Portraying vividly the terrors of the sun-baked sands of the desert, Nights," will be at the Capitol Theatre tonight and tomorrow.

The story, which opens in the grim and death-invested regions of South Africa, is based on the sensational and daring robbery of a diamond mine. How the manager is tricked into displaying a fortune in uncut stones, only to be made a prisoner and forced to accompany his captors into the heart of the desert country in an effort II to escape with the priceless loot, is one of the dramatic highlights of the production.

The theme of the picture hinges on the merciless revenge of the mine manager when he discovers that his captors have been deserted by their guides and he is released in hopes that he might guide them to safety.
