops in general...

Bringing in two fifty-foot poles for M.H. Nickerson's radio station out in Westview, the Thelma H. Capt. Bill Hanson, arrived in port on Wednesday evening. How Mill got the sticks from float to dock and around the circuitous curves and corners of the west end of the Cow Bay is still a subject of wonder...

Galt freighter, Salvor, Capt. W. W. Rush, seemingly under steady contract to the local interests, is due next week from Vancouver with a cargo consisting of 200 tons of coal, 100 tons of cement and 50,000 feet of lumber for Albert & McCaffery.

The Frank Waterhouse motorship Arran Firth is also due in port with coal for local delivery and will load out a cargo of cottonwood logs from Terrace for the Laminated Materials mill at New Westminster.

The only towboat of the Rupert Marine Products fleet in service at the present time, power tug M.T. 3, Capt. Reg. Green, is making steady deliveries of lumber laden scows from Georgetown, most of which lumber at the present time is being used in construction of the new mill at Seal Cove.

Other boats of the R.M.P. fleet are being put in shape in anticipation of the reopening of the various branches of the fishing industry.

Boats on the Ward ways recently have included the halibut boats M.A.B. and Selma and the seiner W. and F.

GETTING ZAPORA READY
Capt. Lars Voge and his men are busy in the loft of the Nelson Trading Co. rigging gear for the halibut boat Zapora in anticipation of the opening of the season. While originally purposed for the halibut fishing, the opening of the 1928 season will see the Zapora making her first trip in this trade...

Capt. Alex. Saint and Capt. Harvey Dumas are at present engaged in installing the fifteen horse power Advance semi-diesel engine, which recently arrived in the schooner K. and S. Acquired by the Prince Rupert Boat House interests last fall after having been practically burned to the water's edge near Lowe Inlet, the K and S has been completely rebuilt and will be ready for operation again on the opening of the 1928 salmon season.

Work of redecking that part of the C.N.R. wharf on which Shed No. 1 was destroyed by fire last fall is proceeding and the old charred planks, having been disposed of, were being carted away this week. The shed itself will not be rebuilt although the dock will be put in shipshape again. A good site for those desiring such a location will thus be offered.

John Dybavn, local member of the Biological Board of Canada, left yesterday for Vancouver to attend a meeting of the Pacific coast sub-committee on January 17 at which work to be taken up during the coming year will be outlined. Also attending the meeting will be D. B. Finn, director of the Prince Rupert Fisheries Experimental Station, who has been absent for several months engaged in research work at Winnipeg and who will return to the city immediately upon the conclusion of this conference.

H. N. Brocklesby, acting director of the Prince Rupert Fisheries Experimental Station, addressed the pupils of the King Edward High School on Thursday afternoon on the subject of vitamins. The lecture, through the telling, proved possibly more interesting than it would appear.

MAGNUS HANSEN AND HIS CREW

Heroic Exploit of Halibut Schooner "Explorer" Told About in Seattle Journal

The following write-up from the "Pacific Fisherman" describing the heroic work of Capt. Magnus Hansen and his crew, all of whom are well known here in removing passengers from the wrecked steamer Northwestern on Cape Mudge recently with the halibut schooner Explorer should prove of interest to their many friends:

The fine spirit and seamanship prevalent in the Pacific halibut fleet were strikingly illustrated in the service performed by Capt. Magnus Hansen and crew of the Juneau halibut schooner "Explorer," in removing the passengers from the stranded steamer "Northwestern" off Cape Mudge December 11. In a heavy gale and blinding snowstorm, and under conditions which made the work not mere difficult but truly heroic, Capt. Hansen took off all the passengers and many of the crew with their baggage, and landed them safely in the neighboring port of Campbell River, on the east side of Vancouver Island some 200 miles north of Seattle.

In a blizzard which obscured all lights ashore, the Northwestern, bound from Seattle to Alaska, was carried slightly off her course by the treacherous tidal currents which sweep through the narrow southern entrance to Seymour Narrows, for which she was headed, and went aground about 5 a.m., going hard and fast on a bed of boulders. A line was put ashore at daylight, but it was impossible to make a safe landing, as the beach was lined with heavy driftwood which the waves were throwing high in the air. At the call for help tugs were sent to the rescue, but were unable to come alongside because of the shoal water and rocks, over which heavy seas were constantly breaking. By noon the lower holds were flooded, with waves reaching the decks; and the passengers, though not considered in immediate danger, had put on lifebelts when, about 1 p.m., the Explorer hove in sight. While no real alarm had been felt, her timely appearance was hailed by those on board as providential.

With admirable courage and seamanship, Capt. Hansen brought his vessel to the lee side of the steamer and made fast. Down a rope ladder, with the aid of life lines, women and children were lowered to the deck of the fishing schooner. The men of the passengers followed, with a number of the steamer's crew. The work was much hampered by icy wind and stinging snow, as well as the movement of the vessel; but by 2:45 the transfer was completed, and all were landed at Campbell River about an hour later. The passengers alone numbered 112 and, as it was deemed unsafe for them on deck, they were placed below in the fore-cabin, fish-hold and engine room of the 65-ft schooner; young children being accommodated in the captain's cabin. There was no doubt some discomfort, but it is to the great credit of all concerned that nobody was hurt, and none of the passengers were even wet.

A second trip was made to take off food for the passengers, and the Explorer then returned and stood by the Northwestern all night and most of the next day. On Monday, with the weather moderating and other help at hand, she quietly resumed her homeward voyage, reaching Juneau on the 16th.

CAPT. HANSEN'S ACCOUNT
At the time of the wreck the schooner was homeward bound from Seattle, where she had landed her last fare for the season, 44,000 pounds of halibut. She ran into the storm early Sunday morning, slowing down to take bearings in the bad stretch of water near Cape Mudge, the shore line was sighted and then the Northwestern appeared through the snow, lying against the shore with waves breaking on her, and pounding heavily.

"We got as close as we could," says Capt. Hansen, "but while several hundred yards away took soundings and found only three fathoms of water under us. When we were close enough to make them hear us we asked how much water there was alongside and they told us there was three fathoms. It was a dangerous undertaking to get alongside, but it was the only thing we could do."

"Driftwood was floating about everywhere, and an extremely strong tide was running. The wind was driving huge breakers in, while beneath us were only three fathoms of water. Ahead and astern of the ship were rocks projecting and we did not know when we might be dropped on one of them and wrecked. We finally made the lee side of the vessel and tied up. That was the end of the worst part."

"Everybody was in excellent spirits when I reached the deck, and Capt. Livingston of the Northwestern certainly deserves credit for the way in which he had calmed the passengers. Earlier in the day a line had been put ashore, but it was impossible to get a lifeboat through the driftwood and breakers. Water was running low, the lights were all out and there was no heat to cook with on the steamer. We decided that we could take everybody to Campbell River except those who were to remain with the ship. We loaded approximately 140 persons, besides all the hand baggage and what mail had been saved."

"At 4 p.m. we arrived at Campbell River, discharged our passengers and headed back for the scene of the wreck. We stood by that night and by Monday morning the storm had subsided and the skies were clearing. Monday afternoon two tugs and a barge were transferring mail and freight; and that evening, as they intended to remain at the wreck, we left for Juneau, our work being completed."

EXPLORER A NEW BOAT
The Explorer, 65 by 17 1/2 by 8 feet, is a husky long liner, built on Puget Sound in 1926, and an account of her equipment appeared in "Pacific Fisherman" for October last year. Her power plant is a 125 h.p. Western-Enterprise diesel engine, which is served by a De Laval fuel oil purifier, the first installed for that purpose on a Pacific Coast fishing vessel. The engineer is Johannes Hansen, brother of the skipper. Capt. Hansen states that the vessel has given excellent service, and has landed 14 trips of halibut since leaving Seattle, September 4, 1926; the quantity landed totalling 490,000 lbs., giving the nine men aboard shares of $3,713 each.

Capt. J. Livingston of the Northwestern and officials of the Alaska Steamship company give unstinted praise to Capt. Hansen and the members of his crew, all of whom showed the greatest courage and loyalty. The nerve, seamanship and helpful spirit displayed are valued even more highly than the actual service rendered; and the comment is made that "when the big ships get in trouble in out-of-the-way places it is the fishermen, especially the halibut fishermen, who can be counted on to get there and stand by to the last, and give all help in their power under all conditions."

PARENTS' QUARRELS INFLUENCE CHILDREN

English Woman Physician Gives Her Views on Ties of Motherhood and Kindred Subjects

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Why do certain families of children quarrel violently over their games? According to Dr. Alice Hutchison, a well-known authority on children's and maternity hospitals in London, this friction is the inevitable result of superficial discord between the parents.

"As regards birth control," says Dr. Hutchison, "I do say very clearly that birth control has wrecked numbers of marriages. I am not discussing the question of, for, or against it. Birth control wrecks marriages because the maternal urge cannot be quenched so easily. If you put a difficulty in the way of that urge you will find women harboring a feeling of animosity against their husbands."

Dr. Hutchison said she wanted to see children absolutely break the tie of dependence upon their mothers. "We see the young man who won't marry because he won't leave his mother. People say: 'How beautiful! The truth is that he won't leave his mother because he is a baby and won't break the tie. He can't do without her. We want fully grown men who will leave home and take a wife not as a second mother but as a mate. What seems to outside people to be excellent parenthood often means failure to the child. If you make a child a baby you make him selfish, and a fully grown man he will never be."

ELEPHANTS ROAMED OVER NEW ENGLAND

Thousands of Years Ago Climate Warmer and Animals Quite Different

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 21.—Thousands of years ago the livestock that roamed the hills and dales of New England was somewhat different than at present, according to Professor Hervey W. Shimer of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who has been engaged in making a geological investigation of several sections of New England.

In these real old days of which Professor Shimer has found traces in the rock formations, mammoth elephants with coats of shaggy fur were the monarchs of the hills and valleys. Through some process of evolution the hairy coat, and the habitat of the pachyderms have changed somewhat.

Along the banks of the Connecticut, Professor Shimer found that the musk-ox had roamed in search of forage. But in those times the climate of Massachusetts was as warm as it is off the coast of Virginia now. He based his conclusions on the presence of marine shells which have been dug up from the soil beneath the city of Boston.

Some of the shells that were found indicated that nine-inch oysters frequented this section in days gone by.

In the Tertiary period the Eohippus, the ancestor of the modern horse, which stood about a foot high, was common in New England along with rhinoceros and various members of the rhinoceros family, according to Professor Shimer.

Scientific Inspection

With the Latest Instruments of Precision
 That's the kind of eye service you can get here now. We give you a conscientious and careful test. Jack Bulger two years ago passed the B.C. government exams, for Optometrists and during the last six months along with most of the leading optometrists in Vancouver attended a course of post graduate lectures.

We do not supply or advise glasses if not of benefit.

Our tests are not uncomfortable and our prices are fair and reasonable.
