Several of those summoned were members of the civil service and therefore not eligible and others were out of the country.

Murder Trial Opens Today; Dying Man's Declaration Admissibility Questioned

Whether or not a statement purported to have been made by Dimitar Smilevich shortly before he died from knife wounds at Dorreen on July 14 that Stephan Boljkovac, accused of murder, had been his assailant was with the sudden and hope's expectation of death and, therefore, admissible as evidence before the jury was a point of difference between crown counsel, A. M. Johnson, K.C., and defence counsel, L. W. Patmore, at the opening of the trial at the supreme court assizes here this morning.

Johnson contended that it was admissible and Mr. Patmore that it was not. While evidence on this point was being taken to establish its admissibility, the jury was excluded from the courtroom. Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald, presiding judge, stated that he would give his decision on the point after having had time to think it over.

The chief witness at this morning's session was John Patrick fellow Jugo-Slav section hand of accused and deceased at Dorreen. He told how they had been cutting hay that morning and of being called to the station on account of Smilevich having been stabbed. The deceased had told him, witness said, that Boljkovac had "cut out all his stomach with a big knife." If not at the time he said that, at least a short time later, deceased had come to the realization that he was about to die. There was much evidence of a more or less sordid character on this point.

The first witness was Provincial Constable G. A. Wyman, who was called from Smithers to Dorreen and who had taken charge of the body and exhibits. Wyman gave much detailed evidence of the scene of the crime.

In the course of giving his evidence, Patrick said that deceased and accused had at first been good friends but later various grievances had arisen and they spoke to each other only when necessary. It was suggested that some of these grievances may have been imaginary on the part of Boljkovac.

Mrs. Stoyneff, wife of the section foreman at Dorreen, and Stanley Stoyneff, his son, also gave evidence on the point of the dying declaration. They agreed that deceased had said accused was responsible for the assault with the knife. They also agreed that deceased had said he was going to die.

E. E. Rayment of Vancouver is acting as interpreter in the case. The jury consists of: W. J. E. Barrie, foreman, James Proctor, Charles Wilson, Arthur White, A. J. Collison, Howard Steen, G. H. Munro, John P. Hunt, John Thompson, F. J. Williams, J. J. Judge and J. T. Ballinger.

The morning session started shortly after 10 o'clock and continued until 1 o'clock when adjournment was made until 2:15 this afternoon.

LOW RATES ON WHEAT

Ships Can Be Chartered At About Nineteen Shillings a Ton to United Kingdom

VANCOUVER, Sept. 26.—The western route should benefit this year from the low freight rates at present existing between this coast and United Kingdom. The present rate is 19 shillings a ton, as compared with 27 to 32 shillings of past seasons.

The low rates offered are partly the result of the small shipments being sent from Canada to the world markets and the desire of owners to secure cargoes. It is understood that this year there would be no quibbling over a differential for the port of Prince Rupert as had been done in the past. Shipowners want the cargoes.

Mitchell was foreman of the Grand Jury.

NORTH B.C. POWER NOW

Company Will Take Over Prince Rupert Section of Power Corporation

VANCOUVER, Sept. 25.—A special despatch to the Financial News from Montreal says: A new organization has been added to the "power" group in Canada, known as "Northern British Columbia Power Company, Limited." This company has been organized to take over and develop certain properties in northern British Columbia that have been acquired recently by Power Corporation of Canada, of which it will be a subsidiary.

The properties at present held include the municipal power plant of Prince Rupert, which was taken over in March last and has a hydro-electric installation of 1125 k.v.a. and a leased steam plant with a capacity of 2000 k.w. The plant consists of the International Electric Company, which operates in Stewart, B.C., and Hyder, B.C., and also in this group serve about 400 customers and it is expected that some time their market will be greatly increased by the development of the mineralized area that extends over the greater part of northern British Columbia to the borders of the Yukon.

A new power development is taking place near Prince Rupert, where a plant is under construction that will add about 6000 h.p. to the installed capacity of northern British Columbia Power. This will not be ready, however, until a couple of years. The new company has also in reserve several power sites that can be developed when required to an extent of 30,000 horsepower.

RUSS PLANE MAY PASS

Prince Rupert Citizens May See Machine on Moscow-New York Flight

While the itinerary does not apparently call for a stop here, it is quite possible that the Russian plane "Land of Soviets," on a flight from Moscow to New York, may at least pass overhead here so that local residents may catch a glimpse of the ship. The plane was at Dutch Harbor yesterday after a rough flight from Attu Island. The next hop was to be to Seward and then to Sitka and Seattle. The plane should be able to make the 700-mile flight from Sitka to Seattle without stop.

The four Russian flyers aboard the plane are the first aviators ever to conquer the Pacific Ocean over an eastward route in a heavier than air machine.

VICTORIA, Sept. 26.—"An innate love of order, a first rate efficiency once the national consciousness is aroused, a congenial incapacity to recognize defeat, much less acknowledge it, a passion for individual liberty, a spirit of compromise, a broad tolerance, above all a militant sense of fair play—these are some of the national attributes that have produced that strange amorphous thing that mass of contradictions the British Empire," said Mr. Justice Murphy, in an outstanding address at the annual banquet of the North Saanich Service Club. It was a scholarly contribution to a great imperial subject.

Of the Empire His Lordship said: "It defies all attempts at logical analysis. What, for instance, can be more anomalous than for a single sovereign political entity to be represented at foreign capitals by two, even three, and it may shortly be by half a dozen ministers, all having equal rank and all exercising equal hazy differential powers? Yet, the Empire works, and works successfully. Nay, it does more. It plucks at the heart strings of its far-flung peoples and sets their inmost souls vibrating with such mystic, haunting melodies of love for itself as a political institution that it has become impregnable to external attack.

"Because of its surface contradictions its enemies expected it to break to pieces at their first onslaught. Instead, to their utter amazement and consternation, they found themselves confronted by a solid phalanx of its embattled citizenry from every clime, and of every race, civilization, color and religion enthusiastically ready to die and who did, in fact, die by the million that the Empire might live."

HENDERSON AND THE LEAGUE

"The League of Nations must be given economic power by which it could bring immediate pressure against any state which contemplates war." This was a highlight in Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson's address to the League Council on the revision of the original covenant to make it a more effective instrument for the maintenance of world peace. In this pronouncement the British foreign secretary, with that directness and simplicity for which he is famous, made a bold bid for world co-operation against war.

Pious platitudes, humanitarian appeals, the visualization of the horrors of legalized murder have some trifling effect in preventing international strife, but the truth must be learnt that power must be fought with power and the rattling sabre with a blade as keen edged and deadly in effect. The wishbone is a poor substitute for the backbone in battling this curse of the centuries and abiding stigma on a civilization which dares to make the cross of the Nazarene the symbol of its endeavors. Henderson sees that the time has come for Mammon to fight Mammon and by holding the strings of the pocket-book to make war immediately unproductive for any nation which dares to disobey the mandates of the world's agency for the maintenance of peace.

Power of the Purse

The foreign secretary advocates a general treaty which would provide financial assistance to any state becoming a victim of aggression and he proclaims that if this treaty should ever see the light of day the British government would sign it immediately. Shrewd observers see in this proposal the coming of an even more drastic and forceful means of preventing war.

That instrument is the immediate economic blockade of the offending state or states by every other power in the world. If such a treaty were consummated it would be the most effective instrument ever devised by man to prevent war. Henderson urges that his original proposal be ratified by both members of the league and those nations which still remain outside it. If the first plan is carried out and ratified the second must be its inevitable corollary.

What are the chances of the Henderson plan being adopted? The observer of world affairs believes they are excellent. A thousand or more objections can be urged against it, but no great plan in the interests of humanity but has been faced with almost insurmountable difficulties and yet of these plans are today realities through the courage, vision and abiding faith of their sponsors. Europe, still poverty stricken and maimed in spirit and resources, is ready to take almost any action to lift its nightmare terror of another upheaval. Thousands are coming to believe that at last "a place in the sun" is to be made for international peace and that men of goodwill in every part of the world are definitely forging towards that glorious goal.

The groucher is his own worst enemy. If he ever gets to heaven he will object to the cut of the angels' wings.

TIMES CRITIC LIKES NEW GALSWORTHY HIT "THE SKIN GAME"

LONDON, England, Sept. 26. — "The long deep silence of the audience, unbroken by any flutter of inattention, bears witness to the play's solidity and to the brilliance of its craftsmanship," says the Times critic of the recent production of John Galsworthy's play "The Skin Game" at Wyndham's theatre. "When the curtain falls on an act," the Times continues,

"your first thought is: 'Thank heaven for a man who can still tell a story, and can tell it in such a way that it holds the stage by the integrity of its main narrative being under no necessity to throw out scraps.' This battle between an old family and a new, between the Hill-crists and the Hornblowers, this poisoned feud between tradition and usurpation that grows beyond any man's intention, bringing with it uncontrollable consequences of suffering and dishonor, is one of Mr. Galsworthy's most successful treatments of a theme very near his heart."

STEWART AS GREAT PORT

Editorial Writer at Vancouver Sees Future Developments at Head Portland Canal

VISION OF GREATNESS

Probability of Line Penetrating the Interior From That Town Is Pointed Out

(Financial News)

There is no harbor board at Stewart, but there will be one some day. There are no railway terminals at Stewart, but time will see them there. Stewart has no grain elevators, but they will come. No coal bunkers line the shores, but the immense semi-anthracite coal fields of northern British Columbia, not more than 140 miles from Stewart, can be exploited only through Stewart. If Northern British Columbia develops then Stewart must be used, and for Stewart to be used there must be a rail line from Stewart inland. The development of Stewart is as inevitable as was that of Seattle, Portland or Tacoma in the old days when San Francisco was the only rail terminal of the Pacific Coast.

Six hundred miles north of Vancouver, with fully one-third of the province of British Columbia lying north of Stewart's position on the fifty-sixth parallel, port of closest proximity to the Peace River block in British Columbia and the tremendous wheat growing belt of the Peace River valley in Alberta, probable terminus of a railway line which will cross the Canadian Rockies with the most favorable grades of all such lines on the continent, surpassing even the Canadian National Railway line in this respect, Stewart's future is indeed assured.

That these mentioned advantages exist is perhaps best proved by the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company through its mining subsidiary, the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. Ltd., holds the charter for a railway from Stewart to Fort Graham, and has come into possession of half the townsite and waterfront of Stewart.

Canadian Pacific Railway, as elsewhere pointed out in this issue, must, as a matter of railway strategy, have a direct railway connection westward from the Peace River country if it is to handle Northern Alberta freight in competition with the Canadian National Railway. Canadian Pacific Railway has two obvious choices. It can make a deal with the British Columbia government to take over the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and extend that road into the Peace River country, or it can build from Stewart and develop a new port. Stewart is the shorter route by at least 300 miles and the short rail haul eventually is used even though preference were first given the longer one to Vancouver. There is need for both routes.

At this juncture it is impossible to prophesy as to time. A summation of the case for Stewart would be that speculators and investors in its future are "playing a sure thing," the only real uncertainty being the element of time.

Stewart's future is as sure as was Seattle's in the Northwest United States, before the building of the first railway to that port.

Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. has five years in which to commence construction of the line from Stewart to Fort Graham and eight years to commence work on the branch line north to the Yukon boundary. If the second charter is to be kept in good standing the first project must be proceeded with—and there is no reason to suppose that the Canadian Pacific Railway interests, which set a world record for transportation enterprise, will be blind to the economics of the west or tardy in the fulfillment of a contract.

The reservoir of liquid wealth in the Peace River is rising rapidly. Three or four years must elapse before a railway can be built from the Pacific to the Peace, and when it is completed, Peace River, at its present rate of growth will be more than ready for it.

In a country such as Western Canada, railways cost nothing. The wealth they unlose within 10 or 20 years after their construction and the values and traffic they create in the areas they serve more than compensate for the cost of construction. The Sullivan mine will pay for the Crow's Nest line many times over. It may be objected that this rule has not applied in the case of the Pacific Great Eastern. But the P.G.E. is not a railway, in the true sense of the word. It is a disconnected unit, handicapped by its history and by lack of enterprise in completing it. The P.G.E. had it been built into the Peace River country 10 years ago, might well be a profitable line today.

The eyes of Canada and of the Middle Western United States today are turned to Northern Alberta and Northern British Columbia. Nothing now can forestall the northern migration. It is the most vital new force at work in Canada today. Sooner or later Stewart must take its place in the northern picture. Growth in the north will force the use of all outlets. There will be many opportunities for the profitable use of speculative funds in the north. As a setting for a strong real estate movement, the townsite of Stewart is perhaps unique in Canada. We present this information in the hope that it will contribute to the growing appreciation in Canada of the wealth and the opportunities that are opening in a country too long held back by public misconception—and lack of transportation.

Union freighter Chilliwack, Capt. W. W. Mounce, is due in port tonight from Vancouver and, after discharging local cargo, will proceed to Alice Arm.

MUNICIPALITY OF SAANICH IS TALKING ABOUT BREAKING UP

VICTORIA, Sept. 25.—The problem of secession in Saanich, shelved for several months by the Conservative cabinet, will be brought to the fore again within a few days, when delegations from the rural sections of Wards One, Three and Seven will present separate petitions for secession, drafted on similar lines to that of the northern wards, which caused appointment of Judge P.

S. Lampman as a special commissioner to inquire into the situation. An announcement was made by C. H. O'Halloran, solicitor for the complaining farmers, who stated that the farmers expected renewed focussing of the attention of the cabinet on the problem of the threatened disruption of Premier Tolmie's constituency, hitherto one of the most prosperous and progressive municipalities of British Columbia.

Since the presentation of Judge Lampman's report to the cabinet several months ago, a pall of silence has prevailed as to the possibility of action being taken by the government to settle the issue, and important municipal undertakings have been suspended because of the omission of the government to make a statement of policy.

Clearance of wash dresses, Wallace's. Albert Farrow, Steamship Inspector, arrived in the city on the Prince Rupert yesterday afternoon from Vancouver to make an inspection of the snagboat Hobolink which has been taken up on dry dock for the purpose.

Sport Chat

Al Simmons is to the Athletics' offence what Rogers Hornsby is to the Cubs'. When Simmons is hitting, the Mackmen are tough to beat. Fortunately for the Athletics, he is in a batting mood most of the time. Simmons has the most unorthodox style of any major league player. He pulls badly at the plate and has what is known as 'the foot-in-the-bucket' stance. When he joined the Athletics, every critic said he hadn't a chance to hit major league batting with such a style. It was suggested to Connie Mack that he make Simmons over, but Connie believed in him and correctly so. Simmons has great power in his arms and can hit a ball hard, on which he has been badly fooled. He takes long strides, covers a world of ground and is a sure catch. He is the spark plug of the Athletics.

Rogers Hornsby is one of the greatest hitters of all time. The punch he added to the Cubs' offense and the steadiness he gave to the infield were two big contributions to the Cubs' 1929 pennant. Joe McCarthy, a great manager, proved he was right when he told Owner Wrigley, "Get me Hornsby and I will win you a pennant." Hornsby, by his fine behavior, has disproved the belief of many that he is a bad actor and would upset the discipline of the Cubs. Slowed up a trifle, Hornsby doesn't cover as much territory as he once did. However, he has lost none of his cunning at the bat. Throughout the entire season he has batted .350 or better. He feels that this is to be his great year as a series winner and says the Cubs are sure winners. That doesn't mean a thing, though, unless he picks 'em better on the diamond than he ever did at the track.

ADVANTAGE WEST ROUTE

Restoration of Rate to Old Figure in East Will Benefit British Columbia

VANCOUVER, Sept. 26.—After Monday the Pacific coast will again be in a position of greater advantage in the matter of grain rates as against the eastern route, the cut rate given the eastern Canadian ports to enable them to compete with the American lines having been restored by the railway commissioners, the restoration to take place at the end of this month.

It will be recalled that when the U. S. surplus grain began to accumulate in elevators at interior points in the United States the American railways reduced the eastbound rate one cent to facilitate the outward movement. The reduction in the American rate affected all grain from Buffalo and other interior points to the Atlantic seaboard.

This lowering of the grain rates completely altered the freight structure that had existed in the relationship between U. S. and Canadian railways. The lower grain rates in the United States threatened to attract the Canadian grain to the detriment of the railways in the Dominion.

Canadian Rate Lowered

The result was that the Canadian railways in their own interests and for the national good also brought in a reduction on the grain rates eastbound from the head of the lakes to Montreal. The cut was about two cents per bushel.

While this reduction of the eastern rate restored the parity between the United States and Canadian railways, it imposed a handicap on the movement of grain westward to the Pacific. Shippers were induced to take advantage of the low eastbound rate as compared to the normal westbound, and the movement on the western route suffered.

When the board of railway commissioners sat in Vancouver, the Merchants' Exchange, through its counsel, F. G. T. Lucas, pointed out that the reduction in the Canadian grain rate eastbound was hurting the western movement, not only in export grain, but in grain for domestic and milling purposes, and urged that the rate was to be continued Vancouver would be under the necessity of applying for a corresponding reduction on the grain rate to the Pacific.

Sympathetic To Plea

The board of railway commissioners recognized the importance of the matter to Vancouver and assured the Merchants' Exchange that if the lower eastern rate was continued beyond the temporary period specified when it was initiated, the Vancouver application would be taken into consideration.

Today Mr. Lucas received the following telegram from the secretary of the board of railway commissioners:

"I am directed to state that the board is advised by the railways that the reduced rate on wheat established from Buffalo for export will not be extended beyond September 30, and that the Canadian railways which were forced to meet the reduction in competition, will on October 1 also make effective the former higher rate."

Unemployment Before Alberta

EDMONTON, Sep. 26.—Plans are now being laid by the Alberta government for meeting the unemployment situation that is expected to obtain next winter.

Various departments of the government are considering the recommendations of the joint committee appointed as the outcome of an agreement reached with Hon. Robert Forke on the occasion of his visit here during the summer.

It was then decided that a survey of the province should be made to ascertain to what extent unemployment might be looked for, with ways and means of dealing with the resulting problems, and for this purpose Walter Smitten, labor commissioner, representing the provincial government, and E. M. Johnson, district superintendent of the soldiers' settlement board, were appointed a committee.

The survey having been concluded, the joint committee has reported to the two governments, and its findings and recommendations are now being dealt with.

Judge Comments On Usefulness of Grand Juries to Country

In charging the grand jury yesterday at the assize court, Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald stated that there had been considerable discussion as to the usefulness of grand juries. In Britain they had been dispensed with during the war and in the territories they were not used. However, he felt that they should be reluctant to break down the old institutions. He thought it a good thing for them to make recommendations in regard to improvements of public matters as these recommendations often had a good effect.
