Premier Tolmie Urges Strongly Upon Premier Mackenzie King That Sockeye Treaty be Passed

Treaty Which Was Vigorously Opposed by Federal Members Is Necessary For Preservation of Big Industry; Other Matters

VICTORIA, Nov. 14.—"The Province of British Columbia wants the sockeye salmon treaty ratified," Premier Tolmie stated after a conference with Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, here yesterday.

"I asked Mr. King about it and he said he would bring it up again at the next session," Premier Tolmie said. "People connected with the canneries think this treaty will regulate the catch so as to save the industry. A start cannot be made too soon. This province is intensely interested, for there is a thirty million dollar industry at stake."

Dr. Tolmie said he did not fear that it would give the United States any authority with respect to Canadian rivers which would be disadvantageous. "We have not lost anything because we joined the United States in an international joint commission governing boundary rivers. Canadians are able to hold their own."

The cause of the dropping of the treaty at the last session of Parliament was the opposition of the British Columbia members led by General McRae and supported strongly by the member for Skeena, J. C. Brady. The Premier, while promising to bring it up again, intimated that if the British Columbia members continued to oppose it, the treaty would not be pressed.

Other matters taken up with the Federal Premier by Premier Tolmie were: That the federal Government assist the province in paying the expenses arising out of the Doukhobor trouble. That final arrangements for the transfer of the railway belt and Peace River block from the Dominion to the Province be made with minimum delay.

That full consideration be given the Province's proposals for a guaranteed western freight rate. The Premier King promised, fullest consideration. The final details of the railway hand transfer, it is understood, will be taken up immediately, looking to ratification at the coming session of the federal Parliament and the provincial Legislature.

OLD-TIMER DROPS DEAD

Frank Brochu Former Merchant. Expired This Morning in Tinsmithing Shop Where He Worked

Frank Brochu, a well known pioneer of this city, dropped dead at 8 o'clock this morning in the shop of H. Letourneau, 609 Sixth Avenue West, where he was employed, evidently the victim of heart failure. He had just entered the shop to go to work when he fell on his back about five feet from the door. He was exclaiming as his employer, Mr. Letourneau, came in and was dead by the time a physician, Dr. L. W. Kerwin, was able to reach the scene. His rainclothes were still on.

The late Mr. Brochu was 55 years of age and was a French-Canadian, having been born in the province of Quebec. He came to Prince Rupert in 1910 and, for a year was engaged with Mr. Letourneau in the tinsmithing business. Then he went into business with Wilfrid Gratton and later opened a furniture store on Third Avenue. After that, for some years he conducted the Seaview Grocery store at the junction of First, Second and Third Avenues. Still later he was janitor for about a year of the Besmer Block and for the past nine months had been in the employ of Mr. Letourneau. During the last year or so, it was to be noted that he was falling.

Deceased is survived by two daughters—Wilma (Mrs. Rose) and Verna—a son, Gordon, and a small daughter, Vivian, as well as his wife, the late Mrs. Brochu. His parents still live at St. Bernard, Quebec, and there is a brother here—George Brochu. Another brother is Narcisse Brochu who lives in Maine. Two sisters, Mrs. Marie Temoux and Mrs. Valdeia Dumont, also live in Maine. Deceased was a Roman Catholic in religious faith.

Funeral arrangements are in the hands of Hayner Bros. undertakers. An enquiry will be held this afternoon by Coroner C. I. Monroe but it is not likely an inquest will be called.

VICTORIA, Nov. 14.—The appointment of a joint committee consisting of two United States and two Canadian representatives to thoroughly inquire into the proposed highway to Alaska was mooted at a conference held here yesterday between Premier Mackenzie King, Premier Tolmie and United States representatives, including Major Malcolm Elliott, president of the Alaska Roads Commission, and members of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce.

Premier King intimated that he would need further information before committing himself on the matter.

The highway conference proposed a committee consisting of a representative each of the United States, the Federal and Provincial Governments to inquire into the cost and feasibility of the road.

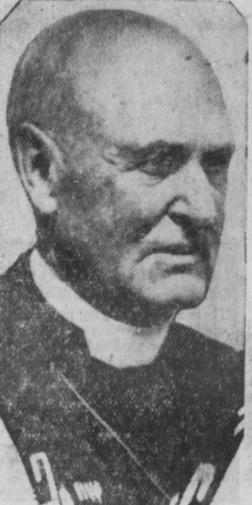

ELECTIONS IN MEXICO

Speculation as to What Will Happen After Sunday, Nov. 17

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14.—Mexico is clearing its decks for another of those great trials which almost invariably in the past have brought on revolutions. If nothing happens to prevent it, the people will go to the polls Sunday, November 17, to choose between Jose Vasconcelos and Pascual Ortiz Rubio for their next president. The campaigning so far has been accompanied by usual violence. There have been several assassinations, followed by the customary charges and counter-charges. But the opinion prevails that despite these incidents and those that may come election day will roll around and the people will have opportunity to cast their ballots.

The serious phase of the elections, if there is to be any, will come after the voting, the consensus shows. President Portes Gil has promised impartiality, but if Ortiz Rubio comes out of the elections with a majority it will be a difficult matter to convince the Vasconcelistas that they have been defeated fairly.

LOG SCALE IS HIGHER

Year's Production Still Maintaining Lead Over Last Year Despite Recent Depression

While recent months have been showing a slight decrease when compared with similar months last year, the total log scale for Prince Rupert district this year is still maintaining a substantial lead over 1928. Up to October 31 this year the scale totalled 99,408,585 board feet, as compared with 75,745,609 board feet during the first ten months of 1928. The scale for the month of October this year totalled 13,823,304 board feet, as compared with 14,385,896 board feet in the corresponding month last year.

Pole production in the central interior of the district is still ahead of last year, while cedar piles and railway ties show decreases.

Following are scaling figures for the month of October this year:

Alberta Town Swept Out of Existence by Bush Fire Which Destroyed Everything at Thorhild

EDMONTON, Nov. 14.—All of two hundred inhabitants of the thriving little town of Thorhild are homeless, many without clothing, all without food, but being sheltered at farm houses, as a result of a bush fire which swept over the place last evening, destroying practically the entire town. No lives were lost but several suffered burns.

Thorhild is fifty-three miles north of Edmonton. The fire was noticed about 6 o'clock as a small blaze to north-west. The flames were caught by driving wind and carried the raging mass at a terrific rate upon the town before the danger was realized. Eight farmers in the vicinity were completely burned out. The homeless shivering people were quickly billeted in every farm house which could spare even floor space. The majority of the children escaped only in night clothes.

TSEEKWA IS TOTAL LOSS

Well Known Local Pleasure Cruiser Broken Up in Storms Following Stranding Saturday Night

D. C. Stuart's pleasure cruiser Tseekwa, which struck a rock on Wearmouth Island in Metlakatla Passage last Saturday evening, has been so badly broken up by storms since her stranding that it is now impossible to save her. It is possible that the 10 h.p. Buffalo engine, with which the vessel was equipped, may not even be saved, although there is still hope that it may be.

Mr. Stuart and his hunting party, which consisted, besides himself, of W. W. Wrathall and Ernest Anderson were brought home yesterday from the island by Bert Wearmouth.

The Tseekwa was a well known local pleasure boat, 32 feet long, and had been owned by Mr. Stuart for many years. The boat was originally built in Vancouver.

REPORTS ON SCHOOLS TO THE BOARD

High School Comes in for Lengthy Conversations at Meeting Last Night

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN

No Entertainment at Christmas Owing to Backward Condition of Students

Measles and other forms of illness tended to make percentage averages of attendance in city schools during October lower than usual, according to reports of teachers presented at last night's board meeting. These reports showed a total enrollment in the schools of 1090 pupils, 537 being boys and 553 girls. The attendance figures for October were as follows:

	Boys	Girls	Tots.
High School	91	120	211
Booth School	243	232	475
Borden Street	156	163	319
Seal Cove	33	30	63
Westview	14	8	22
	537	553	1090

Percentages, High School, 92.3%; Booth School, 82.57%; Borden Street, 91%; Seal Cove, 82%; Westview, 91.78%.

The principals of the schools were present and elaborated on their reports.

D. H. Hartness, principal of King Edward High School, referred to the need of typewriter tables and library facilities in that school. Some leaks had developed in various parts of the building which the principal recommended should have a thorough reconditioning. The northeast corner of the building was sinking, he stated. A water course from the street was flooding part of the grounds and flowing against the school. Chemicals, drawing paper and a map of the British Empire were among the needs of the school.

Results of October examinations have been poor but not worse than expected, Mr. Hartness reported. However, the attitude of the pupils toward the school had much improved and everything was being done to raise the standards of the work. As the year advanced, it was hoped to increase the general efficiency.

A students' council has been formed and also a girls' club. The sum of $25 had been spent on sports, the I.O.D.E. Hall being used for girls' badminton and the Exhibition Hall for basketball. It had been decided to abandon a Christmas entertainment this year as it was felt the academic standing of the school could not spare the time.

The oil burning system had been installed in the school and was functioning satisfactorily. Three boys in the High School had been denoted, Mr. Hartness announced.

The secretary was instructed to order such High School supplies as were felt to be absolutely necessary. Trustee Gilchrist stated that Mr. Hartness was doing splendid work and should be backed up by the board. The laboratory supplies were particularly necessary, Trustee Barrie felt.

Regarding the water draining at the High School, the board felt that the city was responsible as it came off the street. The city engineer will be interviewed in the matter.

Trustees Spencer and Gilchrist were delegated to look into certain irregularities of attendance at the High School upon which Mr. Hartness reported.

Typewriter desks for the commercial classes were being made by the manual training department, it was reported, but the job was a slow one.

Booth School

Miss E. A. Mercer, principal of Booth Memorial School, reported that savings among pupils of that school for the month had amounted to $127.90. Examinations had been held and indicated satisfactory progress. It had been decided to hold no Christmas concert this year on account of illness among the pupils.

Miss Mercer reported that there were a number of bad leaks in her school, particularly in the roof of the auditorium.

The leaky condition of the school was discussed by the trustees. It had been planned to make necessary repairs during the past summer but it had been found impossible to do it all. The roof had disintegrated at certain points, Trustee Gilchrist stated, and there was the danger of part of it being blown off altogether. Though making of repairs was considered imperative, the board decided that little could be done at this time of year so no action was taken in the matter. The obtaining of a new flag for the school was also left over for a while.

Miss Mercer reported the case of a girl whose health made it advisable that she attend school only half a day. Action in the matter was left to the discretion of Miss Mercer.

Borden Street

Miss S. A. Mills, principal of Borden Street School, suggested that a cover be placed over the girls' playground which was in a muddy condition. Satisfactory work was being carried on in most of the grades, she reported. The board decided that nothing could be done about the playground at this time of year.

Miss Olive E. McArthur reported school savings of $11.80 at Seal Cove and Miss J. D. Moffatt, $10.65 at Westview.

Domestic Science

Miss Jessie McLennaghan, director of home economics for the department of education, reported on recent inspections which she had made of the domestic science department of the local schools. Excellent work was being carried on by Miss Rowe and Miss Currie, the report stated.

The board authorized the secretary to purchase five double electric plates for the domestic science department and the sum of $10 was granted for the purchase of certain books recommended by Miss McLennaghan in her report.

MIX WINNER BIG FIGHT

Knocked Out Knockout Martin in Beginning of Second Round

KETCHIKAN, Nov. 14.—Battling Mix, 138 pounds, knocked out Knockout Martin, 174, in Redman's Hall at the beginning of the second round of the main event. The Chronicle, telling of the brief fight, said:

The Dusky Panther took a lunge at Martin and Martin ducked, a delightful little bow, but he forgot to straighten up and for the rest of the round stayed in that enticing little pose, head hidden under his arms, arms hidden under his body and body on a pair of feet that refused to track, and the Panther; Oh boy! How and where and when he hit that blacksmith, he hit him everywhere but on the sole of his shoe. If the ringpost had been loose he would have knocked Martin out the first round.

Martin awakened once to take a lunge at Mix and in that instant Mix seemed to take notice of the blacksmith, if he had kept on swinging in the general direction of Mix he might have won the fight.

Knockout Martin was knocked out as he came out of his corner for the second round.

School accounts for the month of October, totalling $9,287.64 and including salaries, were passed for payment at the meeting of the school board last night.

Correspondence from J.W. Gibson, supervisor of technical education for the province, was read at last night's school board meeting in the matter of High School correspondence courses which at least two local young men are desirous of taking up. These courses are given without charge, it was pointed out.

School trustees at the meeting last night discussed the practice of transporting pupils in Westview to and from Borden Street School. It was felt by one trustee that the Westview School had been established so this would not have to be done while another was of the belief that parents should be responsible for their children getting to and from school. This should be considered when people established residence in that part of the city. However, since the practice had been started, it was felt that it could hardly be discontinued for the time being at least.

INSTALMENT XII.

"To begin by repeating what I told you last night—my family, my sister, my mother and myself are not content to do what so many of our exiled Russians have done. They are living in luxury, many of them, on the Riviera, in Paris, even in New York, living on their titles, on their prestige, upon the charity and sympathy of the world. That does not suit us. We have lost our country, and there is much blame to be attached to us for that. When we lost our country, we lost our names, we lost everything except our souls. Those we have kept."

"You have hope?" she asked eagerly.
"Why not? When, in the world's history, did a regime, a scheme of government, founded upon mud, built over a cesspool, endure? Given long enough time, that present country which calls itself Russia must collapse of its own accord. It is our wish to hasten that time so that it may come before we are too old to taste the joy of feeling the soil of our home land once more beneath our feet. It is for that we work, hour after hour, and week after week, work for our livings in the daylight, work for our country in the hours of quiet."

He finished his brandy and stood up.
"I have work now in the kitchen," he announced. "We have not a great quantity of china or cutlery, and everything must be prepared for the service of dinner this evening."

"And afterward you dance?" she asked wonderingly.

"And afterward I dance," he assented. "Sometimes perhaps my footsteps are a little heavy, but they do their business all the same. I want you to know, Miss Brown, that while you are now, and will be until you can be released of your trust, surrounded by enemies, you have also friends. Listen, I will give you proof that I have told you the truth, that I was at Lomberton Square last night. Behind the screen—"

He leaned forward and whispered, Miss Brown was back again amid the horrors.

"You saw the paragraph in the paper this morning?" he went on. "That was all. There will be no more than that. It was I who helped to move him—I and the fog, which made it easy. There will be no outcry, no word of complaint to the police, but they know over there at Moscow that they have lost the best man who ever enlisted under their secret service, and they know well that Dessiter killed him. And over here—a man unknown! Perhaps. But even your police, though dull, are not fools. Even your Home Department, though fettered by conventions, has learned how to muzzle the press at times. The name of that man was known in every city of the world. In Barcelona, in Moscow, Rome and Paris, Bucharest and Shanghai, they wear mourning for him. There will be a black edge around their paper, but his name will never be mentioned. That is how these men slip out of the world."

"It doesn't sound like real life," Miss Brown mused.

"There is a great deal in life," Paul told her, "of which the multitudes never dream. And now I must go. Please come here when you can to eat. You are of our circle. You will be welcome."

Miss Brown held out her hand, a little startled at feeling it raised to his lips. Afterward she went timidly with her purse in her hand to the desk where Madame presided, but Madame shook her head.

"Today you are my son's guest," she said. "I hope you have enjoyed your luncheon? Whenever you care to come back we shall be glad to see you. At another time you must meet my husband. Today he is a little excited. He talks politics with General Dovo-litz—and that generally upsets him."

Miss Brown took her leave, feeling somehow or other as though she had left the presence of royalty, instead of having been bidden farewell by a lady with a cash register from behind the desk of a small eating house. Upon the threshold, to her surprise, she met Paul. A black overcoat covered his conventional waiter's garb and he held a bowler hat in his hand.

"A friend who has a spare afternoon," he confided—"he is a cousin really, who was in my regiment during the war—has come in to wash the dishes. I am free therefore. You will permit that I accompany you home?"

"Wouldn't it do you more good to lie down?" she suggested. "You look so tired."

"I would like," he confessed, "to ride on the top of a bus with you."

She laughed softly. The enterprise appealed to her.

"For an hour," she agreed. "We will go to Hammersmith and back."

They found an omnibus, climbed on to the top and seated themselves side by side. They were in no respect an unusual-looking couple. They seemed indeed very much a part of the world which passes daily backward and forward from the travail of the city to the sporadic rest of the suburbs. Miss Brown was wearing her rather dingy mackintosh, a small black hat of some shiny material suitable for wet weather, and gloves which she had intended to replace during an afternoon's shopping. Paul's overcoat had been bought ready-made in Holborn and he was by no means of stock size. His laced shoes had been purchased with an idea of wear and his hat, with its thin nap and streaky edges, betrayed the spirit of economy in which it had been acquired. Nevertheless, Miss Brown's eyes shone blue with the spirit of enterprise, and Paul, as he removed his hat for a moment, showed the fine shape of his head, the strength of his jaw notwithstanding his rather high cheek bones, and the visionary light in his clear, strong eyes. For November there were fewer clouds about than usual and a breeze that was almost soft.

"Well," he inquired abruptly, as they started on their way, "you have seen how we live—what do you think of us?"

There were sixty passengers going south aboard the steamer Princess Mary which was in port late yesterday afternoon bound from Skagway to Vancouver. Most of them were Yukoners and Alaskans going outside for the winter.

A letter from S. J. Willis, superintendent of education, advised the school board at its meeting last night that a number of important changes had been made governing the use of supplementary readers in the public schools. Henceforth, it was announced, the books to be used must be authorized by the Council of Public Instruction, the object being to eliminate all books of foreign origin. Co-operation of the board in seeing that only such books as were authorized be used was sought.

Mrs. T. M. Spencer acted in the chair at last night's regular monthly meeting of the board of school trustees in the absence of Chairman Thomas McMeekin who has been on a trip to the interior and is expected to return to the city this afternoon. Mrs. Spencer made an excellent chairman, too, carrying on the business with despatch and curbing certain tendencies toward volubility on the part of other trustees. Other trustees present were J. H. Thompson, William Gilchrist and W. J. E. Barrie, J. O. Williamson, secretary, was also in attendance as well as the principals of the various schools. The session lasted about an hour and a half, which is a good deal shorter than usual.

Salary Revision To Be Discussed

School Board to Meet at Once With Request of Teachers for Conference On Matter

The school board decided last night to have an early conference with the local Teachers' Association in the matter of revisions of the salary schedule. A letter from the Teachers' Association stated that it was ready to discuss the matter and, indeed, was disappointed that the board had not already met with its request to this effect.

The consensus of opinion of the trustees was that the conference should not be delayed further, so it was decided to request Chairman Thomas McMeekin, immediately upon his return from a trip to the interior, to arrange a special meeting of the board with the teachers on the question.
