Citizens and Doukhobors Battle On Nelson's Main Street; Clash Also in Kamsack, Saskatchewan

Chanting Sons of Freedom Were on Way to Jail to Join Brothers; Migration From Prairies to Give Aid

NELSON, Sept. 7.—"The Battle of Nelson" occurred on the main street of the city yesterday afternoon when citizens stormed about 250 men, women and children, members of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect. The mob of chanting Doukhobors was soon dispersed, but force was necessary. The Doukhobors were marching from their camp outside the city limits and had reached the centre of town when they were halted by trucks and automobiles stretched across the street. They said they were on their way to jail to join their brothers and if they were not permitted to do so they would disrobe. The battle started then.

HOUSE NOW PROROGUED

Saskatchewan Legislature Rises After Passing Few Necessary Measures

REGINA, Sept. 7.—After giving Royal assent to several measures, passed, including indemnity of $250 to members for attending the three-day session, Lieutenant-Governor Newlands prorogued the legislature late yesterday afternoon.

Before the next session, by-elections will have to be held in the constituencies of Premier Anderson's ministers-elect.

New Customs Chief Named

Edward Lennie, Who Entered Service in New Westminster, Appointed Chief Inspector

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.—Edward Lennie has been appointed to the position of chief inspector of customs and excise for the Department of National Revenue, it is announced.

Mr. Lennie entered the government service in 1905 at New Westminster and was later appointed assistant inspector of customs at Vancouver, thence being moved to Ottawa as inspector.

PIRATES AND ROBINS SPLIT

Only One Game Played Yesterday in Big Leagues—Rain Stopped Others

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 7.—In the only game of the Big Leagues yesterday, Pittsburgh Pirates and Brooklyn Robins split a double-header. Burrell Grimes took his fourth defeat of the season in the opener. The first game ended 6 to 5 in Brooklyn's favor and the second 8 to 1 for Pittsburgh.

All other Big League games were called off on account of rain.

FOUR PLANES HERE TODAY

Formation Flying of U. S. Army Amphibians Interesting Sight

Flying gracefully in formation, four United States navy planes, which have been engaged in aerial mapping of Alaska, soared over Prince Rupert about 2:30 this afternoon, much to the interest of local citizens. It was the first time so many planes had been seen in the air at one time here. The planes are bound for Seattle. Two of them were here last Monday.

Inspector William Spiller, provincial police, is sailing this evening on the Prince Rupert for a trip to Victoria on official duties. He will be away a week or 10 days.

EVADED GRIZZLY

Mining Engineer Saves His Life by Feigning Death

BURNS LAKE, Sept. 7.—H. C. Hughes, mining engineer of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co., following an old lead in Sibola mountain vicinity, near Ootsa Lake, recently, surprised a large grizzly bear, which was but nine feet distant. The bear immediately attacked, striking Hughes on the hip and knocking him several feet. With presence of mind, Hughes feigned death, keeping his face in the moss. The bear tore his arm and shoulder badly and also gashed his neck in an effort to turn the man over, finally, after biting off his finger, left the victim for dead. Hughes, after fifteen minutes, walked 10 miles to camp and was rushed by car to the Burns Lake Hospital late Thursday night.

The patient is recovering, but there is fear that infection may develop. Luckily the bear was feeding on berries, the risk from this source is minimized.

Inverness Infant Is Buried Here

Eighth Month Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kipp Died on Thursday

Bertie George Kipp, eight months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kipp, died on Thursday afternoon at Inverness cannery. The body was brought to the city on yesterday afternoon's train and interment was made this afternoon in Fairview cemetery, following a service in the chapel of the B. C. Undertakers at which Rev. Alfred Wilson of First United Church officiated.

PRINCE RUPERT IGNORED BUT BRADY TAKES UP CUDGELS IN PEACE OUTLET DISCUSSIONS

(Special to The Daily News)

GRAND PRAIRIE, Sept. 7.—The first round in the fight for the Peace River outlet was fought yesterday at Pouce Coupe when Prince Rupert was ignored by Vancouver in speeches to the residents of that town. One Vancouver speaker admitted that the demand for wheat in future would be from the Orient. J. C. Brady, M.P. for Skeena, then took up the cudgels on behalf of his home town and showed that Prince Rupert was the natural port.

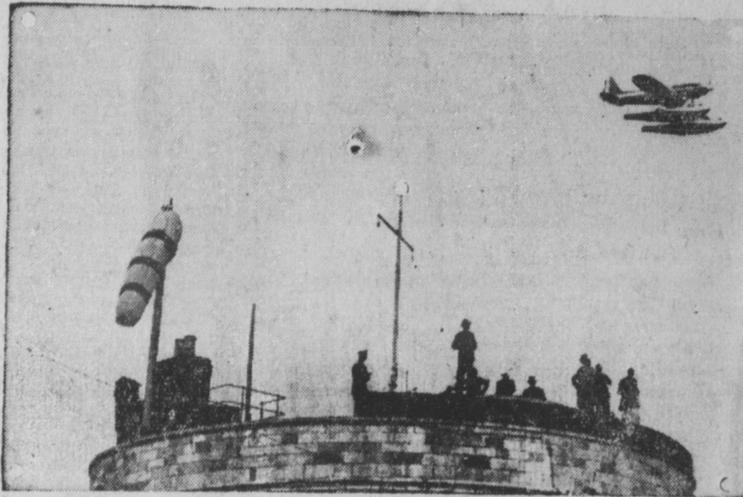

The contention of the Prince Rupert delegates was that the selection of a route should be left to the engineers.

At last night's meeting at Grand Prairie the Vancouver side was again given, but Prince Rupert was allowed no chance to reply.

Britain's Schneider Plane Beating the 300-Mile Mark

The press photographer who shot this picture just managed to get the S6 Supermarine seaplane as she flashed over Calshot Castle during a trial flight last week. At the moment this photograph was taken the S6, piloted by the captain of the British team, Squadron-Leader A. H. Orlebar, was travelling just over 300 miles an hour, flying easily.

Great Britain Successfully Defends Schneider Cup With New Speed Records in Races

RYDE, Isle of Wight, Sept. 7.—With her aviators speeding faster than any human being had ever travelled before and setting a new world's record for the Schneider Cup races, Great Britain today successfully defended the trophy against Italy. It is estimated that a million people watched the event.

H. R. D. Waghorn, on his super marine Rolls-Royce seaplane, set a new cup course record with an average speed of 328.63 miles an hour, surpassing the previous record of Lieutenant Walker, Britain, two years ago by 47.14 miles per hour.

Flying Officer R. L. R. Atcherly surpassed the world's record speed on two laps when he travelled 332.49 miles per hour, the fastest time ever made by man. Waghorn had previously made 331.10 miles per hour over one lap.

Atcherly was disqualified in the cup race when he failed to pass around one of the marks, but his world record mark stands.

Italy was overwhelmed, only one of her fliers finishing, and his average was only 284.20 miles an hour. Two other Italians were forced out of the race.

FELL FROM GOVT. DOCK

J. P. Simmons and Hoken Thompson Both in Hospital as Result

J. P. Simmons and Hoken Thompson, the latter a fisherman from the American halibut boat Middleton, fell in the harbor between the government dock and the steamer Princess Mary last night at 10:15, the former suffering a badly fractured leg when he struck the guard of the steamer in the fall, while the latter sustained a severe shaking up. Both men are in the Prince Rupert General Hospital.

The fall was the result of a scuffle between the two men, who were to sail for the south on the steamer. They were assisted out of the water by nearby persons.

BRITAIN AND PALESTINE

The Arab onslaught upon the Jews is showing signs of turning, or being turned, into a rebellion against British authority in Palestine, and a defiance of the mandate of the League of Nations under which this authority is exercised. The Arab leaders have probably gathered from the course of events in Egypt that Britain is afraid to employ force against a Mohammedan people, lest this set Asia by the ears. They may also think that the Macdonald government will be less mindful of British interests and obligations abroad than its predecessors. There is nothing in the proceedings at The Hague to encourage that idea.

One powerful section of the press in Britain is advising the government to repudiate the mandate and get out of Palestine "bag and baggage." That, it may be assumed with confidence, will not be done. If it were done, the flag might probably as well be hauled down at once clear across Asia, while British prestige everywhere would go under discount. It is no doubt an unfair arrangement that while Britain rules Palestine under mandate from the league, it is British blood and money that will have to enforce the mandate should that be necessary. But the responsibility was accepted on those terms, wisely or unwisely. Having been accepted, it will be carried through.

GRAF ZEPPELIN

One lesson of the Graf Zeppelin's flight is that of the great strides in progress which are now being made in rapid transport from one place to another. Germany will reap a great advertisement from the feat of her production, and it will doubtless spur that country on to new efforts to hold the position which she has won in the air. The round-the-world passengers share the enterprise of being pioneers in travel over new routes and in facing new dangers. Their courage in making the trial, which turned out so successfully, will inspire others to follow their example whenever the opportunity arises. It is only a question of time when such round-the-world travel will be of regular occurrence.

ONE RUINED INDUSTRY!

There is perhaps nothing more amazing in the Canadian economic picture than the strength and growth of those industries which, according to R. B. Bennett and other Conservatives, have been ruined by the tariff policy of the Mackenzie King government.

Take the dairy industry of Saskatchewan. The output of creamery butter in this province, a report from the dairy commissioner shows, was 2,500,000 pounds greater in the first seven months of 1929 than in the same part of 1928. This increase was 37.6 per cent. To give the actual figures, production was 6,444,029 pounds in the 1928 period, 8,872,904 pounds in the 1929 period.

The dairy industry, attentive readers will at once recall, is the industry which, if Mr. Bennett is to be believed, has been ruined by the treaties with New Zealand and Australia. The admission of butter from these dominions at low tariff rates, according to the Conservative leader, has made it unprofitable for Canadian farmers to make butter and driven them out of the dairy business.

The statistics for Saskatchewan show what nonsense this is. In this province the dairy branch of agriculture is flourishing and growing.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Russia is doing so much sparring that it seems doubtful if she really means to fight.

Seattle to Prince Rupert Yacht Race Mooted; New Halibut Boat Building Here; Whaling Industry Important

Talk is heard locally of the possibility of establishing a yacht race from Seattle to Prince Rupert something like that which has been held the past two summers from Olympia to Juneau, or possibly a shorter alternative to that race. While development of such a contest would be a big undertaking, it nevertheless has possibilities, and, if it could be established, would be the means of giving Prince Rupert much publicity in the marine world. Several local men are reported to have signified their willingness of putting up cash and trophies. However, everything is in a very premature state yet and it is quite possible nothing may come of it. The local yacht club will deal shortly with the suggestion, which emanates from Richard Fraboese of Seattle, whose cruiser Bolinder has participated in two Olympia-Juneau races. Prince Rupert and Vancouver boats would both probably participate in the new race.

Construction is about half completed at the McLean yard, Seal Cove, of a new halibut boat for Magnus Hveding, who has been a member of the crew of the M. M. Christopher and whose first essay this is as a boat owner. Of seine-boat type and sturdy appearance, the new boat has a length of 42 feet and beam of 11 feet. She will be equipped with a 24 h.p. Rap semi-diesel engine which was recently delivered. This is a motor of Norwegian make and the first of its kind to be installed at Prince Rupert. The new boat is expected to be completed in about two months' time and will go into operation on the opening of the 1930 season.

The Whaling Industry

The whaling industry of Canada is at present carried on only from the Consolidated Whaling Corporation's two establishments at Rose Harbor and Naden Harbor, on the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The catching of whales is conducted from specially constructed vessels. At the front of the vessel is a gun, somewhat like a small cannon, which is fixed on a platform which can readily be turned around. Instead of a shot, a harpoon is placed in the gun, to which a large rope is attached. The harpoon has spring wings on it, which are tied down. It is also equipped with a small explosive bomb. On the mast of the ship a barrel-like arrangement is placed, in which a "lookout" man stands when whales are being searched for. When he sees a whale blowing the vessel is moved ahead of the direction in which the whale is going, so as to get near to it as speedily as possible. The whale is followed to within shooting distance, when a trained gunner fires the gun and if the shot is successful the harpoon strikes the whale when the bomb bursts, which usually kills it, and the wrapping on the wings is pulled off, so that the wings spring open which prevents the harpoon from being pulled out, even if the whale is not killed at once. When the whale is dead, if there is still time for hunting, the common practice is to place a perforated nozzle of an air pipe into the whale and pump air into the body until the whale readily floats. The puncture is then tightly filled and the whale is marked with a flag, and the vessel goes on hunting until the time comes when it should go back to the whale factory, which it does with as many whales as it may capture during the day.

All parts of whales are now converted into commercial products. The lean meat of the whale in appearance much resembles beefsteak and is quite palatable, when properly cooked, and during the war there was a considerable demand for it as a food. It was then canned. There has since, however, been very little demand for whale meat for human food.

On reaching the factory the whale is drawn up on a slip when it is cut into strips, which are drawn into the factory, where these strips are cut into small pieces and are then subjected to heat to extract from them the oil, while the solid product, after being thoroughly cooked, has all the oil pressed out of it and is then ground into a fine meal which commands a large market for food for poultry, hogs and cattle. It is a very nutritious food. The oil is collected into casks or tanks and is used for various purposes. The bones are ground into meal for fertilizing purposes.

The four chief varieties of whales captured are: The sulphur bottom whale, which is the largest of all living creatures, its maximum length reaching 90 feet. The sperm whale, or Cachalot, the largest member of the toothed whale, the males reaching a length of 60 or 65 feet. The females are much smaller. From the blubber which envelops the body the sperm oil of commerce is prepared. The oil from the fatty tissue contained in a large hollow on the upper surface of the skull, spermaceti is produced. It is from this that the valuable ambergris so highly prized for perfumery purposes is secured. About 80 sperm whales are captured annually. The fin whale is smaller in size than either of the above named. It is the most numerous, about 140 being captured each year. The humpback whale reaches a length of about 50 feet. Each adult whale produces some 70 barrels of oil. In addition to these four whales, a small number of Sei whales are captured, and an occasional right and bottlenose whale.

The Rose Harbor establishment operates four steel steamers employing eleven men each. The Naden Harbor plant operates two steamers. All these steamers are of the same size and type.

The total number of whales captured during 1928 was 305, and produced 571,914 gallons of oil, valued at $8,260,592; 754 tons fertilizers, valued at $45,240; and 376 tons of bone and meat, valued at $12,784.

Since the opening of the season in the latter part of May of the present year over 200 whales have been captured, the greater number being taken by the steamers operating from the Rose Harbor establishment.

The Northland Transportation Co.'s new refrigerated steel motorship W. B. Foshay, built by the Lake Washington Shipyards, Seattle, for use with the Norco and Bellingham in carrying frozen fish from Ketchikan and other Alaskan ports, is expected to be ready for service early this fall. She will be by far the largest and finest vessel in this service. Representing an investment of $500,000 and measuring 186 by 36 feet, she is built along speedy and attractive lines and is powered with twin 560 h.p. Washington diesel engines, giving a speed of twelve knots. The W. B. Foshay company (Minneapolis) became interested in the Alaska fish business last fall by the acquisition of the Ketchikan cold storage and the Northland Transportation Co., together with the public utilities of Ketchikan.

Recent shortage of herring bait has obliged a number of the American halibut boats to depend largely upon pilchards secured on the west coast of Vancouver Island. Frozen bait is now selling for $3 a barrel in Seattle.

A visit to this port is expected soon from Capt. Alfred Jangard's new 60-foot halibut Orbit. The vessel recently landed her first fare of 12,000 pounds in Seattle.

Halibut Landings

Halibut landings at the port of Prince Rupert for the present season up to yesterday stood at a total of 20,303,050 pounds, as compared with 19,327,600 pounds at a similar date last year, and 19,169,950 pounds the year before. Canadian landings for this season, standing at 6,043,550 pounds, have again fallen slightly behind last year's 6,120,400 pounds, but are away ahead of 1928 at a corresponding date, when the total was 5,373,600 pounds. American landings are maintaining a long lead over last year, having now reached 14,259,500 pounds, as against 13,207,200 pounds in 1928 and 13,796,300 pounds in 1927. This year's total landings to date at Prince Rupert are standing at about 400,000 pounds ahead of the record year of 1926.

During the week (Saturday to Friday inclusive) a total of 694,400 pounds of halibut was landed at Prince Rupert, this consisting of 219,400 pounds Canadian and 475,000 pounds American fish. Prices were steady and satisfactory throughout the week, the high bid for Canadian fish having been 15.1c and 10c, which the Rose Spit received for 5500 pounds, and for American fish 16.5c and 8.5c paid the Wabash for 1500 pounds. The low bid of the week for Canadian fish was 12c and 8c and for American 12.6c and 8c.

Mrs. McCoskrie Was Honored

Created Life Member of Anglican Women's Auxiliary at Tea Yesterday

Yesterday afternoon a very successful and enjoyable tea was given at the home of Mrs. G. A. Rix, Bishop's House, under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary and St. Peter's Seal Cove Branch, in honor of Mrs. McCoskrie, who is being made a Dominion Life member of that organization by the different branches in the diocese.

Mrs. McCoskrie came from England with Bishop and Mrs. Ridley and Miss West in 1895 to serve as matron of the Indian Girls' Home at Metlakatla, where she remained for five years. Ever since that time she has been deeply interested in missionary and philanthropic work, and has occupied many positions of importance in connection with church work in the diocese.

At present she is secretary of the Caledonia Diocesan Board of the W. A. and also occupies the exceedingly onerous position of secretary of the Sunday School by Post, for the whole Diocese of Caledonia.

No one could be more deserving of this signal honor which has been given than she, and her multitude of friends will rejoice that her long and eminently efficient services have been thus recognized.

Those presiding in the tea room were Mrs. McCoskrie and Mrs. J. B. Gibson, assisted by Mrs. G. A. Woodland, Mrs. Greer, Mrs. W. A. McLean, Mrs. Stamp Vincent, Mrs. C. C. Mills, Mrs. Rorie, Mrs. Tobey, Mrs. G. A. Rix, Mrs. G. Kelsey and Mrs. Viper and other members of the Women's Auxiliary.

Canning Peaches Are Now Here

Elberta Peaches For Preserving Will Soon Arrive—Eggs and Flour Advance

Elberta peaches for preserving will soon be offered on the local retail market. So far peaches have been too high in price to can. Preserving peaches have also made their appearance.

The market list for this month shows many offerings of fall vegetables and fruit.

Eggs show a tendency to stiffen in price as also does flour. Butter and sugar are remaining steady.

THE GREEN SHADOW

by HERMAN LANDON

INSTALMENT XXXIX.

Axelson proceeded to obey orders. Soon the visitor was ushered into the same room in which the interview between Adele and Dr. Moffett had taken place. He carried himself with an air of spurious fortitude, as seemed natural for one coming on an errand of this sort. When Axelson had withdrawn and closed the door, he sat down and looked about him bewilderedly. He seemed a little nervous and the curious character of the illumination appeared to puzzle him.

The Interruptor

The visitor's stick clattered to the floor. A look of stark amazement crossed his fine, classical features. His fingers fumbled nervously at the carnation he always wore in his buttonhole. Until this moment he had seen no one in the room, and even now he saw only a shadowy figure seated about six feet away, and this dim shape appeared to have no head. With a mutter of surprise he sprang to his feet.

"Sit down," said the voice. "I am Dr. Moffett."

The visitor stared in stupefaction in the direction whence the voice came. He stroked his high forehead, surmounted by gray-sprinkled hair neatly parted on the side. The strange sight—a human figure whose torso tapered off into a greenish mist—seemed to unnerve him completely. As if to support himself, he gripped the side of the table.

"Sit down," said Dr. Moffett again. His voice was a little gruff. "Tell me why you came here, Castle?"

A hoarse exclamation trembled on the caller's lips. The green light accentuated his pallor. He sank weakly into the chair.

"Extraordinary!" he mumbled. "Something seems to have happened to my eyes. I—I can't see your face."

"Nothing has happened to your eyes. I prefer that you shan't see me. Compose yourself and tell me why you are here."

The visitor shook himself, recovered the stick he had dropped, moistened his lips, and did his level best to conquer uneasiness he felt in these strange surroundings.

"It's the green light, I suppose," he reasoned aloud. "It isn't as bright as an ordinary light. That is why—"

"Oh, no, not the light altogether, Castle," the doctor interrupted. "I can see you quite clearly—almost as clearly as in an ordinary light. But let's not waste time over that. I am still waiting to hear what brought you here."

The caller drew up his shoulders a little, as if striving for his characteristic poise. "Very well. One of your eccentricities, I take it, Dr. Moffett." He paused for a moment. "I suppose it would be a waste of time and breath to express my opinion of you."

"An absolute waste."

"Then"—he appeared to choose his words—"my daughter came here tonight."

"How do you know that?" was the instantaneous rejoinder.

"I learned it in a rather peculiar way. Tonight my telephone kept ringing incessantly. I—er—had determined to answer no telephone calls tonight, but the persistent ringing made me change my mind. At length I answered and some one inquired if my daughter were at home."

"Who was the inquirer?"

"I don't know. He refused to give his name. He implored me in a very excited manner to ascertain whether my daughter was in her room. I went to her door and knocked. No answer came. I opened the door and looked in. Her bed was untouched. I went back to the telephone and my mysterious informer told me I would probably find her here."

"The Pica-roon," said Dr. Moffett grimly under his breath. Then to the visitor: "Did he tell you how to find my place?"

"He gave me very elaborate directions."

"I see." The doctor's tone was faintly sarcastic. "And you came out here hotfoot on no stronger evidence than an anonymous telephone message?"

"My informant spoke very impressively, emphasizing that it was a matter of life or death. I was worried about my daughter. In the circumstances I couldn't ignore what he said."

"Curious!" mumbled Dr. Moffett. "I don't see how the Pica-roon learned how to reach this place."

"Who?" exclaimed the visitor, catching the subdued remark.

"It doesn't matter. Well, Castle, now that you are here, what do you intend to do?"

"My daughter is here, isn't she?"

"Yes," came the answer after a moment's hesitation.

The visitor sat silent for a time. His shoulders heaved a little. His voice, when he spoke, was thick with emotion. "Moffett," he said, "I am not going to waste time telling you what I think of a blackguard who uses a young girl in his nefarious schemes. You are beneath my contempt."

"The mysterious Mr. Graves is speaking in a very lofty tone," Dr. Moffett sneered.

The other smiled wanly. "Your sneers can't hurt me, Moffett. I have passed that stage. I made a mistake—a grievous mistake. You can crush me and break me. But I can still hold my head high. When I compare myself with you, I have nothing to be ashamed of. I don't have to hide my face as you are hiding yours. I never fought with dirty weapons. I never stooped to the infamy of fighting women and children. I—"

"Very pretty, Castle," the other interrupted. "You ought to carry a pulpit along with you on your travels. But suppose we drop the oratory and get down to business? What do you want?"

The visitor, as was his occasional habit, tapped the table slowly with his knuckles.

"I suppose it would be utterly useless to appeal to a spark of manhood and decency in you, to ask you to confine your warfare to me and let my daughter alone?"

"It would. I use whatever methods I see fit to adopt."

"Then what are your terms?"

"You know them—one hundred thousand dollars. You are getting double value for your money, Castle. In the beginning you were to receive only the Forrester papers. Now I am throwing in your daughter for good measure."

"I can't pay it," the other declared flatly. "I couldn't even pay half of what you ask."

The doctor laughed contemptuously. "I don't believe you. The mysterious Mr. Graves can easily get his hands on a little extra money, especially when his lovely daughter's safety is concerned. Now listen, Castle. I shan't argue this matter further. I hold Miss Castle's check for one hundred thousand and I—"

"What?"

Dr. Moffett elucidated. "Tomorrow," he went on, "this house will be deserted. The present occupants, including the charming Miss Castle, will be gone."

"If the morning you will go to your bank and procure $100,000 in cash or easily negotiable securities. About 11 o'clock you will receive a message from me directing you where to go to redeem the check and claim your daughter. These terms are final and unalterable. There is nothing further to be said."

The other's jaw sagged a little. He peered irresolutely into the green sheen where only a vague blur indicated the speaker's face. "Yes, one thing more," he protested. "Even if I should be able to procure the money, what guarantee have I you will surrender my daughter and the papers?"

"None. You will just have to trust me."

"Trust—you?"

"You have no other choice." The dim figure at the other end of the room got up to indicate that the interview was ended.

The visitor had also risen. With head hung low he peered at the grotesque shape in the distance whose face was only a greenish blur in the emerald light.

"Just one more word, Moffett." There was a trace of doubt in his voice. "As you remarked yourself, I came here on rather insubstantial information. I don't know who my informant was and—"

"I can tell you where he is," the doctor interrupted. "He is in jail. That's where your information came from."

The visitor appeared not to understand. "Anyway, it was a rather dubious item of information. You have confirmed it. You tell me my daughter is here, but it may be only a bluff."

"Oh! well, just to satisfy you—"

Dr. Moffett chuckled. There was a blurred movement of a hand. A little pause ensued, and then a gaunt, old man entered.

"Bring Miss Castle here, Axelson," Dr. Moffett directed.

The old man nodded and withdrew. The visitor showed signs of nervousness. He quickly began to move about.

"Keep still," the doctor snapped. The other stopped and leaned slightly against the table. Restlessly, with his cane, he drew imaginary figures on the floor. Soon the door opened again. Adele walked in, and behind her was Axelson. She was deathly white and she leaned against the door frame while she stared into the green illumination.

"Dad!" she suddenly cried, and then she sprang forward.

In a moment the visitor's arms unfolded her. He whispered in her ear, and a quiver ran through her.

"Convinced?" asked Dr. Moffett. The other, with one arm around her neck, caressed the girl's dark hair. He was mumbling endearments.

"That's enough," said Dr. Moffett impatiently. "Take her away, Axelson."

The old man came forward, but the visitor wound his arm more tightly about the girl.

"Not yet," he said, and there was a strange, defiant quality in his voice. "This is the end of your game, Moffett. I didn't come here alone. There are three policemen in the woods outside the gate. In a few minutes,"—he glanced at his watch—"in exactly two minutes and a half they will hammer their way in."

A dead silence fell. It was broken at length by the sound of footsteps. A gleam of steel flickered in the green light. Dr. Moffett was coming forward. He moved in a slow, creeping manner, like a beast crawling upon its prey. The ugly outlines of an automatic emerged out of the green mist. The doctor's arms, legs and torso came into clear relief, but still the face was only a green blur.

"I think that's a lie," he declared evenly.

"Wait and see," came the response.

DRYDOCK WINS SOFTBALL GAME

Will Play off in Three Games With Station For Season's Honors

In the play-off game last night for the second half honors in the C. N. Softball schedule, the Dry Dock beat the Station team 10 to 3, to win the second half of the schedule. There will be a series of three games now to decide the winners of the league, between these two teams.

The Station played a tight ball for six innings and were leading three to nothing up to that time but, after that they seemed to blow up and let the Dry Dock get 10. The Dry Dock boys played first class ball throughout, with the exception of Howe making a couple of poor throws to first.

The teams were as follows: Dry Dock—Gawthorne, Kelsey, Howe, Smith, McKeown, Hadden, Macfee, Hedstrom, Palmer.

Station—McIntosh, Astoria, Stalker, Horton, Downey, B. Skatlebo, Styles, Holtby, A. Skatlebo. Umpires—Jackson and Comadina.

One of the finals will be played tonight and the two others tomorrow.

Sport Chat

The schedule of the City Baseball League will wind up with two more games, the first to be played tomorrow, and the last game of the season will be on September 22. This Sunday's game will be between the Elks and Gyros, and the winner will play the league-leading Sons of Canada for the city championship on the twenty-second. The first game will be of particular interest because the losing team is knocked out of any chance for the league leadership. This means that both teams will be out in full strength Sunday, and each will fight to the last ditch to get into the final championship game. Both games will go the full nine innings, and as the season's play has proved that the three teams are just about evenly matched, interest in the final games should not be lacking. With any sort of break from the Weather Man, there should be a good crowd of fans on hand Sunday to cheer their favorites to victory.

As far as the brand of baseball played is concerned, the league this year has been a complete success but, in spite of what the weather experts try to tell us about having had more sunshine this summer than ever before, said weather certainly has not been favorable to good baseball. This has kept attendance at games down and in consequence the receipts have suffered. However if the fans turn out in force for the last two games, the league executive hope to keep the balance sheet clear of the red ink.

Down-hearted and dejected Max Schmeling sailed from New York, bound for Germany. The man who might have been heavyweight champion is going home to rest and think things over after a decision which robbed him of $150,000 for matches with Phil

Scott and Jack Sharkey, and a glorious chance at the vacated title. "I am tired and worn out from my troubles with the New York Boxing Commission," he said. "I am in no shape to fight Scott or anyone else right now. I have just completed a tour of 26 cities in which I boxed a total of 104 rounds and got most of my rest between sleeper jumps. I've had enough now. I'm coming back in October, I think, to straighten out my trouble with the commission."

Schmeling's refusal to fulfill a contract made by Arthur Bulow, German newspaper man who brought him to this country but was later ousted by Max, to box Phil Scrott for Promoter Humbert Fugazy, caused the trouble which resulted in the commission revoking the license of Schmeling and the managerial licenses of Joe Jac and William McCartney, two of his managers. Schmeling made plenty of mistakes, but he is not entirely to blame for everything that has happened. Bulow touched off the first match by selling "little pieces" of Schmeling's contract to an American group. It turned out that soon afterwards the American group had Schmeling under their wing and the Teuton cast out Bulow. Bulow fought for his rights and everybody—Schmeling, Bulow, Jacobs and the others lost.

Schmeling lost a lot of friends by his actions. After he whipped Paulino Uzeudun in June, the black-haired German was easily the most popular figure in the heavyweight division. He was only a jump from the heavyweight title. Going home, he is just another foreign fighter and one who is going to have a hard time getting breaks he received in his first journey here. If he returns, Jacobs, who is up to his eyebrows in trouble with the commission, now says that he has under consideration offers from several promoters for Schmeling to fight in the United States on the German's return. According to Jacobs, "Paddy" Harmon, of Chicago, has offered $50,000 for Schmeling to meet either Otto Van Porat or "Tuffy" Griffiths at Chicago in November or December.

GOLF WEEK AT JASPER PARK

Leading Players From All Over Canada to Gather at Mountain Resort

JASPER, Sept. 7.—Plans are now completed for the opening of the fourth annual golf week at Jasper Park Lodge golf course. The premier event of this week, which yearly gathers golfers of note from both eastern and western Canada, is the totem pole trophy, which has now become the golf classic of the west and gives to the winner a trophy unique among golf competitions the world over. Of solid silver, it takes the form of a totem pole, with a base of walnut, flanked by four bears and shields on the sides of the base record the name of the winner and the year of his victory. A solid silver replica of the totem pole trophy is held permanently by the winner of each tournament.

The Jasper Park Lodge golf week this year is opened this afternoon by Hon. Dr. Egbert, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, who will be accompanied by his daughter, Miss Ethel Egbert. Hon. Dr. Egbert will also be a contender in the totem pole trophy competition and apart from this main event there will also be ladies' and men's competitions and a number of attractive trophies, cups and other prizes await the fortunate competitors. The golf week will close on September 14.

To date the premier honors of winning the totem pole trophy have gone to Vancouver, it being won in its initial year by E. A. Jones, and subsequently by R. F. Baker and Alfred Bull. Judging from the number of entries of prominent golfers already received from both Vancouver and Victoria a determined effort will again be made to retain the honors of the western Canada golf classic for the Pacific coast. There is every indication, however, that strong efforts will be made to capture it in another city, as a number of notable players have intimated their intention to be present from points as Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal. It is anticipated by golf experts that it is registered at Jasper Park Lodge that the totem pole competition will be a brilliant and a hard fought one.

The Jasper Park Lodge golf week will be the second big golfing event at Jasper National Park during the season, as recently the Canadian amateur championships were played on the course, which was succeeded by those taking part in one of the best in the Dominion and unexcelled for its magnificent setting.

New Blood For U. S. Golf Final

Dr. Willing of Portland Johnson of St. Paul to Play For Amateur Title

PEBBLE BEACH, Cal., Sept. 7.—Brushing aside two former United States amateur golf champions, Dr. O. F. Willing of Portland, Ore., and Jimmy Johnson of St. Paul, Minn., yesterday qualified for the final of the national title today. Willing defeated Chandler Egbert and three and Johnson beat Francis Olmet six and five.

The Chinese-Russian situation is easy to understand. No man has much fight in him when he broke.

An optimist is one who reflects cheerfully that the bare spots on his lawn don't shine.

Spilled people who go batty with self-pity when denied their own way aren't wholly useless. They support nerve specialists.

"Throat-easy" says Talkie Star

Joseph Schildkraut, dramatic star, appearing in "Show Boat", the great talking, singing movie play, guards his voice by smoking Buckingham's.

"Permit me to express my preference for Buckingham cigarettes. There is something about a Buckingham; a very satisfying blending of flavors; a delicate tobacco fragrance, which I have found in no other cigarette. Too, one may light one Buckingham after another without any effect upon the voice. Buckingham's for me every time."

Ten Years Ago
in Prince Rupert

September 7, 1919
The fishing boat Alameda founded last night in Hecate Straits with 15,000 pounds of halibut on board. Capt. Hans Tiedman, Percy W. James and Louis Silvertson drifted for 18 hours in a skiff before being picked up by a trawling boat.

The prevailing halibut price here just now is 13.6c for first class fish and 8c for second.

The King and Winge is here with a catch of halibut, after having been on the rocks and re-floated. She will proceed to Seattle for repairs.

Mrs. Leggatt and daughter, Maizie, of Hornepayne, Ont., have arrived in town to join Mr. Leggatt, who is relieving at the C.N.R. depot during Mr. McLeod's vacation. They are taking the home of Rev. A. W. Robinson during their stay in town.

F. P. Caddy of Prince Rupert was a visitor here on Wednesday.

Miss Elliott Head returned on Wednesday from Smithers where she has been the guest of Miss Vivian Graham during the past week. She visited the Telkwa Barbecue before returning.

J. A. Robertson of Edmonton was a visitor in town during the week.

Mrs. S. A. Cooper and sons returned on Wednesday following a holiday visit with friends in Telkwa.

Joseph Hambiet of Usk was in town Wednesday.

W. L. Jordan returned on Wednesday after spending the weekend and holiday in Smithers and Telkwa.

SMITHERS

B. F. Messner and crew of men resumed work this week on the driving of the long cross-cut tunnel on the Victoria group of the Lorraine Copper-Silver Mines Ltd. H. L. Batten, consulting engineer, visited the property last week and it is in view of the encouragement given by him that work is now being resumed on the tunnel.

The annual Labor Day Barbecue at Telkwa was one of the biggest successes on record. There were many good horse races as well as rodeo events and Smithers beat Kispiox eight to three in a baseball game. The usual big dance in the evening brought the day's proceedings to a fitting close.

A recent new find of ore made by C. G. Harvey, while doing work on the Rainbow group in the Babine Range, has served to revive interest in that property which is held by a syndicate of Smithers men, headed by James Wright. The new discovery was of a six-foot vein, down the hill from the older workings, in which there is a two foot body of high grade copper ore, carrying good silver values. The property is close to the main Driftwood Creek road, about 14 miles from Smithers.

William Johnson, an aged man, who had been identified with the staff of the Babine hatchery for many years, was dragged to death by his horse on the road in the neighborhood of Topley on Monday. He suffered a broken leg, fractured skull and broken ribs. He was returning by horseback to Babine after attending the Prince Rupert Exhibition, when the accident occurred.

The marriage took place here, quietly, on Tuesday evening, of Miss Martha Farmer, sister of Mrs. G. H. Wall, and David Ross. The couple left yesterday for Prince Rupert en route to Nanaimo, where they will reside.

BURNS LAKE

The new St. John's Anglican Church here, an attractive and well appointed edifice, was consecrated recently by Rt. Rev. G. A. Rix, Bishop of Caledonia, assisted by Rev. J. H. Kerr, the rector, and Rev. William Sweetman of Endako.

District visitors in town during the week have included: Buster Harrison, Wistaria; R. Hougen, Bickle; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Shinn, Southbank; Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Smith, Francois Lake; R. G. Stearns, Tintagel; Fay S. Short, Colleymount; Charles Solberg, Uncha Valley; Mrs. George Wall, Mrs. N. P. Moran, Miss M. E. Farmer and Miss Avis Wall, Smithers; Mrs. Howard Pringle, Southbank; Oscar Legault, Southbank, and R. M. Carroll, Decker Lake.

Miss Mary McRae of the student staff of the Prince Rupert General Hospital, is visiting at Palling with Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Silk.

Mrs. Neil Van de Veen and daughter, Miss Lillian Van de Veen, were in attendance at the fall fair in Smithers where they took many prizes.

J. E. Umbach, surveyor general for the province, has been spending a few days here and in the district on official business.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McGowan and daughter, Miss Dorothy McGowan, have returned to Burns Lake after spending the summer vacation in the south. Mr. McGowan is principal of the local school.

Mrs. J. Bland and family have left for a trip to Shelley where they will visit with friends.

PRINCE GEORGE

The nights are getting cool here and fall frosts may be soon expected if it keeps clear as it has been for the past week. The lowest thermometer reading of the week was 34 above on Monday.

Samples of Manson Creek ore sent out for assay by T. R. Rush showed nickel content of 1.56 per cent and 20c gold and 74c silver.

On the reopening of school here there was an almost complete change in the personnel of the teaching staff. Newly appointed teachers include Miss C. L. Irwin, Vancouver; Miss Marjorie Roberts and Miss Ruth Hornsby, Prince George; Miss M. McMillan and Gordon Leversage, Vancouver; and James Fraser. Resigning teachers have included Miss E. McKee, Miss J. Pack, Miss S. Cowan, Miss L. Davis, Leroy Stibbs and J. A. K. Armour.

William Horsman, who sued Robert Lowe and Dr. J. T. Steele of the board of village commissioners of Burns Lake for damages as a result of injuries he sustained while engaged in the clearing of an airplane field there, has been awarded $400 and $200 costs by Mr. Justice Fisher. The case was tried at the last session of the Supreme Court Assizes here. His Lordship found that there was nothing in the village charter empowering Lowe and Steele to engage Horsman for the work.

W. L. Brintnell, operating manager for the Western Canada Airways, stopped here from 11 o'clock Tuesday morning last week to 1 o'clock in the afternoon while flying back to Winnipeg after his flight from Aklavik to Dawson.

A Vancouver mining syndicate, headed by Col. Nelson Spencer, has made arrangements to undertake the development of a number of mining claims in the vicinity of Tchemto Lake in the Nation River district and within the next few days will take a number of men into the district by airplane.

ALICE ARM

The Britannia Mining & Smelting Co. is reported to be having good success with the development of the Toric mine here. One machine is engaged in drifting on the ore body and a diamond drill is being used for development purposes. About 20 men are employed and it is expected work will be continued throughout the winter. A rumor persists here that the Britannia company may become interested in the Dolly Varden property.

Practically all of many Anyox residents who spent summer holidays at Alice Arm had returned to their homes in the smelter town by the end of last week.

Miss A. Hedegaard of Denmark, who came to this country to attend an international nurses' convention which was held in Montreal during the past summer, has arrived here to spend several weeks visiting with her cousin, Jens Larson.

T. J. Shenton, Inspector of mines, Prince Rupert, spent a few days here last week on official duties.

The auction of lots on the Indian Reserve here will be conducted this week by J. W. Smith, provincial government auctioneer.

The Letter Box

KELLOGG PACT

Editor, Daily News:—

In your issue of August 24, there was an article reprinted from the Winnipeg Free Press regarding the Kellogg Pact. In order to correct a somewhat prevalent view, let me say a few words.

First of all, let us get rid of the idea that the Pact is only a gesture. Is there anyone who thinks that his country has put her signature to a worthless document? Then her signature is of the same value. One cannot entertain the idea that Canada regards the pact as equal in value to a scrap of paper, as the phrase "only a gesture," would signify. It is quite true, and more true than many realize, that the pact has been almost the sole reason for the avoidance of war between China and Russia.

Again, as to the matter of sanctions, the pact would be weakened by allusion to any such matter. It would contradict its very nature to have such clauses included. The pact calls for the settlement of disputes only by peaceful means. It would become only a meaningless gesture were it to endeavor to guarantee peace by the use of force. A treaty relies on the honor of the nation signing it, in any case, and no sanction is sufficient to supply that honor, if it be lacking.

In his address at Geneva, on the subject, "Why Canada Signed the Pact," Premier King said: "It is the very brevity and simplicity of that solemn renunciation which gives the pact its unique force and value." Quoting again, "If I venture to stress somewhat the Briand-Kellogg treaty, it is because of the experience of Canada under an agreement entered with over a century ago, which agreement was essentially in the nature of a renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy." He goes on to show that the pact endeavors to do for the world, what the Rush-Bagot treaty did for us since 1818.

Again, "Much is heard in the old world of the prosperity of the new. There are doubtless economic causes which account in no inconsiderable measure for that prosperity. There are, however, other causes scarcely less important. Of these, I am inclined to put first and foremost the elimination of all fear of aggression, which has been brought about in the manner I have described."

Hoping I have not written at too great length.

H. T. ALLEN.

In Tune with Nature

Nature has dictated the colour scheme for Men's Clothes this Fall.

With all of the artistry for which they are famous, Fashion-Craft have translated Nature's bidding in line and drape that will delight college "grad." and business dad alike.

Smart individuality and common sense have been happily blended in the new Fall suits.
